LET US REASON TOGETHER.

THIS is the time of year above all others when men reason. The old year is dead and gone, and the new, with its many possibilities, is making its bow. In the reasoning process, business matters cannot well be ignored by business men. Success in business depends on reasoning. We want to reason with you in just a few words : Biscuits is one of the important staple lines in every grocer's store. Does it not therefore follow that there must be variety and quality if your business in this line is to be successful ? The products of our factory have both variety and quality. There are nearly 500 different kinds of buscuits to select from, and their quality is good because nothing but the best materials are used in their manufacture. As no other manufacturers in Canada can say this to the same extent, the logical conclusion is that Christie's are the biscuits for you to stock.

Wasting Your Energies?

If it pays to push an article, it pays to push it to some purpose and to push more with an object of gaining permanent trade than of temporary profit. If the demand for any article stops when you stop pushing it 95 per cent. of your energy has been wasted.

You waste no energy whatever in advocating the sale of the "Griffin" Brand of Dried Fruits and the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Fish, because people who buy them once will buy them again and again. Briefly, the intrinsic merit of both these articles backs up the highest praise you can give them.

"Griffin" Brand Dried Fruits.

Seedless Raisins and Prunes. Dried Apricots, Peaches and Pears in all their original goodness. A revelation to the grocer who has been buying other Brands.

Selected with the greatest care and shipped in original boxes right from the Vineyards and Orchards on the Pacific Coast.

Look for the "Griffin" trade mark before you buy.

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

Canned Haddies, Kippered Herring and Herring and Tomato Sauce. Selected, cured and packed by Captain Austin of The Thistle Canning Co., Little River, N.S.

Absolutely clean, rich, delicate, appetizing. Prepared right at the water side where they are caught. The brand of highest quality and so recognized the world over.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

THE most frequent excuse made by the merchant who neglects his window is that he has no time. Few in this day dare say that they do not think a well-dressed window sells goods. They would not risk setting up their opinion against that of the ninety-nine out of a hundred who insist upon the expenditure of much time and money on the display of goods seen by passersby. But they will hide behind the excuse that the time consumed is more than can be afforded in the store, implying by this that business is so brisk that the entire attention of the staff is necessary to wait on the customers.

Ask the same merchant how he would meet the contingency of an overflow of customers, and he would say that he would engage more clerks. And yet, although he will admit that in some cases at least, the tasty display of an article will sell it, he often cannot see that the employment of one more clerk for window dressing would mean a larger business. He is loath to add to his present staff, simply because, for the few additional dollars a week he would have to pay, there would not appear any direct, immediate return. An extra clerk is much more profitable when employed as a window-dresser than if he were engaged solely as a salesman.

But this cry is in almost every case made without thought. There are many minutes during the day which are idled away by all the clerks. These, if set apart for one clerk to be spent in decorating the window, would mean no additional help, and procure all the beneficial results of an attractive store. "I haven't time" is very often equivalent to "I have not the ambition to make time." Those time-consuming displays that cost much money in addition, are not a necessary part of the window plans. An excellent display can be arranged in far less time than is wasted every day in almost every store, and after a clerk gets experience, the time spent grows less and less. The plans should be thought of during the regular business or out of hours, and the arrangement can then be quickly worked out. If the merchant who "hasn't" time would make time, he would come to an appreciation of the value of good displays that would make them as important as any other branch of the business.

A Starch Window—Dressed for E. Brown & Co., Peterboro, by Andrew Graham.

This Week's Illustration.

This starch window was dressed by Andrew Graham for E. Brown & Co., Peterboro, and contained nothing but the products of The Edwardsburg Starch Co. The idea was obtained from that company's advertisement, and "The Queen of Starches" is the central figure, seated in a fur-lined chair. Behind stands a figure of a negro holding a Japanese umbrella over the queen. The illustration shows the rows of packages of starch, between which bulk starch was carelessly piled. The background consisted of pyramids of packages, flanked by two pictures, given by a soap company. This plan of using bulk goods in the window is very seldom employed, and yet it is in many cases very effective. It gives a "stocky" appearance, and, by its unusualness, forms an attraction. With such a window it is necessary to have other features that relieve the roughness of such a display, and this is effected in the window shown by means of the rows of packages, the pyramids and the figure at the back.

OBSERVE DETAIL.

Although a large part of the work in connection with window dressing is the formation of a plan to be followed in the arrangement, it is not by any means all that requires close attention. Any clerk in the store may be capable of suggesting excellent ideas to the window-dresser, but only the latter can be depended upon to carry out the idea in a way that will give the best results.

In the actual arrangement the time spent on detail is of great consequence. The general plan may be closely followed without obtaining a good effect, whereas the same plan may be made much more attractive by observing what would be usually called the unimportant part of the display.

Exposed framework may not interfere with the intended design, but it utterly ruins the value of the window. The plan is almost always general in its character, and, however good, may be spoiled by the filling in. The slant of one prominent article, the introduction of too many objects, or neglect to conceal a rough framework may rob the display of most of its value, however cleverly conceived the plan may be. Many of these faults may be avoided by a close inspection of the window from the street.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

THE following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the Canadian Government office in London :

1. A Liverpool firm of commission and general merchants, offering good references, are seeking the representation of a good Canadian exporter.

2. Inquiry is made respecting the nature of the encouragement offered by any municipal authority in Canada in the event of a company or group of capitalists starting a new industry by erecting a factory for the manufacture of a staple article not at present being produced in the Dominion.

3. An Irish dairy society desires to get into touch with parties in Canada who can supply them with small cut-up boards, suitable for nailing into butter boxes.

4. A provision and produce broker in the North of England desires to get into communication with a first-class packer of provisions in Canada.

5. Application has been made for the addresses of iron works (blast furnaces) or steel works in Canada, by a firm desiring to bring before them propositions concerning the utilization of slags.

6. A Vienna commission merchant, with English experience and good references, is anxious to hear from Canadian exporters starting a Continental connection.

7. The names of parties in different parts of Canada, willing to act as buying agents for a large manufacturer of sauces and other similar grocers' sundries have been applied for.

8. A West of England firm have asked to be furnished with the name of a large Canadian canning house requiring representation in Great Britain.

The following enquiries were received at the Canadian Section of the Imperial Institute, London, Eng.:

9. An engineering company seeks the co-operation of some first-class Canadian manufacturers prepared to take up the manufacturing agency of their brick and tile machinery.

10. A timber manufacturing firm, in a position to place considerable orders, wishes to hear from Canadian shippers of box shooks.

11. Enquiry has been made for the addresses of Canadian manufacturers of carpets.

12. A Bristol manufacturer of fire bricks for furnaces, who can ship advantageously from Avonmouth, would like to hear from Canadian buyers of these goods.

[The names of those making inquiries may be obtained from the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.]

CORRESPONDENCE.

PROBLEM FOR MANUFACTURERS.

Editor "Canadian Grocer":—I beg to call your attention to an important point in regard to Canadian export trade. In the first instance Canadian manufacturers cannot supply the home markets. The requirements of the country are growing so rapidly the manufacturers are unable to keep pace, and the results are a failure to make a success of the home markets and a feeble export trade.

The West is developing rapidly, and with the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern an immense new area of territory will be open for settlement.

At the present time the total population of the West from Winnipeg to Dawson is only about a million, merely a handful of pioneers, and on good authority it is stated, eastern manufacturers were unable to supply the requirements of these people. What will they be able to do in a few years when the population for the whole Dominion will be double what it is now.

For years manufacturing in the West will be comparatively small. The great bulk of their requirements will have to be supplied by the eastern manufacturer. The popular cry of the day at the present time is short on nearly all lines of staples.

The most important point to study on this subject is can the manufacturers supply the home markets and create a surplus for the export trade. Never before in the history of Canada has this question of manufacturing for the wants of the people become so prominent. Canadians must now understand they have more work on their hands than any other country in the world. They must also have complete faith in the successful development of the whole Dominion. They must also understand there are thousands of articles that could be manufactured in the country that we purchase abroad.

Let the Canadian manufacturer run his eye over the map of Canada, and take note of the thousands of miles of new railways to be constructed, and an increasing population to cater for, and I think he will agree with me that this is a subject for consideration.

Your remarks in an editorial upon the unsuccessful attempt of the Canadians to open a market in South Africa brought this subject to my attention.

GILBERT S. McCONNELL.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 17, 1903.

BROKE ALL CANADIAN RECORDS.

The Winnipeg Tribune published on Saturday, December 19, a Christmas number which for size and quantity of advertising is said to have outrivalled all Canadian competitors.

This big issue contained 60 regular size pages of news, special Christmas matter and holiday features, and had a handsome lithograph frontispiece. The advertising pages contained 282 columns of advertisements, which is the largest amount of advertising ever carried in a single issue of any Canadian newspaper. The paper was gotten out by the regular staff and printed on The Tribune's big Hoe press.

Cool Cured Cheese.

THE results of the experiments in cool curing of cheese by the Dominion Department of Agriculture at the four illustration stations located at Brockville, Cowansville, St. Hyacinthe and Woodstock the last two years have just been published and show very encouraging results. At these four illustration stations over 70,000 cheese from some 40 factories have been cured during the last two seasons. As the cheese were collected from the factories, a number from the same vat from all factories were set aside each week, and after being carefully weighed, one was placed in the curing room and the mate to it put in the upper storey where the temperature was not controlled. When the cheese of the corresponding week were sold, these cheese were again weighed as before, and the difference in shrinkage noted. From this difference the saving in shrinkage on the whole lot was calculated. The following table shows the actual saving of shrinkage on all the cheese handled this season to date at the four cool curing stations :

Curing room	No. of cheese.	Shipped weight.	Shrinkage saved lbs.	Value.
Brockville	9,536	761,59)	9,869	$1,011.39
Cowansville	14,080	1,137,159	13,694	1,497.44
St. Hyacinthe	9,255	7 1,076	6,816	690.76

The total value of the saving, namely, $1,669.76, represents the interest at 6 per cent. on over $75,000, or, in other words, would provide for a capital outlay of nearly $2,000 for each of the factories contributing cheese. As everyone knows the past two seasons have been remarkable for the very cool weather and moist condition of the atmosphere that prevailed all Summer. In an ordinary season the saving of shrinkage would be very much greater, because a high temperature and a dry air are the two conditions that increase the shrinkage.

But the saving in shrinkage is only a minor consideration. The main one is the great improvement in quality. The cheese cooled in the cool rooms and those cured in uncontrolled temperatures have repeatedly been examined and compared by a large number of cheese buyers, cheesemakers and others, and in every case the cool cured cheese has been pronounced the best in quality.

Opening in Calgary.

J. Y. Griffin & Co., pork packers and provision merchants, of Winnipeg, are opening upon the first of the year an extensive branch of their business at Calgary, Alta., under the management of Mr. C. R. Dixon, who has represented them in the West for a number of years, and who is known throughout the West as one of the old-time grocery travellers of the pioneer days. The Calgary branch of J. Y. Griffin & Co. controls their business over the district from Edmonton to Macleod, Maple Creek to Revelstoke on main line, and from Dunmore to Cranbrook on the Crow's Nest railway, including Lethbridge, Raymond, Cardstone, and territory south of Lethbridge.

After the first of January all business in connection with the firm in this district is to be handled through the Calgary branch, which has just completed a large up-to-date warehouse, with electrical appliances, cold storage and track facilities, and which is one of the finest warehouses in Calgary.

They will carry on a general provision business, including eggs, butter, cheese, and poultry, in connection with their cured meat business.

The head office of the company is Winnipeg, and they now have branches at St. Thomas, Ont., Calgary, Alta., Nelson, B.C., and Vancouver, B.C.

Egg Trade With Yukon.

Special to "The Grocer."

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 25.—A commercial man who has spent several seasons in Dawson and the north, and has taken active charge of forwarding goods, especially such perishables as eggs and dairy produce, thinks the eastern packers have something yet to learn in the matter of packing cases for eggs.

He points out that the methods in use for packing eggs for the Britsh export trade will not adapt themselves successfully to the trade with the Yukon and even for the Western trade of this Province there are the same objections. Much of the wood used is jack pine or some similar balsamic timber, which, when it gets damp gives off an offensive odor which the eggs readily absorb. Basswood or elm cases are all right if put together properly.

But it is in the putting together that a serious mistake is made. The same cases used for the export refrigerator stock are used in sending goods out here and for the northern trade. These are made tight and lack ventilation. All ventilation openings should be at least half an inch wide, and should be at the side, the boards being left that distance apart. The ventilation opening at the top is of no use. If the opening is only at the top, the lower tiers of eggs do not get ventilation as the card sheets between the layers stop air from going down.

The close case system may be all right for the Old Country trade, which is entirely a refrigerator service, but conditions here and in the north for transportation are different. All during the summer and shipping season the weather is warm in the north, and there is no refrigerator service. Should an egg get broken in the tight case the air, which is somewhat heated cannot be changed or ventilated and the odor of the broken egg, which rapidly becomes bad, is sent all through the case.

This gentleman, in talking of the subject said: "I have written to eastern shippers on the subject, but they do not seem to understand the difference in conditions. They persist in quoting the Old Country trade, while I have endeavored to make it clear that conditions are different ,and the methods do not apply. Had we refrigerator service to Dawson it would be all right as shipments are now made."

"If the shippers will not take a leaf from the book of the United States shippers, who have caught on to the needs of the northern trade in this matter of shipping eggs, they will be the losers by it," he concluded. "More than that, it will be of little use for the Manufacturers' Association to have sent Dr. S. Morley Wickett and Mr. Bell all the way to Dawson if the packers always throw the Old Country trade at us for a comparison,"

Provisions—No particular feature is noticeable in the provision market this week, the usual holiday dullness is being experienced though prices show little alteration, a better tone being anticipated after this week. Dressed hogs are easier than at last writing. We quote:

Butter—The butter market is dull. The quality generally is not very high although some nice lots are being received. Complaint is still heard that consignors are not particular enough in grading and suffer in consequence. Receipts are fairly heavy and while as usual demand for first quality is good, poor is dragging. Prices remain about as last week. We quote:

Provisions—The volume of business in hog products for the Christmas trade has been fairly satisfactory. Prices have been fairly well maintained. The export trade in smoked meats has been disappointing but there are indications of an improvement. Trade in lard is good. We quote:

Butter—The local market is very firm. Owing to the continued cold weather receipts are very small, and, as has been noted before, the quality is not up to the usual standard. The demand at present is for October creameries, but supplies are short. The market is expected to continue steady. We quote the following unchanged prices: Fresh Winter made creameries, 21 to 22c.; finest October and November, 22c.; creamery prints, 22 to 23c.; dairy rolls, 17 to 17 1-2c.; dairy tubs, selected, 16 to 17c.; medium, 14 1-2 to 16c.

Cheese—The market continues quiet and prices are unchanged. The mild, fresh make is selling at 11 to 11 1-2c.; Summer strong cheese, 12 to 12 1-2c.

St. John, N.B.

Provisions—In pickled meats this is not a busy season. Prices, particularly pork, seem easy. Smoked meats continue to hold quite firm but begin to feel the lower price of pork. Lard has not been a money maker for the trade this season. Rather lower prices are quoted. In fresh meats the Christmas trade has tended to quite full values. Splendid beef has been sold. The Atlantic steamers help the sale of mutton, which is otherwise dull. They take it freely. Lamb is cheap. For veal, quite full figures are asked. Poultry is high, particularly turkeys. Pork is freely offered and rather easier.

Butter—Is unchanged. Really fancy stock is difficult to get, even creamery is being complained of.

Cheese—Has but a fair sale, while full prices are asked. There is little life in the market.

Eggs—Are held at full figures and for fresh hennery stock fancy prices are asked.

A Compromise Effected.

A compromise has been arrived at between The Pakenham Pork Packing Co. and a number of contributories of that company. Mr. McAndrew, official referee, this morning issued an order confirming the agreement whereby the contesting contributories consent to pay 75 per cent. of the amount which the liquidator alleges to be due by them. The amount which will be realized by this compromise will be about $1,098.

Those who have consented to the agreement and the amount due by them are as follows: William Brewster, $135; John Brewster, $150; James Ewan, $160; John Graham, $150; J. J. Leask, $160; S. St. John, $155; H. J. Stone, $160; W. Tocher, $160; Alonzo Young, $210.

The majority of the contributories are residents of Stouffville and the surrounding country.

"Fake" Butter Merchants.

Some commission crooks have been unearthed in Columbus, O. They professed to be good hotel and restaurant customers for farm produce, such as butter, milk, and the like. After fleecing the nearby farmers out of about $30,000, they were unearthed. They operated in Long Island, N.Y., for awhile. They were finally haled to court and are likely to have the law meted out to them.

A Brantford Industry.

THE announcement on another page of this issue that the large packing house at Brantford has been reopened by The Matthews Co., will be welcomed by well-wishers of the packing industry. It will be remembered that this plant was erected by The Farmers' Co-operative Packing Co. in 1900, and met with disaster. Since purchasing the property in October the new owners have completely remodelled the house to suit their requirements. Every detail has been carefully arranged to secure the best possible results with the very greatest efficiency, for it is anticipated that the plant will run to full capacity from the start.

It is a pleasing fact that The Matthews Co.—operating three of the largest packing houses in Canada, capable of killing some 12,000 hogs weekly—is purely a Canadian concern. Those acquainted with the career of the Matthews factories at Peterboro and at Hull, predict a like success for the Brantford "triplet."

NEW FACTORY OPENED.

THE handsome new factory of the National Cash Register Company, of Dayton, Ohio, located at 98 Lombard street, Toronto, was formally opened on the 28th inst. Several of the officers of the company from Dayton were present in addition to the entire selling force of Canada.

In the evning a banquet tendered by the factory force to the officers of the company and Canadian salesmen was held in the fourth floor of the building, which was beautifully decorated with American and Canadian flags. Among the prominent manufacturers present was Mr. J. M. Taylor, of the Taylor, Forbes Co., Guelph, whose interesting address was very well received.

City Commissioner Fleming, to whom much credit is due for his efforts to have the branch established in Canada, in responding to the toast of "Toronto and the City Council," expressed the hope that the business of the branch would some day rival that of the head establishment at Dayton where nearly 4,000 men are employed in the manufacture of cash registers.

The officers of the company stated that the factory will be operated in the same progressive spirit that has made the Dayton factory famous throughout the world.

The branch offices in Canada are located at 129 King street west, Toronto, Montreal, Que., St. John, N.B., Winnipeg, Man., Vancouver, B.C., Regina, N.W.T., and Calgary, N.W.T. Frank E. Mutton represents the company in Toronto and J. W. DuLaney is the superintendent of the Canadian factory.

NEW BRITISH STANDARD OF WEIGHTS.

(From U. S. Consul Boyle, Liverpool, Eng.)

THE British Government has taken the first step toward the adoption of the decimal system of weights. It has just been announced by the Board of Trade that, under a special order in council, it will sanction the use of a weight of 50 pounds, instead of the present standards of 112 pounds (called a hundredweight) and 56 pounds (called a half hundredweight). The 50 pounds is by this action made a legal standard of weight. This reform has been adopted after forty years of agitation by Liverpool merchants and later on by petitions to the Government by the Chambers of Commerce throughout the country, and particularly by the Chamber of Commerce of this city. Liverpool has felt the necessity for the change more than any other city, as this is the leading entrepot for American and colonial produce of bulk, the weighing of which is a considerable item in the handling and, indeed, in the ultimate cost of the shipments. More cotton, corn, provisions, and tobacco are imported into Liverpool than into any other city in the world, and by far the largest proportion of these imports come from the United States; so the United States is peculiarly interested in the reform just instituted. The Liverpool Journal of Commerce comments approvingly as follows:

"All these great quantities are calculated by the American sellers in pounds avoirdupois, but by the British buyers they have had to be counted in hundredweights, quarters, and pounds, in accordance with our antiquated and absurd and anomalous system of weights. What is the consequence? To give a concrete example: The buyer wishes to ascertain, say, the weight of 100 pounds of tobacco; to do so the nearest weight he can employ is a quarter, or 56 pounds, to which must be added smaller weights until the exact quantity is ascertained. But two 50-pound weights will give him the exact amount at once; three will give him the weight of 150 pounds, four 200 pounds, and so on, smaller weights being used for fractions of 50 pounds. The consequence is an enormous simplification of calculation. It should be remembered that the men who weigh these materials at the docks are not, as a rule, mathematicians who can tell the time of day by algebra. They are largely day laborers, who have not had a superior education, and to weigh quantities with a set of weights necessitating the calculation of fractions of pounds, and thereby the use of dozens of small weights, necessitates a mental effort of which all are not capable, and the use of a multiplicity of weights which confuses them, leads to errors and loss of time—and time is money. But by the adoption of a 50-pound weight a unit of calculation has been obtained which will sweep away a whole set of weights, prevent errors, and save confusion, time and money. It should be remembered that the present complicated and wasteful method of calculating weights has to be gone through four times—first, when the goods are warehoused; second, by the customs, for the purpose of duty; third, in the counting-house; and fourth, in the factory—and in all these cases the same cumbrous system of calculation by hundredweights, quarters, and pounds has to be gone through, and the loss of time, convenience, and money quadrupled. But by the adoption of a 50-pound weight, though four separate calculations will still be necessary, they can be done simply and quickly. The saving in bookkeeping will alone be great. The present system necessitates a maze of figures of different denominations; but by their reducton to the one common denominator of pounds weight whole columns of figures will be saved and the risk of mistakes minimized."

Americans have great difficulty in understanding the English system of weights—almost as much as they encounter in trying to understand the English fractional system of coinage. For instance, if you ask a man here how much he weighs he will tell you, say, "11 stone 7." A "stone" is 14 pounds; so 11 stone would be 154 pounds, and adding the extra 7 pounds the weight given would be 161 pounds. Even Englishmen "to the manner born" have to make a mental calculation in arriving at the result in pounds in such a case. Sometimes provisions and other articles are sold at so much a stone, and then if the quantity purchased weighs a few odd pounds over a stone or a number of stones the purchaser and seller have to figure out the price per pound. It is the hope and expectation that the results from the adoption of the new standard weight of 50 pounds will be so satisfactory that before long the old-fashioned "hundredweight" of 112 pounds will be entirely abolished along with the stone, and that a decimal fractional system of 5 pounds, 10 pounds, and 25 pounds will come into general use.

ORANGE CULTURE IN CALIFORNIA

THE fruit industry of California was founded at the time of the establishment of the missions of the Franciscan monks, says Scientific American. As early as 1792 there were about five thousand trees growing at the different missions. Apples, pears, oranges, lemons, limes, and olives constituted the greater portion of these trees. As they nearly all did well, they proved the possibility of fruit culture in California. The fruit era did not begin until about the time of the great gold excitement of 1849. Most of the immigrants to the State thought of nothing but gold; but a few of the more far-seeing obtained possession of some of the old orchards, and reaped a handsome profit by selling fruit at the exhorbitant prices that then prevailed.

Much of the land in California is especially adapted to the cultivation of citrous fruit. While by far the greater portion of the commercial crop of the state is at present grown in Southern California, the citrous fruit can be safely and profitably grown along the foothills of the Sierra Madre Mountains from San Diego to Tehama Counties, a distance of over seven hundred miles.

The method of propagating citrous trees, such as the orange, does not materially differ from that employed in the propagation of other fruit trees. One of the most difficult questions which the prospective orange grower must decide, is whether to use seedling or budded trees. The pros and cons of the question cannot be discussed here. The general tendency of progressive growers is to use only trees budded with thoroughly tested and approved varieties. Practically all the advance that has been made in improving citrous fruits by propagating and selecting seedlings, hybrids, and the like, which produce superior or peculiar fruits, depends upon propagation by budding and grafting. The centre of orange culture in California is Oroville, in Butte County, about 150 miles north of Los Angeles. The climate is especially adapted for the cultivation of citrous fruits, and is so mild that the frost never injures the trees.

Throughout the Sacramento and San Joachim valleys orange trees are planted in bluffs or foothills in soil of a deep, gravelly, porous nature. So boundless is the market that, although thousands of young trees are yearly planted there is still room for more.

In preparing the land for orange cultivation, ploughing and harrowing both ways is necessary in order to fit the soil for the orange tree. Irrigation is also necessary, because of the scant Summer rains. Water is piped to the lands in a common ditch with a gentle slope, and a regular flow of irrigating water is obtained. Since orange growing exhausts the soil in time, fertilisers, both natural and artificial, must be freely used. February, March, and April are the months when the ground is ploughed and cross-ploughed; afterwards it is harrowed each way to within three feet of the trunks. The soil under the trees is cultivated by gangs of men. Trees are planted 25 feet apart, or 70 to the acre. Year-old seedlings are procured from the nurseries, which seedlings in three years attain a strong growth. When the trees are ready to bud they are pruned, all the upper branches being cut off, so that nothing but the forked stump, some three or four feet high, is left. Two T-like incisions are made in the bark, into which incisions the new bud is inserted. About two buds are inserted in each trunk. All superflous growth is checked, and every atom of nourishment directed toward the development of the new graft. February and March is the time for pruning ;- September and October the time for budding. May, June, July, August, and September are devoted to cultivation and general oversight. In November the fruit begins to mature, and all else is dropped in order to gather the crop. The gathering season is in full operation by the middle of the month ; every man, woman, and child must work to pick, pack, and ship the ripe fruit.

Three years after budding, or six from planting the seedlings, the trees begin to bear. The first crop is 280, the second 420, the third still greater, and that of each succeeding year slightly more than its predecessor, if cultivation be never neglected. Neglect is promptly indicated by shrinking and discoloured foliage and diminutive fruit.

The oranges cultivated are Washington naval and tangarines. Co-operation among the neighboring orchards provides for handling and shipping the ripe fruit. A central packing house receives the fruit from the orchards. The highest grade is 80 to the box, diminishing to 96, 112, 126, 140, 150, 176, and 200 to the box. A hopper is employed, into which the fruit is dumped, the sizes being separated in passing down the incline, the fruit dropping in its proper opening.

HOLIDAY SOUVENIRS.

DOMINION PACKING CO.

THE Dominion Packing Co., of Charlottetown, P.E.I., have issued a very handsome holiday price-list. The outside pages are done in blue, gold and white, the front bearing the trade-mark of the company, and the back a most tempting plate of fruit, suggestive of The Charlottetown Preserving Co., who are controlled by The Dominion Packing Co. The price-list is decidedly the finest that has come under our review. The company are to be congratulated on their good taste and enterprise.

GRAND UNION HOTEL, OTTAWA.

One of the handsomest Christmas souvenirs seen this season is the menu card of the Grand Union Hotel, Ottawa, a copy of which lies on the editor's desk. It is got out in a booklet form, embossed in gold on the first page with the words "Wishing You a Merry Christmas," and on the back in green and red with a sprig of holly.

The inside pages are decorated with excellent illustrations of the hotel and other views of Ottawa and with programmes for breakfast, luncheon and dinner calculated to send into ecstacies of delight the most exacting epicure.

BLACK & CO.

"The Grocer" acknowledges the receipt of a very handsome Christmas and New Year's card from Mr. Stanley W. McCulloch, representing Black & Co., wholesale grocers, importers and blenders of teas, Truro, Nova Scotia. The card was an excellent example of fine typography.

DOMINION MOLASSES CO., HALIFAX.

"The Canadian Grocer" acknowledges receipt of the season's greetings from The Dominion Molasses Co., Halifax., N.S. The little pamphlet sent out is very artistically gotten up, the front cover representing a sugar mill scene in red and black on slate colored background. The inside note gives the company's address on one side with the season's greetings in artistic type on the opposite page, while the last page expresses in a few well-chosen words the company's thanks to their customers during the past year, and a solicitation for continued support during 1904. The little work is tied with a pale blue silk ribbon. The delicate taste displayed in the pamphlet reflects credit on the artist as well as the company.

CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

Follow Up Holiday Trade.

CONFECTIONERY is a matter to which practically every grocer has given more or less special attention for the holiday trade. If this line has been handled with ordinarily good judgment it can not but have proved a profitable line. The higher grade goods which "The Grocer" has from time to time recommended to the trade pay a handsome profit and find a ready sale for Christmas and New Year's.

It is of course to be expected that immediately following the festive season that the public surfeited with the many good things in which they have been indulging, will not be large buyers of fancy confectionery, but is this a valid reason for allowing the department to run down and become uninteresting. We think not.

If the grocer has been able to dispose of a line of first-class goods in supplying the holiday demand he has established a connection that is worth keeping.

The way to keep that connection is to keep up your stock of the best confectionery. One tires of cheap goods much more readily than of the better grades, and is won back again much more readily by first class confectionery.

The conclusion to be drawn is that the confectionery department should be kept up to a high standard after the holidays. It is not necessary to have a large stock, but the stock should always be fresh and displayed in a neat, attractive manner, where it will strike the eye of the casual buyer the most easily. When your holiday customer again enters your store he has recalled to his mind the excellence of the confections he last purchased. He is induced to buy again. The customer who comes on purpose to duplicate his before Christmas purchase is not disappointed.

Do not dissipate the influence of a good holiday confectionery department by allowing your stock to become stale, run down or untidy.

It is a department that will repay the attention given.

Solemn Truths About Pie.

THE popular thought that pie is distinctly an American confection is an erroneous impression, the word pie being of Celtic origin. Just here it may be said that a pie in the American sense is in England usually called a tart, and the name pie is given only to the one made of meats. Here, as in many other instances, a ridiculed Americanism is the best old English; Robert Green, in England in 1589, found no sweeter compliment for "Carmella dear" than: "Thy breath is like the steam of apple pies." Then again, we find the versatile Charles Dickens responsible for the following eulogy of the pie:

"Columbus discovered a world—granted—but what is Columbus compared to the man who first made pie? That man was a creative genius, if you like. That man, that pieman, left behind him a boundless legacy of good to future ages. Millions of people are to-day moulding pies, with all the relish of expectant appetite, and how melancholy to think that not one knows the name of the dead benefactor. We should like, for our part, to build a city and adorn it in a grand square, with an obelisk to the immortal founder of the pie."

A cook book of 1710, written by Patrick Lamb, a cook to royalty, cites the culinary fashions of the 17th century and mentions buttered apple and quince pies. In fact, pie is of such ancient origin that doubtless it existed in the Garden of Eden, for surely wherever there was an apple there certainly must have been a pie.

Probably no article of food among the many concocted to tickle the palate of man has been more berated and abused than that which flourishes under the name of pie. Yet it holds its ground with remarkable tenacity. In defence of the healthfulness of pie, Dr. James W. Gray published the following article in The American Journal of Health:

"A glance at the elemental constituents of the ordinary pie of commerce affords reasons for its intrinsic nutritious qualities and healthfulness.

"In eggs, milk, and the various berries and fruits, very perfect foods are recognized, for in them are found in great variety the life sustaining powers.

"By careful selection of the best of these foods, and combining a portion of each in the ideal nutition for the preservation of healthful life, a scientifically made pie affords within itself all these requirements of a model food.

"But there are pies and there are pies. The average home-made pie, owing to the improper equipment and baking facilities, is almost invariably a disease breeder, instead of a health help. The pies offered by some of the smaller bakers as evidence of their constructive ability are even worse, as a rule. In every large city, fortunately, there are large concerns which have reduced piemaking to an exact science, and whose product is not only appetizing, but is deserving of all praise, from a health standpoint. Eat pie, if you would be healthy, not only as a dessert at dinner, but eat it for breakfast, if your appetite craves it; eat it morning, noon, or night; it cannot harm you. Let the children have it when they will."

Confections at the World's Fair.

EXHIBITS of confectioners, chocolate makers, soda fountain manufacturers and bakers will be installed at the World's Fair in the great Palace of Agriculture, and these displays will partake of the central idea of the exposition—life and motion. Moving exhibits are the sought-after things in all departments. Every exhibitor, where practicable, is expected to be doing things. This is an age when people "want to know how." So the candy maker can show his processes. The chocolate manufacturer can display his methods and results so far as he is willing the public shall know.

The confectioners and chocolate makers are in the immense food section in the northwest portion of the Palace of Agriculture. All American exhibits in these lines will be found in this section. The foreign exhibits in the same class will be in the foreign section, devoted to agricultural products of all kinds, adjoining the food section on the north.

Chocolate makers will show keen rivalry in giving interesting and attractive exhibits. Displays of the finished product, arranged in unique ways to catch the eye of the visitor, will occupy a large space. An instructive feature will be the demonstration of the manufacture of chocolate. One large manufacturer will not only give a practical demonstration, from the raw material to the finished product, but he will serve it, already prepared, on the table, and twice a day a young lady, trained in domestic science, will deliver a lecture illustrating and explaining the use of chocolate in the preparation of foods.

Most Important Of All.

All grocers will agree with us that the most important commodities that they handle are tea, coffee, sugar and flour. Sugar and flour are pretty nearly the same the world over. Coffees vary. Chase & Sanborn's famous brands of coffee are always the same and vary only from other kinds in being superior. For this reason they are the favorites with grocers everywhere, because they invariably give satisfaction to their customers.

Cable Address { Adscript, London. Adscript, Canada.

A GOOD OLD YEAR TO CANADA.

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND THREE is a year which Canadians ought to remember kindly. It was a good year for Canada; in fact the best that the country has ever seen. It was a significent year in many respects. It saw in agricultural and industrial development generally, the greatest progress yet experienced.

The crops of grain and fruit were on the whole, exceedingly bountiful. In the lumber industries the experience was most gratifying. The railways had more business than they could handle and therefore earnings were consequently the largest on record. The banks also reflected the active and generally healthy condition of trade.

The most disturbing feature of the year was a slump in the stock market due to the inflated value of prices. This to some extent counteracted the generally satisfactory trade conditions, but in spite of this, 1903 is easily the banner year commercially in the history of Canada.

The foreign trade, like the home trade, was also the most satisfactory in the history of the country. The total, taking into account the import as well as the export business, was about $460,000,000, which is about 90 per cent. larger than the aggregate ten years ago. In both exports and imports records were established as well.

Confidence in the future is no doubt to some extent shaken by the threatened industrial depression in the United State, as well as by the unsatisfactory trade conditions in Great Britain and Germany. But Canada has less to fear from a general depression than any other country in the world.

The exceeding good crops of last year is a good basis upon which to start the New Year. Then there promises to be an even larger influx of immigration than during 1903. This, with the extensive railway construction projects which are under way and contemplated, must necessarily create a large demand for material and merchandise of every description.

The New Year is starting off under auspicious circumstances and business men, by the employment of proper business methods, will in all likelihood find trade as satisfactory as during the prosperous year that has just gone.

TRADE WITH NEW ZEALAND.

THE efforts being made by New Zealand merchants to increase their trade with Canada under the mutual preferential tariffs should be met with enthusiasm on the part of Canadians. New Zealand is a most progressive and interesting part of the Empire and Canada should not loose any opportunity of bettering our trade relations with our sister colony of the Antipodes. The island colony is largely agriculture and consequently we are not large purchasers from her, but on the other hand she is no inconsiderable customers of ours.

The trade and navigation returns for the year ending June 30, 1903, show that our imports from New Zealand amounted to $41,903, of which $41,592 came under the free list and $311 was dutiable. Our exports to New Zealand, however, were as follows:

	Product of Canada.	Not Product of Canada.
The Mine	$ 428
The Fisheries	19,316
The Forest	215
Animals and their produce	1,023
Agricultural Products	54,014	$5,250
Manufacturers	375,571	6,671
Miscellaneous		50
	$450,567	$11,971

These figures, although not large, are indicative of what lines may be developed in this direction in the future.

THE LATE ANDREW PATTULLO.

THE tragic death in London of Mr. Andrew Pattullo, M.P.P. for North Oxford in the Ontario Legislature, is most regrettable. He was a man blest with more than the usual amount of ability and his amiable nature made him a host of friends.

Although as editor and proprietor of the Woodstock Sentinel Review, which he had made one of the best provincial dailies in Canada, his time was well employed, he, however, devoted a great deal of attention to public affairs and particularly such as were for the public good.

There is possibly no man in Canada who has done more in behalf of the cheese and dairy industry of this country than the late Mr. Pattullo. He was also one of the pioneers in the movement for good roads, and the success which has attended that movement is largely due to his efforts. The two associations in Ontario which were organized in behalf of the dairy industry and the good roads movement, honored him by making him their president.

It was characteristic of Mr. Pattullo that whatever he undertook to do he did it with his whole might. Canada can ill afford to spare such men, and his death is a distinct loss to the country in general and to the Province of Ontario in particular.

A GOOD GOVERNMENT IN TROUBLE.

THE meaning of the election in North Renfrew is obvious. It means that the confidence of the people in the Ross Administration is gone. This is to be regretted. The Government, has on the whole, been a good one. Measured by the standards of Government in the other Provinces of the Dominion, it is rather superior. But evil days have evidently fallen upon it.

Its political opponents may charge it with all sorts and conditions of maladministration. There is no doubt that some members of the Administration rest under very grave suspicion indeed; but to charge the Government as a whole with maladministration is to levy a charge that cannot be substantiated by facts.

The loss of prestige and the threatened loss of office is nearly altogether due to the acts of its servants. The acts of some of these servants will go down into the political history of this country as among the most disgraceful ever practiced. And these have gone on multiplying until they have practically ruined the Administration. The latter cannot plead irresponsibility. It is just as responsible as a merchant is for the action of his clerks; and it must pay the penalty.

Placed under similar conditions a board of directors would either resign or at least make an appeal to the shareholders. This is what the Ross Government in Ontario should do.

The people are the shareholders and they are manifestly dissatisfied. The least the Government, therefore, can do is to appeal to them through the ballot box.

The plea that the Opposition is weak, may be true, but whatever may be the condition of Mr. Whitney and his party, the Government should not attempt to carry on the affairs of the Province under the present unsatisfactory state of affairs.

Office is not everything. Good government far transcends it in importance. As long as the present state of affairs exists Ontario cannot have good government.

U. S. TRADE WITH CANADA.

THE unfairness of the United States tariff against Canada is illustrated by statistics just given out from Washington on the trade between the two countries for the past ten years. The total commerce of the United States in 1893 was $1,652,000,000, while in 1903 it will aggregate about $2,460,000,000, an increase of about 50 per cent. In the meantime her trade with Canada has increased from less than $100,000,000 in 1893 to over $185,000,000 in 1903, or approximately 85 per cent. That is to say the trade of the United States with Canada has increased nearly twice as fast as the whole trade of the great Republic. But it is on analysis of the constituents of this trade that the injustice becomes most apparent. Of our total trade with the United States we bought from them in 1903 $130,000,000 while they bought from us only $55,000,000. In 1893 the figures were respectively $57,000,000 and $34,000,000. That is, while our imports from them in ten years increased $73,000,000 or over 125 per cent. their imports from us increased only $21,000,000 or about 60 per cent. In short, our imports from the United States have increased twice as fast as their imports from us.

It is apparent from these figures that Canada is the best market that the United States has. Americans are awakening to this fact as is evidenced by the growing agitation for reciprocity on the American side. Reciprocity which at one time had many friends in Canada, can at present scarcely summon a baker's dozen advocates, but on the other hand there is a growing feeling in Canada among both political parties in favor of a course of fiscal reprisals. The Canadian people felt but survived the McKinley and Dingley tariffs. They are more independent of American markets than ever before in their history, while the importance of Canadian markets to the United States was never so great as at present.

Americans who are interested in the Canadian trade would consult their interests by advocating the reduction of the absurdly high tariff which, as the above figures show, allows of only a one-sided trade, a kind of trade which will not be borne forever.

STOCK TAKING.

STOCKTAKING is the order of the day. The jobbers are already at it. The retail trade will soon be engaged in this masculine form of house-cleaning. It is no pleasant task to ransack the whole stock of a large store, but it is one of the very greatest importance. It is necessary, in the first place, in order to judge, correctly, the business done during the past year and secondly to bring to light forgotten lines or goods that have proved slow sellers.

That the first end may be attained great care should be taken in the proper valuation of damaged, shopworn or out-of-date goods. To set them down in the stock list at cost price is merely to deceive one's self and to make all the worry and bother of no use. The merchant should be as flint against any disposition to boost the value of his stock. He will be rewarded in the knowledge that his stock is actually worth what it appears in the stock lists, and that his nominal profits for the past year are not subject to any discount for dead stock on hand.

But this is merely the bookkeeping side of stocktaking and is useful for the information not that is merely acquired but that is made use of as well.

When, therefore, stock has been gone over and the damaged, shopworn or slow goods discovered the next thing is to get rid of them. They merely take up room. It would be a good idea to separate out all this kind of stock; establish a bargain counter; advertise it well; and at once get rid of unappreciated goods and create the interest in your store always incident to a bargain counter. The large departmental stores have won no small part of their success by means of the bargain counter, there is no reason why the smaller merchant should not reap some of its advantage at least in getting rid of undesirable stock.

With the capital thus set free a cleaner and fresher stock can be got in and discount saved.

A GOOD AND INEXPENSIVE SCHEME.

TALKING to a local merchant, a representative of "The Grocer" learned of a scheme which is believed to be quite original and which has been instrumental in increasing sales to no small degree. It is as follows: On a slip of white paper 4x6 the merchant has printed at top of sheet the firm's name, address and nature of business, leaving plenty of space below where he can fill in with colored pencil or ink any announcements he wishes to make about his store, any special sales, new goods arriving, articles he wishes to create sales for, etc. Of course prices are always mentioned.

These slips are put in packages sent out, and are sure to be noticed by persons opening same. This scheme should work well with casual buyers. By keeping them posted on what you are doing, and what you have to sell, you gradually get them interested in your store and finally you secure them as regular customers.

You no doubt have a nice line of breakfast bacon. Just put this on your slip with prices plainly marked and enclose with to-day's orders. It will help the housewife to decide what to get for breakfast to-morrow. You will be surprised at the result obtained from this inexpensive kind of advertising.

HOLIDAY TRADE.

R. G. Dun & Co. in their review of the holiday trade up to Saturday, 26th instant, speak as follows of Canada:

Despatches from the Dominion of Canada testify to a liberal retail holiday trade, but wholesale operations are expected to be small for a period. Prospects for next year are considered encouraging. Retail trade in Halifax has been stimulated by holiday purchases, but wholesale trade is decreasing, as is customary at this season. Similar conditions are reported as existing in the St. John district, and labor is well employed, while lumber prospects are bright. Indications for the coming year are favorable. Quebec reports holiday trade satisfactory, and business generally good. Quiet conditions are anticipated in wholesale circles during the next few weeks at Montreal, as travellers are of their routes. Holiday retail trade is brisk, particularly in the city, and collections are prompt. Wholesale trade is quiet in Toronto, but retail sales are heavy and the holiday business surpassed any preceding year.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol have very choice lot mild Canadian cheese.

Buyers' attention is directed to this week's advertisement of E. D. Marceau, Montreal. The stocks of teas offered are such as should appeal to all; the values are guaranteed.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, have just received into store 1,200 boxes Griffin & Skelley's Italian style Oregon prunes, sizes 30s to 40s, 40s to 50s, 50s to 60s, 60s to 70s, and 70s to 80s, fine quality and prices right.

The Eby, Blain Co. have just passed into stock a shipment of "Nickel Plate," "Brass King," and "Glass King" washboards. These lines are the finest of their kind manufactured.

Look out for Lucas, Steele & Bristol's Mermaid kippered herring in cartoons.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. report a large business doing in Heinz tomato soup in 2-lb. and 3-lb. tins.

The offerings of "Owl Chop" and "Bee" brand teas made to buyers in this week's issue of "The Canadian Grocer" by L. Chaput, Fils & Cie. should interest buyers. Qualities are guaranteed the best.

Armour's Extract Beef and Vigoral are finding a ready sale with the Eby, Blain Co.

Lucas, Steel & Bristol have just received choice lots of haddies in 15 and 30-lb. boxes

Buyers of extra fancy Japan rice may procure same from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

Lipton's teas and coffees are in store with Lucas, Steel & Bristol.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling a pure cane sugar syrup in half barrels at a very low price.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. George Mann, Montreal, manager of the eastern branch of the Salada Tea Co., has been confined to the house for over a week. A severe cold is responsible for his absence from business.

Mr. Chas. Runk, Western Ontario representative for Messrs. S. Davis & Sons, Montreal, is in the latter city during the holidays. Mr. Runk reports very good business, particularly in the clear Havana goods put up by his firm.

Your representative ran across Mr. J. J. Ryan, the Toronto and Western representative of J. M. Fortier & Co. in Montreal recently. Mr. Ryan, who is well known to the trade is an active hustler. He reports business for his lines in the West very satisfactory and the prospects bright.

Mr. Wilson B. Mills, formerly the representative of the American Coffee Co., in Canada, and more recently with Lees & Langley, coffee roasters, Toronto, has severed his connection with the latter firm, to take a more remunerative position. Mr. Mills has the reputation among the trade of being a man thoroughly versed in coffees, and there are few better coffee judges in the country.

THE GROCER BRINGS RESULTS.

The Canadian Grocer:

During 1902 I advertised in your paper re potatoes. The add was in your Export number and I have recently received a letter from Mannheim, Germany, inquiring for Canadian potatoes.

This is evidence that your Export number is not only read, but preserved. I happened to mention this matter to your Mr. W. H. Lindsey, of London, who asked me to send you the above information. I am enclosing you the letter and envelope.

(Signed) C. M. McILHARGEY.
Stratford, Ont., Dec. 29th, 1903.

TAKING HOLIDAYS.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal, will close from Thursday, December 31st, to Monday, January 4th, thus giving their large staff the benefit of an extra holiday. As customary all the travelling representatives of the house are in the city attending the annual meeting which is held on the 30th of December.

TAKEN INTO PARTNERSHIP.

Mr. Alfred B. Lambe, grocery, broker and commission merchant, Toronto, has taken his son, Hugh E. Lambe, into partnership under the style of Alfred B. Lambe & Son. The firm has taken offices in the Royal building, 27 Wellington street east. The senior member of the firm has been connected with the tea and grocery business ever since he left school, 33 years ago, in Toronto. His son Hugh E. Lambe, although a young man, has already served a good apprenticeship in the grocery brokerage business, having been with J. L. Watt & Scott and other firms.

The following is an advertisement that appeared in this paper in this position in November, 1899, when we first introduced Ceylon Green Teas to the world. Are our predictions not likely to be verified? Look for our ad. next week for figures of the decline of the Japan tea trade.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Dec. 30, 1903.

Groceries.

YOU can sum up the whole situation in two words—"stock taking," remarked a Front street wholesaler to "The Grocer" representative this week, and a visit to the other jobbers confirmed this statement. Travellers are off the road, and the whole staff in most houses are busy winding up the business of the year. What orders are being filled have been received by mail or wire. As stock has not yet been taken, the result of the year's business can not be definitely estimated, but there is a general agreement that the volume is ahead of last year and probably the profits as well. As to the future, there seems no discernable reason why the prevailing prosperity should not continue. Business men are going cautiously, and trade is generally conceded to be on a sound basis. The holiday dullness is found to permeate everywhere, and scarcely a change in prices is noticeable. Canned goods maintain their strong position. Coffees are firm with a rising tendency. Spices are normal locally, but cloves are up in London, and cloves, pepper and pimento are generally strong. Syrups and molasses are meeting a seasonable demand. Glucose is the largest seller. Rice and tapioca are featureless. Teas are firm with a strong demand for low-grade Indian and Ceylon on the spot with little such available. The brunt of the dried fruit trade is over, the feature being the strength of prunes. Sugar has developed a weakness owing to the unsettling effect of the holidays and cutting on the part of American refiners. As we go to press a decline of 5c. per cwt. is announced.

COFFEES

The bulls are still dominant in the coffee market and the market is steadily rising. All indications are of a short crop, how short time alone will tell. The character of the men who are buying coffee is such as to confirm the view which expects higher prices. SUGAR.

The firmness noted in our last has not been maintained, and, instead of an advance in raws of 1-32c., we have this week to record a decline of 1-16c. from last spot sales. There was a sale on December 28 of 2,000 bags Cuba centrifugals, ex store, at 3½c., duty paid, for basis 96 degrees, which, less the duty of 1.348c., shows a price, cost and freight New York, of, say, 2.15c. For import, Unites States refiners, after their recent heavy purchases, are indifferent buyers, though some sugars might be placed on basis of 2½c. C. and F. The Reciprocity Treaty is now in operation, but it will take time for its full effect to be felt, and it is early yet to forecast the probabilities. For the immediate future, the outlook is weak. There are now 37 central factories grinding in Cuba against 18 last week, and as the supply is on the increase, there may be a disposition on holders' part, for a time at least, to market their goods as fast as made in order to realize the proceeds. We may therefore expect some irregularity to the situation until the changed conditions are properly understood. For week ending December 23, receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports were only 19,293 tons, while meltings were increased to 30,000 tons, leaving stocks of 89,326 tons, or barely three weeks' supply. The reduction in stocks for the week is 10,707 tons, and, tons. Combined stocks in United States there is a deficiency of nearly 50,000 tons. Combined stacks in United States and Cuba are 213,326 tons, an excess of 26,066 tons compared with last year. Total stocks of Europe and America (including Cuba) at latest uneven dates up to December 24 were 3,333,326 tons, or 217,066 tons increase from same period last year. The bulk of the increase is apparent in the stocks of continental countries. European quotations for 88 per cent. test remain unchanged at 8s. 1½d., f.o.b. Hamburg, for December-January shipment. Refined markets have been interfered with by the Christmas holidays, although in the United States there has been a fair demand for actual requirements. The situation has been somewhat unsettled with some refiners cutting .05c. to .10c. in special cases, and one New York refiner guaranteeing prices for 30 days. These, or other similar influences, have effected our local market, and, as we go to press, we have to record a decline of .05c. per 100 pounds throughout the list. Demand locally is almost nil, but as soon as stock-taking is over, there should be a very marked improvement in this respect. We revise quotations as follows :

TEAS.

The latest advices from London, dated December 17, say : The auctions held today being the last before the Christmas interval, business will be more or less of a holiday character till January 4, when public sales will be resumed. The market closes with a firm undertone, and, although prices have but little responded to the increased activity, more buyers have been willing to purchase, and the closing shows promise of a healthy reopening of business with the commencement of the new year. In the meantime, clearances both for home consumption and export are going on steadily, and the totals for the month appear likely to be about on the same scale as in December, 1902. Locally there is the usual demand, while prices are maintained strong. Low-grade teas are firmer. There is a very strong demand for lower grade Indians and Ceylons on spot, but practically no stocks. The Russo-Japan situation is having the effect of strengthening holders of Japan, but the place Indian and Ceylon greens have taken in the market to a degree neutralize the effect of the warlike outlook. Foreign Dried Fruits.

The holiday dullness is felt all through the dried fruit lines. The trade all agree, however, that a very good business has been done in all lines. The quality has been right, and importers have not had to face the feature of depreciating values. Nearly all goods have gone into consumption. There has been little disposition to speculate, and, as no surplus stocks are held, a good steady trade is anticipated. Business has been on a good substantial basis with buyings for actual demands. The advance in currants is maintained. It is reported from port of shipment that 600 bags of filberts are afloat for Canada, presumably sold for October shipment, but shipped late. Advices from California are bullish. The market is very firm for prunes, while for apricots it is prohibitive. We quote :

Country Produce.

EGGS.

The egg situation is growing more and more serious. Stocks are very light and the demand keeps strong even at the high prices ruling. Pickled are almost all sold. An offer of 21c. for a carload was refused on Tuesday. Strictly new laid are almost unobtainable. Higher prices for selected and cold storage are expected. There has, however, been no change in prices up to time of writing. We quote :

HONEY.

The situation remains unchanged. A good seasonable demand is met at current prices, and, as stocks are full, no serious price fluctuations are at all likely before the opening of Spring. We quote :

POULTRY.

The soft weather just before Christmas and the rush of stock held back rather demoralized the market for poultry, and lower values all round ruled the earlier part of the week for dressed. Better prices are expected in latter part of week. We quote :

Green Fruits.

The market this week has been a little quiet after the Christmas rush, but, under the circumstances, is satisfactory. The season's trade has been very large indeed and away ahead of last year. Oranges are the chief sellers. Californias, for the better qualities, are a little green this season. Mexicans are selling best for the cheaper grades. Jamaicas are out of the market, as are also California grapes and holly. Mexican oranges are cheaper and bananas dearer. Pines are dear and hard to obtain. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Dec. 30th, 1903.

Groceries.

BUSINESS during the week is reported by jobbers as practically over for the year. Travellers are generally in for their annual visit, going over their affars and prospects for future trade with their principals. Business from outside points is done by letter and wire and orders are coming in in a comparatively satisfactory manner. The information received this week by your representative is very meagre, "Nothing to say," is the general report. Sugars are quiet, though reports from New York indicate a fair amount of business activity. Monday's report from Willott & Gray giving a decline of 1-16, also that some refiners were cutting prices 10c. per 100 lb. Teas are quiet and little business turned over. Syrups and molasses are unchanged in prices. Coffees and spices continue firm. Canned goods trade is quiet, no changes to report. Foreign dried fruits are without noticeable features business being small. Dates at the very low prices prevailing, have sold well. In green fruits business is quiet. New California oranges are in and receiving close attention. Rice and tapioca are dull. Fish are also very quiet, the business during the week being reported poor. Eggs are now at famine prices a further advance being noted this week. There are not more than two weeks' supplies in sight. The bean market is steady at figures quoted last week. There is little activity in maple products now that the Christmas trade is over. Business in evaporated apples is not very brisk. The market for rolled oats is very strong at present and an early advance is predicted. Pot and pearl barley are now freely obtainable. Your representative takes pleasure in wishing all his numerous friends in the trade who have so kindly kept him in touch with the market, a very prosperous New Year.

SUGAR

The sugar business is reported very quiet. What little business there is going is for small lots as jobbers are not taking much into store on account of stock taking time this week. New York reports at hand to-day state prices declined 1-16, raws quiet, buyers holding off. Refined sugars unsettled, some refiners cutting prices 10c. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Business during the past week has been very quiet in both syrups and molasses. As regards the complaint of the arrival of New Orleans mixed molasses and the action of the Government in issuing a special circular covering such goods, it may be said that the trade generally are interested. The report that some of this mixed molasses had its origin down East has been denied by the merchants and importers in the Maritime Provinces and they say there is nothing in that statement. Such molasses as has been shipped from eastern ports has always been received and passed without complaint. It is also stated that as no complaints are made from outside points in Quebec about mixed molasses it would appear that the mixing must be done locally.

It has been admitted that there has been more or less old molasses hanging around Montreal for the last two or three years, and this has been offered by the holder very cheap, not only to jobbers in this city but also in other towns and cities in Quebec. The new ruling of the department will undoubtedly discourage the importation of mixed molasses from United States points, as the new change calls for a deposit of 3-4c. per lb. or 10 1-2c. per gallon, on molasses coming from United States until testings are made at Ottawa. These restrictions will practically make it impossible for mixed goods to be sold here even in the face of the high price ruling on genuine Barbadoes. We quote:

TEAS.

The situation this week owing to the holidays is very quiet, in fact it may be said that ther is practically no business doing. No changes are reported by brokers. It was learned that a little trading had been done in Japans but nothing of any account. We quote:

COFFEE.

The coffee market shows slight fluctuations in New York, about five points lower, though this will not effect the firm prices ruling to-day. CANNED GOODS.

There is nothing of interest to note. Business is very quiet. That Canadian packers are putting up their goods in better style than formerly is clearly evident. Your correspondent this morning saw in a leading wholesale grocer's sample room, Canadian haricot beans and Petit Pois, which, for quality were admitted by a gentleman, who had a thorough knowledge of the finest French goods, to be equal to any of the foreign pack. The goods were certainly of the highest quality and reflect great credit on the packer. A sale was made this week by a jobber of 1,550 cases Canadian salmon for English account, at a very good figure. We quote:

SALADA MEN IN TORONTO.

A number of the branch managers of The "Salada" Tea Co. have been in Toronto during the past week, and paid a visit to headquarters. Mr. J. A. Elmsley, manager of the Chicago branch; E. W. Gilbert, of the Pittsburg branch; Chas. Sutherland, of the Detroit branch; A. J. Spiller, of the Buffalo branch; Mr. Mosgrove, of Toledo, and J. J. Hedges, of Wisconsin, were among those present. Mr. James A. McGuane, of the New York branch; Mr. Weaver, of St. Paul, Minn., and some others, were unable to come through press of business.

A TRADE PROSPECT.

This is how the contributor to one of the magazines tells of the way in which a little girl revealed the outlook for trade to the country storekeeper:

"From one of the smaller cottages at the end of the street came a barefooted child in a colorless calico dress and slat sunbonnet. With the important air of a heavy buyer she entered the village store and handed across the counter a blue teacup. The proprietor took the teacup and said in brisk tones:

"'Well, Emmy, what does you ma want to-day?'

"'Please, sir, ma wants an egg's worth of molasses,' and she carefully placed a large white egg on the counter.

"The storekeeper poured out a little molasses into the cup from a stone jug and set the cup before his customer.

"'Mr. Smith,' she said, as she took her purchase, 'I'll be back in a little while for some ginger. Ma said to tell you the black hen was on.'"

WHAT TO EAT IN COLD WEATHER.

ALL food contains nitrogen, the substance which supplies muscle, flesh or strength, says Food and Drink. Carbon, another element contained in food, gives warmth. The colder the weather, the more carbon is required. Alcohol is almost wholly carbon, and, hence, produces heat, but it does not add a particle of flesh, nor strength. A person feels stronger after taking a drink of spirits, but it is not real strength. It is only strength preternaturally drawn in advance, the nervous system having been stimulated to make that draught, by the influence which the alcohol had on it.

The following substances have a large percentage of carbon, and also a good percentage of nitrogen, so that they furnish warmth in cold weather, and also make muscle:

Good for Heat, not for Strength.

	Carbon.	Nitrogen.
Potatoes,	11	0.36
Milk,	10	0.03
Butter,	65	0.00
Lard,	80	0.00
Soup,	75	0.75
Wheat,	39	2.00
Rye,	38	1.00

Good for Both Heat and Strength.

	Carbon.	Nitrogen.
Beans,	88	38
Boast Beef,	58	15
Veal,	52	14

Better for Strength Than Heat.

Lean Meat,	13	15

It will be seen that the best food, at this season, is roast beef, or beans, as both furnish heat and muscle. While potatoes, butter, lard, soup, etc., give warmth, they, like alcohol, furnish little or no strength. Even bread contains but little nourishment.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer":
St. John, N.B., Dec. 28, 1903.

CHRISTMAS has come and gone. There was a large business done, though somewhat interfered with by the total lack of snow. There was the usual rush at the retail stores during the last few days. With some it seems impossible to get things early. They leave their buying till the stores are so full of people that it is very difficult to get served, and then they find in place of getting what they want that they have to be satisfied with what others have left. Even those who try to be early find that every day will bring to light some need which has been overlooked. One feature this year which touched more homes than any other was the high price of poultry, so much in demand at this season, particularly the high price of turkeys, which toward the last sold freely at 25c., and those wanting large numbers found it very difficult to get them at all. In general markets the advance in cream of tartar, rather unusual at this season, is a feature; also the continued advance in cloves. Rice continues firm with an occasional chance to pick up a little lot at rather lower figures.

Oil.

In burning oil the market continues very firm. The outlook for linseeds is for low prices, with buyers backward.

Turpentine is high. Lubricatings begin to have more attention. A new company have opened a warehouse on the south wharf and The Sun Oil Co. have made a change of managers. Fish oil is very scarce.

Salt.

There is nothing new. There are the regular receipts of Liverpool coarse salt. A fair stock is held and prices are unchanged. In fine salt the demand is light.

Canned Goods.

Inquiry is met for American tomatoes, but none are yet here; in fact, some are still selling Canadian below cost of American, though they are losing a profit fairly theirs. Corn is the next firm line. Salmon is quite a good stock. There has been a good trade. There is a fair stock of blueberries. In domestic sardines a rather better run of fish toward the close of the season caused a rather better output than was expected. Stocks held are not large. Haddies and clams are both short.

Green Fruit.

The demand is rather light now that Christmas is over. There was a very large sale of Jamaica oranges, the price being low and quality good. This interfered with Valencias, which, at this season are just fair quality. There was some call for Floridas for fancy fruit, the sale of Californias being very light. Lemons are low. Cranberries are high. Apples sell freely. It is many seasons since such Bishop Pippins were seen. They are the finest apples we have at this season.

Dried Fruit.

The sale has been large, particularly in nuts, which have been low and of good quality. Market is perhaps rather overstocked in raisins. Dealers are somewhat anxious to know how the California market will turn. They largely lost the Canadian market this season and will lose it altogether if they do not do something to regain it. For years, in fact, ever since there has been a California Association, this has been a most unsatisfactory line. Prunes are quite low and apricots very high. Dates arrived rather late.

Sugar.

There has been a good sale. The market is rather dull. One advantage since the new arrangement with the refineries has been the lessening of grades of yellow. Still, for those who want the very bright or the dark, they find it difficult to get suited, there being really but two grades offered.

Molasses.

December is a quiet month. Porto Rico is about all that is held here. There is always a good sale right after the new year, at least during the first two months. Prices are held veey firm. New Orleans shows quite an advance.

Fish.

Very little doing. It is not a popular Christmas line. There is a fair supply of fresh fish, though limited variety. Smoked herring hold at high prices. In pickled, stocks are light. Dry fish are at least no higher. In smoked haddies demand is quite well met.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Little of interest. Some millers have been inclined to cut Ontario grades. Manitobas are unchanged. Oatmeal has a fair sale at even figures. Cornmeal is unchanged. Beans are in light stock, with prices firm. Full prices are asked for barley and peas. Feed is quite freely offered.

NOTES.

A. L. Goodwin is carrying a large stock of peanuts. This is a line which has shown quite a continued advance during the last few weeks.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 24.

THE Christmas trade is about over, but the indications are that it has been very satisfactory in its proportions. Judging from appearances there has never been a better holiday season's trade in the Province. In Vancouver the retail merchants have been doing a rushing business all week, and for the past three or four weeks the wholesale trade has been busy with out of town orders. The reports from New Westminster, Nanaimo and from Victoria are also of very satisfactory Christmas trade.

The most interesting feature of the markets has been the poultry supply. Nearly all this stock is imported from the east. The supplies of turkeys which were received from Washington early in the season, for Thanksgiving were very limited and sold at much higher figures than have prevailed so far on the Christmas stocks. The first small shipments of eastern goods that came forward, and most of which went north to White Horse and Dawson sold high too. The Christmas supplies for the local market all came forward in good time, and so far as reported, in good condition.

The last cars to arrive came to hand on Sunday night and were ready for distribution on Monday. That gave plenty of opportunity to send them to outlying points where there was demand. While prices have not been quite as high as seemed likely three or four weeks ago there was no oversupply. The retail prices were not quoted much higher than 20 to 23c. for turkeys in most instances, with an occasional exception for choice selections.

The quality of the brids sent forward has been very good, and there has been but one little difficulty. The practice is growing in the east to ship in cold storage, birds which have been frozen with the feathers on. This suits the Old Country market all right, possibly, but here the trade has not been accustomed to it, and in most instances does not want it. A few cases of birds with the feathers on were received in some of the car lots which arrived here. It was found that these did not take the popular fancy and in some instances the dealers refused to take them, when dressed stock was substituted. This possibly arose through an oversight, and is not taken as a very serious error.

That there has been good reason for anticipating that the prices quoted on poultry earlier in the season would be advanced, is shown by the fact that several merchants did not receive all the goods they ordered, and were consequently not able to fill orders they had taken. Though it may have caused some little inconvenience, it is a much better condition of affairs, than in some past seasons when stock has been carried over in cold storage and late in the season, sold at almost any figure.

A gentleman in the wholesale trade who returned from the east a few days ago was much surprised to hear of the prices at which Christmas poultry was being sold. He said that on the open produce markets in Toronto and Hamilton, he had seen the farmers getting as good figures right from their sleighs, as were being realized here.

The steamer Danube, which has just sailed north for Skagway with mails and passengers for White Horse and Dawson, had quite a large quantity of fresh meat beef, mutton and pork, for White Horse. A small portion of this may find its way down river to Dawson, but most of it is used in White Horse and at the different road houses on the Winter trail, which are served from there.

The steamers north from here, which make fortnightly trips in the Winter months take considerable quantities of fresh meat every time. The Danube this time took out a shipment of feed grain, and some small lots of groceries and other goods for White Horse.

Latest advices from White Horse state that the citizens of that northern town have taken in hand active steps for opening a Winter trail to get into the new placer gold diggings in the Alsek and Kluahne districts. These locations are somewhat over 100 miles from White horse by the Summer trail, but a recently returned prospector "mushed" out from Ruby Creek in three days.

The White Horse people, all the leading citizens being identified with the movement, have undertaken to raise $2,000 by popular subscription, most of which has already been pledged, and part of it will be spent in letting the outside world know the value and importance of the new find. There are several creeks, Ruby, Fourth of July, Twelfth of July, in one district and Bullion Creek in another, which have all shown up so well that the strong probability is another camp nearly if not quite equalling the Klondike has been found.

To provide means of reaching the ground before spring opens and to get in supplies for the big crowds who will go there next season, the business men of White Horse have taken the Winter trail in hand. The White Horse member of the Yukon Council, Mr. Robert Lowe, is bringing before the council a request backed by a largely signed petition, for an appropriation to open a Summer trail so that the camp will be easily reached at all seasons. Last season the difficulty was that prospectors could not get provisions in. At the time the first finds were made, people who went in were asked to pay a uniform price of $1 and $1.50 per pound for all provisions. A little later on the prices were handsomely reduced to 50c. and 75c. per pound, which still made living high, when potatoes cost 75c., sugar 75c., flour and bacon 50c. per pound. Your correspondent has seen original bills which were paid by men who made the trip and stayed in some time. They left because, even at the prices named provisions ran out.

From all indications the big movement in the north next Spring will be to the districts referred to above. The trade, especially wholesale, in Vancouver, is interested insomuch as it will mean a very large business in outfitting and later on in sending forward stocks of supplies, if there are some hundreds of people attracted to the new field. From all reports it is likely there will be some movement before the Winter is over, and the closeness of the ground to easy means of transportation will ensure a large number of prospectors spending at least a portion of the season in the new country.

OTTAWA TRADE GOSSIP.

Ottawa, Dec. 30, 1903.

NOW that the Christmas trade is over for 1903, the question being put to the retail grocers as you meet them is, "Well, how did you find Christmas trade?" Your correspondent has met a good many, and all were fairly well pleased. With some it was the best year they ever had, others found the business was done in so short a time preceding Christmas that it was impossible to handle it properly, but apparently merchants were well satisfied. There did not appear to have been any great cutting of prices as has been usual during the holiday season.

At present, New Year's business is causing a stir. Retailers report a good trade being done.

The sugar market is as usual, no change having taken place.

Molasses is firm at same quotations, 43 to 44c.

In canned goods prices are looking very firm, especially for corn. Some wholesale houses are trying to buy whenever they can, as stocks are scarce. The jobbing price is now $1 for corn and $1.05 for tomatoes, with a likelihood of an advance price from 87½c. to $1.10.

Rolled wheat is expected to be higher in price. Quotations are now $2.75 a barrel.

Low-grade Ceylons are said to be scarce.

Citron peel is reported pretty well sold out.

There was a great demand for Vostizza currants this season, and very few happened to have been imported. Just now it is impossible to get any.

A good business is being done already in dried fruits. Prunes, peaches and apricots are selling fairly well.

Flour advanced 10c. a bag this week. Demand is very good considering the season of the year. The wheat market is very firm.

Albert sardines are practically out of the market. The failure of the catch in the Mediterranean is the cause. It is said they intend to pack the Portuguese fish, which is not up to the regular standard of quality.

The price of poultry of all kinds was high during the week before Christmas. Turkeys brought from 15 to 18c. on the local market; geese, 10 to 11c.; ducks, 13c.; chickens, 11 to 13c. Prices are firm this week owing to the demand for New Year's trade.

Hams and bacon are in good demand. Prices are a little firmer than some time ago. Quotations for choice hams are 12½ to 13½c.; bacon, 13 to 13½c. Lard is quoted same as last report, 8½ to 9c. for pure, and 9 to 10c. for kettle rendered.

NOTES.

Mr. J. B. Lauriel of Robertson Bros., reports a banner business in Christmas confectionery for his firm. Their warehouse on Queen street is the largest here, and their display was one of the finest to be seen anywhere.

The F. J. Castle Co. have recently installed a large fruit cleaner, which so far has proved a success. It both washes and dries the fruit thoroughly, leaving a new appearance to any old stock when cleaned. It rather improves the coating of new fruit instead of destroying it, as some cleaners do.

The Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association will hold their annual meeting the second Monday in January. The election of officers for ensuing year will take place and reports for past year will be received.

Oregon Prune Situation.

THE Oregon prune situation is beginning to develop signs of strength which a short time since would have been considered to be impossible, says The New York Journal of Commerce. Early in December it was stated in quarters from which it would be expected that nothing but the most favorable statements relative to the condition of supply and demand would issue, that there was much grumbling among growers over the lack of demand, and the fact that less than one-half of the 900 or 1,000 carloads of Oregon Italian prunes produced this season had been sold. At that time it was said a basis price of even 1½c. was not sufficiently attractive to interest Eastern buyers.

It does not appear that the demand from the east has materially improved in the interim, but other causes for the time at least equally potent have been at work to give the market tone. The most important of these influences appears to have been the work of the various associations in getting control of the stocks, which, so long as they remained in the hands of individual growers, were pressed for sale at constantly lessening prices. A statement issuing a few days ago from one of the most influential of the organizations, the Williamette Fruit Growers' Association, was to the effect that 400 to 450 cars would easily cover all that remained unsold of the current crop, and that of this quantity 75 per cent. is in the hands of the several associations. This statement finds support in the stronger tenor of advices received from Oregon during the past week, and the evident disposition on the part of holders there to make no further concessions in the way of lower prices, as inducement to eastern buyers.

In the eastern market in common with California prunes, Oregons have come in for an unusual amount of attention for this time of the year, and as stocks here are light the market has a firmer tone. The scarcity of Italian prunes in the east does not reflect any extraordinary demand for that variety at any period of the season so far, but is attributed to the fact that as in the case of other descriptions of Pacific Coast dried fruits purchases for forward shipment from the primary market to the east were on an exceptionally small scale this year.

Florida Fruit Shipments.

By the end of the month there will have been shipped out of Florida, according to the estimate of John S. Arnold & Son, of Jacksonville, 1,200,000 boxes, leaving 1,000,000 boxes yet to be sent forward to distributing markets.

Delay in California Cured Fruits.

As a remedy for recurring complaints each year as to delays in transportation of cured fruit products, The California Fruit Grower suggests that the traffic departments of the transportation companies arrange for the regular despatch at stated intervals of solid trainloads of the fruit from the Coast during the period of its most active movement. As most of the product is destined for far eastern points, the claim is made that the trains could be handled more expeditiously if made up solid of one commodity. Such trains, it is argued, could be given preference over less important shipments, thus obviating in a great measure delays to cars containing cured fruit which constitute part of mixed train loads, and are therefore often sidetracked in such trains, when solid trains of fruit products would be allowed to proceed.

Molasses in New York.

N. W. Taussig Co., New York, say of molasses: "Receipts during the past have not been very large, and buyers have found it very difficult to get the proper assortment and quantity required for their orders. Locally there has been a good demand, and deliveries have taken place, and the wholesale grocery trade have shipped molasses almost as fast as received by them to their customers. There is no accumulation or any stocks of any consequence here. This market continues firm at previous quotations. Foreign molasses is in better demand and more attention is being given to same, and with the turn of the year we expect a heavy demand to spring up for all grades."

American Beet Sugar.

Willett & Gray say of the American beet sugar crop: "Several factories in Michigan are approaching the end of their campaign and results are disappointing. The heavy rains this Fall delayed the harvesting of beets and extreme cold weather came on before the pulling was finished, leaving many roots frozen in the ground. In some sections the yield is one-third less than anticipated, but elsewhere fairly good results have been obtained. Four new factories have been built in Michigan this year, but the output of sugar will, unfortunately, not much exceed that of last year. Favorable reports are received from New York, Utah, Idaho and some parts of Colorado and California, but the production in certain localities in Ohio, Nebraska, Colorado, Washington and California is smaller than was expected. It is still too early to ascertain definite figures for the season, but present indications point to a total production of beet sugar in the United States of 210,000 tons (2,240 pounds each), being a reduction of 23,000 tons in the preliminary estimate. Last year the total crops amounted to 195,463 tons."

American Sweet Corn.

According to The American Grocer the pack of corn in 1903 follows two previous years of an output below the average and 1,731,478 cases lighter than the large pack of 1900. There was every preparation for a large output, notwithstanding seed was scarce, inferior in quality and high in price. The crop of seed corn in Maine, Connecticut and New York was light; and a large part of the supply was concentrated in a few hands, more with a view of regulating competition than in making a corner and forcing up the price. While the climatic conditions were favorable to the general crop of corn, resulting in a yield of 2,300,000,000 bushels, they were exceedingly unfavorable for sweet corn in New York and Maine, two States which under the best conditions could supply over 4,000,000 cases. In Illinois the result was fine; in Iowa there was a defficiency. The total pack of corn in the United States and Canada for the year 1903 was 4,751,146 cases, against 1,288,664 cases in 1902, an increase of 462,482 cases.

Land Values in Cuba.

It is reported that land owners in Cuba are confident that the approval of the treaty of reciprocity will improve the value of real estate on the island, as it will give scope to the establishment of a certain number of new central sugar factories and impart a strong impulse to agricultural pursuits of all sorts. The erection, in the district of Holguin, by an American syndicate of two large factories of a capacity of 1,000 bags of sugar per day, each, is already spoken of, and the preparation of the land for cane planting for same has been commenced.

GREEN FRUITS

Fresh Fruit Carried by Grocers.

APPARENTLY the handling of fruit by retail grocers is increasing everywhere, except possibly in the large cities where fruit stands exist on almost every corner, and even there all except a few grocers carry some fresh fruits, says an American exchange. In the smaller towns it is almost impossible to buy citrus fruits or bananas anywhere else. Fruit selling is usually an adjunct of the grocery or the cigar store.

This department of the grocery trade might be profitably developed in many instances without requiring the investment of much extra capital or without incurring any important risks. Some retailers have discovered the opportunities here and are making the most of them.

One objection which many consumers have to buying of fruit stores is that they must carry home their purchases themselves, and one who has made the attempt knows how difficult it is to carry a knobby bundle of bananas. The grocer has his delivery wagon and can send the fruit home with other goods. This might seem like a small thing, but the influence of delivery would undoubtedly make the difference in buying and grocers might as well have the advantage of the additional business if they care for it.

As modern life is developing, tropical fruits, which were formerly considered luxuries purely, are now coming to be classed as necessities, and naturally to be included in any list of staples which may be prepared. This fact can be utilized by the retail grocer to good advantage, the result depending upon his own ability to sell profitably and it might be added that his environment, the character of his trade and other similar features will be important factors in his success.

British Object to Mixed Lots.

WRITING to the fruit division, Ottawa, Mr. A. W. Grindley, inspector of the Department of Agriculture in Great Britain, quotes as follows from a letter received from a firm of fruit importers: "If your department, through a circular, could induce shippers to use some common sense in sending apples, you would do them much good financially. For instance, yesterday the Tunisian was cleared up, the bulk having been disposed of earlier in the week, and in the catalogues there were over 1,250 lines under 10 barrels each (we should guess averaging two and three barrels), of different varieties. We do not know of any trade where so much money is being wilfully thrown away."

Regarding this point, Mr. Grindley refers to one lot of apples catalogued on October 23, in which there were 30 varieties in a lot of 41 barrels, and says that no buyer will pay top prices for these mixed lots, and that the shipper loses heavily every time. The establishment of co-operative packing and shipping houses, advocated by Mr. MacKinnon, is pronounced by Mr. Grindley a splendid idea, and one that, if carried out, would to a large extent do away with the small lots of mixed varieties of which importers complain.

Quebec Endorses Apple Box.

THE Pomological Society of Quebec, at its annual meeting at Hemmingford, recently adopted a resolution recommending to the fruit growers and shippers of Quebec the adoption of a box 10 x 11 x 18 inches, the same as that used in British Columbia and adopted by the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association at their convention at Leamington, Ont., a couple of weeks ago. Nova Scotia, it is said, will adopt the box in February, so that by next season a uniform size of box will be in use throughout the Dominion.

The meetings were held in the town hall, and there was a good attendance of farmers and fruit growers. Among promient fruit men present were W. W. Dunlop, Outremont; A. McNeill, chief fruit inspector, Ottawa; R. W. Sheppard, Montreal; W. T. Macoun, of the fruit division of the experimental farm at Ottawa; R. Brodie, Notre Dame de Grace; G. Reynaud, Latrappe; J. C. Chapais, St. Denis; C. P. Newman, Lachine Locks; F. L. Dery, Ottawa; E. C. Edwards, Covey Hill; W. H. Walker, M.P.P., Huntington; J. M. Fisk, Abbotsford, and Stanton R. Jack.

Among the Fruit Men.

M'WILLIAM & EVERIST.

THE firm of McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, comprised of G. McWilliam and F. Everist, are at the present time carrying on one of the largest and most successful fruit and commission businesses in Canada. During the 30 years of the firm's existence they have seen the fruit trade grow from such small beginnings as four or five cars of oranges a year for holiday trade to the big proportions which the fruit trade in Toronto is assuming at the present time. Instead of being limited to importations of oranges from the Mediterranean, frequent consignments of Jamaicas, Floridas, California navels and seedlings are regularly received, also large quantities of Mexicans, which have become so popular that they have all but pushed Valencias out of the market. The fruit trade in other lines has also grown by leaps and bounds, and, as the country gets opened up, fruit merchants look to see Toronto become the distributing point for a still larger quantity of fruit.

McWilliam & Everist are well satisfied with their share of this lively trade in fruits, such as oranges, lemons, figs, nuts, bananas, dates, pineapples and grapefruit. A representative of "The Grocer" interviewed a member of the firm at their large and commodious warehouse, which is taxed to its utmost capacity by the demands of increasing business, and saw on every hand indications of prosperity, giving ample evidence to corroborate their statement that 1903 has been the banner year in the history of their business.

Variety of Pears for Export.

The Editor, "Canadian Grocer" :—I notice on page 49 of "The Grocer" of December 11, that Mr. Wolverton is reported as saying that the Bartlett pear is the best for export. If Mr. Wolverton is not incorrectly reported, he referred to its excellent dessert qualities only. As an export pear it has been a failure so far in the hands of Canadian shippers. It is a quick-ripening variety, and to ship it to Great Britain with safety it should be picked on the green side and placed at once in cold storage. As soon as it is cold wrap in paper, pack in half cases holding about 20 pounds of fruit, and ship by refrigerator car and cold storage chamber. The mistakes made are packing without cooling, using too large a package, and delaying the cooling process for some time after picking. Anyone interested should write to the Fruit Division, Ottawa, and secure, free, the bulletin "The Export Pear Trade," by W. A. MacKinnon.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
John C. Kirkwood,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Profitable Advertising for Grocers.

IN looking through a goodly number of Canadian weekly newspapers—dailies, too,—for examples of advertising, I was struck with the absence of grocery advertisements. There were dry goods announcements in abundance, but comparatively little grocery advertising. Just how to explain this condition of affairs is hard. It would seem, however, to indicate that the grocers belittled the value of advertising; that is, so far as their business is concerned. It seems to indicate, too, that newspaper publishers have not been very active among grocers in the direction of development of advertising. Just here I may say that, judging from my own experience, weekly newspaper publishers are not very good or very aggressive advertising solicitors, notwithstanding the fact that their prosperity depends very largely upon the amount of advertising carried in their newspapers. I cannot do otherwise than consider it short-sighted and a misuse of opportunity for a grocer of any pretension or ambition not to advertise. Accordingly, I desire at this particular time, at the opening of a new year, to talk over this subject very briefly with the retail grocer.

With a good many, the question of cost, is the barrier that stands in the way of their advertising. The uncertainty of its "paying" is a sufficient reason for them to refuse to spend money on advertising. The intangible character of the transaction is so present with them in their consideration of the subject that they think of advertising as nothing more or less than a gamble. Others, again, are unable to judge the value of newspaper space, and are inclined to think any proposal by a publisher as being decidedly too profitable for the publisher, and dislike exceedingly to enter into any contract where the profits are so enormous.

This question of the cost of advertising is very apt to be viewed in a very wrong and narrow way. No newspaper publisher can guarantee that an advertisement in his paper will be profitable, yet this is just what many a merchant wishes the publisher to do. A publisher sells space, nothing more, nothing less. He offers space in his paper, three inches deep, six inches deep, one column wide, two columns wide, three columns wide. He sells space, and this space is worth money; how much money depends upon the extent and character of the circulation. He gives merchants an opportunity through the use of space in his paper to tell the community what to buy, and where to buy. This opportunity varies in worth: If the newspaper has a circulation of 1,000, it is worth so much; if the circulation be 2,000, or 5,000, the opportunity is worth a good deal more. That is, space in a paper with a large and choice circulation is worth more than space in a paper with a small circulation. An opportunity to tell 500, 1,000, or 3,000 families, a large portion of whose money is being spent daily for groceries, why this money should be spent at one store rather than at another, is worth no small sum to a wideawake, aggressive, ambitious grocer. Such a grocer has every week several excellent reasons for inviting these families, the heads of households, to his store, and there is no cheaper, speedier, better way to acquaint buyers with his weekly offerings than by engaging space in a local paper.

This leads me to say that the burden of sale is not on the publisher but on the merchant. The publisher sells space, but the profitable use of the space sold lies with the merchant. If a grocer, for example, who buys space, neglects to use it intelligently, brightly, persuasively, he cannot expect his advertising to be profitable, and, if he be honest, he will blame himself for the failure. Having an opportunity is one thing; the right use of an opportunity is quite another thing. We all have known men to own horses which stand idle in their stalls most of the time, or else wander about a big pasture field. They do no work; yet we do not say the horses are no good. It is their owners whom we censure. So is it with much advertising: Some advertisements stand unchanged week after week, using up space which must be paid for; and some ramble so that they fail to sell a penny's worth. Such advertising is costly, because it represents waste. The grocer who advertises, or rather, who thinks he is advertising, by engaging space in his local paper and then giving neither time nor attention to a right use of this space, might just as well cancel his contract.

In dismissing this question of the cost of advertising let me say that a better question is—What will advertising yield? Advertising can yield, will yield, and does yield a most profitable return on the money spent—if done rightly. I know grocers in towns where conditions are much the same as those that exist in almost every community, this whole country over, who are ready to say that they could not do business without advertising. The cost of advertising doesn't concern them; the necessity of advertising was long ago admitted. The business-producing power of advertising is daily perceived. But these men put their whole thought into their announcements to the public and fill the space they employ with news that throbs with the activity of a busy store.

The purpose of this department of Advertising Suggestion and Criticism in "The Canadian Grocer" is to assist retailers in their advertising. If any grocer feels himself unable to write advertisements that will sell goods, he will find in these columns every week something calculated to help him in this direction; if his difficulties are not being met or touched upon, he is urged to write a personal letter to the editor, who is ever ready to give what assistance he can to any interested in this department.

There is another phase of the advertising problem related to cost, yet quite another matter; namely, the question of what space to use. I am of the opinion that many advertisers use more space than is wise, and that in this circumstance lies the reason for a good deal of the poor advertising too often seen. Just because space is cheap it is not always a good thing to buy more of it than one would otherwise do. For ordinary use a small space is to be preferred to a large one. This applies to the grocery trade. If I were writing to dry goods merchants I might take another view of space. When the space to be occupied is big there is considerable difficulty in filling it with interesting items. The probability is that generalities and large type are used to fill up. It will be found in most cases that a small, short, pointed, specific, nicely set up advertisement will do more work than one which is long, indefinite, and loose looking. The temptation is to tell too much, and the danger of a long story is that most of it will be forgotten. Economy of words and space is worth while. Six inches single column is a good-sized space, and one that can be made effective in good hands; indeed, I have seen a space half this size used to very great advantage. Or if one prefers a double-column advertisement, a space three or four inches deep is a very nice size. But to take half pages, or full columns, is, according to my judgment, unwise and wasteful.

There is waste in advertising, some of it inevitable, just as the carpenter's plane makes waste; some of it preventable. And there is a waste in not advertising. The greater waste is the latter.

A GENEROUS FIRM.

ON Christmas Eve, C. F. & J. Galt remembered their many employes in their usual substantial fashion. Including those in the "Blue Ribbon" tea and "Blue Ribbon" coffee and spice departments, over 60 persons are employed by them in Winnipeg alone, and from the highest to the lowest each received, besides good wishes, a nice cheque from the firm. Though very reticent in such matters, it is known that C. F. & J. Galt distribute every year a considerable sum in this way, and, indeed, it would be hard to find a house more thoroughly considerate of its employes, or one which treats them more generously.

"THE GOPHER TALE."

The Winnipeg Free Press is usually hitting upon some scheme which brings itself to the attention of Canadians. The management has just issued a pretty little booklet of 22 pages entitled, "The Gopher Tail: a good luck bringer." The booklet, which deals with the Indian legend in regard to the gopher tail as a good luck charm, as given in Parkman's "The Conspiracy of Pontiac," is nicely printed and freely illustrated, and accompanying each copy is a gopher tail, nicely mounted, for use as a watch pendant. In a publisher's note it is pointed out that although the Indians on the different reserves had been requested to secure as many tails as possible, only 833 had reached Winnipeg in time for mounting.

FLOUR AND CEERAL FOODS

Canadian Barley All Right.

THE speech of Mr. Chaplin in England, in which it was alledged that the soil of the colonies was unfitted for growing barley, has brought out the following letter from Mr. Jas. A. Cochrane, of Hillhurst, P.Q., who writes to an evening paper as follows:

"Sir,—In your 'Special Cables' of yesterday, Mr. Chaplin is said to have stated that the soil of the colonies was unfitted for the growth of barley, and was unlikely to be for years to come, a statement which might make any Canadian farmer smile at the wilful ignorance of the Tory variety of the little Englander.

"Dr. Wm. Saunders, director of experimental farms, in his 1901 report, gives the average yield at the Indian Head, Northwest Territories, experimental farm as 61 bushels 1 pound per acre, and the average results of the six varieties which produced the largest crops in 1901 at all the experimental farms in Canada at 5 bushels, 30 pounds per acre. Wilson in 'British Farming,' puts the average for Great Britain at 36 bushels.

"Barley flourishes in Southern Alberta, which is undoubtedly the most promising field for the production of this valuable cereal in the British Empire, the dry Summer climate making it an easy matter to secure the brightness for which the Bay of Quinte district was long famous."

Milling in the West.

THE OGILVIE MILLING CO. have this year added to their already large mill in Winnipeg an additional storey, thus bringing the capacity up to 3,500 barrels of flour daily, and the entire capacity of all the mills operated by the company up to 12,500 barrels per day.

In addition to this 12 new elevators have been built, located at the following points: Altamont, Belle Plaine, Burnside, Clan William, Chater, Esterhazy, Fotherby, Newdale, Qu'Appelle, Rossburn, Sperling and Westwood.

Plans have also been completed for the erection of a mill and elevator at Fort William next Spring, and already 4,000 piles have been delivered on the ground, which will be used to carry the foundations of the proposed new buildings. The mill will have a capacity of 2,500 barrels a day and the elevator will hold 750,000 bushels of grain.

Northwest Crops.

Dr. W. Elliott, Commissioner of Agriculture for the Northwest Territories, was in Toronto last week looking into the system of registration of births, deaths and marriages in Ontario. Dr. Elliott says that the crop estimate for the Territories for July had to be reduced about 5 per cent., on account of the prolonged rainy weather that followed. Speaking of Prof. W. H. Coard's agricultural college at Regina, Dr. Elliott said that Prof. Coard still kept his business connection secret, not caring to disclose the name of the philanthropist supporting it. He, however, was doing well at the college, and had expressed the hope that at the end of two years the Government would take over the institution.

The Time to Clean Wheat.

THE way to test a load of wheat at the mill door is to clean it through a good receiving separator and then weigh it in a correct hopper scale, says a writer in The American Miller.

If your mill doesn't pay as it should, examine your wheat after you have paid for it to see how much worthless stuff you have paid for.

Don't blame your head miller if, after taking in wheat, dirt and all, you don't make money.

Do the cotton mills buy cotton, seed and all, and try to make cloth out of it, or do they require it to be clean of seed?

If you will clean your wheat, it doesn't require a man of so much ability to guess what the wheat is worth at the mill door. If you do not clean your wheat before paying for it you had better let the best guesser you have about the mill do the receiving; and even then he can't guess sufficiently correct to make a satisfactory deal on both sides.

An editorial in the October number of The American Miller says: "This is the one place in the mill where there is the greatese chance for loss or profit, according to the ability of the man in charge." This statement can't well be repeated too often.

Do not try to reach out or enlarge your business until you get what you have on a paying basis by using business methods. That is my motto.

Our millers write pages on the importance of clean wheat, but most of them do their cleaning too late; at a time when they have to stand all the loss. This should be divided; clean it some while the other fellow has an interest in it. Put the little brass bucket aside for a while and try the plan of cleaning the wheat and giving the farmer the screenings and dirt. You will be surprised to find how much more satisfactory it will be.

Do the elevator men give the millers the same discount that they require of the farmer to make the wheat grade up, or do they buy from the farmer and deduct two and three pounds per bushel, selling to the miller, one per cent. short, cheat, screenings, dirt and all?

From the amount of screenings cleaned out of the wheat shipped east from the western elevators, I would judge we get it tail, hoof and horns with the hide, and do the separating ourselves, in our own way and at our own loss.

I will make this statement, that the lack of getting good, clean wheat at the mill door has broken more millers than any one thing in the business to-day.

If there is one miller in the United Distribution of Seed.

BY instruction of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture another distribution will be made this season of samples of the most productive sorts of grain to Canadian farmers for the improvement of seed. The stock for distribution is of the very best and has been secured mainly from the excellent crops recently had at the branch Experimental Farm at Indian Head in the Northwest Territories. The distribution this Spring will consist of samples of oats, Spring wheat, barley, Indian corn and potatoes. The quantities of oats, wheat and barley to be sent this year will be four pounds of oats and five pounds of wheat or barley, sufficient to sow one-twentieth of an acre. The samples of Indian corn and potatoes will weigh three pounds as heretofore. Every farmer may apply, but only one sample can be sent to each applicant, hence if an individual receives a sample of oats he cannot also receive one of wheat, barley or potatoes, and applications for more than one sample for one household cannot be entertained. Origin of Bread Making.

THE discovery in Egypt of a loaf of bread 4,000 years old or older, a part of which was well enough preserved to make it possible to identify barley as the grain of which it was made, recalls the fact that one of the most remarkable of all inventions is so old that we have not only no account of it, but nothing pointing to it, and so common to-day that we rarely think of it as an invention or wonder—it is bread. There have been found in Egypt pictures and inscriptions that carry the history of bread-making very far back, and show us some of the early processes. Yet what they show us is unmistakably bread, and the invention of the process lies far back of that. We can learn from the monuments and records from Egypt what we might have suspected, that grain was broken by pounding before the art of grinding was invented, and that food was warmed and perhaps cooked with hot stones before ovens were known. But a loaf of bread made from grain pounded to pieces and baked between hot stones is just as much bread as the loaf upon our breakfast table, and the circumstances or process of the invention of the art of making it is still a mystery.

Primitive man spent most of his time as the wild animal does, in seeking food. That grain grew wild and that our hungry ancestors chewed the kernels as they probably chewed at one time or another almost everything that their teeth could deal with, can easily be imagined. But at what time it occurred to man to make bread, to break the kernels, mix the resulting meal with water and apply heat to it we do not know and can never find out, for man did this so early that it was too old and familiar a story to be recorded when he learned how to make records.

Man ate the flesh of animals for a long period before he found it better cooked than raw, and there is undoubtedly a good deal of history in Charles Lamb's humorous account of the discovery of roast pig. The benefit of cooking was probably discovered accidentally. The step from raw to cooked meat is too long to have been taken by primitive man as the result of reflection or experiment. If man's first taste of roast meat came from animals in a burning forest, it would not have been unnatural for him to try heat on grain.

The breaking of the kernels would easily have suggested itself as a relief to his teeth, and mixing the coarse meal with water would have readily occurred to him as a means of making the meal stick together, without which any process of baking or roasting would have been most inconvenient of application. But unless the cooking of food were discovered accidentally it was a greater advance on the pre-existing state of knowledge than the most remarkable of the inventions that have distinguished the nineteenth century.—British Baker and Confectioner, of London.

Baking Contest in France.

THE competition organized by the French Minister of War for a prize of 20,000 francs for the best kind of military bread, capable of keeping fresh for 40 days, has now been decided. Seventy-two competitors took part in this contest, but 69 were struck out, as their bread did not fulfill the requirements of the military commissariat.

The three remaining samples were sealed up, and, on their being opened after the lapse of 40 days, the bread prepared by a Marseilles chef, M. Sinopoulon, gained the prize of 20,000 francs, and the inventor has obtained a contract for the supply of military bread to the entire French army. This military bread is officially known as "pain de guerre," and popularly as "biscuit."

The old kind was made of pure white flour, but the process of manufacture was such that it was too hard to be eaten by human beings. Its chief purpose seemed to be to load the men's haversacks with unnecessary weight, for during the manoeuvres whenever the order was given to consume the "vivres de reserve," men promptly threw away the ration or gave the "pain de guerre" to the villagers for the pigs.

In the Winter season "biscuits" were consumed by the soldiers, who first placed them ad hoc on the top of the rusty stove to bake. Some years ago experiments were tried in various regiments with a double object in view—first, to induce the men to eat the military bread, and, second, to effect a saving on the other stores.

So called "poudings" were served up to Dumanet, the chief ingredient being pulverized "biscuit." But Dumanet did not favor the "pouding" much more than the "biscuit" in its natural form, even when currants—an unprecedented dainty for French troops were added to the mixture. The new military bread is reported to be more palatable than the old.

New South Wales Wheat.

The official estimate of the wheat yield of New South Wales is 28,570,000 bushels, an increase of 12,500,000 bushels compared with the record of the year 1901. About 18,500,000 bushels are available for export.

Gluten—Quality and Quantity.

IT is well known that some flours are not so good for breadmaking purposes as others, although they may be quite as rich in gluten, says The American Miller. Millers long ago learned that the nature of the gluten rather than its quantity was the determining factor as to the suitability of flour for bread.

Scientists have been studying the question to discover what variations in fact were comprised under this general term of "elasticity," which millers have used to indicate gluten quality. Dr. Kosutany at a scientific meeting in Berlin discussed the causes of the observed variation in gluten. The chief constituents of gluten, as we are aware, are glutenin, which makes the dough hard and fragile, and gliadin, which gives it elasticity, softness, and adhesiveness. He found that during removal of the starch by washing the dough in water 17 per cent. of the glutenin was converted into gliadin. This transformation is probably due to various causes, some of which he cannot explain. They depend on the presence or absence of certain enzymes. Thence the necessity of experimentally establishing the proportion between the components of the gluten.

For this purpose he invented a method of analysis which gives the quality of gluten in a few minutes. The instrument constructed by Professor Retjo, under the direction of Dr. Kosutany, makes it possible to determine tenacity of the dough and automatically record its physical properties when stretched or compressed. Comparing the diagram obtained with the instrument for wheat, flour, and that of other cereals, it is found that the first alone gives a concave line. An elevated diagram signifies that more water must be added to the dough. Too soft a dough can be made consistent with salt, and hard, fragile dough is rectified with hot water and prolonged repose. The diagram also indicates that the noxious influence of hot milling begins to manifest itself at 75 deg. C., and that germination is also injurious. These results correspond with the observation of millers in regard to "killed" flour and "sprouted" wheat.

U. S. TOMATO PACK LARGE.

OUR friends across the line are not worrying this year over a shortage of tomatoes. The 24th annual report of the tomato pack, made by The American Grocer, reveals the natural results of the short pack and the very high prices of 1901, which brought about a rapid extension of the industry, exhibited by an increase of acreage and the building of new canning factories, notably in Virginia and Maryland, and, to a less extent, in Indiana, which movement went on with greater force in 1903. The pack of 1903 turns out to be the heaviest on record, reaching a total of 10,555,115 cases, and undoubtedly surpasses the heavy output of 1902 by over half a million cases, after allowing fully 500,000 cases for houses in Maryland and Virginia, unlisted and not reported in 1902.

The total pack compares with the output of the nine previous years as follows :

Year.	Cases of 2 doz. tins each.
1903	10,555,115
1902	9,494,812
1901	4,518,221
1900	5,849,593
1899	7,404,923
1898	5,797,806
1897	4,149,441
1896	3,541,188
1895	4,194,780
1894	6,586,979
Total for ten years	62,092,858
Average per year	6,209,286
Average per year 1901-03	8,189 383
Average per year 1902 03	10 024,963

"As the stock of tomatoes packed in 1901 was absorbed before the opening of the packing season of 1902," says The American Grocer, "it is evident that the total supply of 1899-1901, aggregating nearly 18,000,000 cases, and showing an average annual output of about 6,000,000, was so insufficient to meet requirements that prices advanced from the low point of 70c. in 1901 to $1.60 in 1902. It is also clear that a pack in two years of over 20,000,000 cases, or over 10,000,000 as the yearly average, is far beyond the country's requirements, so much so that the market dropped from 87½c. to 62½c. between January and November, 1903. It is oversupply and not statistical information that is responsible for the condition of the market. . . . . The acreage was increased, new factories operated by the score, and the result is a supply largely in excess of demand, with prices that make tomato packing unprofitable.

"The future of the industry depends upon the packers, with whom rests the power to fix the relation of supply and demand. The capacity of tomato packing establishments is far above meeting annual requirement, and unless they reduce acreage, stop packing slack filled tins and improve grades they must expect an unremunerative market in 1904. The pack of 1903 in Indiana, Iowa, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Missouri and Pennsylvania was below the capacity of the plants in those States. In Maryland and Virginia it seems that the average per house was very high. One firm handling the product of 80 houses shows an average output of 7,800 cases ; another with 10 houses, 7,500 cases. If all the plants in all the States are worked to the full capacity they can produce 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 cases of tomatoes. The consumption has been largely increased by low prices, and it may be during the first half of 1904 it will be heavy enough to cut down the supply to a point that will leave a carry-over that will not be a menace to the market, provided there is no extension of the industry and acreage is kept low."

THE COFFEE SITUATION.

WILLETT & GRAY in their weekly statistical report thus size up the coffee situation : The coffee markets continue to fluctuate heavily, following speculative sentiment for higher values and realizations to secure profits. The trade proper, as is usually the case in front of the holiday season, is quiet, but there is a strong belief that there will be a better demand from the country with the turn of the year. The pretensions of the Brazil holders at present are rather above the parity of this market, and the disposition is to await developments rather than undertake new business at the present level. There is no question about actual supplies being large enough for all purposes as the situation is at present, but speculators seem to attach considerable importance to the reports of damage by drought to the next crop. It is not too much to say that confirmations are accumulating, going to show that the drought has been severe, and that the blossomings have not set sufficiently well to insure anything more than a moderate crop, and inasmuch as the drought has extended over such a long period, the belief prevails that the trees have been weakened to such an extent as to incur a serious prejudice to the ensuing crop. As we have stated in previous reports, the fact that the current crop will be smaller than originally estimated, has been pretty well discounted, so the question hinges on whatever the growing crop will finally turn out to be. In January estimates are usually forthcoming from Brazil firms as to the probable size of the ensuing crop, and these are awaited with more than the usual interest.

COCOA AND SPICE STANDARDS.

ACCORDING to the new U. S. Government food standards in spices, pepper is so defined as to exclude from the standard product pepper hulls, pepper dust or other pepper by-products, says Tea and Coffee Trade Journal. The ash standard of black pepper is made a maximum of 7 per cent., and for white pepper a minimum of 4 per cent., of which not over ½ per cent. shall be sand. Macassar and Bombay maces are not considered as standard mace. Standard mustard is given a maximum of 2½ per cent. of starch derived from mustard.

In the cocoa schedule standard chocolate is defined as the product made by grinding kernels of the cocoa bean without removing the fat or adding other substances, the fat standard being a minimum of 45 per cent. The amount of sugar in sweet chocolate is not limited by the standards. Cocoa is prescribed as the kernel deprived of part of its fat and pulverized. The standard sweet cocoa has a maximum limit of 60 per cent. of sugar, but no minimum limit of fat is fixed for either cocoa or sweet cocoa. Chocolate coatings are treated as sweet chocolate.

Damaged by Fire.

The premises of the Montreal Cigar factory, 197 McGill street, were considerably damaged by fire last week. When noticed the blaze was in the second and third storeys of the building, and though the flames were not much in evidence, it took four streams and half an hour's hard work before the fire, which was in a large quantity of tobacco, was got under control. The top storey was damaged by smoke, and the ground floor, occupied by the Montreal Fruit Exchange, by the large amount of water used to confine the blaze to its starting point. Much property was saved by the covers spread by the salvage corps of No. 1 Station. Owing to the nature of the material burning the men experienced much inconvenience from the thick black smoke emanating from it.

The loss, which is covered by insurance, is between three and four thousand dollars.

Ate Tobaccoed Soup.

PROMPTED by jealousy because the girl he most admired was going to supper with his rival, a young man emptied the contents of his tobacco pouch in the oyster stew which was being made at a social held in the Bellinger schoolhouse, near Emericksville, Pennsylvania, says The Cigar and Tobacco Journal.

One of the young women tasted the stew and nearly fainted. She thought she had been poisoned. A young man tasted the soup and announced that it was flavored with nothing more dangerous than tobacco. An investigation followed. The jealous young man was accused, and finally confessed. Some of the young men proposed holding him under the schoolhouse pump, but one of the girls suggested that he be compelled to eat the soup and to pay for it at the rate of 25c. per plate. Rather than stand under the pump, he consented to eat all he could, and to pay for the rest.

The girl he most admired leaned on his rival's arm and applauded as plate after plate was set before the victim.

Tobacco in War.

DESPITE the anti-smoking leagues and similar organizations, says The London Evening Standard, tobacco grows in popularity year by year, and by no class of persons are its virtues more appreciated than the gallant soldiers of the King, not a few of whom have gone into battle pipe in mouth as well as sword in hand. In comparatively recent years there has been a great change in the attitude of the high military authorities toward the fragrant weed; for, though not absolutely forbidden, smoking was for a long time condemned by the British Army commanders, as witness the famous "General Order No. 577," issued by the Duke of Wellington just before he relinquished the supreme command. "The Commander-in-Chief," it read, "has been informed that the practice of smoking pipes, cigars and cheroots has become prevalent among the army, which is not only in itself a species of intoxication occasioned by the fumes of tobacco, but undoubtedly occasions drinking and tippling by those who acquire the habit; and he entreats the officers commanding regiments to prevent smoking in the mess-rooms and in adjoining apartments, and to discourage the practice among the officers of junior rank in their regiments."

In the third year of the twentieth century the foregoing seems somewhat curious reading; and, despite the great Duke's prejudice against it, tobacco played no small part in winning more than one of the great battles that brought him fame and glory. Indeed, it is highly probable, that but for its soothing influence the history of the terrible and prolonged Peninsular campaign would have had a less agreeable interest for the people of England, as well as for our ancient ally more immediately concerned.

Output of Mexican Cigars.

There are 670 factories turning out tobacco products in Mexico. The production in all lines is increasing, with the exception of snuff. During the fiscal year 1902-1903, 16,074,174 pounds of cigars were manufactured.

Tobacco Culture in Hayti.

THE following information with regard to the cultivation of tobacco in the Negro Republic of Hayti is taken from the report of the Imperial German Resident Minister in Port au Prince: Tobacco, which is the most important article of export in the neighboring islands of Cuba and Porto Rico, as well as in the other parts of the Island of Hayti, which consists of the Republic of San Domingo, is scarcely cultivated at all in the Republic of Hayti. Its cultivation requires too much care and trouble if it is to be remunerative. The only large tobacco plantation was laid out a few years ago by a German firm near Port au Prince. The tobacco cultivated there is chiefly suitable for cigars and cigarettes. The goods are made by hands from Cuba and Jamaica, who teach the Haytians at the same time. The firm would be able to make 10,000 boxes of cigars in a year. But as boxes, paper, labels, and wrapping tobacco have to be imported, and the foreign hands have to be paid in gold, the price of cigars is too high at present. In Port au Prince it is true cigars are sold a cent each, but those for which there is the greatest demand cost from 10 to 14 Haytian cents each, or about 2¾d.

George Washington's Statue in Tobacco

An exhibit that will attract more than ordinary attention at the World's Fair will be a statue of George Washington made up of tobacco. It will be modelled after the equestrian statue and group in the Capitol Square at Richmond, Va.

Bright and dark tobacco in the various shades will be used, the pedestal being of Virginia bright tobacco, with the figure of Washington and the surrounding figures in dark tobacco.

Around this monument will be assembled the products of the State of Virginia, such as manufacturers' and dealers' exhibits of tobacco, and also the modern machinery and appliances used in the trade.

Virginians are responding liberally to the requests for money for the exhibit, and it will undoubtedly be a success.

How a Chinaman Smokes.

IN Persia and in Japan pipes about the size of a baby's thimble are used, providing two draws—a great waste of time. It is the Chinaman, however, who in smoking gets endless work out of practically nothing at all. He carries a fittle box about twice the size of an ordinary silver cigarette case. This is half filled with water. In one end is a removable tiny tube to serve as pipe. At the other end is the pipe stem. First of all he removes the tube and blows through it to remove all blockage. Then he fumbles through his awkward clothes, searching for tobacco, and produces a bit of rag in which it is wrapped. Carefully he extracts a wad of tobacco, puts away his rag and slowly plugs the tube, which holds perhaps the tenth part of an ordinary cigarette. But he never has any matches. So he has to borrow or hunt out a brown paper stem and light it—it glows for a long time and can be puffed into flame again—he gives a long draw; slowly, appreciatively, the smoke oozes from between his Celestial lips; he spits; he draws again and gets small result. The smoke is over. He removes the tube, blows through it and the proceeding begins all over again.

Buller and the Tommy.

Sir Redvers Buller knows the value of the "divine herb." During the Red River Expedition in 1870 a soldier of the King's Royal Rifles was badly in need of a smoke. Seeing a figure that was familiar just before him, he slapped the individual on the back and asked, "Got a pipeful of baccy, mate?" When the figure turned, revealing the features of Captain Buller, as Sir Redvers then was, the soldier was overwhelmed with confusion. Producing his own empty pipe, the officer replied, "Very sorry I can't oblige, but I haven't a pipeful for myself."

Philippine Cigars.

In the Philippines the use of tobacco is universal. The native child acquires the tobacco habit as soon as it is able to walk. In the northern provinces especially, it is no uncommon sight to see a child five or six years old puffing vigorously at a big cigar. The women smoke fully as much as the men, and commonly smoke cigars where the men use cigarettes. In the northern parts of Luzon immense cigars, often a couple of feet long and as thick as the wrist, are used. Such a cigar is suspended from a rafter of the house by a string, and smoked during the day by all the members of the family as desired.

Tobacco Notes.

On Saturday last "The Grocer" had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. John Kirk, who represents the interests of The J. Bruce Payne, Limited, Granby, P.Q. It would take very little to convince Mr. Kirk that the Payne company and the "Pharaoh" cigar are the two greatest institutions on earth.

WALL PAPER

THE attention of "The Grocer" has been called to the following articles one of which is from a trade journal published in the United States, and the other from an English trade journal. We believe these will be appreciated by the wall paper dealer as well as by the manufacturer, for both are occasionally troubled with claims that ingrains, and sometimes printed wall papers have stained or spotted when hung. It has been found, on carefully looking into the reason for these imperfections, that in nearly every case the cause of the trouble is not to be found in the goods, but in the method of hanging. The deep rich colorings now so much used, and, in fact, the lighter and more delicate colorings also, require that care should be used in hanging, and the condition of the walls and ceilings must be carefully taken into account.

Paper hung on a room that is damp and cold, and that has been shut up for some time, will frequently stain when the paper is drying out on the wall. Such a room should first be thoroughly aired, and if in winter time should be heated if possible.

Thin, sloppy paste is another frequent cause of trouble. Even for the cheapest papers the paste should be as stiff as it can be worked, and made of good quality flour, and the lengths should never be allowed to soak. Each length should be hung as pasted.

The suggestions are well worth preserving for reference. It will be noticed that each of the experts referred to employs a different method in some respects, and in some particular jobs the one method might have advantages over the other. This is where the experience of the paperhanger should be in evidence. The articles are as follows:

Discoloration of Ingrains and How to avoid it.

In conversation with a gentleman connected with the paper-hanging trade, bearing on this topic, he gave us the result of his experience, which may be worth while putting into print for the benefit of others. He set out with the statement that he would guarantee to make a good job anywhere, and he recited this experience.

A customer came with a client and selected a paper, a blue ingrain, patterned. The painter took it away, and in due course it was hung. Within a few days complaints came to the warehouse that the paper was faulty, and had dried all in patches. To appease the "customer's" "customer," a new paper was supplied free of charge—this time a red one—and sent on to the job. This was hung, and after the usual "decent" interval the complaint came along, accentuated and emphasized by vigorous adjectival English, and demands for compensation.

It was at this stage that our informant came on the scene. He had been away on his holidays, and the transactions had all taken place during his absence. As an expert the matter was referred to him, and he took it up in earnest. He found (1) that the wall on which it was hung was a painted wall, (2) that the work had been done on a wet day, (3) that the paper hanger had religiously kept closed up every avenue of air, (4) that he had not lined the painted walls prior to papering, and (5) that he had used thin, sloppy paste.

The room was thereupon done under the direct supervision of the expert. First the walls were stripped and lined, the lining being hung horizontally. Secondly, the paste was made very strong, but stiff. Thirdly, the windows and doors were kept closed while the paper was being hung. Fourthly, the paper was pasted as "dry" as could be done with safety, and not allowed to stand; and, fifthly, as soon as the walls were hung, doors and windows were opened to circulate the air as much as possible, and, with a fire in the grate, the original blue paper was hung—and turned out an unqualified success. Our informant said that with these conditions, i.e., stiff, strong paste, free from alum, dry pasting, walls lined when the under surfaces are painted (brown paper in sheets preferred), he would guarantee the work turning out well in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred. We believe he is right ! !—From the Journal of Decorative Art.

Valuable Hints on Hanging Wall Paper.

By E. A. Edmunds, Brooklyn.

The manner of treatment described in the following lines has served me with unqualified success for many years :

First, prepare the walls. If they are painted, size them with washing soda ; nothing else. Make the solution strong enough so that you can see it cut the paint as you spread it on. Care should be taken to prevent it from running down over the finished woodwork. When dry it will be ready to receive the paper. The treatment makes the paint porous so that the paste can take hold and obviate the disasters of "peeling off" and "opening" at the joints on becoming thoroughly dry. It destroys grease and renders the semi-saponified paint to good purpose as a backing.

The wall should always be sand-papered to remove the small lumps after plastering up the holes and cracks.

If the walls be clean, hard finished plaster, irrespective of their age, I treat them with a strong solution of glue and vinegar(cider vinegar preferred). Dissolve the glue in water over a slow fire, then thin down with vinegar, and apply copiously. The vinegar destroys the enemy (lime) which causes the paper to shrink apart at the joints and bleach out in spots. I cannot recall an instance where this solution has failed, even on soft, chalky, "hot" walls. All new walls or parts of walls should be treated with a coat of this vinegar size.

In no case should good papers be put on over old ones, or over kalsomine.

The factor that contributes most to the appearance of a nice room is cleanliness; without this your work will be a failure, irrespective of the cost of paper. In order to attain this you must use your paste so heavy that it is barely possible to work it out evenly on the back of the goods without injuring them. This applies to all grades and kinds of wall hangings, whether of paper or tapestry. In the latter case (tapestry fabrics) it is often advisable to paste the wall, then "roll" the goods on.

The knife and straight edge should be used to trim with, especially on heavy goods. For "butted" work hang the strips from a sixteenth to an eighth of an inch apart, then work them gradually together, and when you have the room all hung, carefully roll down the joints, then with a clean wet sponge moisten the joint by passing the sponge over it once only. This latter act is to remove the gloss the roller makes, and applies to ingrains or other pulp papers. Do not sponge printed or surfaced goods, the colors will run.

The practice of these formulas obviates the use of lining paper, except where they must be used to prevent the heaviest goods, such as Lincrusta, etc., from pulling the putty-coat of plaster off.—Carpets, Wall Paper and Curtains.

A HANDSOME "CONDOR" TRAY.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, is offering to his customers a magnificent Japanese bronze card tray as a souvenir. This tray is a sample of the very fine work Japanese artists are noted for, and will prove an ornament to any house. If buyers of "Condor" Japan teas will drop Mr. Marceau a line at 285 St. Paul street, he will take pleasure in forwarding them one of these handsome trays.

ORDER FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Henri Jonas & Co., Montreal, are in receipt of an order from a firm in Durban, Natal, this week. The knowledge of the excellent quality of Jonas' Flavoring Extracts having been carried to that distant part of the British Empire is most flattering to the firm. It but bears out the general rule that where once introduced these goods will hold their own. When the Yukon business first opened up a consignment of Jonas' Extracts was among the first orders sent up, and since that time they have been a standard there.

TRAVELLERS' ANNUAL DINNER.

Twenty-Ninth Function of The Dominion Association.

THE twenty-ninth annual banquet of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association was held at St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal, on Wednesday evening, December 30th. To state that the attendance was large, that the toasts were loyal and enthusiastically responded to, that the speeches were of a characteristically high order, and that everybody enjoyed themselves as only commercial travellers can, goes without saying.

The large dining hall was profusely and handsomely decorated with flags, bunting, streamers and the tables ornamented with ferns and flowers. Shields bearing the arms of the different provinces of the Dominion hung on the walls. On a raised platform at one end of the diningroom an orchestra was stationed and to the strains of sweet music the excelent menu provided by Boniface Brown was done ample justice to.

Mr. J. S. N. Dougall, president of the association, was in the chair with Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, on his immediate right and Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, on his left. Among the other distinguished guests occupying seats at the president's table were Mr. R. L. Borden, M.P., leader of the Opposition in the Dominion House, Hon. J. I. Tarte, Mr. F. D. Monk, K.C., M.P., Mr. Robert Bickendike, M.P., Ald. Nelson, Mr. Arthur J. Hodgson, president of the Board of Trade, and Mr. D. M. Stewart, general manager of the Sovereign Bank of Canada.

After the good things provided for the inner man had received appreciative attention at the hands of the guests, President Dougall arose amidst loud applause. Before proceeding with the toast list he asked the indulgence of the guests to give a few statistics regarding the association. Organized in 1875 its membership had increased from 251 at the end of the year of organization to its present magnificent roll of 4,434. Since 1881, when the mortuary benefit scheme was established, $366,000 had been paid to deceased members' families. A surplus at the end of the first year of $534 had grown to a surplus at the end of the present year of $19,942, making the present capital $226,172. The commercial travellers had every reason to be proud of the position of their association. He then proposed the toast of "Our King." This having been duly honored, the toast of "The President of the United States" was also drunk. This was done no doubt in deference to the presence at the banquet of the president of the Commercial Travellers' Union of the United States, as well as in honor of a large number of American-born members of the association. Mr. George Wilkins then read letters of regret at inability to attend from Lord Minto, Governor-General; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick, Sir Wm. Mulock, Hon. R. W. Scott, Hon. Clifford Sifton, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. A. Turgeon, Lord Dundonald and Hon. A. W. Edwards, Consul-General of the United States.

The toast of "The Dominion Government" was proposed by Mr. D. M. Lefebvre, vice-president of the association, and responded to by Hon. Sidney Fisher, and Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, the former in English and the latter in French. Both speakers acknowledged the services rendered to Canada by such a body of live business men as the Commercial Travellers' Associations, and the widespread influence of travelling men on the trade of the country. It was the duty of all travellers to use their influence to further the best interests of the country and, as Mr. Fisher expressed it, "the electors frequently looked to the commercial traveller for information, hints and inspiration." A few remarks were made by the Honorable Minister of Agriculture on the material progress that had been made in the country's trade.

Hon. Mr. Prefontaine described commercial travellers as the advance guard of civilization, and declared that the Government was proud of them. Mr. Prefontaine referred to the opening up of new railway and shipping routes, and said it would not be long before the ubiquitous drummer would be finding new avenues to explore and develop.

Mr. Fred L. Cains, treasurer of the association, in a few words proposed the toast of "The Dominion Parliament" coupling with it the names of Mr. R. L. Borden, Hon. J. I. Tarte and Mr. F. D. Monk. The applause which greeted these speakers, particularly the respected leader of the Conservative party, must have been most flattering to these gentlemen. Mr. Borden claimed the privilege of being considered a commercial traveller as he had during the present year been on the road offering a good article to the public, he claimed he had a "good policy," and was endeavoring to lay its merits before the people. Speaking of the Dominion Parliament he considered that institution as one of great credit to the country. References had been made by previous speakers to the Dominion but he did not think that any of them had greater confidence in the future of Canada than he had. Every commercial traveller should realize to the fullest extent the greatness of this country and he thought the proper way for them to grasp its great magnificence was for them to take the trip from ocean to ocean. He asked them all to remember their duties to their country. They were the pioneers, living factors in the progress and development of the land; their fingers were ever on the pulse of trade and must be acknowledged the best judges of material changes.

Hon. J. I. Tarte, who spoke in English, in replying, referred to the great number of Canadians that had left their native land for the United States. He would encourage every one to remain here and assist in developing our national resources, and urged them all to assist in building up Canada. He also in a modest way referred to the part he had taken in developing the waterways of Canada and his efforts to make the Canadian route the best. Canada now had the shortest route between the great West and Europe, and the improvement of the Canadian route had been taken advantage of not only by Canadians, but also Western United States shippers. Mr. Tarte, on repeated cries of "en Francais, en Francais" from the guests, repeated the gist of his remarks in the language of his compatriots. That this was appreciated was evidenced by the applause that greeted him on rising.

Mr. F. D. Monk also replied to this toast, speaking first in French and concluding in English. He fully endorsed the sentiments expressed by Hon. Mr. Fisher and Hon. Mr. Prefontaine, as to our living in a great country, that the progress of our young nation was great and that we were on the road to success. Are we going to sit by in the midst of this great era and see our friends to the south of us surpass us? This question was answered with vociferous "Never, never." He called on commercial men to use their abilities and great opportunities to advance still further the country's trade.

The toast of "The Provincial Legislature" was proposed by Mr. W. J. Eagan, a director of the association, and replied to by Hon. J. D. Rolland, an ex-president of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association. Mr. Rolland pointed out what the Legislature had done towards doing away with the tax at one time levied by municipalities upon commercial travellers, and this was a proof of the Legislature's interest in, and appreciation of the services of travelling men. The question of improved hotel accommodation was a matter somewhat difficult to regulate, but no efforts would be spared to make the traveller more comfortable. This sentiment was loudly applauded by every traveller. Hon. Mr. Rolland also referred to the progress made by the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association during the 29 years of its existence, and said that it stood to-day on an equal basis with any life insurance company in the Dominion.

Ald. Nelson, in the absence of his Worship Mayor Cochrane (who was confined to his home through illness) replied to the toast of "The City of Montreal." Mr. Arthur J. Hodgson, responded to the toast of "The Board of Trade."

A vote of thanks proposed to the president, Mr. Dougall, for the very excellent manner in which he had presided, was drunk with enthusiasm, and after he had responded, the National Anthem was sung.

The highest praise is due the president and directors and officers of the association for the magnificent manner in which the banquet was arranged and conducted, everything went off smoothly and well.

Samples.

Those packages of cigarettes supplied by the American Tobacco Co., Limited, were much appreciated.

The cigars provided by the North American Cigar Co. were passed around in neat little envelopes containing two "Manhattans." The little poem by Norris Bull, printed on the outside was a good idea. It read:

Oh, 'tis well enough
A whiff or a puff
From the heart of a pipe to get;
And a dainty maid
Or a budding blade
May toy with the cigarette;
But a man, when the time
Of a glorious prime
Dawns forth like a morning star,
Wants the dark-brown bloom
And the sweet perfume
That go with a good cigar.

—Norris Bull.

"Radnor" water was in evidence at every table and the generosity of the company in supplying this excellent table water was thoroughly appreciated.

S. Davis & Son's clear Havana cigars, supplied by that company were passed around the tables and their excellent qualities commented on freely.

McAllister's 400 were not in it with the 400 that adorned the great dining-room of St. Lawrence Hall.

The MacLean Trade Newspapers' greeting card placed with the menu card was commented upon favorably for its neatness and its wishes for the new year appreciated. It read:

"May 1904 bring such an abundance of orders and uniformly cordial treatment from your customers, as to bury beyond remembrance the jolts and disappointed hopes experienced 'on the road' in 1903.

"THE EDITOR."

Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg,
January the first, MCMIV.

Wonder where the artist who prepared the cover of the menu card got his model of "The Traveller"? If such a sombre looking individual entered the average merchant's store he would either be kicked out or a call would be rung up for the police. It was certainly a hard looking production of a traveller, the finish of the work was excellent, but the features too hard.

The Wine and Spirit Journal's reprsentative and manager of the Montreal branch, Mr. Spry, was seen thoroughly enjoying himself with the good things about him.

Our confreres of Le Prix Courant, Messrs. Nightingale and Fontaine were also in evidence.

That quartette of grocery travellers seemed to have buried their rivalries for the time being, as nothing but smiles were noticed at their end of the table.

America was very much admired. The frontispiece of this card was a more generally accepted representative of the commercial traveller.

That recitation of "Johnny Courteau" was evidently just the thing, and loudly applauded.

The bill of fare at first bothered a certain knight of the grip, it being entirely in French, and his knowledge of that language being confined to "meme chose," he rather got knocked over on "Dindonneau roti, sauce aux airelles." He got away with it, however, and as it was good roast turkey, he tackled everything in sight, said he, "By George, I'll be so full of French after I get through that I'll have no 'merci' for anything on the road."

That "Punch a la Commis Voyageur" was splendeid. That's the kind of a traveller one doesn't object to meeting every day—several times.

To Tell Age in Dressed Poultry.

IN ducks and geese the flexibility of the windpipe is a mark of youth. When the bird is young it can be easily squeezed and moved; later it grows rigid and fixed. Some of the dealers in fancy and out-of-season goods handle more or less poultry which is only partly plucked, the neck, tail, and wing feathers being left, probably to give the bird a better appearance. However, an unplucked chicken so seldom reaches the average American market that feather and comb tests are of little value here. More commonly the wings of turkeys, ducks and geese are left unplucked and furnish a clew to the age. If the tips of the quills at the end of the wing are sharply pointed, the bird is probably young; the blunter they are the older the bird.

Commonly it takes a trained eye to distinguish the sex in dressed birds, but fortunately this is not important save in the case of capons. When caponizing has been properly done the head is small for the size of the body, the comb is pale and withered, the body plumper, rounder, and larger than in an ordinary fowl, and the spur abortive. If the operation was incomplete, the head will be like that of an ordinary bird and the body less rounded. Such birds, known technically as "slip capons," are much inferior to true capons.

Cost of Living in Germany.

THERE is no decrease in the high cost of living referred to in the last annual report from this district, writes United States Consul Muench, from Plauen, Germany.

Meat, now an article of luxury to the German working people, commanded the following wholesale prices per pound in 1902 at the public abattoir in Plauen sold in quantities of not less than 110 pounds:

Description	First quality. Cents.	Second quality. Cents.	Third quality. Cents.	Fourth quality. Cents.
Steers	15.32	14.68	13.92	....
Bullocks	14.67	14.04	13.33	....
Cows and heifers	14.61	14.04	13.33	12.59
Veal, live	10.73	10.13	9.68	....
Mutton, live	7.66	7.28	6.94	....
Pork	15.73	15.25	14.63	....

While a very thorough system of meat inspection at the public slaughter houses, or abattoirs, assures the consumers of the complete healthfulness of the meat, it adds to the cost, which, to the consumer in the city of Plauen, is from 25 to 40c. at retail. The consumption of meat in this comparatively wealthy district amounted in 1902 to 68.54 pounds per capita.

The tariff and restrictions imposed by Germany upon the importation of breadstuffs has served to keep the price of wheat flour at about double that paid for the same quality in the United States. Rye flour, the great staple of the poorer classes, is proportionately cheaper, and vegetables, especially potatoes, when reasonably abundant, are so cheap that a large proportion of the latter is converted into dextrin and distilled spirits for use in the arts.

While wages in certain classes of skilled labor have advanced during the past year, yet, as a whole, such increase is not in proportion to the growing cost of living.

A German Meat Shop.

"HOW I do wish you had been with us this afternoon, and all on account of meat shops," writes a tourist from Germany. "They have the most beautiful ones here I ever saw; yes, even artistic. We went into one that was entirely lined with tiles. There was a beautiful frieze running around the room representing animal life on the farm; cows standing in cool water; cows lying in green meadows; sheep browsing in quiet places. The long, high counter was also tiles, but in one place was a sort of opening from which steam escaped. From this, hot sausages were being dispensed to people who waited with a plate and an equivalent in pfennigs. In one window was a great variety of sausages, most artistically arranged. Many of them were cut to show the arrangements of the different colored meats in the skins to represent flowers or leaves; one looked like an apple cut crosswise, showing the core. There were pink, red, white and cream-colored sausages, with green plants and plates of ruby and amber-colored meat jellies interspersed. It makes one hungry to see it all."

Cold Storage for Poultry.

THE micro-organisms which produce the undesirable chemical changes in flesh grow more quickly at a moderately high temperature than at a low one, and in a damp place than in a dry one. Ordinarily poultry will remain sweet for a week or more in a temperature of 50 degrees F., but if it is to be kept longer it must be stored in a dry place at a temperature no higher than 34 degrees F. In such "cold storage" it will keep almost indefinitely. Many dealers buy large quantities of poultry when it is most plentiful and keep it over until few fresh birds are available. The ordinary cold storage season for poultry lasts, roughly speaking, from October until May, though our midsummer turkeys are proof of its occasional extension. Very young birds and some of the delicate game birds do not stand cold storage well, but others keep in excellent condition. Once taken from the storehouse, however, they decompose much more quickly than fresh birds and in the off season buyers should be on their guard against birds which have been unpacked too long. Sometimes, especially in hot weather, birds are frozen before storing. For this they should be subjected for a time to a temperature of from 5 to 10 degrees F., and then stored in a temperature of about 30 degrees F. Frozen meat of any kind decomposes very quickly when expose to warmth, and many persons consider that freezing injures the flavor of poultry. For both these reasons ordinary cold storage is preferable to freezing.

Provisions—There is no particular change to note in the provision markets this week. Prices are unchanged except a reduction in short cut. Butter—The British market is dull and little stock is going forward. There is consequently an accumulation in this country and the feeling is easier. Creamery prints are being received in large quantities, while dairy is also coming forward well. Prices are therefore a little easier in some lines quotably so. We quote:

Provisions—A quiet but steady market is reported this week for hog products of all kinds. The demand for Canadian short cut mess pork is quiet this week, but it has been good for weeks back. Last sales were at $17.50, which is $5 per barrel lower than prices obtainable a year ago. Reduced prices will be noted in lard. We quote:

Butter—The market continues steady with little offering. The local consumption is good, fresh stocks being in demand. We quote as follows: Finest fresh prints, 22 1-2c.; finest fall made creamery, in 56-lb. boxes, 22c.; Winter made 20 1-2 to 21c. There is not very much dairy butter coming forward. Deliveries at this time seem to be a good deal lighter than last year, 16 to 17 1-2c. being the ruling price.

Cheese—In sympathy with a little better feeling in the English market, the local market is doing better, finest strong cheese selling from 12 to 13c.; mild, 11 to 11 1-2c.

St. John, N.B.

Provisions—In barreled pork there is but light business. Domestic packers are freely offering at quite low figures. They are finding it difficult, however, to get pork except at higher prices. Beef is unchanged, chiefly American sold, Boston and Chicago pack. Hams and rolls have a steady sale at quite full prices. Lard is still low and easy in price. In fresh meats Beef is unchanged, mutton is finding better sale because of the demand from the Winter port steamers. Veal is firm and receipts light. Pork is rather firmer, and lamb plentiful. Poultry is high. We quote:

A MARITIME VISITOR.

MR. W. H. TROOP, director and secretary of Black Bros. & Co., Halifax, N.S., is a visitor to Montreal this week.

Mr. Troop, whom your representative had the pleasure of meeting in the offices of his firm's Montreal representatives, A. H. Brittain, Board of Trade building, is making a trip through Quebec, Ontario and the West in the interests of the prepared fish which his firm are placing on the market.

Black Bros. & Co. have the most modern and complete fish-curing and preparing establishment in Nova Scotia, located on the beautiful La Have river. A large number of hands are employed and the closest care and attention is paid to preparing a class of fish thoroughly reliable and suitable for best family trade.

As Mr. Troop states, the reason that the consumption of fish in Western Canada has not been as large proportionately as in the Maritime Provinces, is largely due to the crude manner in which this healthy article of diet has heretofore been placed before the consumer.

It has been the aim of Black Bros. & Co. for years to encourage and build up the trade in high-class fish products, and the great success that has attended the introduction of their "Halifax," "Acadia" and "Bluenose" brands of prepared fish is evidence of appreciation on the part of the fish consumers of the merits of the goods. The firm of Messrs. Black Bros., whose establishment dates back to 1815, and who have been outfitters of fishing schooners and dealers in fishermens' supplies for nearly a century, have, through their connection with the fishermen of Nova Scotia, unusual facilities for obtaining raw material, and are thoroughly conversant with the fish trade in all its phases.

It is the intention of Black Bros. & Co. (and Mr. Troop's trip is laid out with that object) to call the attention of the jobbing and retail trade to the advantages of handling prepared fish of high class.

Black Bros. & Co. are certainly very artistic as well as practical in their advertisements, and neat and attractive cards are sent out and delivered to retail merchants for display in their stores. Each of these cards contains an apt, concise and thoughtful argument in favor of using fish as a diet, and cannot fail to be effective in results.

With every package of the fish the consumer receives a neat little pamphlet giving a great number of very appetizing fish receipts.

Mr. Troop leaves for Toronto and the West on Thursday, accompanied by Mr. Brittain, and will call on the jobbing trade in the larger western cities.

If long experience, energetic action, modern methods, combined with unsurpassed opportunities for obtaining raw material, as well as judicious advertising, are factors leading to success, Mr. Troop and his firm certainly have the attributes necessary for a prosperous fish business in the West.

AN ARTISTIC CALENDAR.

Among the many handsome calendars for 1904 that have been issued, the set of six sent out by the Montreal coffee, spice and cork house of S. H. Ewing & Sons, 51 King street, is certainly from an artistic point of view one of the most attractive of the year. The coloring and delicate tinting reflects great credit upon the lithographer, and, as an attractive reminder of the fleeting footsteps of time, they certainly are a work of art and a constant reminder of vanishing days.

A WELL-EARNED HOLIDAY.

Mr. F. D. Cockburn, Montreal and eastern manager for "Comfort" soap, leaves Montreal next week for a six weeks' trip to the Sunny South. Mr. Cockburn, who is known as one of the oldest and most energetic as well as popular soap salesmen in the country, has not been in the best of health for nearly a year, and though he has the Scotchman's tenacity to stick to work, the orders of his physician are imperative, and the southern trip is part of the recuperative scheme laid out for him. It is to be hoped that the balmy southern air and the ocean voyage will benefit Mr. Cockburn to the fullest extent.

TRAVELLERS' THEATRE PARTIES.

A treat is in store for the travelling staff of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., wholesale grocers, Montreal, this week. The firm have arranged for two theatre parties for all salesmen, and, as their number is 26, a right royal gathering and enjoyable time will no doubt be spent. This treat at the hands of their employers is thoroughly appreciated by the travellers, and the good example set by Hudon, Hebert & Cie. might well be followed by the trade. These little attentions must tend to extend harmony and good will among "the boys" towards their principals.

GROCERY TRAVELLER MARRIED.

Mr. J. F. Goyne, representative of J. A. Mathewson & Co., wholesale grocers, Montreal, has seen the folly of single blessedness, and on December 23 last joined the ranks of the benedicts. His partner in the journey through life was Miss McPherson, of Oshawa, and Mr. and Mrs. Goyne will reside in that lovely town by the lake.

SAVE 25% on your HOUSE PAINTING.

If the grocers who intend painting their residences next Spring will follow the directions given below and wash the buildings with a solution of GOLD DUST Washing Powder, they will use one-third less paint than if they merely attempted to brush the dust off the house without washing it.

DIRECTIONS.

Dissolve one-quarter pound of GOLD DUST in a pint of water, then add the solution to 4 gallons of hot water; apply with a stiff brush, and follow with use of a hose. The stronger the hose is turned on the quicker and more effectual the work will be.

The use of less paint can be accounted for by the fact that after washing the house with GOLD DUST it leaves a smooth surface, so that the same quantity of paint will go fully one-fourth further. Furthermore, it leaves no layer of dirt between the paint and the woodwork, and, as a consequence, the paint will wear longer.

We have letters from several of our customers who used this method, and after washing their houses with GOLD DUST they were so well pleased with the appearance of them that they concluded not to paint them at all.

Retail grocers will do well to call this matter to the attention of their customers, as $3.00 worth of GOLD DUST Washing Powder will make the house look as well as the expenditure of $100.00 in re-painting it would.

Any grocer may experiment with a 5c. package of GOLD DUST by emptying the contents into 8 gallons of hot water, which should convince him that it will pay him to continue.

GOLD DUST can be used for any kind of outdoor work that needs renovating

RED-LETTER DAY FOR CASH REGISTER MEN.

THE last week in the old year was a red-letter one, as far as the Canadian business of The National Cash Register Co., of Dayton, Ohio, was concerned. It marked the opening of the company's first factory in Canada. For some years the company has been doing business in Canada, but this business has grown to such an extent that it was found necessary to have machines for the Canadian market made in this country. The necessity for the factory was, to no small extent, due to the efforts of Mr. F. E. Mutton, the district manager, and his staff of salesmen. In fact, members of the selling staff of the Canadian branch of the business have more than once carried off the honors in the company's world-wide service for the largest number of machines sold.

Mr. John H. Patterson, President.

The factory, which is under the management of Mr. J. W. DuLaney, was formally opened on December 28th, as already reported in the columns of this paper. On the three following days conventions were held at the King Edward Hotel, where practical demonstrations appertaining to the work of organization were given by the various heads of departments and the sales agents in the employ of the company.

On Wednesday evening a banquet was held in the private dining-room of the King Edward Hotel. It was a function of unusual interest and success. It was also remarkable for its uniqueness. Mr. F. E. Mutton, district manager, was in the chair, and Mr. Crane, of Dayton, Ohio, one of the veteran sales agents of the company, was toast master. Mr. H. Chalmers, of Dayton, Ohio, general manager of the company, and several other officers from headquarters, occupied seats of honor at the guests' table. Among the guests were also a number of ladies which, of course, added much grace to the function.

Factory at Toronto—Front and Rear View.

Mr. F. E. Mutton, District Manager.

After the tables had been cleared stereopticon views of the factory and workmen's homes at Dayton were given, Mr. Thomas being the lecturer for the occasion. The views were perhaps the finest of the kind ever seen in Toronto. They were of enormous proportions and were in natural colors. A number of the views showed the different stages in the development of the factory and also in the improvement of the workingmen's homes. The transformations thus shown were greeted with loud applause. For some years The National Cash Register Co. has awarded prizes for the best lawns and back-gardens in the workmen's homes, and the work that has been accomplished in this direction is simply marvellous. After the views had been disposed of, the toast list was taken up, and it was well after midnight before the last toast was proposed and duly honored.

The one thing which probably impressed those outside the members of the firm and their employes who were present was the marked esprit de corps which existed among the heads of the firm and the different employes.

Hugh Chalmers, General Manager.

Although I know nothing about cash registers beyond the fact that they are a good thing for merchants generally, I felt the influence of this esprit de corps. Every sales agent present appeared to be possessed of the idea that there was nothing in the world like the National cash register, and no other firm in the world equal that which manufacture it.

When Mr. Chalmers, the general manager, arose to speak he was received with a warmth of enthusiasm which scarcely could have been exceeded. Although he is a young man, less than 30 years of age, and some 16 years ago entered the employ of the firm as an office boy, every employe, old and young, holds him in the highest esteem almost to the point of adoration.

"Why is it," I remarked to a well-known sales agent of the company, "that you men exhibit such strong loyalty for your company and its interests?"

"I'll tell you why. It is because they treat us 'white' and we know that if we do our duty they will recognize the fact in a substantial way. And then we believe in the merits of the goods we sell."

The Factory at Dayton, Ohio.

District Manager Mutton was "caned about 11 o'clock. The cane was a handsome ebony one, and he deserved it. The manager of the factory, Mr. Du Laney, GERMAN BEET-SUGAR PRODUCTION.

FOR the thirteen months ending August 31, 1903, the German sugar refineries consumed in the manufacture of sugar 12,381,552 tons of raw beets, writes United States Consul Albert from Brunswick, Germany. During the same period in 1901-2 the consumption of raw beets amounted to 17,614,152 tons, showing a decrease of 5,232,599 tons in the year ended August 31, 1903. The amount of sugar produced during the thirteen months ended August 31, 1903, was 1,663,193 tons, as compared with 2,246,237 tons during the thirteen months ended August 31, 1902, a decrease of 583,044 tons. The kind and quantity of sugar produced in the comparative periods were as follows :

Description.	—Year ending August 31— 1903. Tons.	1902. Tons.
Crystallized sugar	583,127	587,774
Granulated sugar	15,748	15,220

The compilation of these statistics has been made for thirteen months, because, owing to the new regulations for taxing sugar, the business year has been changed from Aug. 1 to Sept. 1.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

Expensive But Profitable.

YES, no one will deny that the merchant who arranges good window displays is undergoing some expense which he who is careless of the appearance of his store front does not encounter. The unprogressive merchant who offers this objection to the show window considers that, as the expense cannot be denied, his argument closes the question.

He may believe in advertising in the local paper, although it is safe to say that if he does not eblieve in dressing his window he is out of accord with all the modern business building methods. But if he does advertise, the expense objection is discovered to be of no weight for advertising costs more than the average window-dressing, and the results are less evident. If he does not advertise let us ask him if he allows his name and business to appear on the front of his store. If so, why? He will say in order that people may see who and what he is. Well, if the public will bother to look at his name and business, things in which there is no active interest, it is certain that they will observe his show window if it is well trimmed. And if they observe and admire the merchant is sure to profit from that.

Should any man, merchant or not, feel sure that, from an investment of a sum of money, he will reap a profit, he would not hesitate to make the investment. He has the expense of laying out the money at first, but he is looking forward to the profit, and does not begrudge the outlay. The merchant who will not dress his windows on account of the initial expense, is like the man who will not spend a dollar to make another, simply because he must part with the dollar first. Of course it would be very difficult to convince him of this, but if he can not see the comparison he must be one of the very few who think that nothing is sold through the window. The number who really think this at this date is so very small, that it is scarcely worth while combatting their ideas. They are not the successful class, nor do they deserve to be.

But window dressing is not the expensive phase of storekeeping that many think it to be. Excellent windows can be dressed all the year round, at a total cost of only a few dollars. The elaborate fancy window of the departmental dry goods store is not a necessary part of any plans for attractive windows. Some of these cost many dollars, and would not be in place in the smaller stores, but a miniature copy of the general design, used only on particular occasions, would revive an interest that might be flagging as a result of only ordinary displays. The goods themselves in nine out of ten arrangements are all that is necessary for windows that will sell, and the tenth can be so made up that the features of it that cost money can be retained for future displays, and the expense thus be reduced to a minimum.

This Week's Illustration.

This toilet soap window was dressed by J. E. Whiteside for Fred Carne, Jr., Victoria, and shows exceptional taste in the decoration, and in the placing of the soap. The color scheme is purple and white, the floor of puffed cheese cloth, and the background is a frame covered with pleated white cheese cloth with purple ribbon top, and draped with purple cheese cloth. Artificial palms and flowers are well used as decorative adjuncts. The placing of the soap shows thought, and yet is free from all stiffness. The few boxes of toilet soap are far more effective than a great full display would have been. The price tickets are small and as a rule neatly done, and are carlessly placed around. Mr. Whiteside's windows are usually of considerable merit, and in this one he has not fallen behind his average.

CANADA DISCUSSED.

THE Sheffield Daily Independent, of December 12th, 1903, received a few days ago, contains an interesting account of a meeting of the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures held on the evening of December 11th for the purpose of receiving the report of their delegates to the big congress held in Montreal last August. Mr. W. F. Beardshaw, the president of the chamber, and one of the prominent delegates occupied the chair. He said that a strong desire had been expressed by the members of the chamber to discuss the fiscal question, but this night was to be devoted to Canadian business. His own opinion, and that of the council generally, had been that it was necessary first to gather all the facts available with regard to English trade and the possibility of extending it in the colonies. With that end in view they had already collected a small library on the subject for the benefit of the members. The chamber could not discuss the question intelligently until its members had made themselves acquainted with conditions in Canada. He would ask the delegates to give a resume of the results of their visit without expressing any opinion on the fiscal question which was so prominent during their visit.

It has been the fashion among some Canadians to ridicule the Englishman's ignorance of conditions and places in this country. As was pointed out once before in these columns this ignorance is no more remarkable and no more to be condemned than the lack of geographical knowledge which the average Canadian displays regarding England and the other parts of the Empire. People who live in glass houses should not throw stones. But it would do the Canadian scoffer incalculable good to examine carefully the report in this English paper of the intelligent discussion of Canadian potentialities by the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce. We doubt if an average gathering of Canadian business men could discuss English affairs any more intelligently.

The transcontinental tour of which advantage was taken by so many of the delegates to the congress, was a happy idea. It was perhaps the best advertisement that Canada ever received, for every English delegate returned to the old land much impressed with the potentialtities of the premier colony. And the delegates are all men of weight and influence in their community. The speakers at the Sheffield meeting had all profited by their tour. They under stood something of the immensity of the country and they impressed strongly upon their fellow members the fact that there are practically inexhaustible resources in Canada waiting to be developed. In discussing the proposed changes in the Empire's fiscal policy it is necessary to consider not merely the Canada of to-day with her growing, but limited, market, but the Canada of the near future with several times her present population.

The delegates described their trip through the Northwest in the harvest time, and it was evident that they fully appreciated the force of Canada's claim to be the "granary of the Empire." British Columbia with its magnificent possibilities as a lumbering and mining country was not forgotten. Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces with their great industrial possibilities were passed in review. The delegates had no hesitation in saying that the Eastern portion of Canada has a wonderful future before it. Notwithstanding its vast proportions and great extent of natural deposits necessary to industrial success, it is apt to escape the attention it deserves because the interest of the general public has been more directed to the great wheat growing tracts of the West.

The delegates remarked that in the industrial establishments visited by them in Canada they noticed an anxiety on the part of the workmen to produce as large an output as possible. There was no disposition among them, as among some English workmen, to restrict the output. Canadian manufacturers were found anxious to use the latest labor-saving machinery and their men agree with them.

The transcontinental tour has made many English missionaries who are effectively preaching the gospel of Canada's boundless resources.

PLAN FOR 1904.

IT does not pay to be too busy. The busiest people we meet often accomplish least. The man who is successful these days is the man who uses his head, who is not too busy to think and who thinks to some purpose.

If our Canadian grocers would begin this year by refusing to be busy for a few days and devote the time thus obtained to thought on how to improve their business the result would be exceedingly valuable. It is not for a moment suggested that our grocers do not give thought to the improvement of their business, but there are few we venture, who would not admit that they could make a better showing with their business if they just had the time to give more thought to it.

This is just the idea suggested. It will pay to take two or three days. Relieve the mind of all the worry of details and go over the past year's business and the present prospects and criticize as if you were a stranger and were figuring on buying the stand. What are its faults, what are its weaknesses? Who is to blame? How can matters be improved? Is the appearance or store arrangement all that can be desired? Are the employes the right sort, and more important still is the proprietor all that he should be?

These questions, if they are faced honestly and the others they will bring up are bound to shake a man out of a rut unless he is beyond redemption. It is getting into a rut that the merchant has most to fear. It means stagnation and death.

Having gone over all these questions a grocer is in a position to plan to the best advantage for the coming year's business. A day or two's mental stock taking is no less important than the ordinary stock taking which no business man nowadays neglects.

DOMINION EXHIBITION AT WINNIPEG.

By our Winnipeg Representative.

ONE of the greatest news items of New Year's day in the West was the announcement of the grant of $50,000 from the Dominion Government towards the holding of a Dominion Exhibition in Winnipeg next July.

The announcement met with the unqualified approval of all classes and all shades of political feeling and there seems no doubt that the city and the Provincial Government will respond in a like liberal manner. It is felt that now, more than any other time will this exhibition do us the most good. On the American side every effort is being strained to prevent emigration to Canada and our American cousins are by no means scrupulous in their methods, so that stories injurious to the Canadian West, and which are absolutely without foundation are being printed in circular form and distributed by the thousand. So strong has the opposition become that bankers have formed a league not to loan money for investment in the Canadian West. The Winnipeg Real Estate Exchange is taking this matter up and sending a strong delegation to a convention of American real estate men interested in Canadian lands which is to be held in Minneapolis in January. But this Dominion Exhibition will do more than any other one thing to stem the tide of opposition. The people will come and see for themselves what the country is like and what it can produce.

With the Dominion Exhibition an assured fact and the appointment of Mr. William Whyte as second vice-president of the C.P.R. with full control in the West, the Westerners feel that they have every reason to anticipate a happy new year.

INDEPENDENCE OF PARLIAMENT.

AS an academic proposition few people would deny that members of Parliament should not be appointed to places of emolument. It is desirable neither that the vulgar place hunter should be encouraged nor that the man of independent principles should be seduced from the course marked out by his best judgment, by the insidious temptation of the place bribe. Even hardened politicians will accept this proposition—when in opposition.

Back in 1893-94 THE GROCER conducted a campaign along this line and found a doughty champion and supporter in the present Postmaster-General, who read extracts from THE GROCER'S editorial in the House and moved a resolution affirming the principle that no member of Parliament should be appointed to a public office of emolument while sitting in the House or until two years after ceasing to sit therein.

It is not to be assumed that Sir William, now a knight sans peur et sans reproche, and one of his Majesty's Privy Councillors for Canada, ripened with years and experience, is less zealous for the independence of Parliament, and the political morality of its members than when plain William Mulock, member of her Majesty's loyal Opposition, he fought side by side with THE GROCER to eradicate the blasting canker of patronage.

And yet Mr. Blair has been appointed chairman of the Railway Commission, Mr. Blair, who opposed the Government's transcontinental railway policy, who resigned from the Cabinet, who uttered the bitter words "Cox can't wait," and who voted with Mr. Borden and Mr. Tarte against the Government on this imoprtant measure. Then Mr. Blair becomes quiescent, his official organ declares that since the thing is done the only recourse is to support the Government. A pause ensues. After the pause Mr. Blair is announced as having been appointed to the chairmanship of the Railway Commission.

The shock this appointment must have been to the redoubtable champion of parliamentary independence and present Postmaster-General can better be imagined than described. Let us draw a veil.

With Mr. Blair's personal fitness for the position no exception can be taken. He was an admirable Minister of Railways and the service he rendered his country in connection with placing the Intercolonial on a sound business basis, will not soon be forgotten. It is doubtful if a man better qualified for the position could have been found. But in consideration of the principle at stake it would have been better had one perhaps slightly less qualified been appointed. The Liberal party in Opposition was unflinchingly opposed to the appointment of members of Parliament to office. The case of Mr. Blair is a particularly flagrant one, all things considered, and we are convinced that there are many friends of the Government who will agree that the appointment was ill-advised.

BUSINESS MEN ELECTED.

"THE GROCER" is desirous of securing a list of the business men who have been elected to the positions of reeve or mayor in the various municipalities throughout the country. Friends would confer a favor by sending such information to the Editor of THE GROCER. The full name and particular line of business engaged in by the new public servant is desired.

MONEY TIGHTNESS IN CANADA.

By D. M. Stewart.

THE year just closed has been, without exception, the most prosperous the banks of Canada have ever had, and that should certainly mean Canada has had the most prosperous year in its history. Existing conditions indicate that the present marked prosperity should continue throughout 1904.

Some idea of the good business done by the banks may be gathered from the fact that the assets of all banks have increased from $625,000,000 at the end of 1902, to $660,000,000 at the present time, an increase of $35,000,000. The most noticeable change in the business done during the year was the largely increased amount that the banks of the Dominion have placed out on commercial loans.

From $324,000,000 at the end of 1902, these loans have increased to $382,000,000, making an increase of $58,000,000 for the year, which means an increase of nearly $5,000 a month.

Then, again, the bank note circulation has reached a new high level, at $70,480,000.

While money, as has been claimed, is fairly tight at the present time, the reasons for it indicate that the condition will last but a short time longer.

The three principal reasons are as follows:

The lateness in the crop movement; the quietness that has recently prevailed in the cheese market in England, which has resulted in there being at present between three and five million dollars worth of cheese in the city, and the fact that a number of capitalists purchased stocks at higher prices than are prevailing at present, and are waiting till higher prices can be secured.

A month or two should see an improvement in the cheese market in England, and the stock market here, and this should tend to make money much easier than it is at present.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Willard B. de Wolfe, who has been connected with The N. K. Fairbank Co., Montreal, for some years, has been promoted to a more responsible position in the company's Boston branch.

Mr. James Ince, of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, has been laid up with the grippe over the new year. Mr. Ince is improving, happily, and is expected to be down at the office again this week.

A caller at the Montreal office of "The Canadian Grocer" this week was Mr. Richard Smeall, representing The Montreal Biscuit Co. in Eastern Ontario. Mr. Smeall's reports of business increases on his territory speak well for the quality of his firm's goods.

Mr. W. R. Caron, who represents H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, in Montreal and through the Eastern Townships and east as far as Quebec, has just returned from a trip to his firm's annual meetings at Buffalo and Pittsburgh.

Among grocery travellers in Montreal this week are Mr. W. L. Hunter and Mr. F. L. Smith, both representing L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, in Ontario. Mr. M. J. Legge and Mr. J. C. Campbell, of the same firm, are also here attending the company's annual meeting.

Mr. E. J. Cowan, representing The Cowan Co., Toronto, reports that the increase in sales of Cowan's chocolates and cocoas in Montreal during the past year was very satisfactory. Prospects for future, he says, are exceedingly bright.

Mr. G. R. Small, of the Canada Maple Exchange, Montreal, is confined to his house through an attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Small was forced to relinquish his duties two weeks ago, and, though at present very ill, it is hoped that he may be around again shortly, as he is a man of strong constitution and vitality.

Mr. J. Ethier, af Laporte, Martin & Cie., is confined to his house through typhoid fever. Mr. Ethier, who has the direct supervision of the sample-room and sales department of his house, has not been feeling very well for some weeks past, but, with that characteristic attention to his work and department, refused to relinquish his post. On the urgent demand of his physicians he was forced to retire, it is hoped, only for a short period.

JAPAN TEA EXPORTS.

Mr. C. M. Bernard, of Chicago, writes "The Canadian Grocer" as follows: Tea exports from Japan to 30th November were as follows:

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Jan. 7, 1901.

Groceries.

BUSINESS for the year started off this week with quite a little flurry. The travellers went back on the road Monday and found retailers with stocks pretty well depleted and ready to stock up again. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday saw an increasing volume of orders arriving. In some sections, however, the severe weather and heavy snowfall has somewhat blocked traffic. Taken altogether, the travellers are hopeful of a good year's business. Last year's bills are being pretty well settled up, although in some sections improvement is desirable. Jobbers have their stocks all written down and are busy totaling up, and it will be a couple of weeks before the result of last year's business can be exactly determined. The indications are, however, that the result will be satisfactory. Canned goods are firm, with beans higher. Coffee is still advancing in New York and firmly held locally at recent advances. Cloves and pepper are stronger in outside markets but unchanged locally. A good active demand is being met for syrups and molasses; some anticipating an advance in the former. Rice and tapioca have shown no quotable change locally but advices are at hand of sharp advances in Japan in view of the warlike situation. Teas are strong all round with interest centred on Ceylon greens. It is now assured that the bounty will be continued for another six months. Dried fruits are rather dull after the holidays. An advance of 2½c. per pound on shelled walnuts is cabled. A more active demand is met for prunes. Other lines are only interesting in a sorting way just now. Cured fish are attracting attention, and are quoted below. The decline in sugar reported last week was short-lived, re-acting Monday to former basis; there is more active demand, however, as stocks in retailers' hands are low.

CANNED GOODS.

These lines are still as strong as ever. Beans are particularly scarce and high, and other vegetables are very firm; an advance is almost certain. Canned salmon is also looked upon as likely to go up. Stocks in jobbers' hands are light, and later on when demand sets in, prices, especially for fine sockeyes, are sure to be high. We quote:

SUGAR.

Owing to the New Year holidays in the United States, there is little of particular interest to record this week. In raws, the market has opened very quiet since the holidays, with sellers of Cuba centrifugals at 2⅞c., C. & F., at which price a parcel of 10,000 bags for shipment was sold on December 30, just as our last report was being written. This price is equal to 3.47c., duty paid, which shows a decline of 1-32c. in this grade since our last. At same figure business might still be done for February shipment, though buyers and sellers are both indifferent, waiting developments. Refiners are now withdrawing sugars from bond, purchased in anticipation of the passage of the Reciprocity Treaty, and on these sugars have obtained the reduction in duty. Recent purchases made in the island are also coming forward and beginning to arrive more freely, so that it is expected that this week's receipts will show considerable increase over recent weeks. Receipts at United States four ports for week ending December 30 were the smallest of any week for the year 1903, being only 3,509 tons. Meltings were 29,000 tons, and stocks were thus reduced to 63,835 tons, being 25,191 tons less than previous week and 72,241 tons less than same week of 1902. It is interesting to note that the figures of stock mentioned are the lowest for any week during the year 1903. At latest reports, there were 44 central factories grinding in Cuba, an increase of seven over previous week, with total stock in the island of 105,000 tons. Combined stocks of United States and Cuba were 168,835 tons against 187,576 tons previous year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 3,287,835 tons against 3,108,576 tons previous year, the increase being 179,259 tons. As we go to press European markets are reported stronger with 88 per cent. beet advanced to 8s. 5½d., basis f.o.b. Hamburg, for January shipment. This is equal to parity of 3.78c., duty paid, New York, for 96 test centrifugals, which, as will be observed, have thus a differential in their favor of 31c. per 100 pounds.

The refined situation in the United States has assumed a stronger phase, with all shadings discontinued, and the Arbuckle refinery, who were giving a concession of 10c. per 100 pounds, ceased doing so on December 31, and restored prices to same list as other refiners, owing to greatly increased demand. There is a much more hopeful tone to the situation and, though stocks are light, an improvement in prices would not be surprising. Locally, there is a much better demand, and the decline recorded as we went to press last, was short-lived, prices being restored on morning of 4th inst. to former basis, and we advance all quotations, as below, .05c. per 100 pounds. We quote:

SPICES.

The New York spice market is more active again, with larger inquiry and further spot buying of pepper, cloves and pimento. Advices from abroad are very strong on cloves. The crop is now definitely cabled to be 27,000 bales against 112,000 last year. Spot have already advanced sharply, demonstrating the very small available supply at present prices. Stocks of pepper in London were as follows for past five years:

	1899	1900.	1902.	1902	1903

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

These lines are in quite active demand, as some people are expecting an advance in syrups, especially corn syrup. Molasses are very firm at the advance, the cold weather stimulating demand. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There is just a fair local demand for these lines at present, with a dearth of Japan milled rice, there being no direct importation. Despatches from Victoria, B.C., however, announce sharp advances advised by cables from Japan aggregating $7 per ton. The quoted price is now $101.50. We quote:

TEAS.

The position of Ceylon green teas seems to be the most interesting feature in this article at present. As is generally known the planters in Ceylon have taxed themselves in order to provide a fund for granting a rebate to the exporter of Ceylon green teas, thus lessening their price to consumers in this country. This policy has resulted in a large importation of the tea, which has been freely distributed over Canada during the past year, displacing to a large extent green tea formerly imported from Japan and China. The rebate at commencement amounted to about 2c. per pound, but was gradually reduced, and, in last half of 1903, amounted to 1c. per pound. Owing to the very large exportation of these teas the fund at the disposal of the planters became exhausted, and they had to borrow largely in order to maintain the rebate to exporters. It was considered all but a certainty that the rebate would be entirely discontinued at end of 1903, but it has now been decided to continue the rebate on a further 5,000,000 pounds of leaf, which is equal to about a six months' output. It is therefore certain that the rebate will be discontinued about June of this year, and it is generally believed that most of the gardens making green tea will discontinue the making of green, as at present prices it is more profitable to make black. In anticipation of the discontinuance of the rebate and on account of the profitable sale for black tea, the gardens are now demanding an advance in price of from 3 to 5 Ceylon cents, say, 1 to 1½ gold cents, over the price that they accepted for the 1903 crop. It is, therefore, certain that we will have a hardening tendency of prices on this class of tea throughout the season, and there is a strong disposition on the part of buyers to cover their wants. There is little change to report in other classes of tea, but, generally speaking, the demand is good for importation, and some large contracts for Indian and Ceylon have been placed this week. There is also more inquiry for China greens, which are not very plentiful on the market. The war cloud is having a hardening tendency on Japans, but the already high values can not be largely affected. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

These lines are experiencing the usual lull after the holiday trade. There is a small sorting trade with increased demand for prunes. Currants are higher in Greece, as already reported, but there is no change locally. Nothing new is to be reported from California except an anticipated sorting trade shortly in evaporated peaches and apricots, which have been neglected during the Christmas trade. Quotations for this crop prunes are now given. Cables on shelled walnuts this week show an advance of 30 francs per 100 kilos, or 2½c. per pound on December prices. We quote:

EGGS.

Egg stocks are still going down and prices up. There are only a couple of houses here who have any stocks, and they, not much more than will be required by their customers. Prices all round are up one to two cents, and it is almost certain that further advances will be made shortly. It is now pretty clearly recognized that a famine is bound to occur, and in a couple of weeks there will be a much greater scarcity than at present. We quote:

Green Fruits.

The market is quiet with sorting up orders the feature of the week. On account of the severe weather retailers are ordering in small lots by express. Valencia oranges which are arriving are superior to the Christmas stock, California navels are good quality, noticeably better than last year. Florida oranges are dearer and more scarce. Mexican and Valencias are higher. Apples and cranberries are lower. The banana trade is satisfactory on a small scale. We quote:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

As a result of the Russia-Japanese war scare there has been a general advance in prices this week. Manitoba wheat No. 1 hard is 11-2c. firmer; No. 1 Northern is 3c., and No. 2 Northern 21-2c. higher respectively. Red and white wheat are each 1c. firmer. Oats are 1-2c. firmer. We quote:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, January 7, 1904.

Groceries.

INTERESTING or important facts regarding trade matters are still hard to obtain. Like your Toronto market reporter the experience here is the same, "stock taking," "nothing new or interesting for you," is about all one can get. Or, " all our travellers are in and we are busy going over the past year's business and laying plans for the new." Country orders are coming in by letter though some travellers have already left for the stamping grounds and sorting orders are dribbling in. Local refiners advanced sugars 5c. per 100 lb. all round on Monday, and better trade is looked for as stocks generally have been allowed to run down lately. The feeling seems to be that a further advance will shortly eventuate as the raw and beet markets indicate an upward change. In teas Japans are receiving a fair amount of attention. Ceylon and India greens are unchanged. Ceylon blacks are hard to get as London and primary markets are sold up. Not much trading is looked for during the next two weeks. Coffee market continues strong and prices are held well. Spices generally are quoted firm and the position of cloves is particularly strong, and it is not improbable that a further advance will have to be made. Stocks are light and holders' disposition not to sell freely. Molasses has lately shown a better front, the cold weather (and there is lots of it and a steady supply on hand) always provoking a larger consumption in this district and the East. Barbadoes advices to hand this week report prospects for next crop as bright, heavy rains having improved the canes materially. Corn syrups show good business with bright outlook for future increases. Rice has received more attention lately owing to the Eastern situation, though no heavy buying has been indulged in. Tapioca, at the recent advance, is steady. Canned goods situation is featureless and little business doing. Inquiries have been made for tomatoes for Western account by one or two brokers, but the trade shows no disposition to let go to any extent. Green fruits have had a good turnover during the holidays just closed, California oranges selling well and in good favor. Grape fruit, which is gradually getting a place on the list in this market, is scarce and prices consequently high. In foreign dried fruits a further advance is noted in shelled walnuts. The market is generally in a good condition, stocks in importers' hands being smaller than usual. Grecian advices report currants as advancing. Trade in all kinds of fish is picking up after the holidays. Vegetables steady and prices unchanged from last week's quotations.

There is nothing to add to our account of the egg market last week. There are no supplies of any consequence coming forward and stocks in hand are being rapidly depleted. A further advance seems inevitable. The bean market is now very quiet and prices as quoted for three or four weeks are well maintained. The market seems to have found its level. In hops and honey there are no new features to report. The former item continues very strong. The busy season for evaporated apples is now over. The flour market is very strong owing to the advance in wheat, but at time of writing no actual change has been made in prices quoted.

SUGAR.

Local refiners advanced prices on all sugars 5c. per 100 lb. on Monday this week. A better demand is looked for as stocks throughout the country must be light and jobbers look for fairly good trade. Owing to the position of the raw and beet market it would not be surprising to see another advance shortly.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Business is showing a tendency to improve with the opening of the new year. The cold weather always provokes a better trade in molasses throughout the province and as there is certainly a good supply and a steady one of cold prevailing at present, prospects for increased consumption of molasses are good. Leacock & Co., Barbadoes, report in a letter to their local correspondents, under date of 22nd, ult.: "During the past few days heavy rains have fallen which will tend to improve the canes after a rather long spell of dry weather, the prospects continue favorable for a good crop, as well as good quality."

It is certainly hoped by the trade that this cheering information may be realized, as the short crop during the past year has placed the molasses consumer in rather a grumpy mood, owing to the high prices prevailing.

Corn syrups continue in good demand, in fact it may be said the demand is steadily on the increase. There is no doubt that the very high prices prevailing in Molasses have tended to throw the trade somewhat in the direction of syrups though a very strong factor in the increased consumption is the very careful, neat and attractive way syrup makers are putting their product before the consumer. TEAS.

In teas a fair demand exists for Ceylon and Indian greens at old prices. There is a large demand for Ceylon blacks, but owing to bareness of London and primary markets none can be secured. Japans are receiving fair amount of attention, prices ranging from 15 1-2 to 24c. China greens that are coming in now are rapidly going out on orders sold ahead. Stocks generally are reported none too heavy. It is not expected that business will look up before about the 15th inst. We quote:

Latest New York advices report market generally firm for cloves, cassin, pepper, nutmegs and ginger. There are no large stocks of any crops available. Cayenne has had another short crop. RICE AND TAPIOCA.

In rice the Eastern situation has had a tendency to draw attention of buyers to the position of Japan rice and in some quarters it is expected an advance is likely to materialize. CANNED GOODS.

It is difficult to obtain anything of decided interest as regards canned goods. Prices continue unchanged, business is only fair and no prospects for any activity until arrival of Lenten season. Green Fruits.

Trade during holiday week has been very good. From now on it is expected to be rather quiet. The English market for Canadian apples has advanced from 1s. 6d. to 2s., and higher prices are expected towards end of January. No change is expected in California celery and other vegetables for another three weeks, when prices will likely drop 50c. Florida tomatoes have been rather scarce in New York, selling on spot here anywhere from $4 to $5. Grape fruit is scarce and selling here from $5.50 to $7. A fair trade is done in California navel oranges. We quote:

Fish.

Fish prices unchanged. Trade is picking up a little after the holidays and from now on a better demand is looked for. The consumption of prepared codfish is increasing perceptibly, this is no doubt accounted for by the manner in which the Maritime fish houses are preparing their goods for the market. Great care and cleanliness is used by the leading fish curers to put up the goods in clean, appetizing form, and convenient packages. The improvement in the manner of placing these goods before the consumer will ultimately increase the demand for this healthy food. We quote:

Vegetables.

A quiet market prevails in all lines of vegetables. A few cars of Early Rose potatoes were sold at 62c. In retailing quantities prices range from 70 to 72 1-2c. Onions, Canadian red, are holding firm at $2.75 to $3.25; yellows, at $2.25 to $2.50; parsnips, $2.50 per lb. Quebec Swede turnips are selling at $10 to $12 per ton and 65 to 67 1-2c in 90-lb. bags.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

There is no material change in the situation as described last week. The stocks held by houses here are each day growing less and it is thought that by the middle of January they will all be exhausted. As a general rule there are seldom any deliveries worth talking about from the 15th of February to the 1st of March, and hence it seems likely that still higher prices will be paid for eggs. Prices this week are ranging as follows: Selected fresh stock, 27c.; market stock, 24c.; pickled eggs, 23c.

BEANS.

There is very little activity in the bean market at present and prices as quoted are being well maintained in what little trade is passing. Some efforts to break the market by stories that the market is bound to go lower are reported, but as stated last week our information is that these tales are without foundation. We quote:

HOPS.

Values are tending upward in foreign markets and local prices are firm. Eastern Townships and Prince Edward County hops are quoted at 31c. to 32c.; hops, fair to good, 25c. to 29c.

HONEY.

The market continues very quiet and prices are unchanged. We quote:

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

This is always the quiet season for maple products. Trade is considered satisfactory for the season, but it is of very small volume. We quote the following prices which are unchanged from last week's quotations:

Maple syrup, in wood, per lb	0 05½	0 06
Maple syrup, in large tins	0 70	0 75
Pure sugar, per lb	0 07	0 07½

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Trade is now very quiet. Most evaporators have disposed of their stock. Prices this season have been so low that there has been very little profit in the evaporating business. We quote:

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Rumors of war in the East have served to advance prices in wheat and flour is very strong in sympathy. At time of writing no actual advance has been made but it is impossible to tell what a day may bring about. We again quote:

Manitoba spring wheat patents	4 60	4 80
" strong bakers'	4 30	4 50
Winter wheat patents	4 25	4 35
Straight rollers	3 80	3 90
Extra	3 60	3 70
Straight rollers, bags	1 85	1 90
Extra, in bags	1 70	1 75

FEED.

The market for feed is very quiet and without any startling features. The only change is a slight advance in bran due to the relief of the local market brought about by some heavy exports two or three weeks ago. We quote:

Ontario bran, in bulk	16 50 17 00
" shorts	18 50 19 00
Manitoba bran, in bags	17 50
" shorts	18 50 19 00
Mouillie	23 00 28 00

ROLLED OATS.

There were some rumors of an actual advance in oatmeal, but jobbers assure us that prices although firm are unchanged. We quote:

Rolled oats, in bbls	3 75 3 80
" " in bags	1 75 1 80

BARLEY.

There has been no change in price. Supplies are now freely obtainable at prices quoted. We quote:

Pot barley	1 85
Pearl "	2 85

Baled Hay.

The market continues very quiet, there being no export trade whatever. A few cars have been sold in the Maritime Provinces and the Eastern townships. We quote:

No. 1 timothy	10 00 11 00
No. 2 timothy, choice	9 00 9 50
No. 2 timothy, ordinary	8 50 8 75
Clover, and clover mixed	7 00 8 00

Ashes.

The market is without special feature to note. We again quote:

First pots, per cwt	5 95 6 00
Seconds	5 55
Pearls, per 100 lb	7 00 7 25

Hides.

Receipts from country points continue to be liberal. Quebec is not taking any very large supplies and the market is therefore not particularly strong. We quote::

No. 1 beef hides	0 08 0 08½
No. 2 "	0 07 0 07½
No. 3 "	0 06 0 06½

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"

St. John, N.B., Jan. 4, 1904.

THE new year is here. Our wholesale grocers are either taking stock or preparing to. Business is very quiet. The past year has shown a very large volume of business with fair, if not large, profits. Towards the close of the year there have been some quite large failures through the country, which, in some cases, have taken off part of the cream. There is no doubt as the year closed money was somewhat tight, but not yet, perhaps, enough to affect business. It is shown by the extra caution on the part of the banks and the higher interest borrowers find it necessary to pay. The writer was advised that one party going into the market for fifty-thousand dollars had to pay 6½ per cent., where but a few months ago 5 only would have been charged.

In markets, the very firm price of cream of tartar is a feature and the high price of cloves.

Oil.

Burning oil is always a large business at this season. The present prices are much above the average. People must have oil, and as there is no competition between American and Canadian oils, they have to pay the price. Values are very firm. Lubricating oils begin to have more attention; the market is firm. Paint oils also have more attention. Linseeds are very low. Turpentine is unchanged at the high price. Fish oils are scarce and high.

Salt.

The continued arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt keep the importers very busy, their great aim being to sell to arrive, as the profit is small and the cost of storing high. Fine salt has a light sale.

Canned Goods.

The Association, with whom very much fault is found by our trade, were very late shipping goods, and stocks which should have been here some months ago are only now coming to hand. Corn is scarce. In tomatoes, some American are beginning to come in; prices are tending higher. Fruits have a fair sale at even prices. Salmon is in quite full stock, except Springs. There is a fair supply of blueberries. Domestic fish are quite firm. Clams were a very short pack.

Green Fruit.

Dealers are finding it quiet. In oranges, the importations of Valencias have been less than usual. Jamaicas still sell freely. Lemons are low. Malaga grapes have but a light sale after Christmas. Cape Cod cranberries are high. Apples are firm; the quality of Bishop pippins offered is much better than for years. Several cars of western apples packed in boxes have come into the province. This is something new. Last year, while the quantity was very large, it was all in barrels.

Dried Fruit.

This is a quiet line. Dealers find they hold quite a full stock of raisins. In other lines supplies are not large. The California market on loose muscatels is very unsettled. Sales were very light. It is hoped the Association have learned a greatly needed lesson. Currants are unchanged. Dates were quite late arriving this year; prices are low. Evaporated apples move slowly; the price is at least no higher. Peanuts tend higher.

Sugar.

There is a steady sale. Prices were off 5c. this past week, but recovered. The importers of foreign sugar find their prices too close to domestic for large sales. Buyers compare their price with domestic granulated in bags. While they claim their quality to be fully equal to standard in barrels, they find it difficult, as their sugar is in bags, to get standard prices.

Molasses.

The situation is strong. Porto Rico is about the only grade offered. The advance in New Orleans has largely stopped the sale.

Fish.

Some frozen fish have been received, but quantity is small and prices firm. In finnan haddies prices are rather higher and fish are getting scarce. The situation is very strong. Dry fish continue high. There is a fair stock of pickled herring. Smoked are very scarce. Full prices are asked.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour, rather firmer prices rule, particularly in Manitoba grades; the sales are light. Offerings of feed are not free and there is but a light demand. Oatmeal seems firmer. Cornmeal is unchanged; it is sold in this market at very low prices by the local mills. Beans are unchanged. Shippers prefer to sell primes, but our buyers demand hand-picked. Barley and peas are very firm.

THE LATE GEORGE FOSTER.

READERS of "The Grocer" will learn with sincere regret of the death of Mr. George Foster, head of the wholesale grocery house of Geo. Foster & Son, Brantford, and president of The Brantford Starch Works Co., a gentleman known and respected throughout the greater part of Western Ontario, and one who will be most regretted where he was best known.

Mr. Foster, although suffering from a severe cold, was able to join his family in the Christmas festivities, but the cold later developed into pneumonia, to which he succumbed late New Year's night.

Born 70 years ago in Lancashire, England, the late Mr. Foster came to Brantford with his parents as a small boy. He early manifested the possession of the sterling qualities that later won him business success and the respect and esteem of his neighbors. The wholesale house of which he was the head and which he built up is well and favorably known to Ontario readers of "The Grocer," and, as president of The Brantford Starch Works Co., he had much to do with putting that enterprise on a satisfactory footing and in securing the large new buildings in which this industry is now located.

Mr. Foster was active in church and philanthropic work, and was an especial friend of the Indians in the reserve near Brantford, by whom he was one time presented with an address.

The children are: Frank Foster, Mrs. A. G. Olive, Mrs. E. Sweet, Mrs. M. H. Robertson, Mrs. Jos. Ruddy and Grace Foster, of Brantford, and Mrs. R. K. Duncan, of Washington, Pa. Thos. Foster, collector of customs, Brantford, is a brother, and Mrs. Wm. Buck and Mrs. S. Ellis, also of Brantford, are sisters.

IMPROVING OUR HERRING.

From advices received at the Department of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa, Mr. J. J. Cowie, the Scotch expert, who was brought to Canada to look into the herring industry, with a view to devising some means of packing and curing the Canadian fish so that they can successfully compete with those of other countries on foreign markets, show that he is making a decidedly good impression among the fishermen of the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Cowie has been to see many of the leading industries down by the sea. At present, although Canada has in her waters as good herring as there is to be found in the world, she does not find a market for them, simply because they are not properly packed and cured for shipment.

FORMAL OPENING OF A GREAT TEA HOUSE.

"THE GROCER" has from time to time noted the progress made in the new home of Red Rose tea which Mr. T. H. Estabrooks has been erecting in St. John, N.B., and in which this prosperous firm has but recently set up its lares and penates. The consecration of these household gods took place Wednesday, the 30th ult. when the new building was formally opened and the friends of Red Rose tea enjoyed the bountiful hospitality of the firm.

In the few weeks since Mr. Estabrooks moved into the new building everything had been put in complete working order. The arrangements for the reception were admirable. Messrs. Estabrooks and Miles were assisted by their office staff and the following travellers: L. W. Cox, Truro; Geo. L. Palmer, Fredericton; E. J. Simms, Halifax; N. D. LeBlanc, Shediac; Lewis Armstrong, St. John; W. C. Gaden, Montreal; Rupert Pratt, Toronto; B. R. James Norris, Kingston (Ont.); G. H. Campbell, London; R. W. Vout, Renfrew (Ont.); B. A. Fisher, Brockville; S. Hustwitt, Winnipeg; H. W. Barnard, Portland (Me.). H. R. Arnold, Winnipeg; T. O. Apps, North Duprbam (Ont.), and E. Cook, Toronto, were unable to be present, and Messrs. Gaden and Fisher were the only ones able to comply with the request to bring their wives. There are in all sixteen travellers.

The following ladies also assisted at the reception: Mrs. and the Misses Estabrooks, Mrs. Miles, Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. Angevine, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Gaden, Montreal; Mrs. Fisher, Brockville, and Mrs. Kierstead.

Mr. Estabrooks employs about 70 people, and his new establishment is a credit not alone to St. John but to the tea trade of Canada.

Hundreds of merchants and others entered the brilliantly lighted offices during the afternoon, enjoyed a cup of Red Rose tea served by the ladies in one of them, went up in the elevator to the top floor and walked down, observing with great interest the work on the various floors, by which the Ceylon and India teas in original packages on the top floor are converted into packages of Red Rose tea in cases to be shipped out from the ground floor all over Canada and into the United States and Newfoundland.

There is room on the top floor for 1,000,000 pounds of tea in original packages, and the racks on the first floor will hold 200,000 pound packages of Red Rose tea. The blending, weighing, packing and labelling machinery is of the very latest design. The visitors were surprised and delighted with what they saw. On leaving each one received a very pretty souvenir, a silver lead pencil in a box bearing on it in gold: Souvenir commemorating the opening of New Red Rose Tea Building, St. John, N.B., Dec. 30, 1903.

In the evening Mr. Estabrooks entertained travellers and office staff at the Union Club.

It was a jolly party that sat down to dinner. The tables were handsomely decorated, the principal decorations being genuine tea plants and red roses. The menu card was a most attractive one. It was in book form, the covers of soft brown leather and tied with little leather straps. The first page bore the inscription: "Complimentary dinner given by T. H. Estabrooks to his travellers at the Union Club on Wednesday, Dec. 30th, 1903." The next two pages were entitled, "Wit, wisdom and humor on tea," with splendid views of St. John harbor and bridges, and quotations from Colley Cibber, Confucius and Pickwick Papers.

Then case the following menu:

Oysters on Half Shell.
Mock Turtle Soup. Consomme.
Boiled Halibut, Egg Sauce.
Chicken Croquettes, Tomato Sauce.
Kidney Patties.
Boiled Turkey, Parsley Sauce.
Tongue. Haunch of Venison.
Mashed Potatoes. Peas.
Artichokes, White Sauce.
English Plum Pudding, Brandy Sauce.
Charlotte Russe.
Pineapple Jelly. Orange Jelly.
Whipped Cream.
Frozen Fruit Pudding.
Celery and Cheese.
Fruits and Confectionery.
Red Rose Tea.

The reverse has a splendid picture of Mr. Estabrooks' new building, one of the finest and best equipped tea houses in Canada.

Mr. Estabrooks presided. The toast "The King" was received with musical honors. "Our Travellers" was responded to by L. W. Cox, Rupert Pratt, and S. Hustwitt. "Our Office Staff," proposed by B. R. James Norris, was responded to by H. Sullivan and W. R. Miles. "Our Host," proposed by Mr. Miles. "The Ladies," proposed by W. C. Gaden, responded to by V. d'Olloqui and Geo. Palmer.

A pleasing feature of the festivities in connection with the opening of the new house was a presentation to Mr. T. H. Estabrooks by his employes. The gift was a handsome chest of silverware. The presentation was made by Mr. H. Sullivan, who in a few well-chosen words, expressed the pleasure it gave to all connected with Red Rose tea to offer this chest for their employer's acceptance as a token of their esteem. Mr. Estabrooks gratefully acknowledged the kind words of his employes and feelingly thanked them for their beautiful gift.

ON A NEW LINE.

Mr. Henry C. Fortier, managing director of the Canada Biscuit Company, has resigned and will in future be with the Dominion Sewer Pipe Company, Limited, Swansea.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 4, 1904.

THERE is much quietness at present in wholesale circles owing to the holidays. Retail trade, however, has been exceptionally good, both in the city and country, and the outlook is favorable. The last month of the old year was marked by a larger number of business failures than have been recorded for many years. Some of them were for considerable amounts and city wholesale houses were the losers to some extent. In the amount of liabilities Nova Scotia failures in 1903 aggregated considerably over those of any year in the past five. This was caused principally by two very heavy failures in Sydney and vicinity. A number of small embarrassments took place, which added to the general aggregate. The manufacturing industries of the province are active and the output of manufactured articles was greater than in any previous year. All the leading factories are benefiting, and orders have been taken well into 1904.

Locally, there have been no market changes of importance during the last week. Prices are steady pending the turn of the year. Mess pork has again declined, but there is so little business doing now in this line that quotations are neglected. There is some interest in cornmeal. St. John distributors offering to land this article in Halifax by the new steamer Senlac at about 15c. below the quotations which hitherto ruled here. The flour trade is extremely dull. Beans are lower, carload lots now offering at about 10c. below the top prices for the season. Eggs are extremely good stock. Very few are held here this Winter, and with the high prices ruling in Montreal, merchants will not be able to draw their usual supplies from that market. Limed eggs at present are selling at 23c., and fresh Fall eggs at 25c. There is very little demand for dairy products. The principal call is for fresh creamery prints, which are scarce, and for dairy butter. Cheese is very slow of sale. The hay market is dull, as farmers' supplies have not yet become exhausted. Oats are lower, as quite large quantities of Prince Edward Island oats have been offering ex vessel at 39c. This is now about over as the island navigation is now closed.

Fish, ex vessel, have declined, and Bank cod are not worth over $5 per quintal. Exporters seem to have all the stocks they care to carry over the Winter.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, January 2nd, 1904.

THE new year has been ushered in with keenly cold, bright weather. Yesterday the thermometer was down to 30 below zero. but as the sun was shining like Summer no one seemed to think about it. The fashion of New Year's calling seems to be reviving, at any rate the amount of calling was unusually large.

Wholesale houses and exchanges are all open for business this morning, but that is about the extent of it. No one is thinking of changing prices or in fact doing anything but transacting the barely necessary business, and there will be really nothing doing until Monday.

In grocery houses in the West, stock taking is not done until the end of March to avoid moving the heavy stocks held in the warehouses for the Winter trade.

A general enquiry among the trade on Thursday elicited the fact that the increase in business between January 1st, 1903 and January 1st, 1904 was about 25 per cent. One very large new business has been added to the list of wholesale grocery and provision houses during the year, that of Foley, Lock & Karsen. This is a new firm with new and very extensive premises.

The old firm of Campbell Bros. & Wilson were comfortably settled in their splendid new building for the opening of the year and on December 30th the head of the company, Mr. R. J. Campbell, left for Calgary to inspect the new premises being just completed for the company at that point. The A. Macdonald Company have doubled their capacity during the season and the Jobin Martin Company have added a new storey, so that for 1903 the wholesale grocery trade can give an excellent account of itself, being marked by progress all along the line.

Produce.

Some interesting figures have been secured as to produce. Abbatoir returns show that 35,000 beef cattle, 70,000 hogs, 17,000 sheep and 6,400 calves were slaughtered during the year. These animals were all raised in the West.

The average price of butchers' cattle has been 3 1-2 to 4c., the grade of cattle very good and supplies liberal, during the latter part of the season, though they were short in the Spring. The 70,000 hogs slaughtered shows a gain over last year, but does not yet meet the requirements of the packing houses. The number of hogs slaughtered does not, however, represent the total pack, as several of the smaller packing houses buy their hogs all dressed, and the number received in this way would probably run the number actually packed up over 100,000. The large packers report a very considerable improvement in the class of hogs offered and state that about 75 per cent. of the offerings this year could be classed as good bacon hogs as against only 60 per cent. last year. The average price has been about 5 1-2 to 5 5-8c. as against 6c. last year.

Poultry.

The most disappointing feature of Western produce trade is the receipts of local poultry which were very small, although they certainly are larger than last year. Winnipeg, alone spent $50,000 for Christmas poultry and the bill for the whole west was 35 cars which cost $105,000.

Butter.

The bulk of the butter and cheese manufactured in the West is handled through Winnipeg houses and the nearest figures, those of the Government, make the following showing:

Dairy butter, 2,738,868 lbs., at an average price of 15.7c., represents a total value of $429,445. Dairy butter shows a gain of 9 per cent. as to quantity and 78c. per cwt. as to market price. This increase in price is largely due to increased home consumption, the make of the season being to a greater extent than usual absorbed in the West.

The account of creamery butter is not so encouraging, the increase in making being only 8 per cent., and there being a decrease in price of 47c. per cwt. The price of creamery butter was low all over Canada, and Western butter has not given as good an account of itself as could have been desired when set abroad.

Cheese.

The make of cheese, 1,382,304 lbs., brought an average price of 10.95c., or a total value of $151,362.28. Cheese shows an increase of 26 per cent. in production and a gain of 76c. per cwt. in price. The make was quite inadequate to home consumption and a large number of cars of cheese came in from Ontario to meet the demand of Western trade. The influx of English settlers led to an enormously increased demand for cheese, and this will be even more apparent next year.

Notes.

G. F. & J. Galt, wholesale grocers, followed their well-established custom of presenting each employe with a substantial cheque together with New Year greetings. This token of good will was extended also to the employes of the Blue Ribbon factory owned by the Galts, where some 60 hands are employed.

A. E. Parson & Co., wholesale produce, have moved into new and greatly enlarged premises in the new block erected by Bright & Johnston this past year.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 31, 1903.

THE wholesale trade of British Columbia closes a splendid year today. There has been no special boom on in any line during the year which has just reached its last hours. But there has been such a healthy growth and all-round evidence of progress and prosperity, as seen in the increasing trade done, that the business public, not only of British Columbia but the whole of Canada, must feel gratified. It might be difficult, indeed, to single out any one factor in the makeup of the prosperous year which British Columbia has experienced, the best summing up being "a general advance all along the line."

The retail trade in the leading cities of the province is in better shape than for years past, the reports of difficulties experienced by any of the many men in the trade, being happily very few, in fact no serious failure in retail lines has been reported for many months. In wholesale circles the benefits of continued increase of trade ,and development of new fields has been reflected in improvement of the condition of the firms engaged in it, not one of whom, but is becoming established on safe and broad foundations.

The close of the year is marked in Vancouver by activity in forming of retail protective associations. The Retail Merchants' Association, formed in this city some months ago, followed the establishment of a similar institution in Victoria. This week the association, and the Retail Grocers' Association have been holding meetings with a view to marking out a more vigorous campaign for the coming year. One of the matters to be dealt with is the enforcing of a uniform early closing hour and another very important detail is the action of both associations in preparing a "black-list," which will make it more difficult for people to get credit who do not carefully attend to payments, in order to keep their standing good.

The British Columbia branch of the Northwest Commercial Travellers' Association held their annual "At Home" last evening, and a programme of concert numbers was given as a very entertaining feature. All those taking part were from the best talent available in the city. The entertainment was given in the new hall built this year, for such gatherings by Senator Reid, himself one of the pioneer merchants of the province and still engaged in business in the

The details of the entertainment were in the hands of the following committee to whom in large measure, its success was due: Messrs. James Beveridge, Thomas Parkinson, A. H. Wallbridge, E. C. Taylor, W. I. Linton, Fred A. Richardson, E. F. Gerster, W. W. Moore, C. A. Carman, W. W. Burke.

Speaking of the association and its work Mr. James Beveridge, vice-president, says:

"The year just closing has been a prosperous one for the association, both numerically and financially. The total membership is now 1,241, showing the largest increase of any year, viz., 267 members: Winnipeg, with a membership of 1,011, and the British Columbia branch with a membership of 230, showing a gratifying increase this year of some 75 members.

"The gross income of the Association shows a very material increase, it being $18,669.58, as against $17,445.15 a year ago. This is a very gratifying result and has enabled the association to add the sum of $8,528.69 to its surplus, making a grand total of available assets of $51,713.93, which is divided as follows: Mortuary benefit fund, $38,692.96; General fund, $12,490.39; Emergency fund, $481.00; Entertainment fund, $40.78; total, $51,713.93."

GREEN FRUITS

Fruit in Cold Storage.

COLD STORAGE has been brought up to a very high state of perfection in the provision trades, so that it is possible to keep dairy or meat products almost indefinitely. With fruit, cold storage for lengthened periods is still in the experimental stage. With apples, indeed, very gratifying results have been obtained, the chief difficulty being the expense. The cut below gives a slight idea of what may be done with the softer fruits. The peaches, pears, snow apples and grapes were put in cold storage in September, kept at a uniform temperature of 30 degrees and were taken out and photographed the latter part of December. The reader can see that so far as appearance is concerned the fruit is in every whit as good condition as when it was put in cold storage. The writer can assure him that the flavor of the fruit was as fine as if just plucked.

It should, perhaps, be explained that great care was taken in packing the fruit and that it was put in cold storage almost immediately after being plucked.

As cold storage plants become more common and more perfect it does not seem unreasonable to expect that our own deliciously flavored fruits may be preserved till the holiday season and take the place of much of the imported fruit we now consume around Christmas time.

Apples in Storage.

The International Apple Shippers' Association circular gives the following as the quantities of apples now held at the various points in Nova Scotia: Annapolis, 25,000 barrels; Brighton, 20,000; Paradise, 15,000; Middleton, 25,000; Lawrencetown, 25,000; a total of 110,000 barrels as compared with 12,000 at the same points last year. The total stocks now held in the United States and Canada is given as 3,940,590 barrels.

Apples in Western States.

A GENTLEMAN who has been in the business for many years said to an Interstate Grocer representative: "I do not look for much improvement in the orange market until the receipts of apples diminish. Not for years has there been such activity in apples. While prices have ranged higher than they have in some years, the quality has been unusually good and consumption has increased proportionately.

"It is a fact, which I have confirmed by my own personal observations extending over a series of years, that free receipts of apples prevent ordinary liberal consumption of oranges. Apples are the favorite fruit of substantially all people, and when the quality is good no other fruit will be accepted. To this fact I ascribe the bulk of the orange misfortune of this season.

"I might add, too, that dealers in cranberries, and probably to some extent canned and dried fruits, are also feeling the same competition. But receipts of apples are declining and improvement in other varieties may be expected."

Uniform Apple Barrels.

The fruit division, Ottawa, has received numerous complaints this year from English buyers to the effect that for the first time there is grave irregularity in the size of the apple barrels sent forward from Ontario. No doubt the shortage in barrels is responsible for some of this irregularity; neverthefess, a number of number of apple shippers have expressed the intention of using only the standard size (96 quarts to the barrel). As this is practically the first year when any but the large barrel has been used in Ontario, apple shippers should immediately arrive at some agreement among themselves as to the size to be used in future. It will be the cause of considerable loss to the trade if some continue to use the larger size and others use the minimum size. The law prescribes the minimum size, which is a barrel 26½ inches between heads, inside measure, and with a head diameter of 17 inches and a middle diameter of 18½ inches, representing as nearly as possible 96 quarts.

Frozen Fruit.

THE trouble over the fruit frozen en route to the Eorthwest noted in a recent issue of "The Grocer," is not yet over. The Winnipeg Free Press in a recent issue says :

As early as the 1st December, the fruit exchange issued a circular, warning their customers that they could ship fruit only in heated cars at the buyers' risk, and asking them to state definitely whether they would have their fruit shipped at their own risk, would cancel their orders or have the fruit shipped by express. The orders were in every case confirmed, the majority of customers agreeing to accept fruit at their own risk. When the time came for shipping this fruit the weather was bitterly cold, and very considerable damage from frost was reported and in some cases it was so bad that country dealers refused altogether to accept the goods, claiming that inasmuch as the railway company still charged the extra 10 per cent. of the freight for heating the cars they were responsible for the loss ; and there is no doubt that many of these claims will be pushed against the company. The amount of frozen fruit is not greater than in previous years, when the fruit exchange used to worry the matter out with the C.P.R., but more is heard about it because the sufferers are more scattered and more numerous.

That there is no occasion for these losses if the heated service was properly manned was proved to a demonstration with this very Christmas train of fruit. One house went to the expense of sending a man along with their cars to see after the fires, with the result that not an ounce of their fruit was frozen, while on the same train where the cars were in charge of the C.P.R., the fruit was badly frozen. The brakemen are amply occupied with their regular duties and really have not time to attend to fires in Winter and ice in Summer.

The dealers feel that this trade is large and important enough for the railways to place it under the care of a superintendent, who would send out a man with each train to look after fires, or ice, according to the season. They claim that the extra 10 per cent. is sufficient to cover the cost of these things, more especially as with a more assured service the consumption of fruit throughout the country would enormously increase.

Fruit Marks' Act.

Mr. Maxwell Smith, Dominion Fruit Inspector, has returned from an official trip to Kootenay and the Northwest, says The Victoria Colonist. Mr. Maxwell Smith went by way of Seattle and Spokane, and on his trip visited Rossland, Nelson, Fernie, Cranbrook, Lethbridge, Macleod, Calgary and Revelstoke. He discovered several irregularities in the Fruit Marks' Act, which will probably prove of a sufficiently serious nature to require legal proceedings being taken. Business in the Kootenay and Crow's Nest country appeared very brisk, and the ranchers in Southern Alberta have had a good season. The weather generally was good and there was very little or no snow at most of the places visited.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
John C. Kirkwood,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Advertising that Talks but Does Not Tell.

THERE has come before my notice for review an advertisement which appeared in a bright well-printed Ontario newspaper. This newspaper is blessed with a compositor who knows how to set up advertisements; a man who loves his work, who regards it as an art. Such a man can make almost any sort of advertisement attractive to the eye, but it is beyond him to make poor matter or "copy" good.

The advertisement herewith will strike many as being a very good example. I reproduce it full size. The appearance of this advertisement is businesslike; the type is pleasing and harmonious; the break in the border gives effectiveness, and its length will please most readers. These externals are all praiseworthy.

The advertisement begins with a general statement concerning stock and prices, and is followed by more specific items—salmon, breakfast foods, confectionery, bread and pastry, oysters. As I read the advertisement I am made to feel that J. J. McKnight's grocery store is a first-class one; that the business done therein is of the better sort; that its customers are mostly well-to-do. An advertisement that conveys such an impression cannot be condemned as being a failure out and out. Indeed, an advertisement that make a good impression is likely to make a good friend, though every word in it is forgotten. Unconsciously character is ever revealing itself, and a man's way of saying things, even more than what he says, is of value to us in estimating his worthiness.

Yet when a man sets out to talk to us on business, we want something hard, solid and satisfying. Regarding Mr. McKnight's general statement, it must be said that it is very ordinary. All of us have read scores of times almost the identical words of the opening statement:—"Everything in our extensive grocery line is fresh, clean and of the very best quality, and sold at close figures." It is all true, doubtless, but nevertheless just a commonplace expression which reads nicely and all that; but it doesn't convince; doesn't tell anything, and wearies rather than stimulates interest. The beginning of an advertisement must be catchy, interest-provoking, and must hold and encourage attention.

We compliment an advertiser when we read his advertisement through to the end, and naturally we look for something concrete, solid, definite, something expressed in figures to assist our judgment. "Sold at close figures" demands proof. We don't know and don't care what profit a grocer is making on the goods he sells, but we do know and do care about what we are paying for salmon, or butter, or eggs, or any one of a dozen other things that could be named. When prices are withheld we have nothing to go by, and we dismiss the advertisement as profitless. It has talked to us, but it has told us nothing.

I am a believer in price-quoting, just because I find myself and others continuously influenced in their shopping by the published prices. The store that advertises goods without giving prices stands a very poor chance of getting the irregular and transient trade. When a retailer publishes prices he invites by so doing a comparison between other merchants' prices and his own, with the assurance that his prices will appear to advantage and have their influence in inducing buyers to deal with him, not only in the advertised line, but for other necessities as well.

Herein is a point worth touching on—the end of or object of the advertisement. I am inclined to think that the object of the average grocery advertisement is not merely the selling of advertised lines, but that these "specials" or "featured" lines are meant to attract buyers to the store to purchase other things in addition. In the great majority of places throughout Canada trade becomes pretty clearly defined, and families have their "accounts" with one grocer rather than with two or more. The problem of inducing a transferance of these family accounts from the other grocer is a very difficult one, and in many instances a hopeless one. Church connections, politics or friendships determine the trend of trade to a very large extent in the smaller communities.

Advertising for most grocers becomes more than a matter of price-quoting; it becomes a sort of "bait," a thing to attract, to capture. What things or lines to advertise must receive consideration. Mr. McKnight speaks of salmon, but in the most general way. For my own part I do not think that his "featuring" salmon in this general way is going to divert a single buyer from another grocery. If Mr. McKnight had added that he was selling Horseshoe or Clover Leaf salmon at, say 14c. for 1-lb. talls, and the price generally was 15c. or more, then he would have scored a point, and would certainly have attracted some buyers to his store. Some people won't swerve from accustomed channels for a cent or two, but there are always a goodly number of people in every community to whom a cent or so on butter, eggs or salmon is a big item.

Turning once more to Mr. McKnight's advertisement, we read "Breakfast foods, too numerous to mention, but we have them all." This is really a most idle announcement, one that any other grocer anywhere can make quite as safely. There is no news in this statement, nothing interesting, nothing calculated to sell a single extra package of cereals. Similarly it is with "choice confectionery always in stock. Headquarters for bread, buns, cakes and pastry." This is not advertising. How much stronger the confectionery statement would have been if there had followed an item or two of this nature :

Peanut brittle, regular 25c. per lb., all next week per lb..... 17c.
"Old-fashioned candy," in 1-lb. tin boxes, 40 sticks to the lb. ..... 25c.

And the bread and pastry department would appeal to a very great many people, customers and others, if there had been items of this sort :

Brown bread, round loaves, so popular that it keeps us busy baking, small loaf..... 5c.
Fruit cakes, made from our excellent Christmas recipe, in 1-lb., 2 lb. and 3-lb. size, per lb..... 25c.

Such advertising will sell goods. Barren advertising will not. Tell the people what you want them to know about your business, what they ought to know about it, and what reasons you have for expecting their trade. The public will respond if you ask right.

This indifferent, colorless advertising is relieved by the closing statement : "We are now handling the famous Blue Point oysters, which gave such satisfaction last year." I like that. It is like a horse pricking up his ears. There is genuine interest and seasonable news in this oyster talk. Yet it would have been made vastly more interesting and effective if there were added :

Have some for to-morrow night's supper or for Sunday dinner, per pint, 20c.; quart ..... 40c.

Advertise unto others as you would be advertised unto.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The Economy of Good Flour.

THERE is no line of goods in the store about which the grocer should be more particular than flour. Every woman who does her own baking, and there are few who do not do some, takes a pride in it. She delights in a light white loaf, a tempting pan of buns, a crisp, flaky pie-crust, or a cake of just the proper sort. These are results that can only be attained with pure flour; indeed, it is not certain that all can be attained with the same kind of flour. The grocer who sells a customer a poor sack of flour, who, as a result, finds herself with a poor batch of bread or an indigestible cake on her hands, will have an interesting time explaining how it happened, and often he will not have a second chance to retrieve favor.

For the slight difference in the profit to be derived, it is in the grocer's best interest to get a first-class brand and stick to it. It might be well to have two brands, one for bread and the other for pastry. They should be unimpeachable and reputation should be staked on them. If cheaper grades are demanded it is well to sell them as such and then the customer will have herself to blame if the result is not satisfactory.

A reputation for reliable flour is well worth having, not only for the trade in this line it brings, but also for the additional general custom derived from those occasional shoppers who are attracted by the fame of the good flour. There is no advertisement like a satisfied customer, especially if that satisfaction is derived from a successful culinary experiment.

The grocer who sets out in 1904 with the resolution to excel in his flour department will have no reason to regret it when next December comes round.

Wheat the Standard of Weight.

By an old English law of 1266, it was provided, says The Druggists' Circular, that a silver penny, called a sterling, should equal in weight 32 wheat grains, well dried, and taken from the centre of the ear. From this it seems evident that the grain of wheat was the prototype of the standard grain. The weight now known as the grain is, of course, copied from governmental standards. In 1826 certain weights and measures were legalized in England, and in 1827 copies of these were furnished the United States Government, among them being the troy pound, equivalent to 5,760 grains. The origin of the signs commonly used for the scruple, dram, and ounce does not seem to be known. It is not unlikely that they are entirely arbitrary.

Pillsbury-Washburn's Annual Report.

At the annual meeting of The Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Co., held in London on Decenber 4, the following financial statement for the year ending August 31, 1903, was read by the chairman of the board of directors:

Add: amount brought forward from last year	405	8	2

Rice Flour in France.

In France the manufacturers assert that their finest quality rice flour exceeds in whiteness the best obtained from wheat, and it is freely offered to the baker as a wholesome and profitable addition to ordinary flour, says The Miller. A writer states that the market rates for rice flour fluctuate in a very remarkable manner, in sympathy with those for the best wheat flour, and he draws the conclusion that it is utilized for adulteration purposes. He also asserts that the statistics published by the Minister of Commerce show that during the past 12 years, when the home harvest is deficient, the consumption of rice flour in France increases to a very considerable extent.

Increase in Price of Flour.

Word comes from Winnipeg that The Ogilvie Milling Co. have made an advance on flour of 10c. per sack and 20c. per barrel, to bring prices more in accord with the present cost of wheat.

J. J. Hill on Oriental Trade.

THERE seems to be some difference of opinion, remarks The American Miller, as to the requirements of the oriental flour trade. One miller says that inferior wheat can be used as the orientals want a cheap and coarse grade of flour and cannot pay for anything else. James J. Hill, on the other hand, says that it is a mistake to think that "what was good enough for an Indian is good enough for a Chinaman." The Chinaman, says Mr. Hill, is, in proportion to his income, a more liberal buyer than almost any one else. "If we could carry flour from here to the numerous hordes scattered all the way from Port Arthur to the Straits, the entire surplus of the United States would not go far enough to make doughnuts for them." Mr. Hill puts things in a rather striking way. But he shows his faith in his own utterances by his words. A rate of 40c. on flour from Minneapolis to Hongkong, when compared with a 25c. rate to New York, about a sixth the distance, shows that President James J. Hill believes what Jim Hill says about the oriental trade.

The Miller's Hogs.

WHILE the late Major Pond was taking Winston Churchill through the United States on a lecture tour there was some sort of misadventure in Philadelphia regarding the luggage, and, according to The Boston Post, in the Hotel Bellevue Major Pond talked bitterly of fools to a group of reporters for a while, finally telling them a fool story.

"The fool I speak of now," he said, "doesn't resemble the fool who has mislaid our baggage. However, to begin:

"There was a fool who went to the miller's to have some grain ground for his father. The miller said to him:

"'So you are a fool, eh?'

"'I guess I am,' replied the youth.

"'A fool, eh? A natural,' mused the miller. 'We ain't got many natural fools hereabouts. I'll have to examine you a bit. Do you mind?'

"'Oh, no, of course not,' the fool answered, politely.

"'Well, my lad, since you're a fool,' began the miller, 'I want you first to tell

Wheat Breeding Experiments.

IN a paper on the experiments of the United States Department of Agriculture for the improvement of grains, prepared by Mr. M. A. Carleton, cerealist of the department, for the annual meeting of the Grain Dealers' National Association, some of the purposes and results of the government's wheat-breeding experiments were touched upon that are of interest to millers.

After all the investigations that may be made, says Mr. Carleton, it is found from time to time that certain important qualities can not be found associated in the same variety. In such cases, as a last resort, we are compelled to produce varieties that will have the qualities desired. In order to do this crosses must be made between one variety that has one or more of these qualities and a second one that possesses the other qualities. By careful selection afterwards a hybrid may thus be obtained containing a combination of all these important qualities. This work is now being carried on by the Department, and we have over 300 hybrids now in the third generation. There are already indications that a number of important results will be obtained in this work, but it will take three or four years yet to fix the new hybrids thoroughly and make them available for distribution to the experiment stations. It may now be stated that the following are certain important results that will likely be attained in the following way:

(a) By crossing with emmer hybrids are now produced that will be valuable in the Pacific Coast States in giving an excellent quality of grain and at the same time prevent shattering, which is the common complaint in that region.

(b) In the hard-Winter-wheat area varieties are being produced that will ripen much earlier, give better yields, and still have the Winter hardiness that varieties should have for that region.

(c) For the hard-Spring-wheat region varieties are being obtained that act in all respects as ordinary Spring wheats, but that have certain valuable qualities of the hard Winter wheats; also varieties that will be grown as Winter wheats, but which have certain important bread-making qualities of the ordinary Spring wheat. At the same time yield and early ripening are being looked after for the same region.

(d) Certain varieties yield well and are of good quality, but are very susceptible to rust. There are now hybrids under experiment which, in addition to having these two valuable qualities, are also quite resistant to rust, this added quality being supplied by crossing with a durum wheat or some other rust-resistant variety. These experiments that began as very small things finally produce results that are of inestimable value to the general wheat production of the country.

No new variety or introduced grain can be said to be successfully established until its value for the purpose for which it is cultivated has been thoroughly determined. To do this extensive tests in analysis of the grain and baking tests of flour, in case of wheat, etc., must be carried on in connection with the other work. Laboratories and apparatus are being supplied as rapidly as possible in the Department for carrying out this class of work.

Bread for Royal Family.

The amount of food consumed in the British royal household is truly prodigious, and, consequently, the most spacious larders are necessary to contain it. As a matter of fact, the larders, cellar and dairies cover an area of nearly a quarter of an acre.

At all the King's residences, except Buckingham Palace, the bread is produced in the royal bakeries, and when the King and his suite are staying at Windsor an average of nearly two sacks of flour a day is converted into bread by the five bakers in the household.

There are six bakings a week, and as the loaves leave the oven they are stored in the underground pantries. A great deal of cake and confectionery is also made daily, but the King shows a preference for a light seed cake which is dispatched every day from a small shop in the Highlands.

Cost of Production.

The statistics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that in 1830 it required 17¾c. worth of labor to produce a bushel of wheat. In 1896 this was reduced to 3½c. In 1850 the time representing the production of a bushel of corn was 4½ hours. In 1900 it was reduced to 34 minutes. This saving was largely brought about by the introduction and use of improved farm machinery.

Rye an Ancient Grain.

The man who enjoys rye bread, as well as the miller who makes the flour, may have the satisfaction of knowing that rye is one of the earliest known grains, says The American Miller. It was well known to the ancient Hebrews and was subsequently cultivated by the Greeks and Romans.

Theophrastus, Pliny and other early writers unquestionably refer to rye as an article of food in their writings. At the present time, in modern Greece, rye is well known and used as bread among the peasantry, and we have every reason for supposing that it has long been cultivated as an article of food in that region, while there seems to be no doubt about its use among ancient and modern Romans. We have ample evidence then of the common use of rye ages ago as an aliment, and of its still continuing to be used as such in these countries.

Flour to the East.

Since last February the Washburn-Crosby mills of Minneapolis have shipped 160,000 barrels of flour to Australia and 129,000 barrels to China. This has been made possible by the rates given over the roads owned by The Northern Securities Co. The latter company cannot be accused of acting in restraint of trade so far as Minneapolis is concerned, whatever mills elsewhere may think of it.

Wheat vs. Matrimony.

Buckle, the philosopher and historian, showed that the number of marriages depended on the price of wheat—the higher the price of wheat the fewer the marriages. But this economic law seems to be repealed just now. Marriages were never so numerous as at the present time, and wheat is relatively high. Maybe it is the price of rice or ice cream or something else that regulates the number of marriages in this twentieth century.

Tin Packages Required.

Consul Orr, at Cartagena, Colombia, suggests to shippers of oatmeal, cereals, crackers, etc., to that country, that all that class of goods should be packed in tin. Goods of this character from all other countries come in tins securely packed, while the American goods come in paper and cardboard boxes, with the result that fully 60 per cent. thereof reaches this country unfit for use.

Cereal Notes.

A Melbourne cable says the total Australian wheat crop will reach 76,000,000 bushels against a previous highest record of only 48,000,000.

The Fall and early Winter in England has been very unfavorable for Winter wheat. The Mark Lane Express is of opinion that the acreage is the smallest for very many years.

Portland, Ore., leads the Pacific ports in November as a flour exporter, having to November 24 a total of 528,632 barrels to her credit for the month, against 479,700 barrels for Tacoma, 356,879 for San Francisco and 301,514 barrels for Seattle.

A resident of Dawson City, Alaska, recently brought to Ottawa samples of wheat, oats and barley grown on land near the mouth of the Selkirk River, the straw of which is fuller and heavier than that of similar grain in other parts of Canada.

WALTER BAKER & CO., LTD., brought a suit recently against the Cream of Chocolate Co. to prevent them from using in their advertisements or on their labels an imitation of the trade-mark "La Belle Chocolatiere." The Supreme Court of the United States has now entered a final decree perpetually enjoining the Cream of Chocolate Co. from using in any way "a picture of a waitress or nurse wearing a cap and apron and carrying a tray with a cup of chocolate, or any other picture so closely resembling the trade-mark used by Walter Baker & Co., Limited, as to be calculated to deceive."

RETAILER CHARGED WITH FRAUD

At the instance of the creditors Edward Basken, general storekeeper of Sault Ste. Marie, has been arrested on the charge of fraud. Basken recently assigned to Osler Wade of Toronto, and at a meeting of the inspectors it was decided to make an investigation into his methods of doing business. It was stated that last September Basken issued a statement showing a surplus of $6,000, whereas when the failure occurred the liabilities were found to be about $30,000, with assets of only $7,000. Mr. A. C. McMaster, of Macdonell, McMaster & Geary, representing about 40 of the creditors, was sent to Sudbury, North Bay, and the Soo, Basken having had stores at the three points, to investigate, and the arrest followed.

BRAZILIAN VIEW OF COFFEE

The Brazilian Review of December 1 says of coffee: "The sentiment as regards the coming crop certainly does not improve, and in the Rio and Minas districts, anyhow, it is regarded as a certain failure. In view of such a position, of which no one is better aware than planters themselves, it would be natural for them to hold back their coffees, if they could, for higher prices. Very few of them, however, are in a position to do so, but accompany their consignments with piteous appeals to commissarios to hold out to the very last moment. It seems, therefore, very possible that the decline in receipts that has set in may, as the season progresses, be still more rapid, and even the relatively low figure of 11,000,000 bags not be reached. Not only is this a particularly early crop, but the next is certain to prove an exceptionally late one, so that if anything we should now be inclined to regard 11,000,000 bags for Rio and Santos as an optimistic estimate."

Solomon said in his haste: "ALL MEN ARE LIARS!" He didn't mean it. He was simply so mad with one man that he included all the rest.

Let us not fall into Solomon's mistake. We should take out of our experience the wisdom there is in it AND STOP RIGHT THERE!

Otherwise we are as stupid as the cat who sat down on a hot stove lid. She will never sit down on a hot stove lid again, and that shows good judgment. BUT SHE WILL NEVER SIT DOWN ON A COLD ONE, EITHER.

Now, some merchants have had hard experiences lately with coupon books that were represented to be absolutely correct in count and made up just as good as any other, but they were not, and you won't know what a perfect coupon book is until you have tried either Allison's Coupon Books or Allison's Coupon Pass Books. Both are good; one book suits some, while the other fills the bill with the rest of the merchants.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Devotees of The Weed.

NOBODY could have been much fonder of tobacco, in the shape of snuff, than the famous German General, Moltke. While working out his wonderfully successful strategies in the war of 1871, he is said to have consumed from six to eight ounces in the course of a week. Prince Bismarck was another no less enthusiastic German devotee of the weed. There is on record, in his own words, a delightful story of how, at Koeniggratz, he had only one cigar left in his pocket, which, during the whole of the battle, he guarded as carefully as a miser guards his treasure. Said he, "I did not feel justified in using it. I painted in glowing colors in my mind the happy hours when I should enjoy it after the victory. But I had miscalculated my chances. A poor dragoon lay quite helpless, with both arms crushed, murmuring for something to refresh him. I felt in my pockets, and found that I had only gold, which would be of no use to him. But stay—I had still my cherished cigar. I lighted it for him, and placed it between his teeth. You should have seen the poor fellow's grateful smile. I never enjoyed a cigar so much as that one which I did not smoke." Tobacco was, indeed, a great and potent factor in the success of the German arms, many of the soldiers going into action pipe or cigar in mouth.

No Smoking in Zion City.

UNCLE SAM can't smoke a pipe or a cigar in Zion City, even if John Alexander Dowie and his own have gone into receivers' hands. Uncle Sam's representatives found this out early in December.

One of the federal deputy custodians, after 16 hours in the "model city," sought solace in his pipe. He had taken two puffs when two guardsmen spied him.

"Put it up!" they yelled, rushing toward the offender excitedly. "You may be a federal employe, but you can't smoke here. No, sir! You have now made yourself liable to a fine of $25, and if you don't quit smoking I shall have to carry out the divine wishes."

"You can't smoke, swear or eat the flesh of swine here in Zion City," broke in the other guard.

Another deputy later began chewing the end of an unlighted cigar. He was pounced upon.

"I'm not smoking," he said.

"No, but you're chewing the end of that cigar, and that's punishable by a fine of $25 in this city," replied the guard, and the cigar was vanquished.

Then someone whispered a few wise words, and the deputy stepped out on the state road that forms the central thoroughfare of Zion City, and he lighted his weed.

"I'm on the state road, and you can't touch me now," he said defiantly to the Zion guards. So, late in the afternoon, tobacco won a small victory.

Want Aid of Government.

The Germans are thoroughly aroused because of the "American invasion," says The Western Tobacco Journal, particularly as regards the tobacco industry. Protests are being sent to the Government requesting assistance in repelling the invader.

Recently the Breslau Chamber of Commerce passed resolutions in condemnation of the American methods, which threaten to control the tobacco trade of that country. The resolutions seem to be aimed at The American Tobacco Co., while, if reports given out at the settlement of the English fight were true, The British-American Tobacco Co. is responsible for the activity at present evident in Germany.

Wealthy Manufacturer's Will

The will of D. H. McAlpin, the millionaire tobacco manufacturer, who died several years ago, was filed in New Jersey the past week. The estate is very large, the portion situated in New Jersey alone being worth $5,000,000. After making ample bequest for the widow, the estate is divided equally to E. A. McAlpin, Geo. L. One Way to Sell Goods.

A DRUGGIST in a small town out West worked a novel cigar-selling scheme a few weeks ago in the following fashion, says Sample Case. He found a stray nickel on the floor of his store one morning, and resolved to post this notice on the window of his store :

"A sum of money found on Tuesday last in this establishment. The owner will receive same within upon describing the money."

The scheme worked like a charm. Hundreds of citizens came in daily for over a week, while the notice was left on the window, describing their losses and bewailing their misfortune. Invariably every applicant for the lost money bought a cigar. Some were satisfied with 5c. straight whiffs, but the great majority, anxious to impress the drug man favorably towards their claims, invested in two for a quarter. So great was the rush that the druggist had to order a fresh consignment of choice brands. None of the applicants ever applied for the nickel. All the claims ran up into the hundreds of dollars, one man stating he missed his bank book with $1,500.

Ashes on Cigars.

That few men professing to be judges of fine cigars know anything at all about smoking them, is the opinion of more than one retailer. One of the "profession" says : "The ashes on the end of the cigar serve to retain the flavor and should be permitted to remain as long as possible. Then the constant thumping some smokers give their cigars in the attempt to keep them clear of ashes often causes the wrappers to break, and that also lessens the pleasure of a good smoke."

General Grant as a Smoker.

WHEN General Grant was making history and a great military reputation in the American Civil War, he seldom smoked fewer than 25 cigars in the course of a day. It is recorded, too, that on the day of the battle which preceded the surrender of the Confederate General Lee, at Appomattox, Grant was seen riding from end to end of the line with an unlighted cigar between his teeth. For several hours he was much too occupied to ask for a light ; and when news of the surrender was flashed over the Northern States the incident of the unlighted cigar was made quite famous. Moreover, it had a somewhat startling sequel, for within a week of the incident being published cigars began to pour in on the victorious General in daily increasing numbers. They came from admirers in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other important centres, until they reached the almost incredible number of 30,000 ! It is only fair to mention that most of these cigars were of the finest brands, and General Grant determined to show his appreciation by smoking as many as possible of them. In this he succeeded so well that he gained the reputation of being one of the greatest smokers in the United States.

A Hand-made Cigar.

A BOY with a wad of stingy green,
Some "fillin'," a match, and—all unseen,
Behind the fence on a Summer's day,
Beneath the shade of a spreading bay,
A "hand-made" cigar of preposterous size
Sends clouds of smoke to the sultry skies.

"By gum," said the youth, "this is simply great.
And while I'm at it I'll take a bait ;
'Taint every day that I get a chance
To hook such a roll from my daddy's pants."
And he lolled on the grass and he puffed away
In the sweltering heat of a Summer's day.

A moment more and he closed his eyes
To shut out the sight of revolving skies,
And he clutched at the grass on either side,
As the earth careened and he felt he'd slide.
His stomach heaved and the sweat broke out—
He had taken a "bait" without a doubt.

He staggered home in the broiling sun.
And tumbled to bed completely "done."
He rallied at length and solemnly swore,
Like a goody-good boy, he'd smoke no more.
But he tried it again the very next day,
And smoked till he died in the usual way.
—Clarence Ousley in "Rings o' Smoke."

Smoke Rings.

Gladstone hated tobacco in every form.

The King of Italy has $2,000,000 invested in the manufacture of Italian tobacco, which brings him an income of $200,000.

In Paris, at one time, cigarettes were scented with vanilla, patchoulli, new-mown hay, jockey club and other popular perfumes.

"There are two kinds of cigars, remarked someone who has evidently been up against the game, "campaign cigars and those you smoke."

A fine meerschaum can be colored by hanging it in a box into which tobacco smoke is conducted from another pipe. The process is slow, but the results excellent.

Senator Lodge has introduced an anti-flag law in the senate. It prohibits the use of a representation of the American flag in any advertisement. United States cigar manufacturers are interested in the legislation, for the reason that so many cigar labels are adorned with the flag. If the bill passes these will have to be altered to conform with the law.

Would Pain Father.

An anti-tobacco league lady saw a small boy seated on one of the benches in a park smoking a cigar, which, she afterwards told a friend, seemed almost as big as himself. Seating herself by his side, she said, kindly :

"Oh, my boy, wouldn't your father be pained if he saw you smoking that cigar ?"

"I should think he would," responded the youngster ; "this is one of his best." —Melbourne Argus.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

AN examination of the list of stockholders in Canadian banks reveals the surprising fact that directors of the various banks are comparatively small holders of the stock in the institutions represented by them. In nearly every case they hold personally an insignificant proportion of the capital stock and many of them own barely enough to qualify for a bank director. Does it not appear a little strange that those to whom the piloting of a financial ship is entrusted should have so little practical interest in it?

THE banks of Canada raised their entire authorized capitalization to $97,046,666 during the ten months of 1903, ending with October, an increase of $13,714,100 over last year's capitalization; their paid up capital to $49,989,361, an increase of $5,471,680; their note circulation to $70,480,611, an increase of $9,906,467; their demand deposits to $118,070,088, an increase of $2,179,639; their notice deposits to $275,939,608, an increase of $21,721,739: their aggregate loans to $452,137,008, an increase of $34,168,075; and their assets to $660,520,201, an increase of $25,131,992; call loans in Canada have been pulled down by nearly $11,000,000, and current loans for commercial purposes increased to the extent of $59,953,073.

A "COMMUNITY of interest" agreement has been arranged between the Dresdner Bank and the Shaaffhausen Bankverein, two of the largest banks of the German Empire, making the new combination, as far as mere capital is concerned the strongest banking institution in Germany. The capital of the Dresdner Bank is £6,500,000, with £1,700,000 reserves; that of the Schaaffhausen Bankverein £5,000,000 with £1,000,000 reserves. Thus the combination will have a total active capital of £14,200,000. In future both banks will conduct their business in common while maintaining each its separate existence, and will divide their earnings upon the basis of the capital and reserves of each institution. At the same time, two directors and three members of the Board of Overseers of each bank are to be elected by the other bank, thus securing a personal as well as a financial union. The form of union here outlined is not uncommon in Germany. Many industrial establishments have become allied on the same basis, and two of the chief banks of the kingdom of Wurtemberg have maintained a similar arrangement for above 20 years.

IT is rumored that English life assurance companies are becoming alarmed at the shrinkage in their Canadian business. The offices of home companies are rapidly increasing their business, while the branches of English companies situated in Canada show a record of steadily diminishing receipts. One reason given for this is the protective measures adopted by the colonies in respect to insurance. Another reason undoubtedly is the comparatively low rate of interest on securities prevailing in England. Insurance companies can realize more on their investments than the English companies and have the additional advantage of being on the inside in the event of competition.

THE new president of the American Bankers' Association is Mr. F. G. Bigelow, president of the First National Bank of Milwaukee. Mr. Bigelow is recognized all over the States as one of the ablest bankers in the country. He is in addition a man who has kept in close touch with and taken a prominent part in the initiation and development of the more important industrial and commercial enterprises in the United States.

A LEADING exchange says there is no business or profession which offers so much freedom and independence, and such excellent opportunities to young Canadians of enterprise and energy as that of life insurance. In these days of the strenuous life, no matter what profession or business a person is engaged in, success cannot be achieved by sitting down and "waiting for something to turn up." But the young man who applies the same amount of energy, determination and systematic work to the conducting of a life insurance agency as might be applied by him to any other profession or business, will, as a rule, secure a greater immediate return, establish a more permanent income and have better prospects of ultimately attaining to a prominent position equivalent to that held by most men in the commercial, financial or professional life of the country.

AS far as the leading banks are concerned business throughout the Northwest this year has been greatly hampered by the enactments of the Grain Act. Although the banks have made special provision in order to meet all demands, they find that their money will now be tied up until the opening of navigation simply because in many instances farmers have been unable to get a sufficient number of cars.

THE Havana Post refers to the recent completion of the Cuba Railroad between Santiago de Cuba and Havana, and of the new electric railroad running from Havana to Marianoo, as memorable events for Cuba and Canada. Both are Canadian enterprises; the Cuba Railroad owes its existence to Canadian capital and the Canadian railway magnate Sir Wm. Van Horne, and will undoubtedly prove a great factor in the development of Cuba. The new electric railroad was built mostly with Canadian capital, its president being E. Hanson, one of the most progressive of Canadians.

The New York Clearing House Association has made an announcement to the effect that they are considering the question of charging on cheques issued on points outside of New York. All items, from whomsoever received payable at points in Canada, the collecting banks shall charge not less than one-quarter of one per cent. of the amount of the items. In case the charge upon any item at the rates specified does not equal ten cents, the collecting bank shall charge no less than that sum; but all items received from any one person at the same time, and payable at the same place, may be added together and treated as one item for the purpose of fixing the amount chargeable.

INCREASE IN ACCIDENT INSURANCE.

A BIG increase in the volume of accident insurance has necessitated the formation of what is to be known as the Canadian Accident Underwriters' Association, consisting of two sections, each with a governing council, one in Toronto, the other in Montreal. D. Murphy, Ottawa, has been elected president of the association, and J. Hyde, Montreal, and W. H. Cross, Toronto, joint secretaries, one for the Eastern, the other for the Western field.

In answer to the question what are the objects of the proposed association? one of the officers said: "Now, all insurance is based upon the law of averages. Seldom, however, do two men think alike; so that when a new risk appears, though the assessors of the various accident companies may approximately agree upon its value, no one will be actually correct. But, if many combine, their average will be approximately right. The striking of proper averages along the whole line of risks will, therefore, be one of the objects of the proposed association.

"Again, the law on the subject of accidents, especially in factories, requires watching by the companies for their own protection; not perhaps with a view to its amendment, but to so draw the insurance contracts as to protect the companies in case of actions brought by unscrupulous persons who have no right to relief under the law, but who strive to make the company in which they may be insured a party plaintiff. Besides, one company may frame its contract in certain words, while another, meaning the same thing, will draft theirs in different terms. When these contracts come to be interpreted by the courts, and especially by juries diverse meanings willl be accorded to each. The association will strive to so identify these policies in their form as to avoid this difficulty."

FINANCE AND INSURANCE NOTES.

The business of the Empire Loan and Savings Co. has been transferred to the Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Co., of Ontario.

The site occupied by the Molsons Bank at the corner of King and Bay streets, Toronto, has been sold to the Canada Life Assurance Co.

The Bank of Montreal has recently established branches at Edmonton, Alberta; Gretna, Man.; and Sherman avenue, Hamilton.

Blair & Co, bankers, St. John, N.B., have suspended. The house has been in business about fifteen years and consists of A. C. and A. Blair.

Halifax banking institutions are reported to have made great strides during the year 1903, bank clearings showing an increase of $5,334,729 over 1902.

The London Financial News is authority for the statement that there is talk of the establishment of a special department on the London Stock Exchange to be devoted exclusively to Canadian securities.

W. R. Travers, manager of Merchants' Bank, Hamilton, has resigned, owing to ill-health. His successor is A. B. Patterson, manager of the St. Thomas branch.

The past season has been the most disastrous for inland lake marine underwriters since 1898. Their aggregate losses, including cargoes, were about $2,100,000, which also represents the total amount of premiums paid.

The old banking house of E. D. O'Flyn & Sons, Madoc, have sold out to the Dominion Bank. F. W. O'Flyn remains as manager of the Dominion Bank, Madoc, and H. H. O'Flyn, has accepted a position with the bank in Toronto.

In compliance with a request from the civic authorities from London, Ont., the Fire Underwriters Association have agreed to reduce fire insurance rates in that city as soon as certain improvements in the fire protection system are made.

The Bank of Montreal is erecting premises for the branch at Birchy Cove, Newfoundland. It has also acquired a property at the corner of Greene and Western avenue, Westmount, where premises are being erected for the occupation of a branch to be established there.

Different ways of getting fruit.
Some ripens and falls—just naturally.
Some is picked.
For the balance you must shake the tree.
Different ways of getting business, too.
Some just comes your way naturally—(nowadays very little comes this way).
Other business you send your travellers out to "pick."
A lot more of it you have to advertise in THE GROCER to get.
This latter kind is worth having, too—there's money in it.

Is Honest Goods and just the Thing on Which to Make or Extend a Business.

McLAREN'S

COOK'S FRIEND BAKING POWDER.

The Best Grocers make a point of Keeping it always in Stock.

A Cereal Clean Up

The boom is busted—Flat! !

Tens of thousands of cases of flaked foods on hand all over the country.

Unsaleable.

Grocers and Stockholders hit hard.

It was a lively clip while it lasted.

But now the side shows are closed and the lights out.

Nothing left but regret and fly spotted cartons of, "Eat a Hunka" or "Grab a Chunka."

Well, charge it off to experience.

But Experience is worthless if we don't gather some facts for future use.

Out of all this money losing scramble, these facts stand forth like beacon lights—

For 7 years the original prepared food Grape-Nuts has been a steady seller.

All this time the Postum Co. have made annual announcement that they would move and instantly pay for any excess or spoiled stock of either Postum or Grape-Nuts.

They have never failed to do this when called upon.

That has been mighty few times in the 7 years.

The demand is as steady as for flour or molasses.

It has always been kept so and is now by skillful, persistent and successful advertising.

The Company spends in round numbers a million dollars a year in talking to the people through newspapers and magazines.

The products are kept to the very highest possible standard of excellence.

The Postum Co., being the originators of the ready cooked food business, have been the target all the "trailers" have shot at.

But in the face of all this "howling warfare" the Postum Co. did a larger business and made more money during the year just closed than in any other.

Wholesale and Retail grocers are always safe in stocking Postum or Grape-Nuts.

The steady demand moves them.

If that ever slacks the Company moves them.

Look over the stock.

It don't pay to let customers buy elsewhere because you should happen to be out of standard, steady sellers like Grape-Nuts and Postum.

Don't forget the policy.

Don't forget the safety.

Don't forget the steady demand.

Don't forget the profit.

Don't forget to order.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

Interior Order.

THE first impression gained by the customer upon entering the store determines the pleasure with which the purchases are made and the amount of future business. If the general feeling is satisfactory, if the mind is not taken up with dodging stock placed helter-skelter over the floor, if the arrangement and order is of such a kind as to impart a feeling of rest, the customer goes about his business with a high regard for the firm and its methods and will return at the first opportunity. The reason for this is easily discovered by the merchant, if he would attempt to analyze his own feelings upon entering any other place of business. The difficulty to be combatted in his case is that in his criticism of the arrangement of another store his mind grasps only particular objects, rather than the general fault, and it will mostly be found to rest really upon the latter. For instance, he will argue conclusively that a certain barrel that is occupying a prominent position in the centre of the floor should be removed to the store-room; that those boxes or bags on the counter should give place to neater articles or to a clear space; that the office should not be so near the front of the store where it breaks in on the business appearance of the place. But he does not appear to have resolved all these into the one general criticism—that there is lack of order, that there is in general a thoughtless arrangement of goods.

With his mind satisfied as to the faults existing in his neighbor's place of business, he returns to his own store, observes that no barrel occupies the objectionable position, that his counters are free from boxes and bags and that his office is carefully situated in an out-of-the-way corner, and he then concludes that he is free from the faults seen elsewhere, and is thankful he is not as other men are. At the same time, he may allow a few barrels in positions that are only a degree more suitable; his counters may be filled up with cartons, samples of bulk goods or other packages, and his office may be even more conspicuous in its unsightly exterior. And his neighbor may come in and congratulate himself that he has avoided mistakes that the first critic has made.

There are certainly many points in the interior arrangement of a store that are now, and will remain, open to argument, and individual tastes may differ so much as to render interiors very dissimilar in appearance, and yet both display neatness and taste. The general subject of order, however, is practically the same all over, the details counting but little with men whose ideas on the subject are otherwise than very misty and vague. Barrels in sight, whatever the position may be, are not features of a neat interior. Counters should be free from almost all stock save what may be kept in show cases, and the office must be well built wherever it is placed. Neatness must exist in every successful store, and to obtain this the stock should be confined as much as possible to the shelves, show cases and fixtures specially made for the purpose.

"Maple Leaf" Tea Window—shown by L. W. Bailey, Vancouver, B.C.

This Week's Illustration.

The principal feature of the decoration of the "Maple Leaf" tea window, shown by L. W. Bailey, Vancouver, B.C., is the use of maple leaves. In this case the same thing decorates and advertises, and does both in a highly satisfactory manner. Maple leaves, or leaves of any kind, are valuable adjuncts to any display, but are very seldom used, perhaps because of the fact that they are so easy to obtain and so common. Either green or in their Fall colors, they add much to the decoration, and their very uncommonness in a window display makes them more attractive. Unfortunately, the picture is too indistinct to bring out properly the scheme observed in their arrangement.

The stacking of tea packages shows some thought, but the introduction of boxes of cream sodas is not a good scheme, as they have no connection with tea, and possess the additional disadvantage of showing merely the outside of the boxes containing them, and not the contents, making them of inconsiderable value in any window display. The use of tea boxes, with their inartistic exterior, is not to be commended, admitting, as they do, of no scheme whereby they can be used as a decoration, and in this case adding nothing to the advertising qualities of the tea packages.

The window-dresser has adopted a good idea in his display of tomatoes. These goods, being perishable, must be disposed of in a certain time, whatever else is shown in the window. As they are in no way connected with the main idea of the display, he has placed them in the entrance side of the window, thus separating them from the main window and yet keeping them before the public. The forward position in the window of the teas also aids in this separation. Oddly enough, the bacons suspended from the woodwork surrounding the window do not detract from the general appearance, although more symmetry could have been observed in the placing of them.

SPICE FLUCTUATIONS.

AN interesting and comprehensive series of charts has just been issued by John Clarke & Co., spice brokers of New York, showing the rise and fall of prices of the various kinds of spices from 1869 to the present. The list includes the ups and downs of Singapore pepper, nutmegs, Zanzibar cloves, China cassia, pimento, and African ginger.

The fluctuations in Singapore black pepper in the last 30 years are wide and varied. Starting at 10c. a pound in 1869, the crop yield and trade conditions caused it to advance by graded steps until it is sold at 18c. per pound in 1873. Then the course was downward, touching 7½c. in 1879, which was followed by another upward rise to the 18c. mark in 1886. For ten years following, there was a steady decline in values, until, at the end of 1895, it sold at 4½c. The market then gradually recovered, and in 1900 got up to 13½c., around which point it has stayed ever since.

Nutmegs are based on 105s to 110s for the sake of comparison, and the gradual drift of prices has been toward a lower level. With prices at 43c. in 1869, the rise to 90c. in 1874 was quite rapid. Then decline followed decline, with intermediary advances, until the price dropped to 19½c. last year. Now the quotation is 28½ to 29c.

In Zanzibar cloves, long strides have been made in price fluctuations. Selling at 8c. at the beginning of 1869, there was a sudden jump from 1871 to 1874 to the high-water mark of 45c. In 1879 the price was 41c., in 1883 sales were made at 10c., in 1886 it had jumped back to 27c. and from then until the present time there has been a decline to 8¾ to 9c.

The prices for China cassia, which do not include duty for the years when this commodity was dutiable, are one long series of falling values. In 1869 the price advanced from 21c. to 29 to 30c. In 1892 it had dropped by successive steps to about 2c., and then showed a slightly better turn up to the present quotation of 9¼ to 9½c.

Pimento has been wildly erratic in its price career, jumping from 3½c. in 1871 to the record price of 12c. in 1880. This was followed by a rapid decline to the low record figure in 1886, reaching the 10½c. mark in 1898 and 1899, and being quoted now at 7 to 7½c., with very little offering from Jamaica and the possibility of further advances in the near future, as a result of the recent hurricane, which is supposed to have seriously damaged the crops.

The price of African ginger in 1869 was 11c. and in 1874 it had reached 13c. During the next 20 years there were marked fluctuations, and in 1893 the price had reached the highest point of 13½c. Then there was a drop in 1897 to 4c., and at the present time the price is 6½ to 6¾c.

The following comparative table shows the high and low prices reached during the last 31 years :

	High.	Year.	Low.	Year.
Nutmegs	90	1874	18	1902
Pepper	18	1873-86	4½	1895
Cloves	45	1874	3¾	1894
China cassia	30	1869	2	1892
Pimento	12	1880	3½	1886
African ginger	13½	1893	3½	1889

THE JAPANESE METHOD.

A YOUNG Japanese asked an English firm to give him a position, and, finding that he could speak and write English admirably, the manager agreed to give him a trial. Some days afterward the cashier summoned him and told him to write a letter to a customer who owed some money to the firm and who showed no intention of paying.

"Write briefly and politely," said the cashier, "but let him understand distinctly that we expect him to pay the money without any further delay."

The Japanese wrote the letter, and on the following day a check for the full amount due was received from the customer. Considerably surprised, the cashier asked the Japanese to give him a copy of the letter which had produced such quick effect, and here is what he read :

"Dear Sir :—If you do not send us at once the money which you owe us we we shall be obliged to take steps which will cause you the utmost astonishment. Respectfully yours."—Kansas City Independent.

BAIT FREEZERS A SUCCESS.

Mr. P. MacFarlane, of New Glasgow, who has had charge of the bait freezing scheme of the Government, has been in Ottawa a few days on departmental business. He reports that the bait freezing establishments in most localities are proving a great boon to the fishermen by providing them with bait at seasons when it is difficult to get. In some districts, however, the freezers which are managed by the associations, have not fulfilled expectations largely owing to lack of unity on the part of the fishermen. Mr. MacFarlane is of the opinion that the Government will find it necessary to modify the present scheme by placing the management of the freezers in the hands of single individuals or of small committees.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Wiley's Boarders' Holiday.

DR. WILEY, of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, has given his class of volunteer "poison experimenters" a three-weeks' vacation. This action is said to give the experimenters with preserved foods a holiday, but it is not denied that the primary cause is the threatening condition of the health of the members after living for several weeks on a diet of salicylic acid in constantly increasing doses. The class have not taken kindly to the salicylic diet and have grumbled over it, as they did not do over the borax menu of last Winter. No alarm is felt about the condition of their health, and, while the experts are watching them carefully, they have no intention of abandoning the experiments. Dr. Wiley says everything is natural and normal and as he expected.

Only one of the boarders has a good word to say for the salicylic diet. He is a clerk who came into the class with a bad case of rheumatism, and who, through the action of the acid on his system finds himself free from his painful ailment.

New York Butter Market.

The year 1903 was a record year in the volume of business in butter transacted in New York, being only exceeded by the year 1896, says The National Provisioner. The total receipts were 2,163,518 packages, an increase over the previous year of 186,890 packages. Prices ranged from 19c. to 29c., but seldom were quoted above 25½c. The total value of butter sold in New York in 1903 was $26,351,649, as compared with $21,460,772 in 1902.

According to estimates made by The New York Produce Review, on January 1, 1904, the amount of butter in cold storage and private refrigerators is given at about 201,599 packages, 171,599 packages in the cold stores, and 30,000 packages in the private refrigerators. The average weekly consumption is placed at about 41,000 packages. During the last week the market in New York has been better than in previous weeks, and there has been greater withdrawal of goods from cold storage. The severe weather has affected the production of fresh butter in all sections of the country. The market, on the whole, is much more favorable than during December, and better than last week, freezer stock being taken out at the rate of about 15,000 packages a week.

Big Creamery in Denver.

One of the largest creameries in the world is being built in Denver, Col., by The Beatrice Creamery Co. Some months ago this company increased their capital stock from $500,000 to $1,000,000 for the purpose of erecting a plant in Denver, and to build up their trade in the West and Northwest. The building will be five storeys high and contain all the latest known appliances and full refrigerating outfit for the proper handling of dairy products. The capacity of the plant is estimated at from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 pounds of butter annually. Cream from 200 creameries and shipping stations in Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas will be received, and the product of 10,000 farms will be handled. The plant will cost $200,000.

Milk by the Cake.

The inventors of a method by which milk is now being solidified on a considerable scale confidently believe that their discovery will not only abolish the many dangers of the dairy, but will eventually do away with the dairy itself; they are confident, that is, that the day of liquid milk is over.

People who have tried to solidify milk before have employed, it is said, too low a temperature in their fear of decomposing its fats and sugars, and in consequence have failed. But by the Just-Hatmaker process the liquid milk is whisked around polished cylinders kept at a fierce heat by steam, and comes off in a few seconds in the form of a continuous creamy white sheet, five feet in width. This is reduced to powder and may be compressed into cakes.

The feature of the product is that it is still potentially milk—the whole milk, and nothing but the milk, and to make new milk at any time it is only necessary to add the seven parts of water which have been evaporated.

The result is said to be difficult to distinguish from fresh milk. Its cream rises naturally, and it may be made into butter or cheese. The powder and cakes keep indefinitely, and samples have been sent round the world and kept for three weeks in Shanghai, returning quite fresh. Obviously it is impossible to water, skim, or adulterate solid milk, and a fact to which the inventors attach extreme importance is that all attempts to cultivate microbes on it have failed.

The usual lull after Christmas is being experienced. This is the heavy packing season, and packers are busily engaged putting up stocks. Receipts are quite heavy. There are few changes to note. Butter—This market is exhibiting an easier feeling generally this week. At these prices there is a free movement, especially of creamery. In dairy, however, there is an accumulation, particularly in rolls. As there has been no Winter cheese this year the production of butter has been greater than usual. The quality of creamery is, of course, good, but complaints are heard of the unsatisfactory quality of some of the dairy. We quote:

Cheese—The situation is some brighter this week. There is more going into consumption, and the bulk is held in strong hands, who paid about a cent higher than present prices. The probability is that we shall see higher prices. We quote:

A steady market for hog products with little or no change in price is reported to us this week. A fair business in lard is being transacted at steady prices. Trade in ham and bacon is reported quite satisfactory. We quote:

Butter—The market continues firm and there are no new features to report. Business is confined almost entirely to local trade and its volume has been very small this week. We quote as follows: Finest fresh prints, 22 to 23c.; finest Fall made creamery in 56 lb. boxes, 22 to 23c.; Winter made, 20½ to 21c. Dairy butter is not in particularly good supply, deliveries being lighter than at this time last year. Prices for good dairy butter range from 17 to 18c., and for cooking butter from 14 to 15c.

Cheese—Market firm due to increased inquiries from England, but it does not appear that actual business has been much increased. Finest strong cheese is now quoted at 12 to 13c.; mild, 11 to 11½c.

St. John, N.B.

There is a rather firmer market in barreled pork. The market has been particularly uneven this season. Beef is rather dull; of late years our lumbermen have used an increasing quantity of fresh beef. Pure lard is again lower; the stock held is quite large. Refined lard is now almost the same price as pure. Low priced compounds are little used. Smoked meats hold quite firm; the trade is chiefly done by local curers. In fresh beef there is a good supply. Prices are quite low. Domestic is freely offered. Lamb is firmer, supply beginning to fall off. Mutton is dull. New veal is offered; price quite firm. Pork is unchanged, offerings not being large. We quote:

Trinidad Provisions.

Under date of December 17 Gordon, Grant & Co. write from Port of Spain, Trinidad, of provisions, as follows:

Pork and lard are moving slowly at late quotations, although stocks of both are moderate. Family beef is firmer in sympathy with Chicago advices, and higher prices are now asked for all grades. Imports of Morlaix butter have at last moderated, and an advance is now obtainable for fresh landings. For cheese and hams there is now more inquiry.

A later letter from the same people, dated December 31, reads thus:

There is no change in the position of either pork or lard, and values, if anything, are easier. Family beef is held for advanced rates, which are likely to be obtainable shortly, as stocks are not large. For Morlaix butter there is now more inquiry, and for fresh arrivals an advance is asked. Cheese and hams are selling slowly at our quotations.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by John C. Kirkwood, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER

A Pertinent Letter from a Successful Grocer.

FROM three distinct sources there have come to me during the past week inquiries as to the wisdom of grocers advertising at all in view of the fact that the bulk of their stock is made up of goods in packages—goods that are to be found in practically every grocery store. It is freely admitted that the dry goods man has a chance to advertise successfully, since his stock is so complex and its individuality so possible of assertion. In the following letter several matters are touched upon of live interest to many grocers, and I make this communication the basis of my talk this week :

———, Jan. 5, 1901.

Editor, "The Canadian Grocer" :

I have been doing business for about three years in L—— in the crockery and grocery line, during which time I have succeeded in building up a very fair trade. During the last year I succeeded in increasing my trade by almost a third over the preceding year, and am anxious that the coming year should show the same increase.

I have never advertised in any way whatever, but have endeavored when possible to have some lines that nobody else can get, and, in this way, draw people to my store. Every spare spot in my store (which is small but in a good stand) I use to place something that is exceptional value, and use price tickets on everything that I consider will increase the sale thereof. My window I endeavor to keep as clean as possible and filled with goods that will at least draw people's attention.

Under these circumstances would you advise me to advertise in the daily or weekly papers? My idea has always been that an ad. without prices does not attract much attention, especially when set up in the space I could afford to buy; and to quote sugar at 20 pounds for $1 when everybody is selling at the same price would not improve matters much. As the profit on groceries is already small enough, to cut same would only lead my oppositian to follow suit, and there would be nothing gained by slaughtering prices to make an ad. interesting.

Yours truly,
JOHN SMITH.

This is a good, straightforward, sensible letter, and takes up matters that are exercising the minds of many grocers.

Let me say that business growth does not necessarily hinge upon advertising. Advertising is merely one agency among many to be employed in selling goods. Goods can be sold largely and profitably without advertising. In any considerable turnover of merchandise there are several forces at work, and to rely on any single one of these to do everything is manifestly unfair and disastrous. The judgment of many merchants has been misled by advertising enthusiasts, who are prone to magnify the importance and potency of advertising. The point I am endeavoring to make clear is that the employment of all good means, among them advertising, is necessary to accomplish maximum results. A merchant may be an excellent advertiser and a poor storekeeper; he may know how to write persuasively and all that, and yet be loose in his store methods. His goods may not fulfill the claims made for them; the merchant may be inattentive to business; the shortcomings of the store and its proprietor may be many and grievous. No amount of advertising can materially or permanently enlarge the business of such a store. Advertising, to be productive, must work in conjunction with other forces. Alone, it can accomplish very little.

Thus it is easy to understand why Mr. Smith's business has grown one-third in a year. His letter reveals the fact that he is energetic, watchful and enterprising. It would be strange indeed if under such management the business stood still. It is not to be marvelled at that growth resulted without advertising; and to conclude that because there has been growth without advertising advertising was unnecessary and would have been waste is wholly wrong. The employment of judicious advertising, coupled with excellent management cannot fail to attract more business. The problem is to acquaint others who are not customers with the essential facts. This can be done by advertising,—not merely that form of advertising known as newspaper publicity, but by circulars—printed and typewritten—sent out through the mails or distributed by other means. When a man knows in his heart that more people could deal with him to their advantage, and has the desire and ability to serve these people, it is strictly business to make these desired customers know what he knows; to get their trade by all fair means. The burden of making more people know about his business is clearly the merchant's, and cannot be trusted to any other. The means he may employ to convey this knowledge is advertising, whether it be through newspapers, circulars, personal letters, bill boards, or street cars. All these forms of advertising are not of equal worth, but a consideration of them individualy from the viewpoint of value is beyond the scope of this article.

In what I have written is my answer to Mr. Smith's question—"would you advise me to advertise?" Summarized, my advice to him and to all others whose problem is of like nature, is to advertise. The particular form or forms that the advertising may take is a separate problem, and one that I am unable at this time to discuss at length. In a forthcoming number of "The Grocer" I shall take up the question of what to advertise, and the matter of price-quoting and price-cutting. Suffice it to say just now that price-quoting does not necessarily lead to price-cutting; also that quoting prices that are current with all grocers is, generally speaking, useless.

This letter of Mr. Smith's tells of a form of interior advertising that is suggestive, namely, his stocking uncommon lines and their display, accompanied by price tickets, in every available spot in his store. This, to some extent, is done in a great number of the brisk grocery stores everywhere. I feel, however, that it is not done enough. Goods attractively and temptingly displayed with the prices attached, sell themselves. The outlay required for such advertising is one

ANNUAL JANUARY CLEARING.

WE ARE CONSTANTLY STUDYING TEAS.—WE HAVE THE EXPERIENCE AND THE MEANS TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF EVERY MARKET, AND, CONSEQUENTLY, USUALLY HAVE BETTER VALUES TO OFFER THAN ANYONE ELSE IN THE TRADE.

We have gone through our stocks and have picked out some very special values, in fact, our travellers are "loaded" with snaps that will be picked up by the wide awake merchant. So far this month, our TEA SALES are the largest (for an equal period) in the history of our business, which shows that a good many grocers have "got in" on the "good things" we are offering. Our values are not equalled in the trade in of effort rather than of money, and there is no reason why priced displays cannot be a feature of every store. To take orders is not salesmanship. To suggest needs, to create desire, to stimulate the buying instinct, is an art easily capable of cultivation. It does us good to have genuine examples of successful trade-building, and the editor of this department welcomes letters from all sources which furnish helpful experiences.

OPEN AN OFFICE IN WINNIPEG.

The Maclean Publishing Co., Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, have secured the services of Mr. L. P. Luxton as their western Canadian representative. Mr. Luxton has secured an office in the McIntyre block, and is now busily engaged in looking after the interests of the Maclean trade papers, which are the best of their kind in Canada, and the equal of most trade papers published the world over. Col. J. B. Maclean, the pivot upon which these publications revolve, believes in giving Canadian readers the best, and to say that he has succeeded admirably in this respect would be putting it mildly. The Dry Goods Review, "The Canadian Grocer," Hardware and Metal, Bookseller and Stationer, and Military Gazette are among the Maclean newspapers.—The Winnipeg Tribune.

CANADIAN PREFERENTIAL TARIFF.

ALMOST practical example of the good effects upon British exports which have been brought about by the rebate in duty on goods of "British origin" imported into Canada has recently come to our notice, says Commercial Bristol.

A well-known firm of manufacturers in our city had been doing a small intermittent trade in Canada, and in 1896 one of the partners went to the Dominion with a view to see on the spot whether this trade was worth following up.

He was only in Canada for a week, but placed some good agents, advised his firm to advertise in the best journal of their trade, and came home satisfied that some increase in orders would follow in course of time.

That year the firm's Canadian trade was ten times greater in volume than in 1895, and a year or so after, when the preferential tariff came into operation, it again increased considerably.

The further rebate from 25 per cent. to 33 1-3 per cent. again helped this firm's Canadian trade, and this present year is their best record, and quite six times as much as it was in 1896, just before the new tariff came into force.

In one week at the end of October the firm under notice booked Canadian orders equal to the total value of some whole year's trade, and they now confidentlv expect a further large extension of trade next year.

THE IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO.

A REPRESENTATIVE of "The Canadian Grocer" paid a visit on Wednesday last to the factory of The Imperial Biscuit Co., Guelph.

The works have been enlarged from time to time, with the present commodious factory as the result, and the largely increased business of the firm will necessitate another addition to the premises in the very near future. The first flat is devoted to the office, storage and shipping departments; the second to machinery and the biscuit department, and the third storey principally to the manufacture of confectionery, to which specialty the company are paying considerable attention.

Apart from the quality, the goods are cleanly handled and all the packages have a bright and attractive appearance. Mr. Dooley showed "The Grocer" the small premises in which he originally commenced, and naturally feels considerable pride in the growth and success of the business.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS ELECT OFFICERS.

ELECTION of officers and discussion of the proposed assessment act in its effect on the retail trade were the principal items of business before the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association Monday night last at St. George's Hall. Mr. F. W. Johnston was elected president for the ensuing year by acclamation, and the association listened to a committee from the Grocery Section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Toronto, who expounded the intricacies and inequities of the new assessment act.

The meeting was called to order about 8.45, with President David Bell in the chair and the usual attendance present. The minutes of the previous meeting were speedily read and disposed of as the association was in a hurry to get through with routine business in time to receive the visiting delegation.

Mr. F. T. Higgins, Queen street east, and Mr. F. C. Armstrong, Shuter street, who had been proposed for membership last month, were duly elected.

The committee on the pedlar nuisance, reporting through Mr. Bond, announced that they had interviewed the City Solicitor and found there was no law defining a bag of potatoes outside St. Lawrence market. Neither the city or the province had the power to enact such a law, and it would be necessary to appeal to the Dominion House. The report was received and will be further discussed next meeting.

Mr. Johnston, with Messrs. Kelly, Panter and Snow, chairmen of the sub-committees in charge of the annual at-home, reported progress. The rooms in the Temple building had been secured for Thursday night, Febrdary 4. The refreshments and music had been arranged for, and the programmes and tickets would be out almost immediately. The report was received.

Mr. Panter, on behalf of the Lodge Room Committee, reported that he had inspected several rooms but as yet had found nothing satisfactory.

The notices of motion to amend the constitution were next considered, and the following amendments passed :

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Bond the number necessary for a quorum was reduced from 11 to 7.

On motion of Messrs. Bond and Johnston it was provided that nomination for officers should take place at the last meeting of the year and election and installation the first meeting of the succeeding year.

On motion of Messrs. Thorne and Panter it was provided that the member who secured the largest number of new members each year should receive some small token as a prize.

The delegation from the Retail Merchants' Association, consisting of Messrs. Higgins, chairman ; Trowern, secretary ; Moyer, Coulter and Bond, was announced at this juncture and introduced to the meeting.

Mr. Higgins expressed the pleasure it afforded him in meeting an association engaged on lines similar to their own, that of mutual helpfulness.

The question of taxation was one of great importance. The present system was inequitable, but he believed the proposed system would be still more unjust to the retailer. It shifted the burden from the manufacturer and wholesaler to the retailer. There were many retailers who would have to pay two or three times as much as at present. The retailer had so many burdens to bear, he thought this additional tax should not be imposed. The details would be discussed more minutely by his colleagues, but he respectfully invited the co-operation of this association in opposing the proposed act.

Mr. F. W. Johnston, President Toronto Retail Grocers' Association for 1904.

The newly elected president, who describes himself as an "Old York villain," having been a resident of Yorkville for over two decades, is a familiar figure in Toronto grocery circles. Mr. Johnston has been practically all his life in the grocery business. He learned the art first with Shields Bros., then with J. J. Scott, and afterwards with J. Gerry. Graduating from the retail trade he took a post graduate course in the wholesale firm of J. W. Lang before setting up for himself at 82 Davenport Road, where he has conducted a general provision business for the last 21 years.

Mr. Johnston is a charter member of the Grocers' Association, and has filled the chair before, having been president about four years ago. He is ambitious to make things hum in the coming year.

Mr. Trowern declared this to be an age of organization. The only way to get anything was by concerted action. As retailers they had received no special benefits from the Government, as had the farmers, manufacturers and laborers, and they did not want to have taxes shifted from these other classes on retailers. The retailers were paying on the largest share of assessed property in all places. The Government, thinking the present system was wrong, appointed a commission that was not made up of practical men. The intention of the act is to remove the tax on personalty and to place it on rental values. The rental value was determined as 7 per cent. of the present assessed value. The new tax would be about 10 per cent. of this. Thus, if a merchant's premises were assessed for $10,000, the rental value would be $700 and the tax about $70.

He declared this to be unfair to the small man. It ignored the licenses. The T. Eaton Co. now paid $8,775, under the new act they wodld pay but $3,220. The premises of the retailers in Toronto were assessed for $17,600,000, the wholesalers for $3,500,000, the stocks of the retailers for $2,900,000, of the wholesalers for $2,700,000. The retailers now paid $56,000, the wholesalers $51,000. Under the new tax the retailers would pay $119,000 and the wholesalers $25,000. The wholesale men were going to get off but the retailers were going to get on.

In the discussion which followed Mr. Trowern was asked for an alternative scheme. He said that he did not think it incumbent upon them to produce such a scheme.

Mr. Moyer said they could take it for granted that when the big fellows were pressing a measure through the House it would not be in the interests of the small fellows. He thought they should work more in harmony in their own interests.

Mr. Coulter thought they were now facing a crisis. They must oppose this unjust taxation, which was threatening to crush the retailers. He hoped this association would unite in protest against the bill.

Mr. Bond, owing to the lateness of the hour, cut his remarks short, the matter, he thought, having been pretty well threshed out.

A vote of thanks was tendered the visiting delegation, who then retired.

The discussion was left over, owing to the late hour, and the president empowered to call a special meeting if the mat-

The election was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:

President—F. W. Johnston.

Vice-President—H. Kelly.

Executive Committee—R. W. Davies, R. Van Loan, F. Thorne, T. Clarke.

Exhibition Board—Mr. Bond.

Trustees—Messrs. White, Bond, Roberts.

Auditors—D. Bell, H. Tolchard.

Inside Guard—Bailey Snow.

The new officers were installed by Past-President Panter, and the meeting adjourned at a late hour.

GOW, WILSON & STANTON ON TEA.

GOW, WILSON & STANTON, in their tea report dated London, December 31st, 1903, have this to say of the tea situation:

The past year witnessed a complete transformation in the conditions previously ruling in the tea producing industry of India and Ceylon.

The natural result of prolonged depression in prices owing to over-production had prevented any material increase in cultivation during three or four previous years. During this period, consumption, both at home and abroad, continued to expand.

The year 1903, therfore, opened under circumstances more auspicious than the industry had experienced for a considerable time, prices being at last on a more remunerative scale, and sufficient to bring about more satisfactory results than had been the case for many years.

This was especially the case with districts producing teas of the cheaper class, which showed a marked rise on prices ruling during 1902, medium and better grades, however, not participating to the same extent, owing to the strong demand existing in the country for a cheap canister, concurrently with a somewhat smaller supply of this class of tea.

This shortage was caused not only by a smaller output both in India and Ceylon, but by the manufacture of a considerable proportion of this grade into green tea, thus materially alleviating the pressure on the market for this class of black tea.

Home Consumption.

Home consumption well maintained its position although showing no apparent increase, but the desire for cheap tea caused a demand for the lower grades of China tea, and consequently a larger quantity of this growth than usual was used, and a portion of the surplus which had accumulated in America was even brought over to this country.

There is no doubt that the advance in rates for common tea has had the effect of increasing consumption of grades of tea poorer than is usually produced in India and Ceylon on account of the lower price at which they could be obtained.

Production.

During the latter months of 1903 it became evident that the present season's crop from India would show an increase, but not only was the output in Ceylon rather less, but a considerable portion of this having been made into green tea, the home market has not severely felt the increase, especially as extraneous supplies of China tea which had been so freely drawn upon in the early months of the year were no longer available.

The late George Foster, of Brantford, whose demise was chronicled in last week's Grocer.

Foreign Markets.

Foreign markets continue to show a satisfactory expansion, the quantity taken during the year amounting to about 112,000,000 lbs., against 107,000,000 lbs. in 1902. A very satisfactory result when the increased price is taken into consideration.

Indian Tea.

Quality on the whole was hardly up to that of 1902. That from Assam and Darjeeling was generally poorer, Dooars about similar, whilst from Cachar and Sylhet it was a trifle better. Southern India has also shown some improvement, especially if grown at a high elevation.

The average price of tea sold on garden account for the 12 months was 7.83d. per lb., against 7.35d. in 1902, whilst from 1st June to the end of the year it was 7.80d. per lb., against 7.24d. per lb. for the same period last season.

The manufacture of green tea was rather larger, although still comparatively in its infancy.

Indian Tea Cess.

The passing of the Indian Tea Cess Act by the Government, levying a duty of a quarter of a pie per pound on all exports, for the purpose of increasing consumption of Indian tea in India and elsewhere, gives the planters the means of raising a larger sum of money than formerly for exploiting markets outside the United Kingdom.

Ceylon Tea.

No material alteration took place in the quality. The chief feature of the year, in addition to the manufacture of green tea, being the generally smaller output, owing mainly to the prevalence of weather unfavorable to flushing.

The average price of teas sold on garden account was 7.52d. per lb., against 6.81d. per lb. in 1902; and from 1st June to end of December 7.41d., against 6.66d. for the same period last season.

Java Tea.

Production from this country has materially increased of late; and whereas in 1897 it was only 9 1-4 million pounds, in 1901 it was approximately 15 1-2 million (these are the latest available figures). The quality has tended towards improvement, some of the estates recently planted with Indian seed now producing teas of very good character.

FISHERY TRUST.

Mr. Van Laun, London, who is promoting the Scotch Fishery Trust, recently had special meetings in Aberdeen, with representatives of the various trawling companies. He proposes to amalgamate 50 of the modern trawling companies in Scotland, whereby a saving of £20,000 annually will be effected in working costs. Mr. Laun emphasizes the point that if fish is of good quality the market in England is unlimited. The trust has already had the offer of an important curing business in Scotland, and would erect its own preserving factories for packing and tinning fish.

EXPENSIVE POTATOES.

IMAGINE a single potato making more than a big fat ox at the great Christmas show and sale at Smithfield, but a few days since. Nor was it for a solitary specimen that these big prices were offered for praties. One was sold, of less than one pound weight, for $750.

For another one, grown by Mr. Findlay, a Scotch grower and exhibitor, $350 was refused by the owner.

The reason is this: For years experiments have been going on to produce potatoes that can resist every kind of disease to which the tuber is subject. It has been, and is at present, a most costly process to produce this disease-resisting vegetable. Sutton, the great Reading gardener, said that they only grew five tons of these costly tubers in the year. However, they are selling the smaller specimens of these—or rather they were selling them—at $15.75 per pound, for seed, to the farmers and gardeners, so that the crop would be a good paying one. Last year but one, in 1902, a potato expert who had been much interested in this new "Discovery" tuber, procured a few as a favor, for which he paid $4 per pound. He took them home. A few days afterwards he looked high, he looked low, he searched all over for the potatoes. They had gone. His wife was called to aid in the search. On being asked, where they were? he was saddened to receive the reply, "My dear, you had them yesterday for dinner." At Smithfield the intending grower said that dinner had cost him $1,000. The increased price of the "disease resisters," with a fair crop, would have given him the price mentioned.

HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN.

The Victoria Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents are unable to pay for treatment, so that the child from the most remote part of the province has as much claim upon the hospital as the child from Toronto.

The hospital has a wonderful record. Last year there were 293 children from 216 places outside of Toronto. The general character of the work is, in the opinion of physicians and surgeons, the best of its kind. Contributions are asked for. The smallest amount is acceptable. Every dollar helps in carrying on the good work. Contributions may be sent to J. Ross Robertson, Toronto, or to Douglas Davidson, treasurer, Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

VISIT OF A HUSTLER.

MR. G. A. JOHNSTON, formerly of Pefferlaw, and who last May succeeded C. S. Heise, Baldwin, has bought the stock of Park and Hodgins, Sutton West, and will in future conduct both stores on similar lines. Mr. Johnston does a strictly cash business, and finds it is a marked success. He would not go back to the old system under any circumstances. He finds he can buy to better advantage, paying cash, and sell closer as well. The public have come to understand this, and give their patronage in consequence. Mr. Johnston made a friendly call on "The Grocer" last week. He is among an increasing number of our readers who drop into our office when in the city on publication day to get an advance copy of the paper. Mr. Johnston says he keeps a sharp eye on our advertising columns, and finds it pays. With no reflection on the editorial departments, he finds the advertising pages equally interesting with the reading matter. Just now Mr. Johnston is engaged on a circular in which he intends to explain his methods to the people of Sutton West and improve business in the dull season following the holidays.

TAKEN TO THE ROAD.

MR. F. B. MASON, late manager of the sample room of T. Kinnear & Co., Front street, Toronto, and who for 17 years has been in the employ of this firm, has severed his connection and will go on the road for J. D. Bradshaw & Co., confectioners' supplies,

Mr. F. B. Mason.

Toronto. Mr. Mason will cover the territory including Ontario and Quebec and will start out on his first trip westward Monday.

A pleasant feature in connection with Mr. Mason's departure was the presentation on behalf of his employers and fellow employes of a handsome morocco purse well filled with good gold pieces.

The travellers and office staff waited on Mr. Mason at his home quite unexpectedly and made the presentation, accompanied by an address. Mr. Cutler made the presentation and Mr. Chapman read the address. The visitors were most hospitably entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Mason despite the unexpected nature of the visit.

Mr. Mason, in his new work, has the very best wishes of the trade in Toronto by whom he is held in the highest esteem.

U. S. SUGAR CONSUMPTION

REVIEWING the statistical position of sugar for 1903 Willett E. Gray notes that the consumption of sugar in the United States has been 16 465 tons less than in 1902. This small decrease, in place of the usual increase, is accounted for by the cold and backward Spring and Summer of 1903, as well as to the badly demoralized conditions of trade in some departments. The consumption of foreign sugars decreased 110,052 tons, while the consumption of domestic product increased 93,587 tons.

The Hawaiian Islands gave increased supply of 46,711 tons, Porto Rico increased but 1,162 tons, while the Philippine Islands increased 27,397 tons.

All refiners melted about one and one-half per cent. less sugar in 1903 than in 1902, the reduction being about equally divided between the American Sugar Refining Company and the independents. The beet sugar factories increased their business by 111,287 tons having carried over a considerable stock from the preceding year. Foreign refined used shows a decrease of 19,046 tons. The percentage of business done by the American Sugar Refining Company is 55.25 per cent., against 56.97 per cent. in 1902. The independents did 34.55 per cent., against 36.05 per cent. in 1902.

The percentage of beet factories increased to 9.98 per cent., as against 5.41 per cent. in 1902.

The average difference between raw and refined in 1903 was .918c., practically the same as in 1902, when it was .913c. per pound. Refiners profits for 1903 were virtually the same as in 1902. Prices of refined were much better sustained in the far west than in previous years and the beet factories received better results than before.

The coming year gives promise of a continued low average for raw sugars and as the policy of refiners is to give consumers the benefit of such conditions the pople will use sugar more freely to the benefit of refiners by increased consumption.

A TRINIDAD EXHIBITION.

Within the next three weeks an exhibition of Trinidad products will be opened in the Board of Trade, Montreal. This display, by which it is hoped trade may be cultivated, is under the auspices of the Agricultural Society of Trinidad, that body having undertaken to prepare the exhibit and send it on to Montreal.

Mr. J. Russell Murray, the representative here of the Imperial Department of Agriculture for the British West Indies, has obtained sanction from the Council of the Board of Trade to place the exhibit in the building. The exhibit will be shipped from the islands in two or three weeks. The products will be preserved so as to enable merchants to obtain information as to the quality and value of the latest crop.

FAILURE OF A MONTREAL TEA HOUSE.

A surprise in tea circles of Montreal this week is the failure of S. C. Durand & Co., 13 St. John street. The liabilities, which have not been made public yet, are quite high. It is understood a meeting of creditors will be held on Friday, 15th inst.

BRANCH IN WINNIPEG.

Snowdon, Forbes & Co., 449 St. Paul street, Montreal, manufacturers of "Bee" brand starches, borax, coffee and baking powders, have opened up a branch warehouse and offices in Winnipeg this week. Mr. C. F. Thompson, formerly with Kilgour Bros., has been appointed their representative, and as a full line of Snowdon, Forbes & Co.'s goods will be carried in stock Western merchants' wants can be rapidly filled. The increased business in the West for "Bee" brand goods necessitated Snowdon, Forbes & Co. opening a branch warehouse in Winnipeg.

Best for You.

There will be no half-way satisfaction when you sell Windsor Salt. "It is best for you and your customer, too." And we use the word "best" in its deepest meaning —best by test!

Pure, white, dry, crystaline. The Salt that doesn't cake because every particle of moisture is dried out. Sifted, not ground. "Best for you" because there is no half-way satisfaction in selling it.

PROSPEROUS CANADA.

REMARKABLE evidence of the prosperity now prevailing throughout Canada is evidenced in Bradstreets of January 9th. A summary of the failures which have been recorded each year in Canada since 1880 shows that in 1903 but 956 Canadian firms suffered failure, liabilities aggregating $8,328,362 and assets $3,852,197. This is a decrease in number of 12 per cent. from 1902 and is the least number since 1882.

A further evidence of prosperity is noted in our bank clearings which for ten cities aggregated $2,646,974,767, a gain of 5.2 per cent. over 1902, and to this extent the best ever recorded. In connection with this it must be remembered that the demoralized condition of the stock market must have seriously affected the bank clearings, so that our industrial prosperity is by no means adequately represented even by the bank clearings.

To emphasise this it should be noted that the total bank clearings in 92 United States cities aggregated $108,691,335,283, a decrease of 7.4 per cent. on 1902 and 7.7 per cent. on 1901. This decrease is found to originate in New York the centre of the stock operations, the outside cities marking an increase.

It is most gratifying indeed to find that despite the hard knocks Canadian securities have received during the past year at the hands of American bears we are still in a position to make so favorable a showing.

The inference is flattering to our industrial and commercial stability.

NEW SOURCE OF CHOCOLATE.

AN amusing blunder which is hardly credible was perpetrated in an illustrated booklet entitled, "The Story of a Chocolate Chip," and purporting to picture the different stages through which cocoa or cacao passes in its course from the tree to the chocolate chip. The series is reproduced in the Progressive Printer as an example of good advertising. The artist has done the best he knew and the illustrations are decidedly striking, but for the fact that the artist has confused the cocoa with the cocoanut and the trees from which his chocolate chips are secured are cocoanut trees. The Progressive Printer may be pardoned this blunder, and even the artist, though he should have known better, but what is to be said of the manufacturer who displayed such ignorance of the source of his raw material in allowing this booklet to go out.

Ignorance is bliss but not in advertising.

A TRADE UNION ABSURDITY.

FROM St. Louis came, some little time ago, a story which surely illustrates the climax of trade union absurdity. As is well known, the management of the Exposition are paying particular attention to the art features of the Fair. For example, the sum of $500,000 has been appropriated for the display of the work of American sculptors, and a great number of artists have contributed under the direction of Mr. Karl Bitter, the chief of the sculpture department. As many of these pieces of statuary are of colossal proportions, they are transported to St. Louis in sections and the work of setting up necessarily requires some considerable skill. It often happens that the pieces are damaged en route and need remodelling, as do the joints where the sections meet. Surely it is evident that to place this work in the hands of unskilled persons is to run the risk of spoiling the sculptors' work. Enthusiastic young artists have worked in poverty inspired by the hope of achieving fame and distinction by their work and upon the verdict of critics and public depends their immediate future. To spoil their work in setting it up would be an injustice to them, and render useless the vast expenditure of money by the management on these artistic features of the Exhibition.

Now the management of the Exhibition were careful not to wound the feelings of organized labor. The work of setting up this statuary was assigned to the best sculptors of the St. Louis Modellers' and Sculptors' Union No. 245, thereby recognizing the claims of organized labor and at the same time seeking efficiency.

But this action was not in harmony with the principles of organized labor as understood in St. Louis. A union had been recognized, but it was not the right union. The statues are modelled in plaster and forsooth the proper men to set them up are the plain plasterers of St. Louis. The Plasterers' Union notified the Exhibition authorities that this work must be turned over to them, at the same time threatening a general strike of the Exposition workmen unless the demand were complied with. Meanwhile the plain plasterers ceased their work on the buildings.

The dispute was referred to the Director of Public Works and his common sense decision was in favor of the claims of the Sculptors' Union. This finding not being satisfactory to the plasterers was ignored as completely as the similar verdict of the Missouri State Board of Arbitration to which the dispute was then referred. This body went into the whole question carefully, listening to the representations of the Plasterers' Union and to the case of the Sculptors' Union as presented by the Exposition authorities. The finding being adverse to the Plasterers' Union they refused to be bound by it.

In despair Mr. Bitter, the superintendent of sculpture, at last addressed an appeal to the general president of the Operative Plasterers' International Association of the United States and Canada, Mr. J. B. Cavanaugh, of Colorado Springs, Colorado, in which he set forth the case plainly and fairly and appealed to the common sense of this august personage to interfere in his behalf. He waited more than a month for a reply and when received it was a curt notification to the following effect:

DEAR SIR —The following decission was sent to this office by the General President of the O.P. I. A. That plasterers shall do all pointing, and to notify locals. Locals referred to are No. 245, which is composed of modellers, No. 242 composed of shop hands, and No. 3 which is composed of plasterers. Said notice has been sent. Trusting that the above decission will end controversy, I remain, W. A. O'KEEFE, Sec'y-Treas.

This is perhaps a fair sample of the curtesy for which employers may look at the hands of some labor leaders.

What has not the union done for the laboring man? Long ago it was claimed that it would give him shorter hours, increased wages, and greater consideration in the eyes of the world. Skilled labor, we were told, would rise in the social scale under the protecting aegis of trade unionism. But not its most ardent and enthusiastic advocates a half century ago would have ventured to prophesy that so soon would unionism have accomplished the hitherto impossible task of democratizing art. Let the name of J. B. Cavanaugh of Colorado Springs be held in all esteem. By one stroke of his pen, this mighty potentate of unionism has placed the members of that union of plain plasterers on the same plane as the most noted artists of the New World. Adams, Ruckstuhl, Bitter and MacMinnies are now brothers to the distinguished artists of the Plasters' Union No. 3. Many are the triumphs of science and of art which the wondering visitor at St. Louis next Summer will stop to admire. But surely nothing is more worthy of his admiration than the latest triumph of the plain plasterers in plastic art.

THE LATE W. H. LINDSAY.

IT is with feelings of the deepest sorrow that we have this week to record the death of Mr. W. H. Lindsay who was taken off with such terrible suddenness while removing snow from in front of his residence at London on Friday last. Mr. Lindsay had been for some time connected with the staff of the MacLean Trade Newspapers and was held in the highest esteem by all those connected therewith as he was, indeed, by all who knew him.

Mr. Lindsay had a long business career in Milton and his loss will be widely felt. He was a fine example of the gentlemanly type of a business man, a type of man whose loss we feel keenly. A widow and several sons and daughters survive, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

THE MIGHTY EGG.

THE egg is still supreme in the produce market and no one has the temerity to predict what is yet to come. Last year dealers held on to their eggs and found when too late they had made a mistake. Stock which cost 14 was sold as low as 8. Determined to make no such mistake this year stocks were shipped out in a hurry and practically no reserve left for January and February. It is interesting to compare the quotations this week with those of the corresponding week January 1903. Fresh gathered were quoted last year at 18 to 22c. This year strictly fresh gathered are unobtainable even at 35 to 40c. while selected cold storage are worth 27 to 28c. Last year first-class cold storage were quoted at 17 to 22c., this year ordinary cold storage at 25 to 26c. Last year limed were 16 to 18c., this year pickled 23 to 24c.

Considering the scarcity, and in comparison with last year, when stocks were so heavy, remarked a commission man, eggs are not high, but the consumer can hardly be expected to appreciate this view of the matter. In the meantime eggs are firm with an upward tendency.

TO FIGHT TRADING STAMPS.

THE Merchants' Association of New York are issuing a circular appealing to the trade to co-operate in a determined attempt to secure the passage by the New York Legislature of a bill to regulate trading stamps in such manner as to abolish ther present harmful effects.

Canadan merchants will sympathize with the trade in this attempt. The trading stamp evil was but a few years ago such a pernicious influence in business conditions that it was found an easy matter to secure practical unanimity in the movement to have them abolished, in Ontario particularly. The agitation against the stamps was started by the MacLean Trade Newspapers and the movement to secure legislation against them originated in Brockville. Delegations from all parts of Ontario met in Toronto and interviewed the Government in a body. This, together with a short but powerful lobby, was sufficient to win the almost unanimous support of members of the Legislature, which resulted in the passage of an act which has been so effective that trading stamps are a "thing of the past" in the province. May similar success attend the efforts of the New York Merchants' Association.

APPOINTED AGENTS.

The Greig Mfg. Co., of Montreal, have been appointed selling agents for Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces for Batty & Co.'s (London, Eng.) Nabob sauces, relishes and other table and grocery specialties. Batty & Co.'s goods have been so long and favorably known to the Canadian trade that no commendation is necessary. The Greig Mfg. Co. whose salesmen cover the country thoroughly, should meet with sucess.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

THE ad. of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, in this week's GROCER should prove interesting to the trade. The premium offered is exceptionally desirable, and going as it does with their brands of "Bee" goods, should prove interesting to purchasers.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are offering a snap in washed figs in 1-lb. baskets at a price that will clear them out with a rush.

T. Kinnear & Co. are wholesale agents for "Ubero" coffee, 1-lb. tins.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, have just received a car of "Rose" brand oranges in fine condition. The quality of this particular brand is reported to be unsurpassed by anything on the market.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have a special snap in "Shinola" shoe paste, with a patent polishing outfit free with each dozen.

"Kkovah" egg powder, sold by The Greig Mfg. Co., Montreal, is a good seller now, the high price of eggs making the demand a steady one for this article, which is a perfect egg production, and can be used for every purpose the whole egg can, with the exception of boiling. For baking purposes it is an excellent article.

White & Co. received another car of the famous "Bronco" brand navels this week.

The attention of the trade is directed to the ad. of The Greig Mfg. Co. in this week's GROCER. The season for preparing to stock these goods is now approaching.

T. Kinnear & Co. report arrival of a shipment of "Cherry Grove" molasses, 2-lb. tins.

Buyers of prunes should get quotations from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

White & Co., Toronto, have a car of Halifax frozen sea herring, and report these fish very scarce this year.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering special value in a broom to retail at 25c. each.

The "Halifax," "Acadia" and "Bluenose" brands of codfish can be had from The Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Harry Lederer, representing Wm. Demuth & Co., of New York, a large pipes and canes house, is calling on the trade in Canada.

Mr. Alexander McL. L. Long succeeds Mr. F. B. Mason in charge of the sample room of T. Kinnear & Co., Front street, Toronto.

Chas. Masters, St. John, N.B., was a visitor to Montreal last week. Mr. Masters represents The Greig Mfg. Co., Montreal, in the Maritime Provinces, and reports successful business for his specialties.

Mr. E. E. Brewster has joined the travelling staff of The Greig Mfg. Co., Montreal. His territory is Eastern Ontario. Mr. Brewster is thoroughly well acquainted with the trade in that district, having for five years covered the ground for Marcotte, Leblanc & Cie., Montreal. "Kkovah" jellies, Batty's sauces and other lines, and Terezol Blacking are a few of the specialties he will carry, besides Greig's Extracts, etc.

THE SALMON PACK.

THE total pack of salmon on the Pacific coast in 1903 is estimated at 3,814,106 cases, which is the largest output for any year in the history of the business except 1901 and 1902. In 1901 the total pack was 5,040,961 and in 1902 was 4,259,186 cases. In all of the above figures are included the British Columbia pack. The largest total pack, including British Columbia, for any year prior to 1901 was that of 1899, which amounted to 3,138,040 cases, and the next in size was that of 1897, which was 3,072,731 cases.

The following were the details of the pack this year as compared with that of the previous year:

	1903.	1902.
British Columbia..	473,547	625,982
Columbia River ...	334,811	367,241

MARITIME FISHERIES.

THIS has not been a good year for our eastern coast fishermen. A Maritime paper speaks of this important industry as follows:

The fishery business is conducted in Lunenburg, on the co-operative plan. It is said that no single man or firm owns an entire vessel in the fleet, which numbers over 300 sail. Some of the schooners have as many as 25 or 30 owners. Some young fishermen have a share in two or three vessels, besides the one he sails in. Practical fishermen own the majority of shares in these vessels, though the people of the town who stay ashore also own shares in them. The merchants of the town generally have a sixteenth share in twenty or more vessels, so as to have the privilege of fitting them out and handling their fish.

It is stated the Lunenburg, town, fleet of fishermen, numbering 69 vessels, have during the season just ended, made a total catch of 11,784,000 pounds or 9,921,000 pounds less than last year. La Have, with a fleet of 68 vessels, had a catch of 10,368,000 pounds, a decrease of 8,432,000 pounds from last year. Mahone Bay has 24 vessels, which landed 3,480,000 pounds, being 3,130,000 pounds less than last year. The total catch of this fleet was 25,632,000 pounds. Last year it was 47,715,000 pounds, showing a shortage of almost 50 per cent.

PROPAGATION OF OYSTERS.

Up to recently it has been impossible to propagate oysters artificially, but within the last year Professor Julius Nelsen, biologist for the State Bureau of Shell Fisheries of New Jersey, has succeeded in propagating oyster germs or seed.

If a female oyster be jabbed with a knife in the right way the knife-point will be smeared with a milky-looking substance in which, by the aid of a microscope, can be seen tiny eggs having the general shape of minute oysters.

If the same proceedings be gone through with for the male, and the two fluids mixed in salt water, fertilization will occur in about ten minutes, and in about an hour the first development of the egg begins. After 24 hours the shells begin to come, and the oysters are in a fair way to grow up. At the first impregnation, although many male sperms adhere to one egg, it is shown by the microscope that if more than one enters the egg a monstrosity results which will not develop.

The greatest difficulty at present is to keep the minute oyster fry from escaping from the sea-water tank in which they are devloped, but this problem is in a fair way to solution, and the day may not be far off when the oysterman can get his oyster seed in the earliest stages of its development, and ready to "set" on the shells planted for them.—Collier's Weekly.

$500.00—FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

We believe that OUR INCREASE ALONE in sales of "SALADA" Ceylon Tea in the past year over our sales in 1902 was greater than the entire tea business of any other wholesale firm in Canada, in either packet or bulk tea.

If any Firm has a contrary opinion, we are prepared to donate Five Hundred Dollars—$500.00—to any Charitable Institution if we are wrong; the contesting Firm to do the same, if we prove absolutely that our INCREASE ALONE in the past year over the preceding one was greater than their entire business, packet or bulk, in 1903. We will allow the contestants to include in their sales Ceylon, India, China and Japan Teas, on our part THE INCREASE IN 1903 OF "SALADA" ALONE. Results to be published.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Jan. 14, 1903.

Groceries.

THE wholesale trade generally appear to be quite optimistic. Stocktaking intelligence, which is beginning to be available, is of a satisfactory nature, and trade has started in with a rush. Orders are large and generally much better than is usual at this time of the year. Travellers find the outside merchants in good shape, and money is coming in well. Canned goods continue to be held very firm. Coffee is as strong as ever with, however, little local movement reported. Jobbers, nevertheless, find it less difficult to get prices on actual transactions. Spices are firm, especially cloves. Molasses is unchanged locally, with Barbadoes scarce. Syrup is moving freely. Rice has firmed up, but little movement is reported. Tapioca is nominal. Teas are meeting a very fair demand, and cable advices report the London market reopened with prices fully maintained. Foreign dried fruits are meeting the usual sorting orders. Currants are up in Patras. Sultanas are firmer, as are also Tarragona almonds. Cured fish are high and meeting a good demand. The sugar market is weaker than last writing. A decline of 1-16c. is recorded in raws, and New Orleans refined has eased off 5c. per cwt. New York has not responded yet, however, and, locally, the only effect has been to check trade, buyers holding off to await developments.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods are very firm in all lines. Stocks are in strong hands, and there is a pretty general feeling that higher prices will prevail. Some houses, while not advancing prices for small lots for customers' needs, ask a higher rate for large lots. We quote:

SUGAR.

A decidedly easier tone to the raw sugar situation is manifested this week, with a tendency toward lower prices, there being more sellers than buyers at current quotations, and, owing to the apparent desire of Cuban planters to realize on crop in order to obtain funds, next transactions are likely to be made at prices below those prevailing to-day. Since last going to press there have been sales of 10,000 bags Cuban centrifugals for shipment at 2 1-16c. C. & F., which is equal to 3.11c., duty paid, and records a decline of 1-16c. from previous sales. Some San Domingo centrifugals, just arrived at New York, are being held for 3.14c., duty paid, without finding buyers, and it now appears as if Cuban sugars could not be placed at over 2c., C. & F., equal to 3.35c., duty paid. Europe is also reported easier, with decided weakness in France, where large stocks are held. London quotations for beet, 88 per cent. test, is now 8s. 1½d. basis, f.o.b. Hamburg, for January shipment, being a decline of 3s. ¾d. for the week. To-day's quotation is equal to parity of 3.72c., duty paid, for 99 per cent. test, centrifugals, or over ¼c. above the market. Further progress is being made in grinding in Cuba, there being, at latest advices, 72 central factories working, an increase of 28 for the week. Stocks in the island were reduced 11,000 tons during the week, or, say, to 94,000 tons, compared with 63,240 tons in the corresponding week of last year. Receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending January 6 were 27,173 tons, with meltings reduced to 20,000 tons, being 9,000 tons less than previous week. Total stock in all hands was 71,308 tons, an increase of 7,473 tons for the week, and a reduction, as compared with same week last year, of 60,952 tons. Of this, 59,117 tons are held by refiners, or, say, barely three weeks' supply. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 3,305,308 tons, against 3,131,068 tons for same period last year, the increase being 174,240 tons. The weakness in raws has made its influence felt on the refined situation in the United States, with buyers disposed to hold off and refiners willing to give guaranty on all delayed shipments. New Orleans declined 5c. per 100 pounds, but, up to time of going to press, New York quotations remain unchanged and no concessions are being given. In view of the weakness across the line local buyers are disposed to hold off, and the movement of sugar is very light. However, prices are firmly held by refiners, and there is apparently no disposition to shade quotations. Purchases are only for actual requirements. We quote:

COFFEES.

The New York market has shown a steadily strong and advancing tendency, with the exception of a slight reactionary movement on Tuesday. No. 7 Rios are quoted 8c., cost and freight, New York, which is 3c. advance on lowest price in later July and early August. Santos show even ½c. further divergence between last Summer and present prices. The effect is seen in all the mild grades as well, which are firmly held. There is little active movement locally, but some trading is reported on the higher basis. We quote:

SPICES.

There is a firm market all round for these lines. Cloves have advanced in all markets. There is no buying locally, however, by jobbers for cloves, but a fair movement in other lines. Peppers are free. The retail demand is normal. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

No change is reported on this market in these lines, although Barbadoes is quoted easier in Montreal, and a general molasses war is threatened in the Maritime Provinces. Genuine Barbadoes here is very scarce and commands a high price. Syrups are reported in very good demand. We quote:

TEAS.

Demand for tea is good in all lines of Indian and Ceylon. Sellers in New York are firmer, but there is no quotable change. London and Ceylon cables report large sales in Colombo but no concession in prices. The London market opened after the holiday with prices fully maintained. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Cable advices received early this week from Mr. Dem Schisas, Patras, report a further advice of 9d. in currants, with a higher tendency. Good quality, rain-damaged Sultanas, on offer at Smyrna for the last couple of weeks, have now been sold, and no further supplies of this grade are now to be hgd. Some poorer quality rain-damaged fruit is offered at an advance of 3d. per cwt. The demand for fine quality Sultanas is almost entirely wanting on this market, but the demand is good from the great consuming countries, and prices in Smyrna have been gradually advancing under heavy buying. Best grades shelled walnuts are reported nearly exhausted in France, and only a limited quantity are offering at advancing prices. Tarragona almonds, cable advices report, are very firm in primal markets, and further advance is noted. The high price of apricots is creating a bigger demand for other lines. We quote :

Cured Fish.

This has been a bad season, especially for lake herring and white fish. Stocks were exhausted early, and it has been impossible to get more. Labrador stock has taken the place of these largely along with cod. Both have been very high in consequence of the small catch on Atlantic shore. We quote :

HONEY

The demand for honey is lighter than usual at this season of the year. Stocks are heavy through the country, which is perhaps accounted for by the fact that farmers held on to stocks last Autumn, refusing prices which they are now glad to get. We quote :

POULTRY.

There is little to report in poultry this week. The market is dull and featureless except for a good inquiry for young chickens. The stocks put in cold storage during the holidays, however, are not large, and better conditions are expected soon. We quote :

Green Fruits.

The fruit market is picking up considerably this week, and freight shipments are beginning to move again. Florida oranges are almost cleaned up, although a few fresh arrivals are reported, for which there is a good sale. Stocks of Almeria grapes are extraordinarily light considering that 100,000 extra barrels were imported by North America during the last year. The lemon market is easier on account of an oversupply. Seville bitter oranges are on the market for the first time this week. Florida pineapples are scarce and firmer than last week. Tangerines are easier. Our quotations are :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Jan. 14, 1904.

Groceries.

BUSINESS reports are on the whole good when the season is taken into account. Orders are if anything more plentiful than same period last year. Collections are generally fairly good, paper maturing being well met on the 4th.

The sugar market is in a quiet state, and the foreign beet reports of a lowering tone and it may not be long before local prices will decline. That is the feeling in some quarters. There is a better feeling in tea circles though this has been only made apparent towards close of the week. China greens, Ping Suey Young Hysons, Ping Suey Gunpowders have received attention both locally and from western points. Japan teas have been traded in during the week and a better tone prevails. No change in China blacks. Little business has been done with London on account of the holidays, and active trading has not been resumed. China greens are receiving some attention. Molasses is reported declined 2c. per gallon for Barbadoes. This is due to the receipt of encouraging crop prospects from the island; 40c. for puncheons for new Barbadoes is the ruling price. It is stated on good authority that there are still one or two lots of old Barbadoes on this market and these are selling at 35 to 37c. Stocks of new are light. Syrups in fair demand.

Coffees are strong and prices generally looking up. The advance since last Summer is fully 3 to 3 1-2c. per lb. in the lower and medium grades. The tendency for higher prices seems to be statistically well backed up. Spices, too, are very bullish, and a stiff market prevails both in New York and locally. Canned goods situation unchanged with the exception that corn is held at $1.10 by the trade though a few holders ask $1.05. Salmon commencing to go out more freely and the consumption increasing. Trade in green fruits quiet. Florida oranges are selling freely. Foreign dried fruits dull among the brokers as is to be expected now. Jobbers report fair trade. The low price of dates, 3 1-2 to 4c. has created a good demand from retailers, many of whom are selling at 5c. per lb., an unusually low price, and one tending to increase the consumption. Nuts are quiet. Peanuts advanced during the week 1-2c. per lb. In rice the Mount Royal Milling and Mfg. Co., Limited, have advised the trade of withdrawal of all their grades of Japans. Higher prices evidently are in the air. Tapioca unchanged with quiet business. Fish business is in good shape and all grades selling well. Vegetables about as last reported, the cold weather had kept back arrivals of potatoes somewhat.

The situation in the egg market is unchanged. Stocks are being rapidly diminished and new supplies are small. Dealers throughout the country are demanding high prices for their stock and local quotations have stiffened a little since last week. The bean market is now quiet and featureless. The hop market is now attracting some attention owing to the firm feeling in foreign countries. Local prices have been again advanced during the week. The flour market is also of interest this week. Rumors of war in the Far East have stiffened the wheat market and prices of flour are very firm although there are no important actual advances to note. As the market is very firm it would be no surprise if advances are made by the time this appears in print.

SUGAR

The trade report only a fair demand this week. The recent advance of 5c. per cwt. apparently did not stimulate buying. Foreign beet markets are weak and it would not be surprising to learn of a decline shortly.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Business in syrups in the past week is reported as farily good. Prices in Barbadoes molasses generally have been reduced to 40c. in puncheons in carload lots of 20 puncheons and over, open prices are the rule. This easing up in prices of Barbadoes is apparently due to the reports of the crop prospects that have come to hand. It is authoritatively stated that there are one or two old lots of Barbadoes on this market and these are being offered at very much lower prices.

TEAS.

As usual at this time of the year and as indicated in our report during the past few weeks, the tea trade is dull. During the last few days there has been, however, quite a brisk enquiry for China greens, Ping Suey Young Hyson, Ping Suey Gunpowders, both locally and from western points. There has been also some enquiry for these teas for future deliveries (February and March), and under the circumstances an improved market is looked for. Pea leaf teas are also enquired after. Stocks are getting light. Japan teas are in some quarters being taken off the market. Several lines of Japan teas have been sold since last week and there is a healthier tone to the market. There have been some large blocks of Oolong purchased for London account. SPICES.

A very much more active market this week. New York advices report the demand broad and urgent, particularly in cloves and pepper. The strength of the market is based on the small supplies. The principal supplies in grinders' hands is small. From all appearances gathered from one of the largest New York brokers there is going to be a stiff and rising market. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The Mount Royal Milling and Manufacturing Co. under date of the 2nd inst. have advised the trade of the withdrawal of all their grades of Japan rice, and also that they would be out of stock until the arrival of the first new crop grain from Japan, which they say will be about the end of next month. Patnas of all grades are still being offered by them The Eastern situation has had some effect, stimulating trade in rice, particularly Japans, and should hostilities commence between Japan and Russia, rice will no doubt advance materially. In tapioca no changes are reported and trade is quiet. We quote:

NUTS

Trade is on the quiet side. The recent advance in Grenobles slightly stimulated business in this line, also the rise in shelled walnuts has had a good effect in sales. Peanuts have shown a very strong market in spite of the very large crop that was harvested and dealers have been unable to fill demands. Another advance of 1-2c. per lb. is reported this week. CANNED GOODS.

A very quiet market in canned goods and no changes to report, with the exception that corn is being held at $1.10 by the majority of the jobbing trade. Salmon is receiving a little more attention, and the approaching Lenten season will no doubt still further tend to firm up prices as stocks are very light. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

There is nothing of any importance to report as regards the condition of the dried fruits trade. Brokers are without news while jobbers say that there is a fair demand for all kinds of fruit. Dates are selling from 3 1-2 to 4c. and as a large number of the retailers are selling them at 5c. per lb. the larger consumption has stimulated business. We quote:

Green Fruits.

There is not very much to report this week in the situation of the green fruit market. Trade is very quiet, although Florida oranges are selling quite freely. Now that Canadian celery is out of the market there is a much better demand for California celery. In all other lines a very stagnant trade obtains. We quote:

Fish.

Now that the holidays are over and the weather being seasonable, fresh fish is in good demand. The first lots of Newfoundland frozen herrings arrived during the last week and are selling at from $2.15 to $2.25 per 100 fish. The fish are large and bright and meeting with ready sale even at these high prices. Tommycods have been very scarce and from present outlook the impression among the trade is that prices will not depreciate. Prices on these have advanced this week to $2.25 per barrel. Fresh haddock and codfish are now arriving very freely and the demand for same increasing, in fact the demand is more than equal to the supply. In boneless fish trade is good as usual at this season of the year. Stocks, however, are light. Same will apply to skinless cod. Bulk oysters are always in steady demand and the trade for shelled oysters has fallen off. Consequently, prices on the latter are considerably lower as will be noticed by reference to our market quotations. Salt herrings in good demand and supplies are coming forward a little more freely. Stock is nice and bright. We quote:

Vegetables.

Business during the past week showed prices firm, as the cold weather prevented arrivals of any quantity of potatoes. Jobbers had the field to themselves. Within the week, however, a number of carloads have been received and mixed cars offered at 60c. per bag of 90 lb. Car of Early Rose sold at 65c. Turnips, quiet, Quebec swedes $10 to $12 per ton, and 65c. per bag of 90 lb. Parsnips $2 to $2.50 per bbl. Carrots $8 per ton. Onions, steady, Canadian red at $2.75 to $3.25; yellow $2.25 to $2.50.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

There is nothing new in the situation. Stocks on hand are almost depleted and new supplies are coming in very slowly. In consequence prices are very firm and, if anything, are higher than at the time of last week's quotations. We quote as follows: Selected, fresh stock, 28c.; market stock, 24c.; pickled eggs, 23c.

BEANS.

The market for beans is now very quiet and there is nothing of interest to note. Prices are being well maintained and it seems that they have found their level. We quote:

HOPS.

Advices from foreign markets show that prices are still tending upward. In New York, it is estimated that the 1903 crop left in growers' hands is not over 12,000 bales so heavy has been the buying. There has been active buying in New York State and as high as 30c. has again been paid for choice. A sale of a choice lot of 257 bales is reported at 31c. Brewers are showing much interest in the situation in the United States and heavy sales are reported in all parts of the Republic. The German market is also showing some very sharp advances. In sympathy with the upward tendency of foreign markets, local prices are stiffening. Choice Eastern Townships and Prince Edward County hops are now quoted at 32 to 33c: hops, fair to good, 26 to 30c.

HONEY.

The market continues dull and uninteresting. Prices remain unchanged as follows:

Strained, white	0 09	0 10
Clover and basswood		0 08½
Buckwheat	0 07	0 08
Comb honey	0 13	0 13½

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

There is very little activity at present and there are no price changes to note. We quote as follows:

Maple syrup, in large tins	0 70	0 75
Pure sugar, per lb.	0 07	0 07½

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Since last issue there has been a stiffening in price. Reports from the largest shippers indicate that they have exhausted their stock, and as the export demand is brisk prices have been advanced. One evaporator made a sale this week of 20,000 boxes at prices only a shade lower than the advanced prices being quoted to the trade this week for the first time. We quote the following increased priced:

New, in carlots	0 06	0 06½
New, in jobbing lots	0 06¾	0 06¾

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

As noted last week, the tone of the market is very firm. One or two slight advances will be noted in prices quoted and others are expected very soon, the rumors of war in the Far East having strengthened the wheat market. For the season of the year, a fair volume of business continues to be done. We quote:

Manitoba spring wheat patents	4 60	4 90

Straight rollers	3 90	4 00

FEED.

The market is quiet, the only feature of interest being an improved demand for bran. There is very little business in shorts. We quote:

Ontario bran, in bulk	16 50	17 00
" shorts	18 50	19 00
Manitoba bran, in bags		17 00
" shorts	18 50	19 00

ROLLED OATS.

The market continues very firm, but our information from the jobbers is that no actual advance has been made in their prices. There can, however, be little doubt that an advance is coming as the manufacturers are stiffening their prices. A leading broker is authority for the statement that orders could not now be filled from new stock at present prices. We quote:

Rolled oats, in bbls	3 75	3 80
" " in bags	1 75	1 80

BARLEY.

Prices as previously quoted are unchanged. There is no very special activity, and the market is without any features of special interest. We quote:

Pot barley	1 85
Pearl "	2 85

Baled Hay.

The market continues very quiet, the chief business being for local account. Prices are easier. We quote:

No. 1 timothy	9 50	10 00
No. 2 timothy, choice		8 50
No. 2 timothy, ordinary	8 00	8 25
Clover, and clover mixed	7 00	7 50

Ashes.

The demand is good and prices have been slightly advanced. Supplies are light. There are no pearls on the market and prices for same are purely nominal. The export demand is said to be good. We quote:

First pots, per cwt	6 00	6 10
Seconds	5 65	5 70
Pearls, per 100 lb	7 00	7 25

Hides.

There is no change in the situation since our last report. Receipts from the country are lighter than before the holiday season and the market is generally reported quiet. We quote:

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Jan. 9, 1904.

TRADE is beginning to assume its normal tone. This week grocery travellers are again on the road and orders are coming, although, of course, there is no rush, and trade will undoubtedly be quiet for the next few weeks. Prices are very steady, there having been very few changes made since the year beggn.

Flour.

One of the few lines to show a change of price is flour, which has been advanced 10c. per sack and 20c. per barrel. This makes the present price of $2.15 for the 95 lb. sack of No. 1 patent; No. 2, $2.30, and No. 3, $1.95. The trade in flour is good, both as to domestic demand and export trade.

Rolled Oats.

This line has also been advanced, and $1.95 is now quoted for the 80-lb. sack, and Standard and granulated range at $2.60. The grounds for the advance in rolled oats is the scarcity of really good milling oats.

Rice.

The wars and rumors of wars have made no difference in prices of Japan rice here. Business is the ordinary Winter trade, and prices are 5 to 5¼c. for Japan; "B" rice, 4 to 4¼c.; Patna, 5 to 5¼c. Sago, 3⅝ to 3¾c. Tapioca, 3¼ to 3⅜c.

Coffee.

The market is very firm and has advanced and there is some difference of opinion as to actual values, but, as nearly as can be ascertained, No. 5 Rio is worth 9c. here as an outside figure, although, possibly, it could not now be laid down to sell at that price.

Teas.

The war news did not affect Japan teas on this market, although it is reported that Montreal prices had stiffened. Japan tea is never a large feature in this market, although the use of it has been steadily on the increase since the American invasion began. Ceylon and Indian teas are without change and show a range of from 17 to 26c.

Sugars.

The demand is normal, and, so far, prices are without change: Granulated, $4.60 to $6.65; Wallaceburg granulated, $4.55; light yellow, $4.

Syrups.

Fine Davenport, in barrels, 3⅜c.; corn syrup, 3⅛c.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits.

Raisins are quiet and without change. Fine off-stalk are $1.90; layers, $2.15; sultanas, 9 to 11c.; muscatels, 3 crown, 8½c. Currants, 5¾c.; cleaned, in packages, 6½c. California evaporated fruits—peaches, 8¾c.; apricots, 10 to 11½c.; pitted plums, 10c.; Silver prunes, 7½c.; Ruby prunes, 6¾c.; ordinary prunes, 3¾c. for 100 to 120s, to 8½c. for 30 to 40s.

Canned Vegetables.

There is no material change in the situation except that tomatoes are somewhat easier and there is a great variation of prices. Perhaps $2.65 is nearly correct. Peas, $1.90 to $2; corn, $2.

Butter.

The receipts of dairy butter continue to be very light, and anything at all choice is quickly absorbed at fancy prices, 20 to 21c. being offered for fresh sweet butter. There are no large stocks of butter held in the city, and, indeed, the Spring opening of the dairy season will find stocks particularly well cleaned up.

Eggs.

Anything like fresh case eggs bring 21 to 22c., subject to candling; strictly fresh are worth 40 to 45c. in a retail way.

Dressed Meats.

There is not much demand, as all houses were extra stocked for Christmas. Prices are steady at 5¾ to 6½c. for tops, with 1c. less for country dressed. Dressed hogs, 5¾c. for standard bacon hogs, with ¾ to 1c. less for under and over-weights.

Green Fruits.

The market is very quiet after the holiday season, but is beginning to show signs of revival. There is no improvement as yet in the heated car service, but milder weather has of course lessened the danger from frost.

Notes.

Tees & Persse, wholesale commission merchants, and agents in the West of The E. B. Eddy Co., have presented a splendid trophy for competition among the wholesale curling rinks of the city.

MOLASSES REPORT.

THE situation in Barbadoes promises a larger crop of molasses, judging from reports that have come to hand from the island. Weather conditions have been good, and unless rains seriously intervene a good crop may be expected. The reports to hand have been considered reliable and in some quarters, notably Montreal, prices have receded 2c. per gallon. We publish a letter dated Barbadoes, December 10, from S. P Musson, Son & Co., to their Montreal representatives, W. S. Goodhugh & Co., which states the position of the crop prospects clearly as follows:

We avail of the present opportunity to advise that the dry weather which prevailed during last month, and has continued to the present time over the major portion of the island, will, we think, materially affect the yield of both sugar and molasses next year. Estimates vary so much that it is difficult to form any accurate opinion of the probable output, but a conservative calculation would be for about 50,000 hhds. sugar, and 38,000 puns. molasses, which latter may be increased perhaps to 40,000 if the juice of the canes is weak. Rain from the present time to the end of January would alter this, and of course retard reaping operations, which, under the present existing conditions will commence early. Many estates expect to begin in January, as the canes show signs of ripening up, in which case molasses may be obtainable to a limited extent in the latter part of that month, but certainly in February. We may mention that for the future, molasses will be bought and sold puncheons included. It is too early yet to form any idea as to opening price, but the general opinion seems to be that there will be a good demand, and we would therefore ask our friends to send us their orders as much ahead as possible. You will throughout the season be kept advised of all changes in the market through our New York agents.

IMPORTS OF JAPAN TEA.

Editor "The Canadian Grocer";—In the last issue of "The Grocer" Mr. C. M. Bernard, of Chicago, quotes figures as to the imports of Japan tea into Canada during the past year, differing from the figures quoted by the Salada Tea Co. in their advertisement of the same issue. There are two explanations of this.

In the first place the figures published by the Salada Tea Co. in their advertisement were gotten from the Government at Ottawa, and must be correct; Mr. Bernard's figures are taken from shipments made from Japan to Canada, and some of those teas may have been consigned to Canada but never landed here, having been sold in the United States on the advance samples before the teas arrived in port; then Mr. Bernard's figures were up to November 30th, whereas the figures issued by the Government were only up to June 30th. Anyway there is only a discrepancy of about 200,000 pounds, and Mr. Bernard's own figures show that the Japan tea trade has declined in four years from 1,666,757 pounds in 1899 to 5,114,838 pounds in 1903.

CHINESE CALENDAR.

The Moulin Ocean (Ocean Mills) Montreal, have issued a very attractive calendar for 1904. The march of the Chinamen in front of Wong Lung's store is very staid and solemn. The coloring is in bright Eastern shades. In front of the store are displayed several boxes and packages of Chinese starch. The proprietors of Ocean Mills will be pleased to mail one of these handsome calendars to all subscribers of "The Canadian Grocer." Drop them a post card.

PACK OF TOMATOES.

THE twenty-fourth annual report of the tomato pack of the United States and Canada reveals the natural results of the short pack and the very high prices of 1901, says the American Grocer. This brought about a rapid extension of the industry, exhibited by an increase of acreage and the building of new canning factories, naotably in Virginia and Maryland, and, to a less extent, in Indiana, which movement went on with greater force in 1903.

The pack of 1903 turns out to be the heaviest on record, reaching a total of 10,555,115 cases, and undoubtedly surpasses the heavy output of 1902 by over half a million cases, after allowing fully 500,000 cases for houses in Maryland and Virgina, unlisted and not reported in 1902. The pack was as follows, in cases of two dozen tins each:

	1902.	1903.
United States ..	9,282,812	10,157,615
Canada.....	212,000	397,500
Total.....	9,494,812	10,555,115

The total pack compares with the output of the nine previous years as follows:

1903.....	10,555,115	1898.....	5,797,806
1902.....	9,494,812	1897.....	4,149,441

1899.....	7,404,923	1894.....	6,586,979
Total for ten years			62,092,858
Average per year.....			6,209,286
Average per year, 1901-02.....			8,189,383

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE

THE following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the Canadian Government office in London:

1. A London contractor and importer is looking out for Canadian supplies of hemlock or pine railway ties and maple and hickory skewers.
2. A resident of Belfast claiming to have a good connection with the wholesale and retail trades in the North of Ireland, has requested to be furnished with names of Canadian exporters of bacon, cheese and butter.
3. A firm of manufacturers and publishers of chromo almanacs, show cards, etc., desires to hear from wholesale printers and stationers in Canada likely to take up their goods.
4. Inquiry is made respecting the possibility of opening up a trade with Canada in writing inks and a pure rice starch.
5. A West of England firm of brush manufacturers and dealers in woodenwa e are seeking supplies of broom and fork handles in basswood. They also import washing boards, clothes pegs and other similar woodenware.
6. A Belfast firm would like to correspond with Canadian exporters of produce, fruit, cheese, hams, canned goods, etc., with a view to selling these goods on commission among buyers in Ireland wh re a large and safe trade is to be done.
7. A well-known firm of glue manufacturers wish to get into touch with Canadian buyers of this article.

[The names of those making inquiries may be obtained from the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.]

AGENTS APPOINTED.

Mr. R. C. Snowdon has been appointed selling agent in Manitoba, Northwest Territories and British Columbia for "Chinese Starch." He will also place the various lines manufactured by Ocean Mills before the trade in that section of Canada. Being thoroughly familiar with the trade in the west he should command a good share of business, particularly as the merits of his company's goods are well advertised.

A NEW BLANC MANGE POWDER.

The Ocean Mills, Montreal, have placed upon the market a new blanc mange powder. It is a very handsome package and the quality of the goods excellent as only the purest ingredients and flavors are used in its production. Though only lately placed on sale orders have come to hand from Quebec, Halifax and St. John, and as the article shows the trade a good profit should meet with ready sales. Samples and particulars may be obtained by addressing Ocean Mills, Montreal.

WHOLESALE GROCERS' OFFICERS.

Mr. John I. Davidson was re-elected chairman of the grocers' section of the Board of Trade at the annual meeting a week ago to-day. The matters discussed at the meeting concerned the internal affairs of the trade, but all of the members present stated that the outlook for business this year was of the best. It is expected that the Spring trade with the Northwest will be unusually large. In addition to the chairman all of the old officers were re-elected as follows: Deputy Chairman, Hugh Blain; Secretary-Treasurer, Agnes C. Gray; Executive Committee, John Sloan, W. Ince, jr., F. W. Humphrey and T. Kinnear.

MONEY TALKS.

Mr. James A. McGuane, manager of the New York branch of the "Salada" Tea Co., E. W. Gilbert, of the Pittsburg branch, and Chas. Sutherland, of the Detroit branch, each received a bonus of $1,000 for having increased their business over 50 per cent. in the past year. New York branch had an increase of 87 1-2 per cent., Pittsburg branch 87 per cent., and Detroit branch 55 1-2 per cent.

THE LATE MR. GEO. HOPE.

THE death in Montreal last Tuesday, the 5th inst., of Mr. George Hope, traveller for J. A. Mathewson & Co., wholesale grocers, removes from the road a gentleman who has represented the grocery and kindred interests since 1877. Mr. Hope was born in 1851 in the Gore of Lochiel, Glengarry County, of good Scotch stock. At an early age he went to Montreal to complete his education and while there acquired a knowledge of the French language. At the age of 17 he went to Hamilton, Ont., entering the wholesale grocery house of Harvey, Stuart & Co., in those days one of the largest and most prominent business houses of the west. After serving an apprenticeship for five years and acquiring a knowledge of the business, he took out the sample case for his firm, covering the ground known as the Niagara Peninsula, later working west as far as Windsor. The firm of Harvey, Stuart & Co. having been dissolved, he went with the newly organized firm of Alexander Harvey & Co., head of his late employers firm. It was while employed as traveller for Alexander Harvey & Co. that the writer who was preparing himself for the honored position of traveller, became acquainted with George Hope. After the firm of Alexander Harvey & Co. was dissolved, Mr. Hope represented several of the leading western grocery houses, also the Hamilton Vinegar Co., the latter in this district. His last position was with J. A. Mathewson & Co., Montreal, whom he represented in Quebec, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence and partly through the Eastern Townships.

George Hope was a hard-working, conscientious and tireless worker and during all the years the writer has known him as a traveller he has yet to hear of anything but praise. His late employer, Mr. Samuel Mathewson, of J. A. Mathewson & Co., stated to the writer: "You can say it for me that though George Hope only travelled for us since last Spring, I found him straight, square, hard-working and honorable to a degree, he never had an unkind word for anyone and I am sorry to lose him."

Well deserved words of praise and honorably earned. The funeral took place Friday afternoon from his late residence, 80 Cathcart street, to the Bonaventure station and thence to the family burying plot at Summerstown, Ont. He left no family, his wife having pre-deceased him about eight years ago.

A MODEL FOOD FACTORY.

The new factory of The Clydesdale Stock Food Co., Elizabeth street, Toronto, is certainly a model in many respects. Cleanliness prevails everywhere, and the representative of "The Grocer" was surprised to see the attention given to this virtue. The plant is entirely new and specially adapted to the requirements of the business. The artistic and attractive manner in which the goods are packed will recommend them to the general storekeeper, and Mr. Ernest Pratt, the general manager, says that he is finding a large market with this class of trade.

The buildings comprise three storeys, all of which are devoted to the manufacture of stock, poultry food and veterinary preparations. The general offices are in keeping with the other departments.

AN OLD FIRM BRANCHING OUT.

Alexander Turner, of James Turner & Co., has built a splendid brick warehouse in Calgary, 100 by 130 feet, with a railroad siding, so that goods can be loaded from the warehouse to the cars, or from the cars to the warehouse, and thus save an immense deal of labor, and the goods from being twice handled.

Mr. Turner has leased this building to Canada Grocers Limited, who will open up about 1st to 15th February with a splendid stock of groceries.

The business will be managed by Lloyd T. Mewburn.

James Turner & Co. commenced doing business in Manitoba about 1869, and Mr. Mewburn opened up their business in British Columbia and the Northwest Territories in 1889, and from that time to this they have enjoyed a large and rapidly increasing trade in the Far West.

To assist buyers who need to sort up quickly, this warehouse has been established in Calgary, and a splendid stock of staples will be carried there, and no doubt any buyers who send their orders to the Calgary house will have same promptly attended to.

Mr. Vila, while looking after the interests of James Turner & Co., Hamilton, will also sell for the Calgary warehouse, assisted by Mr. Grant. By that means it is assured that James Turner & Co. will be well backed up by the merchants of Alberta and British Columbia.

SEEDLESS TOMATO PULP.

A new product is being placed on the market by the Burlington Canning Co., in the shape of a seedless tomato pulp, specially prepared for making soups. The pulp is put up in 2 1-2 pound cans. It is said to be equal to three times the quantity of canned tomato, and should meet with a ready sale. Mr. Fisher, president of the Burlington company, was in Toronto this week calling on the wholesale trade and introducing this new line.

EASTERN VISITORS.

Mr. Troop, of Black Bros. & Co., Halifax, N.S., and Mr. A. H. Brittain, Board of Trade Building, Montreal, who represents this firm in Ontario and Quebec, were in Toronto this week calling on the jobbing trade in the interests of "Halifax" and "Acadia" codfish, which are being introduced to the Ontario trade. These gentlemen were met at the King Edward Hotel by a representative of "The Grocer" and expressed themselves as highly pleased at the reception they were receiving at the hands of the Toronto wholesalers. They remarked that the ad. which they have been running in "The Grocer" was an excellent introduction in their round of the street. Mr. Brittain will continue an energetic campaign in Ontario and Quebec, and has every reason to anticipate building up a large business.

A very large consignment consisting of some 800 cases of "Salada" Ceylon tea was received into stock at the Montreal agency on Tuesday last.

OLIVE GROWING IN SPAIN.

DURING recent years efforts have been made to improve the quality of the olive oil produced in this country, writes the U. S. Consul General at Barcelona, so as to enable it to compete in foreign markets with the French and Italian oils, which are so universally appreciated. Some measure of success has already attended these efforts, and this has encouraged the leading Spanish oil crushers to spend money on improvements in their machinery, with every prospect of a good return.

A few particulars about the production of oil in Spain, and especially the preserving of the olives, may prove of interest to olive growers in California, as it has been found that Spanish olives keep longer and are better preserved than those from that State.

The pickling of green olives is an important branch of industry here. Besides the home consumption, which is large, some 6,000 to 7,500 tons, valued at about $800,000, are annually exported. The olives are packed either in bottles or kegs. For pickling, the green olives are carefully selected; all those that are in the slightest degree bruised or damaged are rejected, as only the perfect fruit is capable of being preserved. The selected olives are then placed in fresh water to soak for several days, care being taken to frequenely change the water; they are then put into the pickling mixture, which is a solution of common salt and soda, the olives being entirely covered. This is the general method adopted, and though some manufacturers may slightly alter the solution used, and add to it certain aromatic substances to flavor the olives, the basis of the preparation is invariably common salt and soda.

Ripe and half-ripe olives are preserved only in small quantities, as there is little demand for them.

As already mentioned, until quite recently little attention has been paid to the method of extracting oil in Spain, and, consequently, in many parts the most primitive means are still in use.

It is usual for the small grower himself to extract the oil from the olives grown on his land; and, as he frequently does not own the necessary appliances, he borrows them from the nearest town, paying for their use either money or oil. These machines are of the most primitive description. The olives are first crushed in a mill turned by a horse or bullock; they are then placed in lever presses and the oil thus extracted, boiling water being generally used in the process. These wooden presses, though powerful, are very slow, and it often happens that the olives have to be stored until the presses are available, with the result that fermentation sets in, and this naturally detracts from the quality of the oil. It is said that there are between 3,000 and 4,000 of these presses in Spain. Formerly the pulp remaining in the presses was used as fodder or fuel, but now it is sold and a second extraction of oil is made from it. There are 63 mills in Spain for extracting oil from this pulp.

The largest oil manufacturers, especially those in the Province of Catalonia, have been the first to recognize the importance of improving their machinery; the old crushing mills and wooden presses have been replaced by steel cylinders and hydraulic presses, so that not only is a greater yield obtained, but the quality of the oil is better. Nearly all the machinery in use is of Spanish make.

After being extracted, the oil is run into earthenware jars or tin tanks, and, after a certain time, strained, so as to separate it from the amurca. It is then poured into deposits to be kept until required, afcohol being sometimes used to keep off the action of the air.

The lower grades of oil, as well as the amurca, are used in the manufacture of common soap.

The following is a copy of the official statistics showing the exports of olive oil during the past two years:

DRIED APPLES IN CARTONS.

It is reported that many of the large dried apple dealers in the Eastern States are preparing for a change in the manner of handling the main part of the evaporated apple crop. For many years the only method of packing fruit for shipment has been to pack the apples in 50 lb. pine boxes, which were faced up on one side.

Now some of them will pack them in small cartons. This method has many advantages, one of which is that by the new way of packing but one variety will be put in a box, and it will be labeled with the name. Another advantage is that the directions for making pies from evaporated fruit can be printed on each package, as very few housewives know how to use the fruit properly for pie purposes.

It is expected the demand will be so great from the customers and this manner of selling apples will become so popular that westerners will take it up.

DAY OF THE PACKAGE GROCERY.

In an advertisement a sugar refining company of Philadelphia sets forth that "slowly but surely the grocery business is reaching a business of packages—the clean handy cartons that carry food unspoiled from maker to user."

This forecast, while introducing its "2-lb. cartons and 2, 5, 10, 25, 50 and 100-lb. cotton bags" into which sugar is put, is something worth considering. It is true a housewife would prefer to see her order for sugar come to the kitchen in a neat-sized carton, or in a cotton bag where there is no chance to question the packing. It is needless to say that in some stores, the sugar scoop is also the rice, cornmeal and flour scoop, and perhaps is called upon to serve a dozen other uses, and if a careful analysis of the "sugar" was made, it might be found there was an astonishing per cent. of something the customer did not order, found therein.

SOMETHING ABOUT A COFFEE BULL.

REGARDING Loyal L. Smith, a coffee plunger, so-called, belonging to the Chicago crowd in Wall street, who is reputed to have made last Summer $250,000 in coffee speculation, a New York publication says:

"A good friend of his, who probably knows more about the coffee market than any man in this country, told Smith some things about coffee. With that information Smith began to study the coffee situation himself. As a result, he sold coffee short, according to those in the trade, who should know, for nearly a year. A few days before the recent rise in the market he began to buy coffee in large quantities to cover his shorts. He covered, took his profits, which were not small, and now he is regarded as a coffee bull.

"In his operating in Wall street Hr. Smith does not intend, if he can help it, that anybody shall get on to his curves. To that end, he has accounts in four or five different Stock Exchange houses, and it is said that under no circumstances does he ever allow one of his brokers to know anything about the business he does with the others. And this is the man who came out of the West five years ago with not more than $2[illegible],000 in cash, and in that time has cleaned up $5,000,000!"

IMPROVING PREMISES.

The Montreal premises of "Salada" are undergoing some alterations and improvements, giving increased facilities for the handling of a rapidly growing busness.

FUNERAL GUARANTEED.

An Essex oyster merchant, advertising his wares, adds the following offer: "Should death be proved to have occurred through eating the same, a decent funeral guaranteed."

COFFEE STILL RISING.

WILLETT & GRAY, in their latest weekly statistical report, have the following to say on coffee: Receipts in Brazil again show signs of decreasing and in consequence the Rio and Santos markets are higher. The cost and freight prices now asked show a considerable disparity compared with tne European markets. Of late the new business for European account especially in Santos has been unimportant, but notwithstanding this Brazil holders are obdurate. The conclusion to be drawn from this is that the bulk of the current crop having been marketed, the Brazilians are content to await developments, with the strong fact before them that the growing crop has suffered irreparable damage. Years ago, when the crops were of much smaller compass, it was customary for the leading houses to send out estimates early in January representing their views of the coming year. In these days, considering the area under cultivation, it is a far different proposition to arrive at an approximate figure of the total outturn. Nevertheless, figures will be put forward, and great variations may be expected. Very few people consider the current crop will exceed 11,000,000 bags, the opinion of the majority leaning towards 10½ millions, say 6½ millions for Santos and about 4 millions for Rio.

The current crop is smaller, more on account of the lack of means to give proper care to the plantations themselves, combined with the fact that the frost of August, 1902, having interfered with the development of fruit from so many of the young trees. The figures of the world's visible on the first of January will show the first material reduction this season, from 250,000 to 300,000 bags, and it is obvious that each month from now until the end of the season will show a marked decrease in the world's stocks. It is fair to assume that the growing crop will yield less than the current, and the market will watch with the keenest interest the representations which will be forthcoming in the near future. It is also reasonable to expect that conservative houses will exercise extreme caution in their expressions as to the probable outturn. There is a desire to avoid exaggerations on the part of those who have the best interests of Brazil at heart. Consuming countries control good stocks, and it would be strange if Brazil holders did not observe an attitude truly in keeping with the actual facts. At the present time they appear to have confidence in their own ability to exact existing values.

As usual, a good demand is looked for after the turn of the year.

While it is understood that some private transactions have been done on the basis of 7¼c. for Rio No. 7 on spot and afloat, regular N.Y. Terms, the spot price to-day is 7¼c., afloat 7 3-8c. and to be shipped 7½c., usual terms. Santos No. 4 is held at 8⅝c., with some premium for fine selections.

December options, week ending December 30: Highest, 6.90 to 6.95; lowest, 6.65 to 6.70; closing, 6.70 to 6.75, against last year closing 4.35 to 4.45. No. 7 last year, 5¼c.

BROKER AND MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

The proposal to organize statistics of the production and commerce of coffee has been approved by the Brazilian Senate, and will be entrusted to the Servico de Estatistic Commercial.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of the Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Jan. 11, 1904.

OUR merchants are busy settling the last year's business. It has been a good year, though with some, somewhat marred by bad debts. Even some of our most careful houses, who seldom figure in these unpleasant matters, have been caught. Many, however, have been more fortunate and find not more than the usual average. The local guild had a meeting this week to elect the representatives to attend the Dominion Guild meeting in Montreal. C. H. Peters, of Baird & Peters, Geo. C. Barbour, and W. C. Cross, of Hall & Fairweather, are to be the representatives. One principal topic discussed was the Canners' Association. Our trade are far from satisfied with the method of the past season. Winter port business, which is of such importance to St. John, has been very satisfactory this season. The value of exports and the number of sailings have exceeded anything we have yet had. The imports are not as large as they should be. Canada in importers, particularly in Ontario, should see their goods are all ordered via St. John. Canada has too long been building up a foreign port. Increased facilities are greatly needed. We are prepared to do our part; the railways seem inclined to do theirs; we ask some aid from the Government. If it is to be of service it must be given at once. Delay will make it too late. In the interests of Canada as a whole, in Imperial interest, the Government should come to our aid.

Oil.

There begins to be rather less demand for burning oil. The very high price and the lengthening days both tend to this result. Lubricatings have attention; prices are firm. This is the line in which there is the chief competitnon. Linseeds are low but turpentine holds firm. Fish oils are scarce and high.

Salt.

Present stocks of Liverpool coarse salt are quite large. There has been a steady sale and prices are firmly held. In fine salt this is the quiet season.

Canned Goods.

There is but a fairly active market. Tomatoes are rather higher. Corn is also very firmly held. Peas seem in good supply. In fruits the market is well supplied. Our supply of blueberries was chiefly drawn from Prince Edward Island. In salmon good stocks are held. Springs are quite high. They have the sale here. Meats are now being quoted, prices about as last season and as usual are guaranteed till into the Summer, and deliveries made to suit the buyer. There is perhaps no other line in which buyers are so well treated. In domestic fish stocks are light.

Green Fruit.

This is the quiet season. Not only is demand light but the weather makes shipping difficult. Jamaica oranges have a very large sale; Valencias have a fair demand. Other grades show little business. Lemons are steady. In Malaga grapes light sale is met. Apples hold firm. While there was a very large crop in Nova Scotia the quality was good and the export demand relieved the market.

Dried Fruit.

Business is quiet. There is little new. In raisins fair stocks are held and prices are low. Prunes are not a large stock. In small sizes prices are likely to be firmer. Apricots are high. Peaches have a light sale. Dates are freely offered, price low. Evaporated apples are unchanged, a fair stock is held. Peanuts show quite an advance.

Sugar.

Prices keep low. There is a steady sale. The past year showed an almost even market.

Fish.

Business is not active. Values rule firmer. At this season there is considerable interest in fresh fish. Full prices are asked. Cod, haddock, herring and smelt are offered. Herring are very scarce and owing to better prices west, but a limited quantity of smelt is sent here. Haddies are very firm. Dry cod holds at full figures. Pollock are rather slow. Pickled herring seem to be in ample supply at the present high price. Smoked herring are in very light supply.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

There seems a better demand for flour and the price is firm. There is little doubt but the war scare is somewhat affecting all staple lines. Oats have had an improved sale. They are firmer, as is oatmeal. Cornmeal keeps quite low. Feed has but a fair demand. Beans are held at quite full figures and there is no excitement. Barley and peas are firm. Blue peas, which formerly sold quite largely here have for the last two seasons been very scarce.

Molasses.

This is a subject of particular interest. It is early for excitement, but it is here without doubt. An American concern has for some years been trying to control the molasses market of Canada, particularly in Porto Rico grades. They have met much opposition here, chiefly from one house. Last year they seemed to get the upper hand and till this week carried about all the stock held here. Prices were high and firmly held, when suddenly the situation was changed. Our local people received a cargo of Porto Rico this week, something very unusual at this season, and have cut prices four to six cents. Local houses are not much affected. The outcome will be watched with interest. It seems a fight to the finish.

Notes.

St. John has given a most hearty reception to the Transportation Commission, which is composed as follows: John Bertram, of Toronto (chairman); Robert Reford, of Montreal, and Ed. C. Fry, of Quebec. With them are C. N. Bell, of Winnipeg, secretary; J. X. Perrault, Montreal, associate secretary, and Geo. Simpson, of the Hansard staff, Ottawa, as stenographer. This is the first place they have visited and this fact we feel points to an understanding of our important claims and our immediate need. Our Common Council and Board of Trade are doing everything possible to facilitate the investigation.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 8.

SUCCEEDING the new year and the holidays, there is noted in the grocery and provision trade a slight dullness, though there is no more than what is the usual experience at this time of year. Many merchants are taking the opportunity to take stock and clean up preparatory to meeting better business when trade opens up as it will before many weeks. The experience of the average merchant, both retail and wholesale, for the past year has been very satisfactory. That there has been a steady growth in 1903 is evidenced by the fact that without exception the merchants state that their aggregate business for nearly every month has been greater than in 1902, while there never was such a Christmas and holiday trade done before in the history of the coast.

The outlook for the year which has opened is bright. There are no conditions which would indicate that the regular trade done during the past year will not continue and show a corresponding expansion. There are more than possibilities that the coming season will bring with it new opportunities for trade which will have a very important effect upon the total of business here for this year. One of these is, of course, the opening of work on the Grand Trunk Pacific, which was definitely promised by the Canadian Government, and which is so arranged that it shall begin at this coast simultaneously with the commencement of operations in the east.

But a very interesting possibility ,and one which will add a new factor to the excellent jobbing trade done from the coast cities of Britsh Columbia, is the bright prospects for the new gold finds in the northern country, particularly in the district which is tributary to White Horse, the Alsek district. This has been mentioned before, but it is worth while drawing attention to it again, in the way of preparing for the demand for goods which will undoubtedly come from that section, with and before the opening of the Summer season. Whether or not there is good gold ground there, and that appears to be pretty well assured, there is bound to be a big rush to the district. There have been over 2,000 claims in all registered since the find was made last Fall, and there will be many more recorded as soon as the Winter is over to allow further prospecting. There has been no movement in the north since the opening of the Klondike district, which has created so much excitement and in which so much interest is being taken. The number of people who are already on the move into the country is surprising, and a large number have arrangements made to start with the opening of Spring. No matter what the results of the Summer's digging, there will be a big demand for supplies for this season at any rate.

There is a possible addition to the factors which will make up the total of trade here this year, on which people in the east are as well posted as the people here. That is the possibility of war between Japan and Russia. That of course is apparently beyond the bounds of certain prophecy. Certainly if war should occur, there would be a great deal of activity here as a result. The British Government would in all likelihood use this route entirely in sending forward its men and supplies and it is quite likely the purchase of supplies by the belligerents would have some influence here also.

One of the first indications of the effect of a possibility of war in the Far East is seen in the rise in the price of rice, which is freely imported here from Japan. Twice in the past month the wholesale trade has been notified by correspondents in Japan of the advance in price. Victoria merchants received notices of an advance of $7 per ton in the price of Japan rice, which is the favorite in ordinary trade. The prospect is of further increase. This is despite the fact that the rice crop in Japan is much larger than in former seasons. The exportation is being discouraged owing to the probability of war.

The advance of 30c. per barrel on flour announced this week by Manitoba millers has not yet been reflected here, but it will likely go into effect soon, a peculiarity of the market here being its slowness to respond to a rise in other markets even where they are markets of supply for this. The reason is that the dealers have got into the habit of selling out stocks on the basis of former market prices, not taking notice of market conditions until they are forced to renew stocks at the advanced prices. The last advance in flour went into effect in December.

Local dealers report the poultry stocks brought forward never better cleaned up. Some dealers are out entirely and others have but small stocks left. These are of course in cold storage and will all be absorbed easily. The fact that no one met with adverse experience in the handling of the Christmas poultry trade this year, gives great satisfaction. In other years there has been heavy loss on account of overstocking and occasionally late arrival. This season, despite th fact that such large importations, about ten cars in all, were brought in, the whole trade was handled without a kick.

The movement in fruit circles is about at its lowest ebb just now. The apple stock is still very liberal, and both Fraser Valley and up-country stocks are all that are required. Washington and Oregon stock has not come on the market at all this season. It marks an era in the development in apple growing in British Columbia for in past years very heavy shipments have been brought in. The prices obtained east of the mountains by Washington and Oregon growers have been higher than the stock would bring on this side, even had the stocks here been smaller.

Oranges show but little movement, though the California orange growers have adopted different tactics in opening the market this season. Instead of putting the early stocks on at high figures, the market has opened very low. Fancy navels are quoted at $3 to $3.50 and choice at $2.75 to $3. Seedlings are as low as $2.50. Other fruits are out of the market, except lemons which are firm at $3, and bananas, for which there is practically no demand.

The little Jap oranges are still making themselves felt on the market, there being some fairly large stocks held yet. But there will be no more receipts this season, the Empress of Japan the last steamer to arrive, having brought none. This orange, which is always a prime favorite, has been overstocked on the market this year, so that prices have been very low. The loss, if any, has been to consignors who sent over much larger shipments than ordered, and in some cases these were refused. If accepted they were at the risk of the consignor. Many boxs have been lost through spoiling.

Just now there is a very quiet produce market. The supplies are quite equal to all demand, and little is coming forward. The local creameries have done a bbg business in the past year and are still putting out a small quantity of butter. The stock of fresh made dairy butter, as shown at the New Westminster weekly market is small.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 11th, 1904.

THE flour market is much excited and prices of all grades have been advanced locally. The first jump some days ago was ten cents, which has since been increased to 20c. The reason ascribed for this is the present unsettled state of affairs in the Far East which has led to an advance in the cost of wheat. Unfortunately stocks in this city, as is usual at this time of the year, are low and so the market has responded readily to the firm position taken by the mills. The jobbing prices of flour at Halifax at present are as follows:

On capital not exceeding $ 10,000	$ 5 00
" " " 100,000	10 00
" " " 500,000	20 00
" " Exceeding 500,000	25 00
Mutual insurance companies without capital	50 00

On Friday night Matheson's flour mill at Dartmouth, opposite Halifax, was destroyed by fire. The mill, which was a wooden building, was valued at $2,000 and carried no insurance. The machinery, which was valued at $6,000, carried $1,500 of insurance. The machinery was practically new, some of it having been installed only last week.

A small war has broken out in the molasses trade, the principals being a Halifax and a St. John importer. The Halifax firm has been gradually gathering to itself the bulk of the molasses trade of the Eastern Provinces and this year anticipating the advance in prices bought heavily in the West Indian markets. The new crop of Porto Rico molasses is now to hand, somewhat earlier than usual and the first action of the St. John firm is to offer this crop at a cut of five to six cents per gallon, which if followed by other holders would mean a reduction in the value of the old molasses held in the Lower Provinces of from $30,000 to $35,000. The trade here consider that the cut is altogether unwarranted by the crop prospects in the countries of production. Barbadoes especially, promises to be a short crop owing to the continued dry weather, the yield not being likely to exceed 50,000 hgds. sugar and 38,000 puns. molasses

The attention of companies incorporated under the Provincial or Dominion statutes is directed to the amendment passed at the last session of the Nova Scotia Legislature, which requires that these companies when sending the list of shareholders, etc., to the Provincial Secretary's office, shall also during the month of January pay the following annual registration fees:

Manitoba patents	$4 15	$5 25
70 per cent blends	4 50	4 60
75 " "	4 45	4 55
80 " "	4 35	4 45
90 " "	4 15	4 20

Any company continuing business in the province without complying with this regulation is liable to a penalty of $100. The annual fees to be paid by foreign companies are double the above amounts.

Black Bros. & Co. are much encouraged with the reception that is being accorded their package codfish in the Upper provinces. The first full carload for Montreal was shipped last week and was all sold to arrive. Mr. Harry Troop of this firm is now in Western Canada and reports that these new fishstuffs are taking well with the grocery trade. If there is anything in making a good beginning the present should be a very profitable year for Nova Scotia fishermen. On New Year's Day Messrs. R. & T. Hendober, fish merchants of Hulf Island Cove, Guysboro Co., took from their boats 158,000 pounds of fresh haddock. This is a record for one day for a single firm. Besides this they bought the catch of a number of other fishermen, paying them for the day's receipts $2,370. The fish were frozen by the Messrs. Whitman, of Canso.

B. C. Fruit Growers.

IN conversation with a Victoria Colonist reporter Mr. W. J. Brandreth, secretary of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association, said that the prospects for the fruit growers were never better. The Board of Horticulture were using every endeavor to keep out infected trees and fruit. The association was furnishing those who were just commencing in the industry with valuable information, the result of years of careful experiments and observations. Thousands of dollars would have been saved had the fruit growers been in possession of this information twelve or fifteen years ago. He said that the rigid enforcement of the rules and regulations of the Board of Horticulture, while they would undoubtedly work more or less hardship, would prove of immense benefit to the careful grower. The enforcement of the "Fruit Mark's Act" by the Dominion Government was having a very beneficial effect. A wonderful improvement in packing and grading had taken place since Mr. Maxwell Smith's appointment as inspector. He said that while it was true the grower received a better price for his fruit than formerly, the consumer paid no more for it because the grading was an assurance of the contents of the box; whereas, previous to the enforcement of the act, all sorts and conditions of fruit passed. The fruit crop in the year just passed was a little below the average, but the good prices realized have evened it up, so that on the whole the season has been fairly satisfactory.

Among the Fruit Men.

THE DAWSON COMMISSION CO., fruit, produce and commission Merchants, Toronto, can justly lay claim to being one of the oldest established fruit and commission businesses in Ontario. They began in Toronto in July, 1893, as an offshoot of Dawson & Co. Brampton, and have since become organized as a joint stock company. Dawson & Co., Brampton, are said to be the first Canadian exporters of apples and poultry to Great Britain, away back in the fifties. That their enterprise was not a wild goose chase has been proven again and again in the interval.

The older Dawson firm also enjoy the distinction of having been the first firm to ship freight of any kind over the Hamilton & Northwestern Railroad. At the time when they began to export fruit the G.T.R. had only reached as far west as Guelph.

When questioned by a reporter from "The Grocer" about the development of the fruit trade in Canada, and of their own share of it in particular, Mr. Dawson said: "The Canadian fruit trade has increased easily one thousand per cent. in the last 20 years. In the old days one fruit and produce firm managed to look after the Toronto trade; now there are 10 or 11 of such firms, and they are all managing to hold their heads above water. Our own business has increased at least ten-fold since 1893. A few years ago a single carload of bananas was sufficient to glut the Toronto market. To-day, a merchant who can't handle two or three cars is considered of small account. It is no uncommon thing to see as many as 10 or 15 cars of bananas on the G.T.R. sidings in a day when bananas are in season. Although the growth of the fruit trade in Canada has been phenomenal, there is not much danger of over-supply, so long as there are proper facilities for handling goods."

Dawson & Co., besides being large exporters of apples and poultry, do a large business locally in foreign fruit, such as oranges, lemons, bananas, pineapples, nuts, grape-fruit, etc.

Our Apples Wanted in France.

The Extension of Markets Division of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, has recently received letters from two firms in Paris, France, making inquiries as to the apple crop in Canada this year and the steamship service between Canada and France; also asking for the names of some of the leading exporters of apples with whom business connections might be made.

New Fruit Steamers.

The United Fruit Co. are to increase their service between Boston and the West Indies by the addition of three new steamers, which will be larger than any now engaged in the fruit carrying trade. This important announcement was made recently, and while detailed plans of the new ships are not yet at hand, it is known that they will be almost double the tonnage of the steamers now engaged in the trade. The contract for the new boats has been awarded to the well-known shipbuilding firm of Workman, Clark & Co., of Belfast, and work on one of the steamers has already been begun.

The open season for lobster fishing began in St. John and Charlotte Counties, N.B., on January 6.

U. S. WHOLESALE GROCERS.

"The Grocer" has received a copy of the 1904 Wholesale Grocers' Directory of the United States. The number of exclusive wholesale grocers in the United States, according to the directory, is 2,462, and the number of changes in the last 12 months, 510. The directory sells for $1, and may be had by addressing Orrin Thacker, Columbus, Ohio.

C. P. R. 1903 LAND SALES.

The Canadian Pacific land sales for the past year are quite in keeping with the general healthy tone of advance that has marked the past few years. For the past two years sales were :

1902—2 419 118 acres.....$8 135 693.77
1903—1.723 923 acres..... 6 950,547.14

Despite the apparent decrease in acreage sold there was an increase of over 300,000 acres during the past year, the large figures of 1902 being fattened by the unusual bulk sale of 1,000,000 acres to The Saskatchewan Valley Land Co.

The prices during 1903 also averaged higher than for the preceding year in 1902, the average price per acre being $3.35 per acre, and last year about $4 or 65c. per acre higher, an increase of 19 per cent.—Winnipeg Free Press.

A KINDLY REMEMBRANCE.

At the commencement of the new busines syear, the general manager of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited. Mr. Wm. Dobie, was waited upon by the 16 travelling representatives and members of the office staff and presented with a beautiful French gilt ornamental ink stand and also a thermometer and desk calendar combined. At the same time the boys did not forget Mrs. Dobie, and she also received a fine ink stand of the same material.

Mr. Dobie in acknowledging these beautiful gifts, thanked the doners not only for them but for the excellent services rendered to the company during the year just ended, and concluded by wishing all a prosperous and happy new year.

CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

Mr. W. P. Downey.

THE GROCER has pleasure this week in publishing the photo of Mr. W. P. Downey, 26 St. Peter street, Montreal.

Mr. Downey is the representative in Canada of specialties in connection with the confectionery and grocery trade, representing as he does some of the largest and most prominent manufacturers of grocery, confectionery and drug sundries in the world.

W, P. Downey, St. Peter Street, Montreal.

The manufacture of confections, glacines and cocoanut, "White Dove" brand, is also a branch of trade which Mr. Downey is engaged in.

Confectionery has become in most of the progressive stores a prominent department, paying handsomely, and more perceptibly attracting transient trade, and, later, converting this trade into regular general custom, and the interest of subscribers to "The Canadian Grocer" is evidenced more every day by the attention paid to the confectionery department.

Mr. Downey, who is a firm believer in modern ideas, is of the opinion that the trade generally would find it profitable to add a confectionery department to their business.

Mr. Downey's business extends from ocean to ocean, and the energy and enterprise manifested by him in all his transactions will, one feels satisfied, bring its reward in increased trade.

Mr. Downey is the sole representative in Canada for Stafford, Allen & Sons, pure English essential oils; Salv. Di Dco, Rognetta, oil of lemon, orange and bergamot; Hire's improved Root Beer; and sole agent in Canada for Societie Anglo-Francaise, Courbevoie-Paris; Roedenbeck & Wahl, orris root, olive oil, boracic acid, candied peels, etc., Leghorn, Italy; Andres & Co., Valencia raisins, Denia, Spain; H. P. Setna & Co., Chutney and curry powder, Bombay, India; Oehme & Baier, confectioners' colors, Leipzig; Chas. Martin & Frere, shelled almonds, etc., France.

The Gel-O Makers.

"ALWAYS room for a good thing" is the way Mr. E. B. Thompson, manager of The Canadian Gelatine Co., of Toronto, put it when a representative of "The Canadian Grocer" asked him if it didn't require courage to put on the market a new jelly powder. It is a faith of this sort that all success is built on, and the makers of Gel-O have already had gratifying business and testimony from a discriminating grocery trade.

The Canadian Gelatine Co. is a new concern, being less than two months before the public. Mr. Thompson, the manager, however, is not new, having for a number of years been the representative in Canada for a large American gelatine house, and enjoys a wide acquaintance among the confectionery trade. The outcome of his knowledge of the business and its needs was the formation of the company named above. This company, it is said, is the only one of its kind making a specialty of gelatines. Gel-O, "The new Dessert," is put up in the regulation 4-oz. package, and is prepared in eight flavors. The makers claim for it that it jells quicker and firmer than any similar preparation on the market. It is being put before the trade energetically by advertising and attractive poster cards and streamers, also by means of demonstrators, of whom there are three at present engaged in the Province of Ontario.

A Toothsome Industry.

WHEN a representative of "The Canadian Grocer" one day last week called on A. J. Stewart, Toronto, makers of high-class confectionery, he was invited to take a walk through the factory, and the excursion was most thoroughly enjoyed, quite apart from the frequent "Try these," which punctuated the cicerone's remarks.

The factory is happily situated at the junction of Adelaide and Duncan streets. It thus receives abundant light—front, side and rear—and even the fourth side is separated from the adjacent building sufficiently to admit a good deal of light.

A. J. Stewart have been making confectionery since 1884, in a humble way to begin with, but always dominated by a purpose to make the very best goods possible. The makers have a conviction that there are no finer goods made on this continent.

To elaborate upon equipment, machinery, care in buying, purity of materials, and processes of manufacture is not necessary. One thing, however, that may be touched upon is the exceedingly attractive and varied assortment of fancy boxes that are used for the finer goods. It must not be understood from what has been written that only fine chocolates and bonbons are made. The whole range of confectionery from lozenges upward is made, and in goods of high and low degree the standard of quality is maintained. Easter novelties in many forms, many of them beautifully decorated by skilled craftsmen, are being taken to the trade by a proud lot of salesmen. A member of the firm visits Boston, New York and Philadelphia markets periodically for "pointers," so that in Canada we sell the self-same things that delight the fancy of millionaire Americans.

Mr. A. J. Stewart, a practical confectioner, is the president, and personally superintends every detail of manufacture. Mr. J. F. Roelofson, the managing director, has a "road" experience of highest value, also an acquaintance that believes implicitly every statement he makes, this is based on his record for unswerving fidelity to truth and the retailers' interests. Stock is carried at both Montreal and Winnipeg. The outlook for the company is of the brightest, and the growing volume of their trade tells its own story.

A Consolidation.

The McGregor-Harris Co., Toronto, have recently made some extensive additions and improvements in their manufacturing plant. In addition to their own already large business they have lately purchased and will carry on the business of R. G. McGregor & Sons. The senior of this firm will superintend the manufacture of their own well-known brands, and his experience will be of great value to the combined business.

The Pearl street factory is a model in every respect. Its cleanliness in each department is particularly noticeable, and as absolute purity in everything is guaranteed, they deserve the reputation they have acquired as makers of high-grade goods.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FISHERIES.

THE salmon pack for 1903 in British Columbia, as well as on the whole of the Pacific Coast, was a most disappointing one, says The Victoria Colonist, and one of the worst in the experience of the salmon canning industry, being the smallest since 1892, when there were only 27 canneries in operation; whereas, at the present time there are 60 canneries, which only put up 473,547 cases, over 100,000 of which were other than sockeyes.

It was very difficult to account for this exceptional falling off of salmon. Some attribute it to the wanton destruction on the American side through the use of traps; others regard it as one of those instances of bad luck for which there is no accounting. One of the serious features of the short run was the comparatively small number of salmon that reached the spawning grounds. The new provincial hatchery at Seton lake was only taxed to about one-tenth of its capacity. The Dominion hatchery fared better, but not nearly so well as usual. The new Dominion hatchery at the Lakelse river was partly hestroyed by flood, which washed away about 4,000,000 young salmon.

New canneries were built during the year at Observatory inlet, on the Skeena river, and Alberni canal; and extensions have been made to canneries on Rivers inlet and the Skeena. A new cannery for serving cod, halibut, oolachans, herrings and smelts, was erected at Barnet on Burrard inlet, by The Western Canada Fish Co., and was operated for the first time during last year with marked success. Crab factories were erected at North Vancouver and on False creek, both of which were successfully operated. The operations of The New England Fish Co., which has practically control of the halibut business, were greatly extended during the year, and a third steamer—a Canadian bottom—has been brought into requisition. Some 80 men are employed, who receive a wage of about $100,000. Year's catch of salmon, Fraser, 473,547 cases; Northern, 236,385 cases.

LARGE COFFEE SHIPMENT.

An important business transaction has just been concluded by the well-known wholesale firm of W. Braid & Co., of this city, says The Vancouver News Advertiser, involving the largest direct shipment of coffee ever made to any house in Canada. The purchase in question comprises 5,000 sacks of coffee, which were secured direct from the plantations and are now en route to this city by water. Messrs. Braid company's trade extends from Atlantic to Pacific, and a purchase of this nature shows the importance in the commercial world of Vancouver's mercantile firms.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Hard and Soft Wheat.

ONE interesting objection has been raised to the project of making the British Empire self supporting in the growing of wheat, says The Toronto Star. The great bulk of Canadian wheat for export to Great Britain comes from Manitoba and the Territories. The wheat grown there is hard, and the statement has been made that to make the flour desired in Britain a mixture of hard and soft wheat is necessary. The wheat area on this continent seems about to split into two, a northern and a southern area. Coincident with the rapid development of wheat-growing in the Canadian West comes not only the partial abandonment of wheat in the States of the Middle West, but an extension of wheat culture lower down the Mississippi Valley. A new north and south trend of traffic is developing, and the ports on the Gulf of Mexico are shipping huge quantities of wheat. If the contention that British millers need both hard and soft wheat is correct, do not these facts indicate a division of the British demand, and a need for the hard Canadian and the soft American wheat?

Expert milling opinion in this country rejects the theory that an admixture of soft wheat is necessary. Great quantities of flour manufactured in the mills at Minneapolis, Superior, Duluth and Kansas are exported to Great Britain, and this flour is made from hard wheat, with no mixtire whatever. The flour exported from all the mills in Manitoba is manufactured from hard wheat, with no admixture. The British bakers are the buyers, and the demand is growing. A large quantity of soft wheat is consumed in Great Britain, and British millers undoubtedly use Manitoba and American hard wheat to mix with British-grown and imported soft wheat. The fact is, however, that much flour made exclusively from hard wheat is used in Britain, and that the use of it is increasing.

A further fact is that other portions of the British Empire already furnish Great Britain with large quantities of soft wheat, and can increase their output. Apart from the fact that Canada sends some soft wheat, the exportable surplus of this year's crop in Australia and New Zealand is about fifty million bushels. India also can furnish large quantities of this species of grain, and the soft wheat production of India and Australia is increasing yearly. It is evident that the British Empire can, if the Mother Country so desires, furnish her with all the wheat she needs, of both varieties.

Elevator Construction.

J. A. MACDONALD, of The Macdonald Elevator Construction Co. of Chicago, the company which built elevator "E" for the C.P.R. at Fort William, is in Winnipeg in connection with the closing of that contract. This elevator, which is of 2,000,000 bushels capacity, is of the tubular variety, and is one of the largest of its kind in Canada. At the present time Mr. Macdonald also has a tender before The Ogilvie Milling Co. for the construction of a receiving and exporting elevator at Fort William of 500,000 bushel capacity. Tenders for this elevator are at present being considered.

Mr. Macdonald goes from Winnipeg to Montreal, where he expects to tender for the construction of a terminal elevator of 1,000,000 bushels capacity for The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co., to be constructed at that point. The elevator will be of the rectangular design, though the style of construction will be similar to that at Fort William. Mr. Macdonald says that as yet no tenders have been called for by the G.T.P. for elevators in the West, and he has no idea as to what their plans are in this respect.

Canada's Wheat-Growing Area.

Professor James Fletcher, of the Experimental Farm, in an address at Ottawa on the value of experimental farms, pointed out one or two facts not generally known, one of which was that the wheat-growing area of Canada under cultivation at present is four times greater than that of the United States. The experimental farms, by adopting new grades of wheat to the rigorous climatic conditions, had largely developed the wheat-growing territory, and the production of wheat ripening nine days earlier than the average, permitted its growth to a considerably greater distance north. In the production of oats the farms had taught the farmer that 20 more bushels of oats could be grown to the acre than formerly, and every bushel extra to the acre meant a million dollars increase in the wealth of Canada.

In Charge Montreal Elevator.

Mr. Jeremiah Nehin, who at the meeting of the Montreal Harbor Commissioners recently was engaged to take charge of the new million-bushel grain elevator which is now nearing completion and which will be put into service the coming Spring, arrived in the city last week from Buffalo, and appeared at the Harbor Office bright and early prepared to take hold.

Mr. Nehin, who is a man of middle age, has spent practically all his mature years in grain elevators, and it might be said that he has worked his way along with a shovel, for he began at the bottom of the ladder in the grain elevators of the American cities.

This morning Mr. Nehin, accompanied by Major Seath, the secretary of the Board, went through the elevator, the newly appointed superintendent seeing it for the first time. He will for the next few months oversee the placing of the machinery, so that when the season of navigation opens there will be no delay in getting down to business.

Mr. Nehin while in charge of a wooden elevator at Buffalo, the structure having one marine leg, put through twenty-four million bushels in a season, which is looked upon as a record.

Two Dollar Wheat!

MR. F. W. THOMPSON, vice-president and managing director of The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., has had the courage to hint at the possibility of two dollar wheat in an interview on the effect of the Japanese-Russian war on the price of wheat. Mr. F. W. Thompson is a gentleman who is known for conservatism when expressing an opinion on such matters, and places more reliance on the increasing demand for breadstuffs the world over to cause an increase in the price of wheat than he does in the war outlook. He points out that countries where until recently wheat was practically unknown are beginning to use bread as a daily food, with the result that they will soon take a considerable part in the worlds consumption. Four years ago not more than one per cent. of the population of Japan ate bread. Mr. Thompson places the percentage now at three-fold more, and expects to see a rapid increase within the next few years. He applies the same to such other countries as China. Mr. Thompson was asked: "Do you think that wheat will sell higher than present prices, independent of war between Russia and Japan?"

"While no man can say definitely as to future prices, still the present basis of supply and demand are such as to indicate a higher level of prices for the next few years than has existed during the past five years, meaning that wheat at $1 a bushel in Chicago under conditions now prevailing will be as common as 70 or 75c. during the past few years."

"Then you expect most prosperous conditions throughout the Canadian Northwest?"

"Decidedly I do. In fact, I believe that no agricultural country in the world today has a brighter future than our Canadian Northwest."

"Where would wheat go should war be declared?"

"Oh, that is a hard one. It might go to $2 a bushel in Chicago."

Huge Elevator at Port Arthur.

Mr. W. H. McWilliams, manager of The Canadian Elevator Co. of Winnipeg, has given out the statement that his company, with which The American Cereal Co. of Peterboro is associated, will build at Port Arthur one of the largest grain elevators in the world. Mr. McWilliams, with officials of The Northern Elevator Co. of St. Paul, Minn., has just returned from a trip to Montreal, where a conference was held with the C.P.R. and Canadian Northern Railway authorities, in which arrangements were made for increased facilities for the new elevator, which will, it is expected, be completed in time to receive the crop of 1904. The workhouse, which will be constructed first, will have a capacity of 1,250,000 bushels. This will be supplemented by immense storage warehouses to be built of tile or concrete. Mr. McWilliams believes that in ten years Winnipeg will be the largest city in the Dominion.

Trinidad Breadstuffs.

Gordon, Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, write under date of December 17 as follows:

Our market for breadstuffs is without appreciable change, and the s.s. Maraval from New York is the latest arrival. Flour and most other items are in quite moderate supply and, as there are now indications of a more active demand setting in, prices on the whole are steadier. The s.s. Piemonte from New York with considerable supplies is due momently.

On December 31 Gordon, Grant & Co. write:

Our market is quite moderately stocked and the position is steadily improving. Bakers' flour is selling slowly, but for both extra and supers there is a steady inquiry and the shipments coming forward by the steamers Etruria and Maraval should command an appreciable advance. Corn meal is neglected, but imported bread as well as that of local manufacture now sells readily.

VIEWS FROM THE EAST AND WEST.

A REPRESENTATIVE of "The Canadian Grocer" had the pleasure last week of an interview with two of the large staff of travellers of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal (26 salesmen all told), Mr. P. O. Hamon and Mr. Hugo Rohde. Mr. Hamon has for many years represented Hudon, Hebert & Cie. in the Maritime Provinces, and is making his annual visit to the house. Asked as to business in the east, etc., Mr. Hamon reported very favorably as to the year's results. The demand for the higher grades of groceries he found to be increasing in the east, betokening general prosperity with the consuming public; in fact, he was of the opinion, having travelled through the Middle West of Canada, that the quantity of high-class groceries used in his territory was equal to, if not in excess of that used in the former ground. The fisheries had not been so profitable the past season as in former years, but, on the whole, trade was in a healthy condition.

Mr. Rohde, who represents Hudon, Hebert & Cie. in the Calgary district, was interviewed. He has covered the Northwest Territories for his house some 12 or 13 years, and during that entire period has been a keen observer of the trend of business westward. Mr. Rohde, while admitting the great future of the West, was rather pessimistic in his views of the situation in that country at present. The crops were, to a certain extent, a failure, and where a fair crop was reaped it had materially depreciated through frost. Then, in his opinion, the booming feature had, to a certain extent, been overdone. The fever of speculation and its consequent speculative value was bound to re-act. The arrival of immigrants would tend to offset this in a measure, particularly as the class of immigrants arriving were provided with material wealth, more or less. With three or four seasons' good crops the future was one bound to be bright. Mr. Rohde's headquarters are at Calgary, and his visit, like Mr. Hamon's, was an annual one.

TENDERS FOR CANNED GOODS.

Lord Strathcona has advised the Minister of Agriculture that the Admiralty will shortly call for tenders for the year's supply of preserved meat and canned goods. He says that any Canadian firms who are not already listed should apply at once if they desire to tender. They should make application for the enrollment of the name of the firm and also submit a sample of their pack. Copies of the tenders have been mailed and will arrive at the department within the next week.

The Dominion Canister Co., of Dundas, are sending to the trade an exceedingly attractive calendar—one that those with a love of gunning will feel like preserving framed. A brace of ducks, suspended from a nail, reproduced in colors, constitutes the design. "The Grocer" acknowledges receipt with thanks.

SAILOR GIRL CALENDAR.

J. H. Wethey, mince meat manufacturer, St. Catharines, is distributing a very striking calendar. The hanger is a deep red, while in the centre is a panel containing the picture of a sailor girl swinging in the rigging. Mr. Wethey is to be congratulated on his enterprise.

A UNIQUE CALENDAR.

A unique calendar has been received from Clarke & Rogerson, groceries and provisions, Vancouver, B.C. Instead of the usual lithograph the calendar is decorated with an interior photographic view of the store, with the staff in the rear. The picture is very fine and should make friends for the firm.

TOILET SPECIALTIES.

We are in receipt of a very handsome little booklet advertising Calvert's Toilet Specialties, manufactured by F. C. Calvert & Co., Manchester, England. The company have opened a wholesale depot at 807 Dorchester street, Montreal, under charge of Mr. W. T. Leach, for the further extension of their Canadian trade, and the little booklet has been prepared especially with this end in view. It is illustrated with cuts of the toilet articles put up by the firm, along with directions for use. Readers of "The Grocer" are invited to write for this booklet, mentioning "The Grocer."

WRITE FOR THESE CARDS.

Some very attractive display cards and lithographs, sent out by C. J. Van Houten & Zoon, Holland, to their Canadian agents, J. L. The agents will feel obliged if any retailer will drop them a card and will send promptly some very attractive and useful prints, and also a supply of free sample tins of Van Houten's cocoa for free distribution to customers.

The distribution was made by three members of J. L. Watt & Scott's staff, who drove round in cabs to the various stores receiving the lithographs.

Tobacco in War.

TOBACCO is undoubtedly one of the greatest blessings that soldiers have ever known, remarks an old smoker, a fact which is better appreciated on the battlefield than anywhere else. "Many a time," wrote a private of the Second Fusiliers, from Ladysmith, "I have seen fellows of ours only too eager to sell a pony, with saddle, bridle and everything complete, for a stick of tobac co." During the siege of the town some of the gallant bluejackets are said to have calmly smoked their pipes as they worked their guns; and after the engagement with the Boers at Magersfontein a soldier was found dead, with his pipe clenched firmly between his teeth. To the wounded the weed is a solace beyond compare; and during the Crimean war there were instances of mortally wounded men drawing with the utmost composure at their pipes almost to the last breath. The smoke of tobacco often mingled with the smoke of battle in that great war. For four hours a soldier fought in the battle of Inkerman in defense of a battery of British guns, his only comrade being his pipe, which he continued to smoke after he had been struck down by a Russian musket ball. In the thrilling charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava more than one nf the "noble six hundred" rode into the jaws of death calmly smoking. The regimental butcher was preparing meat when the fatal order came, smoking the while. But he did not intend to be left behind, and with his comrades charged into the Russian ranks without removing his pipe from his mouth. He was one of the few who returned, and was still smoking when he made his way back to the British lines. In one of the engagements in the Franco Prussian war the Brunswick Hussars galloped into action with cigars in their mouths, charging a dense body of the enemy with deadly effect. American soldiers are inveterate smokers, and when not puffing away at their pipes or cigars are pretty certain to have a quid of tobacco in their mouths.

Smoking by Proxy.

A wealthy old resident of Wilmington, Del., for years followed a daily custom of driving in the open air perched upon the box with his coachman the latter complacently puffing at a big black cigar, the smoke from which he blew directly into his master's face. The explanation was that the doctors had forbidden the man to smoke, but he had been an inveterate smoker, and he was obliged to be satisfied with the compromise of having some one else do the smoking, while he enjoyed the aroma.

Smoked Cold.

An Orange, N.J., man, whose physicians had forbidden him to smoke, instead of lighting his cigars, was accustomed simply to put them into his mouth and "smoked cold." In this he simply bit off the end of the cigar as if he were going to light it, and then puffed exactly as if fire were eating its way up the tobacco. Every fifteen or twenty minutes the cigar, to all appearances perfectly preserved, was thrown away as useless, the contention being that it was "smoked out." For years this smoker indulged in his pet habit, in the same extraordinary way, claiming that puffing the air through the cigar exhausted the flavor exactly the same as would have been the case had it been lighted.

Giving of Cigarette Papers to be Stopped in Tennessee.

There is a law in Tennessee against the giving of cigarette papers. The Attorney-General proposes to prosecute the wholesale dealers for selling smoking tobacco with books of cigarette papers attached. He has appeared before the Grand Jury seeking a number of indictments against firms who have used this method. The Attorney-General says that the proper method of preventing the sale of cigarette papers is by going after the wholesale trade.

Not the Way to go About it.

IT WAS just a few days before his birthday. She walked into the smokers' emporium with nervous diffidence.

"I would like to get a skein of cigars."

"You mean a box, I suppose?"

"Yes, if that is how you sell them."

"Do you wish anything special?"

"No, nothing special; but they're for smoking, you know."

The salesman smiled.

"Do you desire a strong or mild cigar?"

"Very strong; I want them to last. The box I bought a year ago commenced to fall apart after my husband had them about nine months. I think they were too weak."

The young man took a few boxes from the case and pried them open for the woman's inspection.

"Are these the only shades you have? I would like something lighter, to match our wall paper."

The salesman picked out box after box until the counter looked like an Egyptian pyramid. At last she selected a box, saying:

"These won't fade, will they?"

Again the young man smiled.

"No, ma'am; they are made of the purest Havana tobacco."

"Do you think I could have my husband's monogram engraved on each cigar?"

"No, lady; the cigar wouldn't draw."

"Would'nt draw what?"

"I mean it would'nt pull well."

"But I don't want them to pull anything; I want them for my husband to smoke."

The man behind the counter grew impatient.

"Haven't you a box with a prettier picture on it? Let me see that one with the forget-me-nots on a Japanese fan."

"But, madam, your husband isn't going to smoke the box."

"I am aware of that, sir; but it looks horrible to have some Spanish general's picture or some ballet dancer's physiognomy lying on the library table. I like this picture."

"But that's a different brand of cigars."

"Couldn't you put these cigars in that box and the cigars in that box you could put——"

"No, no: we are not permitted to do any such 'presto change' work in this shop. Here is a pretty box marked 'Henry Clay.'"

"But that is such a commonplace name. Haven't you any called 'Vivian de Haven' or 'Reginald Vere de Vere,' or some name of a higher rank?"

"No, madam; we do not sell rank cigars in this place. There are no such brands. Do you wish the box you have in your hand?"

"I hardly know which cigars so take. These have such a strong scent. Haven't you any that emit a sweeter aroma?"

The assistant answered abruptly:

"No; can I sell you anything?"

"Well, I'll tell you what I'll do; if you'll just give me a sample of each, I'll let you know——"

But just then the man slammed the boxes back into their places, told the woman that she was in a cigar shop and not a drapery establishment, and advised her to go to some pork butcher's and get a few hams for her husband to smoke.

The woman went out to get a policeman, but evidently got lost.—Tid-Bits.

The Chemist's Analysis.

A CHEMIST says he's analyzed a very good cigar,
And learnedly tells us just what its ingredients are;
Acetic acid, prussic, too, phenol and nicotine,
Some sulphuretted hydrogen, a dish of picolene,
Valerian acid and ammonia, so he wrote,
With acid proprianic, and a trace of creosote.

But he didn't find the essence that will set a mind at peace,
And he overlooked the tincture that gives care a swift release;
He missed the oil of happiness that keeps the fire a-gleam,
And doesn't mention how the smoke will float you to a dream
Of happy days and good old friends, until in it you trace
The graces and the dimples of a well-remembered face.

He didn't find the reason why so many fancies are Wrapped up in such a package as that very same cigar;
He found a small-sized drug store, but somehow he couldn't catch
The comfort that one can secure if he applies a match;
And though he found the acids and the other queer-named stuff,
He couldn't trace the pleasure that there is in every puff.

W. B. Reid & Co., wholesale tobacconists, Toronto, expect to have some unusual bargains in smokers' supplies at the conclusion of their stocktaking, now in progress, and the retail trade is asked to keep its eyes open for a forthcoming announcement.

In the fire at the National Chambers, Hamilton, on Friday last, the premises of The Consumers' Tobacco Co. were scorched to a slight extent. The loss was fully covered by insurance, and the damage in no way interfered with the transaction of business.

The Tuckett Cigar Co. report an immensely increased sale of the popular high-grade "Marguerite" cigar. The sales for some time past have steadily exceeded one million per month, and over eight million was the total output for 1904. Further comment is unnecessary; these figures speak for themselves.

THE OFFICE

DEVOTED TO THE OFFICE STAFFS OF BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

DEBTORS WHO ARE SLOW BUT GOOD.

By J. J. Rutka.

EACH individual case usually requires different and separate treatments. We have on our books a few just such accounts, good but slow pay. In most cases we find that writing personal letters from time to time to the head of the firm of such an institution, and setting a definite amount which we want him to send at a stipulated time has the best results. As far as possible a personal interview is desirable. We find people of that kind frequently pay promptly in certain directions, while they let other accounts run along. This is often done, as we have discovered, in this way: A firm will pay the man who presents the best case, before they will pay the man that uses ordinary methods. We have a case of that kind on hand just now. A firm owed us an account. They are good for ten times the amount they owed. They did not pay us, because they claim we did not need the money as badly as some one else whom they owed. A personal interview, however, has resulted in making an arrangement with these people, whereby they have paid us a part immediately, and a stipulated amount every two weeks thereafter, so the amount is paid up, and it was done with the best of feelings on both sides, and they continue to send us their orders daily. We find that by adding interest to overdue accounts frequently helps the case.

We have found that coaxing letters, in most cases, are the best, and next to a personal interview, the most effective. In most cases we have pleaded that we were very hard up, and needed the money, and that has had its effect. We rarely ever find that a demand accompanied by a threat has ever done any good. It may help to collect an account, but it loses you a customer sure. Still there is now and then a cese where even a lawsuit has to be resorted to. We have also found that where a customer was good but slow pay that by holding up his orders, and writing him that, until he paid the old bills, his new orders would not be filled, has in some cases a good effect. You see, therefore, that there is no rigid or regular set form which can be followed in a cese of that kind.

We have a customer whom we consider good that will never pay a bill until the same is handed to a collector, or a justice of the peace, nor will he buy any goods after the account has been running sixty days until such an action is taken. This man will come to town regularly on receiving a notice from the collector, and pay his bill, and on the same day present the receipt at our office and buy more goods. We have repeatedly told him that we would not sell him goods at as close a price as if he paid in regular time, but it seemed to make little or no difference to him.

In this connection I wish to say that we have some customers who take extraordinarily long time, but are perfectly good, to whom we have written that if they continued to take such extra long time we would have to charge them more for their goods; and in making the invoice we add 5 per cent. to the net amount of the invoice, and write them with the invoice, saying, if paid in sixty days they can deduct the extra charge; if paid in ten days they can deduct the cash discount in addition to such deduction; but if the account runs more than sixty days the total charge will stand. We have found this method very beneficial in some cases. This method, however, has to be used with caution, as it will not work with everybody.

I find, however, that the coaxing method is perhaps the very best one in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred.

USEFUL AUDITING DEVICE.

IN many large business houses it is now the custom, according to The Bookkeeper, to send out at regular intervals a notice similar to that appended, the object being to compare the ledger balances with those appearing on the books of the customers. It will be noted that a special stamped envelope is enclosed for the reply, which is usually directed to the business address of the accountant who has the audit in charge.

Your debit balances on the books of this Company.....190..is $..... Kindly compare this with your books, and state below whether it agrees or not. If any difference should exist please state amount of difference and, if possible, the items making same.

This is sent not as a dun, but for the purpose of enabling us to verify our accounts and check up our books correctly. Please reply on form below, and return this sheet in stamped envelope enclosed.

Your credit since above date are as follows:

Gentlemen:

Balance as shown above $.....is .....not correct.

A SIMPLE SUM IN ARITHMETIC.

SUPPOSE, says World's Work, a big company is organized and issues bonds and stocks on the following basis:

Things capitalized	The percentage of stocks and bonds represented by them
Real value	25
Pure water	50
Promoters' shares	10
Increase over real value because of "flush" times	15

Now, what happens when the fabric of speculation is shaken? The 15 per cent. of "flush-times" valuation fades away; the 10 per cent. of promoters' profit shares are remembered and the public resents such a distribution of them; people begin to ask how much pure water went to the making of the whole organization—they recall everything, in fact, except the real value. The stock, therefore, that is really worth 25 per cent. of its par value, if honest management be assumed, falls far below 25 cents in the market.

This very elementary and simple "sum" in arithmetic, explains many "mysterious" things that have been happening in the stock market. Nothing is so hard to manage as a suspicious public; but whose fault is it that the public became suspicious?

Speculation runs away with industry for a time, but industry gets its revenge at last.

THE MANAGER AND HIS MEN.

"A MANAGER must know his men through and through" remarks a writer in a contemporary. "He must recognize their strengths and weaknesses, and act accordingly; one man may be extremely sensitive, another too conservative, another too susceptible to flattery and easily influenced.

"Another too free a buyer, another may be entirely incapable of appreciating figures, and so on, but each may be otherwise excellent. To get the best out of these men these special points of character must be considered.

"And then the development of these, the making of intelligent, thinking men and women out of inexperenced and immature lads and young women; the studying of the peculiar qualifications of each, and the placing of that one so that the peculair trait will count to his advantage and to that of the house; to encourage the earnest young woman who needs encouragement just at that moment, to bring down to the earth that young man who has been spoiled at home, and like poor Hetty in Adam Bede, of whom Mrs. Poyser said, 'She is like the cock who thinks the sun rises to hear him crow,' to watch the hundreds of points and factors in management of men is but part of the duty of each who is in charge of a large business.

"Then this same man must be an expert on figures and percentage, for after all a large business must in its figures depend almost entirely upon percentage. He must be able to look many ways at once, and must in a way keep in touch with the commercial news of the country in his spectral line. He must be broad, not narrow; quick, not slow; thoughtful, not impulsive; energetic, not mentally or physically lazy; conservative to that fine point of correctness, not hysterical; bold, not timid; agreeable and tactful, not antagonistic; approachable, not repelling; just, never unjust.

"He must be possessed of good common sense, good judgment, in order to hold the respect of those with whom he is constaly advising. If, for example, he is manager of merchandise, he must be a judge of merchandise and values, and must be a natural trader. If in charge of employes, he must be a quick judge of human nature and possess an ability to discover the qualities of each one's mental and physical self. If in charge of systems, an inventive mind is necessary, but with it is necessary also a practical mind, and one which quickly separates the good ideas from the faulty ones.

"To those who conduct the business as a whole comes the necessity of selecting a set of men, who, when selected, should really form a cabinet with whom to advise daily, hourly, concerning matters of moment. Then the chiefs of the business must frame a policy, a line of action, just as do the owners of a ship decide on her course and final harbor, and as the captain of the ship must direct the man at the wheel and guide her past the many dangers of the sea, so those who are responsible for the conduct of a business must push that business with greatest speed, but must watch its daily course, and must avoid sunken reefs and derelicts, must go slowly during the foggy times, and keep it steady when the storms threaten.

"A merchandising business is pre-eminently a business of infinite detail, and that man, no matter how capable and how energetic he may be, who undertakes to do it all alone will limit that business, just as every man's day is limited in the number of its minutes. The biggest man is the man who can most easily utilize the ability of others; so that retail business is best conducted, which can profitably unite to itself the greatest number of thinking, intelligent, active men and women, each one being, not a cog in the machinery, but an independent, self-confident unit, a member of the organization, a loyal and enthusiastic worker whose daily results bring respect and recognition. To obtain this, is a profession, science, or an art."

STOCKTAKING.

"BETTER late than never" is good advice as to stocktaking, as it is concerning many other things, remarks a contemporary.

A tradesman cannot tell his exact worth from his ledger, because he does not know what quantity of stock he has in his store. To know this it is necessary, periodically, to take stock or prepare a balance-sheet.

A balance-sheet is a condensed statement of the merchant's assets and liabilities, made out to show how his affairs stand, and what amount of money he has made since he began business or since the previous inventory.

His assets are the balances or moneys owing to him found on the debtor side of the accounts in the ledger—the amount of cash he has in hand, the stock in the shop, the value of the goodwill and the fixtures, etc.

His liabilities are the balances or moneys owing by him found on the credit side of the accounts in the ledger. The difference between the assets and the liabilities is the amount of money he is worth.

I preparing a balance sheet the first thing to do is to enter in a book kept for the purpose all goods in the store, and all goods lying to order of which the invoices have been received. The net cost price of every article should be put down, and the amounts carried out and added up, and the amount entered on the left-hand side of the balance-sheet as "stock."

The accounts owing by customers, which are found on the debtor side of their ledger accounts, are then added up, and the discounts, if any, deducted, and the net total entered on the same side of the balance-sheet as "book debts." The cash in hand should then be counted, and the amount entered on the same side of the balance-sheet as "cash on hand."

The value of the good-will and fixtures should then be put down. It is best to deduct from the value of the fixtures at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum at each successive stocktaking, so that at the end of ten years the fixtures will not be put down at all, as they will be worn out and have become worthless. If the tradesman has a banking account he puts down the amount of the balance in his favor on the same side of the balance-sheet. If he has money invested in property or any other securities, the amounts are also put down. All the above are called his assets.

On the other side of the balance-sheet he puts down his liabilities, which are the sum total of the amounts owing by him found on the creditor side of the ledger, and any other moneys he may owe. Both columns are then added up, and the difference of the accounts is what he is worth.

By this means a tradesman can tell exactly what amount of money he has gained in a given period. Some authorities urge that stocktaking should be done every three months, but there are other houses that are satisfied with a half-yearly inventory, although many firms take inventory only once a year. The oftener the better, for it checks stealing and other leaks.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

The Lack of Taste.

WHEN a merchant displays little interest in his window, he often hides behind the fact that he has no taste for window dressing, that is, that he has none of the artistic qualifications that show themselves in first-class windows. As is the case in most of the causes to which the unprogressive merchant assigns his unattractive windows, it is a characteristic which he does not endeavor to overcome. He really thinks it is so, and blames this rather than lack of effort on his part.

It may be true enough in some cases that a merchant doing his very best would make his windows look like a store-room, or would be utterly unable to acquire the desired effect. Such a man is, however, deprived of all excuse by the fact that his clerk, or one of them is not likely to be as inartistic as he is. If so, it simply shows that a new clerk is required. Windows must be dressed even if the old staff must be dismissed and a clerk with some ideas of arrangement be engaged. However, it is so very seldom that the merchant is as bad as he says, that it only requires some effort and push on his part to convince himself that if not a born artist, he has some eye for effect, and at least the ability to arrange articles neatly.

Neatness is essential to the effective display, and a window in which it is a prominent feature is sure to have its attractions, although perhaps not so well arranged as if by an experienced window dresser. With time too, he will improve his eye for beauty and the ease with which he will think of designs. Ambition and practice is all that is necessary to make a fair window dresser out of any man.

A Tea Packet Window—Dressed by Mr. Jas. A. Dawson, for J. Edgcumbe, Peterborough.

A Tea Packet Window.

A cut is shown of a good display arranged by Mr. Jas. A. Dawson, for J. Edgcumbe, Peterborough, and made up of packages of "Red Rose" tea. The framework of the building was first constructed, merely a skeleton shape being required, and over this was placed the packages, with openings left for windows and doors. The steeple is simply the advertising tins of "Magic" baking powder, and the front is made more natural by the use of sod and small steps. The design might be further improved by placing the building on the floor of the window and filling up the remainder of the floor with sod, a fence, or other details of a lawn or field.

An excellent idea is contained in the church shown. It could be enlarged upon by building up from week to week fac similes of local public buildings or well-known residences. This could not be carried out with tea packages, and oftentimes the display will contain no grocery stock save what can be worked in as a background or built up into other details of the design. Such a window changed every day would be full of interest, or better still alternate a display of this kind with one or two pertaining more closely to the grocery store. A purely picture window is not to be commended on general principles, but it has its uses at times, and if not allowed to drive out stock windows it will always revive a waning interest in the public. Fences can be built in sections to allow a unitability of design for variety's sake, and walks are easily made of fine gravel or of permanent wooden construction. An excellent and simply made fence can be provided by driving wire nails of the required length through two parallel pieces of wood to represent the framework. The heads are at the bottom and driven close into the lower runner and the ends protrude a short distance through the upper runner. By making this up in short sections, the work is simplified and the sections can be placed in a position to represent any iron fence which is being imitated.

PROSPEROUS KENTVILLE.

KENTVILLE, N. S. (population 2,000), the shire town of the richly endowed County of King's, has been blessed with a slow but sure growth during the past year, writes Mayor C. F. Rockwell, in the Kentville Chronicle. The business firms report a prosperous year, especially since the farmers have been receiving returns from their apple shipments.

No new industries have been started, but the existing industries have had an excellent year and are looking forward to a bright future. The Lloyd Manufacturing Company, with saw mill machinery as its specialty, employs 25 hands and does a $75,000 business. The Nova Scotia Carriage Company, whose sleighs and carriages are sold all over Canada, gives employment to 75 men. Last year their business amounted to $140,000.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway also employ many men in the machine and repair departments. The disbursement of the wages received by the employes of these industries is appreciably felt in business circles.

A fair amount of building has been carried on during the last season. The fine residences of Mr. Fred W. Wickwire and Mr. Wiley W. Rockwell have added greatly to the apearance of the place. A new brick County Court house has been erected at a cost of about $20,000. The new Government Sanitarium for the treatment of consumptives in the northern part of the town, occasioned an outlay of some $30,000. The D. A. R. station has been thoroughly remodelled and enlarged at a cost of nearly $15,000. Kentville contributed $6,000 towards this improvement. Messrs. F. B. Newcombe & Co. have practically rebuilt one of the largest stores in town for their extensive dry goods business. Another building has been fitted up at a large expense for the Union Bank of Halifax and Messrs. Wickwire & Newcombe, barristers. Music Hall Block, which was partly destroyed by fire a year ago, has been put in better condition than ever.

New Aldershot, situated about a mile from town, has given employment to a large number of men, besides filling Kentville with military life and enthusiasm, during the season of drill.

Among the civic improvements may be mentioned the purchase of the old County Exhibition grounds at a cost of $3,600 for a Town Park, the construction of a sewer on Aberdeen street, which is the beginning of a proposed system extending throughout the town, and an extension of the water system to cost $10,000, work upon which will soon commence.

The schools and academy are supplied with a well qualified staff of teachers. The principal, Mr. Ernest Robinson, being a scientist of more than local repute.

HERRING DIE IN MYRIADS.

A tremendous sacrifice of herring took place at Departure Bay a few days ago, says a despatch from Victoria, B.C. According to an eye-witness, they came in to the channel opposite the Pink Un in a large shoal and struggled up as near the shore as possible, then turned on their backs, died and sank. There seemed to be absolutely no explanation of the phenomenon. Last year the same thing occurred on the day of the dynamite explosion at the powder works, and it was generally agreed that the herring died in the water from the shock of the explosion. This year, however, the same remarkable phenomenon has occurred without an explosion, and some new theory must be put forward to account for it.

IMITATIONS OF A CHOCOLATE PACKAGE.

There is hardly an article of domestic use in this country better known or more familiar to housekeepers than "Baker's Chocolate" in a blue wrapper with a yellow label. The high reputation and constantly increasing sales of this article have led to imitations on a very extensive scale. To distinguish their product from these imitations Walter Baker & Co., Limited, have enclosed their pound packages in a new envelope or case of stiff paper, different from any other package. The color of the case is the same shade of deep blue heretofore used on the Baker packages, and no change has been made in the color (yellow) and design of the label. On the outside of the case, the name of the manufacturer is prominently printed in white letters. On the back of every package a colored lithograph of the trade mark, "La Belle Chocolatiere," sometimes caller the "Chocolate Girl," is printed. Vigorous proceedings will be taken against any one imitating the package.

Manitoba Dairy Produce.

The production of cheese in Manitoba last year according to the report of the Minister of Agriculture to the Manitoba Legislature last week shows an increase of 26 per cent. and the price 76 per cent. per 100 lbs. over 1902. Creamery butter showed a gain of 8 per cent. on production and a loss of 47 cents per 100 lbs. in price. Dairy butter a gain of 90 per cent. in product and 78 cents advance per 100 lbs. in price.

The summary of dairy products for the year showed that the total dairy products realized $858,709.26, of which 2,738,868 lbs. were dairy butter at an average price of 15.7c., or a total of $429,445; 1,532,835 lbs. creamery butter at an average of 18.13c.; total $277,901.98 and 1,382,304 lbs. of cheese at 10.95c. lb., a total of $151,362.28.

Provision Trade in Scotland.

THE Scottish Trader summing up the provision trade for 1903 says:

The year just closed has been rather an indifferent one for the provision trade generally. It opened with a somewhat high level of prices in all departments, and the reduction in prices that has taken place lately has had the effect of diminishing the volume of business done in the wholesale branch of the trade. At the same time it will produce a more healthy state of matters by and by, as when high prices prevail there is a diminishing of profits in both the wholesale and retail departments. The general reduction in prices has been caused by general depression in trade, and while the provision trade has suffered to a large extent the depression has been more felt in the soft goods and allied trades.

The recent decline in the price of hog products has brought that article within the reach of all buyers, and should have the effect of stimulating a normal demand.

The butter trade has been a normal one throughout the year, and the moderat prices prevailing have caused a weaker demand for margarine than formerly; indeed, while the returns of imports of the latter article show a large decrease those of the former show a decided increase.

The prices of cheese at the beginning of the year ruled unusually high, but of late they have been more moderate and within the reach of all There has been a larger make this season than usual, especially in Canadian, and this has been the means of reducing prices towards the close of the year.

This lower level of prices generally in the trade should have the effect of bringing about a healthier condition of business as well as being an advantage to all classes of consumers.

Lipton Sells His Seat.

Sir Thomas Lipton has severed another of the ties which bound him to American mercantile interests. He disposed of his seat on the Chicago Board of Trade last week for $3,000. The Lipton packing plant at Chicago is still in the baronet's hands, however, despite renewed rumors of its sale to the National Packing Company.

Siberian Butter.

Great efforts are being made to improve the quality of the Siberian butter put upon the British market, says the Scottish Trader. The Russian Government have decided to subsidise the industry by a loan of over two million roubles, and special instructors in butter-making have been appointed to assist the manufacturers. Attempts are also being made to form co-operative associations of the Danish pattern, in order to secure uniformity of production and raise the standard of quality. At present, of course, Siberian butter is worth far less than the Danish product, but the progress made since 1895, when exportation commenced, has been remarkable.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

THE market presents no very noteable feature this week. Generally there is a lull reported, some, however, speak of very respectable orders for this time of the year. Bacon perhaps, is receiving most attention. Lard is still weak. Long clear has eased off 1-4 cent; medium hams are perhaps a trifle firmer as is also short cut pork. Dressed hogs are quite easy this week at about $6 to $6.10 for light weights. The fresh meat market is steady. Lamb is scarce and has advanced in price. We quote:

Butter—The closing of the late Fall and Winter cheese factories has had its effect on butter and as a result there is a large production of creamery with some accumulation. The same is reported by some on the street with regard to dairy. An easier feeling all round may be regarded as a fair estimate of the butter situation. We quote:

Cheese—While there is no quotable change in cheese there seems to be a better feeling. Stocks have been gradually going into consumption and the indications point to a better demand for export. We quote:

Provisions—The week has seen a steady and satisfactory demand for smoked meats of all kinds. Hams and bacon have been selling well at the prices quoted. The English market for bacon is reported quiet. A steady trade in lard is also reported at unchanged prices. We quote:

Butter—The market continues very firm, the bulk of the trading being for local account, although a few small lots have gone forward to England. We quote as follows: Finest fresh prints, 23c.; finest Fall made creamery in 56-lb. boxes, 22c.; Winter made, 20 1-2 to 21c.; dairy butter, 17 to 18c. for selected goods and 15 to 16c. for medium grades.

Cheese—The market continues firm owing to a better demand in England. The bulk of the stocks in Canada are being held on English account and they are now being rapidly depleted. We quote: Finest strong cheese 11 1-2 to 12c.; mild, 10 1-2 to 11c.

St. John, N.B.

Provisions—In barreled pork market is firmer but prices are still low. Beef is also rather firmer but less active than pork. It is said sales for later delivery have been made at low figures. The very low price of pure lard continues. There is but little difference between pure and refined. Hams and rolls, while quite firm reflect the low price of pork. In fresh meats beef is unchanged and offered freely. Pork is quite low, though rather firmer. New veal is offered and good prices obtained for best stock. Lamb is quite firm. Mutton is dull. We quote:

London Provision Markets.

Thomas Nesbitt & Co., under date of London, January 4th, 1904, write as follows:

Butter—Market generally quiet. Colonial supplies heavy, and price rather lower.

Bacon—Lean selections of Irish and Continental in better demand and about 2s. dearer; fat meets with a slow sale at very irregular prices. Canadian leanest in fair request; other selections dull.

Hams—In small request.

Lard—Bladdered quiet. American pails, etc., must be quoted higher with very little doing.

Eggs—Market firm and unchanged.

Cheese—Market firmer at late values.

FRUIT AND NUTS AS FOOD.

THE Department of Agriculture at Washington has for several years been conducting a series of experiments to determine the dietary value of different foods, says The American Grocer. The experiments in question were conducted during the space of two years by Prof. Jaffa, of the University of California.

Nine dietary studies and 31 digestion experiments were carried on. In the majority of the dietary studies and all but one of the digestion experiments fruit and nuts constituted all or almost all of the diet. The results of the investigation emphasize the fact that both fruit and nuts should be considered as true foods rather than food accessories. The subjects were two women, three children, two elderly men, and two university students. The men all did hard manual labor during a part of the time, the students working to support themselves while pursuing their studies.

The fare given in these experiments was in every case one that would appeal to any normal appetite. It embraced honey, tomatoes, apples, bananas, cantaloupe, grapes, verdal, cornichon, tokay, muscat, scarlet haws, pears, pomegranates, persimmons, oranges, strawberries, watermelons, figs, almonds, and peanut butter. The only animal foods allowed were cottage cheese and eggs, and these in limited quantities. The cost of such a diet varied from 15 to 18c. a day. Comparative experiments were carried along in which animal foods were employed under the usual conditions of living, and in these the daily cost ran from 26 to 30c. It was found that the food eaten supplied about 60 per cent. of the protein usually secured by the average meat diet, while health and strength continued the same, if not improved, and in two or three cases there was a slight gain in flesh and weight.

One of the chief objects of the series of experiments was to furnish data as to the value of nuts as food. Fruits contain little protein, and nuts are relied on in the fruitarian plan of eating to balance the ration. Fruits are rich in carbo-hydrates and nuts in fat. A pound of peanuts, which cost 7c., furnishes 1,000 calories of energy at a cost of 3½c., and protein at a cost of 36c. a pound. A porterhouse steak costs for the same result respectively 22½c. and $1.31, when the steak can be bought for 25c. a pound.

The average price per pound of the protein of nuts ranges higher than the corresponding average of meats, but the cost per pound of peanut protein is lower than for meats, fish, eggs, milk, dairy products, and prepared cereals. The only foods which furnish protein at a less cost than peanuts are flour and dried beans. According to Prof. Jaffa's experiments, nuts are the cheapest source of energy for the fruitarian, the peanut ranging far ahead of any other variety.

Although peanuts supply protein and energy for a smaller sum than bread, they are outranked by dried beans, which, at 5c. a pound, will supply for 10c. over 200 grains of protein and 3,040 calories of energy.

A FISHING CALENDAR.

Connors Bros., packers of sea foods, Black's Harbor, are distributing one of the most interesting calendars that has come to hand this year. The hanger is dark red while upon a white space in the centre is a splendid reproduction of a number of fishing scenes. "Once a fisherman always a fisherman" is the text. At one corner is a line drawing of the angler, at seven and diagonally opposite his elder brother of seventy, while in the remaining spaces are a couple of capital fishing scenes from photographic views. Readers of "The Grocer" should write for this calendar. It is worth having.

EQUITABLE LIFE CALENDAR.

"The Grocer" acknowledges the receipt of a very handsome calendar from the Equitable Life Association. It is in the form of a hanger with six cards illustrated with a little girl in the act of playing school, graduating, bridesmaid, bride, mamma, and gradma. It is an extremely pretty idea well wrought out.

THE PACIFIC FISHERMAN ANNUAL.

A copy of the annual number of the Pacific Fisherman, published at Seattle, just issued, has been received by this paper. It is a very handsome edition of 100 pages, bound in fine cover of special design, lithographed in several colors and is a credit to the publishers. It contains a review of all the leading branches of the fishing industry on the Pacific coast, including accurately compiled statistics of the season's pack and comparative tables showing the pack of a number of years previous. A large wall map accompanies this number, showing the location of every cannery, saltery and cold storage plant on the Pacific coast. Also another map giving the location of all oyster beds on the coast. The number is well worth 35 cents, the price asked by the publishers.

THE SEATTLE TRADE REGISTER.

The anniversary number of the Seattle Trade Register has just been received at this office. The edition is a splendid one of 120 pages on coated paper, and is filled full of interesting matter about that western city. A unique feature is the cover upon which is reproduced a fine photograph of Mount Beinier, the patriarch of the Cascades. Of particular interest in this edition is the large number of excellent half-tone cuts of the business stands and business men of the western coast city.

THE SUCCESSFUL TEA-TASTER.

THE successful tea-taster is no ordinary man, says London, England, Grocery. His sense of taste must be as keen as a razor and his judgment as sound as a bell. He has to be very careful to keep his palate clear of contact with certain things, and his sense of smell must be very acute. For hours before he commences his task—and no easy task it is—he must not try his palate with spirits, wines, pickles or anything strong, because he must keep it clean and ready for the flavor of tea.

The various samples are arranged in little cups in rows, and in connection with this it is an interesting point to note that the English tea-taster tastes standing on his feet—walking round the samples—while the American taster does his work sitting in a chair. The taster does not drink the tea; he merely sips and samples the tea with his palate. When he gets the flavor he empties his mouth, and after the lapse of a few minutes he tries the next sample and so on until he has finished the lot.

At one time every successful grocer was a good tea-taster, but the introduction of packet teas diminishes the number of grocer tea-tasters year by year. The tea-taster is often a victim of dyspepsia after a few years, but he commands a splendid salary, for on him depends the sucess of the various blends that he pronounces good. In China the best tea-tasters are Britishers, and their power during the principal sampling season is enormous.

The grocer's assistant, if he be a wise man, ought to take every opportunity he can to sample all kind of teas and blends. Several tea companies afford facilities for this purpose.

WHAT IS CORN OIL?

As an article of commerce, corn oil has become of so great value that many corn millers are investigating the process of manufacture and establishing plants for its manufacture and production with their milling business. The oil is pressed from the germ of the corn when meal, grist, etc., are made. This portion of the seed was practically lost until the present processes of extracting oil were discovered.

In its preparation the germ is ground and pressed in much the same way that flax and cotton seed is prepared in the manufacture of linseed and cotton seed oil. In removing the germ, the corn is first steamed, when it passes to degermination. There is no secret in the process of corn oil manufacture, although each manufacturer endeavors to keep certain parts of this process secret, much in the same way that certain processes in the manufacture of flour are kept secret. The machinery for the extraction of the germ is patented, but the process cannot be said to be a secret in any sense of the word.

It is said that the annual output of corn oil in the United States is about 160,000 barrels, and of this amount about 150,000 barrels is manufactured by the Glucose Manufacturing Company. About 25 per cent. of this company's output is used in the home market, the principle consumers being white lead and putty manufacturers, paint manufacturers, soap makers, and it is also extensively used by the manufacturers of prepared paints, although few of them will admit it.

Its use in the foreign markets is said to be principally among the manufacturers of soft soap, and it is said to make a superior quality of soap. It commands a higher price than any other oil used for this purpose. The oil is also employed as an adulterant for table oil. It is easily purified, forming a light, amber-coloured, perfectly transparent liquid, without rancidity, and having a pleasant taste. It is also used for lubricating purposes, and may even be used as a lamp-oil.

WHY PEOPLE LEAVE GROCERS.

THERE are lots of reasons why customers leave us and go to other stores. Sometimes they are not our fault and sometimes they are. Sometimes we make it a point to have an undesirable customer go, but at others the customer gets away when we would like to keep him on our books. Often we lose a customer from lack of tact or judgment on our own part or on the parts of our employes.

I have talked to a number of persons, women chiefly, and have asked them why they have made changes in their trading places, and I have found that in many instances they could have been retained by the former grocer if he had been more tactful. Sometimes the customer is so unreasonable that there is no getting along with her. Sometimes she lacks humor and mistakes our efforts at jokes. Often it is slight misunderstanding.

Very frequently the grocer does not know that there is anything unsatisfactory until he finds that the customer is walking by his place on her way to the store of a competitor, with her nose high in the air, or his order boy is told that she "will not care to have him call again."

Still there are lots of legitimate causes that customers have for quitting one grocer and going to another. One grocer may not be disagreeable, but the other grocer may be so agreeable that the first one suffers by comparison.

Of the women I have talked to I have the following causes:

Mrs. Blank went to her grocer's one day to order dinner. She asked the proprietor, who also has a market, what he had that was good. He replied that he had laid aside a nice leg of lamb for her. The cost, he told her, was about 90 cents. She said that it was too much and that she wanted something cheaper. He commented in this vein:

"That's the way with you rich people. You come in with diamonds and sealskins and object when a man wants a decent price for food. You put your money on your backs and don't buy half enough to eat. You spend a hundred for clothes without a word, but want to make a dinner out of fifteen cents' worth of cheap meat." That woman never went into the store again. The grocer may have told the truth. If he did he was foolish for doing it.

Another lady tells me that a certain grocer was one of the most saitsfactory she ever dealt with, but that he simply would not keep his promises about delivery. He would promise anything you wanted him to, but failed to keep his word. It got so annoying that she went to another grocer. He was never on time. That was a legitimate reason for changing.

A third lady tells me that she stopped her last grocer because he was so disagreeable about his bill. She ran a weekly account with him which had been paid regularly. One week her husband was out of town unexpectedly. She advised the grocer. Two days later the husband had not gotten home and he began such a persistent method of collection that every time the boy drove by he would run in with the bill. Then he began ringing her up over the phone. She told him that she was helpless until her husband's arrival, but the grocer kept calling her up and asking if the husband had gotten back. The following day the bill was paid and an account opened in another store. The people were as good as gold.

A fourth lady tells me that she stopped trading with her last grocer because he did not send her the things she picked out and which he sold her and because the prices were always higher and the quality not so good when she ordered by 'phone. That is, she could not trust the grocer when her back was turned. That was a fair reason for quitting.

A fifth lady tells me that she stopped trading with her grocer beeause his prices were too high. He was a very clever and agreeable fellow. He gave credit freely and had many losses. He made up for these losses by his stiff prices. The lady said that she always paid her bills and for that reason preferred to go to some place where she would not be held up for the losses of a poor business man. Grocers who give long credit to customers will have losses and they have to make up some way. Naturally a person who is good pay will not want the losses made up on him. Others who are good pay, but slow pay, may be willing to stand for the extra charge for such service.

Another customer says that she left a place on account of the freshness of a clerk. The clerk was one of those superior fellows who seemed bored to death with everything she said, and who had a way of commenting upon her purchases most disagreeably. I asked this woman if she had spoken to the grocer about the matter and she said that she had not. In this case the customer was wrong. She owed it to the grocer to inform him that his clerk was unsatisfactory to his trade. He probably would have rectified everything.—Modern Grocer.

Fish and Cured Fish

Improvement in the Fish Trade.

THE consumption of fish throughout Canada, as all those who have studied the subject to any extent must have observed, is rapidly on the increase. The factors most principally contributing to this increase are as stated to your representative this week by Mr. J. Byrne, manager in Montreal for Leonard Bros., St. John, N.B., improved transportation facilities and a decided improvement in the manner of curing and packing fish for consumption. "More people are using fresh frozen fish in preference to green cod and salt herrings," said Mr. Byrne. "Formerly these latter were the only grades of fish handled, but since our friends in the Maritime Provinces have paid regard to style in packing, the deep-sea fruit trade has increased to a remarkable extent." It is a stated fact that fresh frozen fish is decidedly better than the dried or green kind, and with the climatic conditions in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba particularly favorable for the shipping and vending of fish for at least four months in the year, the astonishing part is that not more are consumed. A fish diet is healthy and in comparison with meat certainly more economic for the consumer.

"The Canadian Grocer" has for many years past advocated the establishment of fish-vending and preparing establishments in the larger cities and towns, establishments where the, to a certain extent, troublesome part of cleaning the fish for the consumer, is carefully and promptly attended to, and it is with satisfaction that we can mention several stores in Toronto in which this is done. The result cannot fail to be beneficial to the fish trade and the enterprising merchants inaugurating these branches will reap satisfactory profits.

We are of the opinion that our friends in the Maritime Provinces by uniting on some common ground of action looking to the development of the fish trade in Quebec, Ontario and the West, would find the market ready for them, providing, of course, they placed their products before the trade and the consumer in such a way that a good and fresh supply should be at all times available. Care in packing must, of course, be always exercised. The question of price will regulate itself in a very short time. Consistent and persistent advertising is also one of the most important features to be considered, and it seems to us that if energetic missionary work were done by the Atlantic fish dealers and shippers the gospel of good, healthy fish diet would soon evangelize the Western markets.

It is satisfactory to note that of late a few of the fish shippers of the East have entered the field and by placing their products before the trade in an appetizing manner, are getting a good hold on the trade. It will be necessary in a measure to educate the dealer as well as the consumer, as in many cases, too many, we have noticed, fish are handeled in such a careless way that the consumer does not find them enticing, in fact, often is set against buying by the rough and ready way the goods are displayed, handled and delivered. The field is a difficult one to cover, but with united effort on part of those most directly and primiarily interested, that is the fish packers and dealers of the Maritime Provinces, the result must in the end be beneficial all around, and particularly so to the East. "The Canadian Grocer" is ready at all times to lend its aid toward the development of one of Canada's greatest industries. The East should not let the British Columbia and Alaskan fisheries lead them in the race, they should at least be side by side. Consolidation, judicious advertising, careful packing and canning has brought British Columbia salmon to the front in the markets of the world, and we hope to see the Maritime Provinces rise to the occasion and place their products where their qualities entitle them to, in the front rank of Canada's trade. They have the best fish in the world, and financial means at their command to develop the industry.

Salmon Canned Whole.

Salmon canned whole! The idea seems somewhat preposterous, but the Miowera recently left British Columbia, says the Vancouver World, for the Antipodes, with a consignment thereof. This was a small shipment, it is true, but it may lead to greater things. The inauguration of this style of shipping is credited to Mr. Collier, manager of the Cassiar Packing Company's cannery at Observatory Inlet. The can containing a whole salmon looks like a miniature torpedo that had got slightly flattened. The possibilities of a market for fish packed whole seems immense.

New Fishing Industry.

Capt. Harris, of Gabarus, and Capt. Cann, of Louisburg, says the Sidney Record, have been conducting experiments at Gabarus Bay recently with a view to determine whether or not herring similar to those caught at Bay of Islands, Newfoundland, are to be found there. The result of their experiment is that herring of this kind are quite plentiful and all that is required to get them is to have nets of suitable size.

This is a very important discovery as there has been no herring fishing during the Winter months. For these herring there is a large market for bait, etc.

NEW MAN ON ROAD.

Mr. George F. Stevenson, well known among the grocers of the West, has been engaged by Codville & Co., of Winnipeg, Brandon and Calgary, to succeed A. B. Sproat on their Western territory. Mr. Sproat is taking the management of the firm's spice mills, in which a number of improvements are planned.

Mr. Barker is in receipt of the following cable from Liverpool in reference to the Wednesday morning apple market in that city:

The first coffee planted in Brazil was in Para from seed that came from Cayenne in 1727. In 1761 cultivation was started at Rio Janeiro by J. A. Castello Branco, but shipments on a large scale commenced only in 1817. Now Brazil produces three-quarters of the world's whole supply.

SAVE 25% on your HOUSE PAINTING.

If the grocers who intend painting their residences next Spring will follow the directions given below and wash the buildings with a solution of GOLD DUST Washing Powder, they will use one-third less paint than if they merely attempted to brush the dust off the house without washing it.

DIRECTIONS.

Dissolve one-quarter pound of GOLD DUST in a pint of water, then add the solution to 4 gallons of hot water; apply with a stiff brush, and follow with use of a hose. The stronger the hose is turned on the quicker and more effectual the work will be.

The use of less paint can be accounted for by the fact that after washing the house with GOLD DUST it leaves a smooth surface, so that the same quantity of paint will go fully one-fourth further. Furthermore, it leaves no layer of dirt between the paint and the woodwork, and, as a consequence, the paint will wear longer.

We have letters from several of our customers who used this method, and after washing their houses with GOLD DUST they were so well pleased with the appearance of them that they concluded not to paint them at all.

Retail grocers will do well to call this matter to the attention of their customers, as $3.00 worth of GOLD DUST Washing Powder will make the house look as well as the expenditure of $100.00 in re-painting it would.

Any grocer may experiment with a 5c. package of GOLD DUST by emptying the contents into 8 gallons of hot water, which should convince him that it will pay him to continue.

GOLD DUST can be used for any kind of outdoor work that needs renovating.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was held on Thursday evening, January 14th, at Monument National. A good attendance of members was present. President Chartrand occupied the chair. After reading and passing of the minutes of the last meeting the business of the evening was proceeded with.

It was moved by the secretary, Mr. J. A. Baudry, seconded by Ald. Laporte, that the constitution be amended to the effect that the officers of the association be authorized to meet every Monday to go over the business of the association, and that such business transacted by this committee be legal and passed by the association.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Laporte, seconded by Ald. Ricard, Messrs. P. Deziel and A. Desjardine were accepted as members of the association.

Moved by Mr. G. A. Archambault, seconded by Mr. P. Filion, that the day set apart for early closing of all retail grocery stores be Wednesday and the hour 7 o'clock p.m., and that the secretary be authorized to notify in writing all grocers of the city of Montreal.—Carried.

The subject of early closing had received the attention of the association for some time and the fact that the step has been taken should evidence the feeling of the trade on this worthy matter. No doubt the thousands of clerks employed will duly appreciate this move and the employers will not lose anything. It is a fact that grocers in this city work longer hours than their brethrent in other cities and the benefit all will derive will show itself in their business.

On motion of Mr. Beaudry and seconded unanimously it was decided that the Retail Grocers' Association lend their support in the approaching municipal elections to the following candidates: Messrs. L. A. Laporte, Clerique, N. Laporte, Ames, Gallery, P. O'Brien, Payette, Giroux, Couture, Lariviere, Ricard, Ouimette, Bumbray, Walsh, Turner, Lemay, Robillard, Lavallee, Ekers, Chausse, Valliere, Wilson and Martineau.

Of these 23 all are at present aldermen with the exception of Mr. P. O'Brien. It is a very interesting fact to note that there are on the board of aldermen of Montreal six grocers, one of them a wholesaler, Ald. Laporte. What city in Canada can present such a creditable showing for the grocery trade? Mr. P. O'Brien, a new candidate is also a grocer, and Ald. Laporte is a candidate for the mayoralty, and if all signs are not false, will be elected as the next mayor of Montreal.

What the election of such a powerful section of grocers means to the grocery trade generally may be easily imagined. Certainly the interests of the trade will not suffer.

The secretary, Mr. J. A. Beaudry, before close of the meeting spoke at some length of a plan that should be worked out by the association looking to a proper safeguarding of grocers' interests generally from the ubiquitous and persistent "dead-beat." His plan is an elaborate and workable one, and will be laid before the association in detail at its next regular meeting.

In this connection it may be said that for an enthusiastic and thoughful worker for everything that is in the interest of the grocery trade, Mr. Beaudry is always wide awake, and as his ideas are full of common sense and practicability the association's interests are well looked after. Mr. Chartrand, the president, possesses a knowledge of affairs thoroughly modern and his mature experience and level-headed business capacity will no doubt be given for the benefit of the association.

TEA REPORTS.

GOW, WILSON & STANTON writing from London, Eng., under date of January 8th, say: The interval of nearly three weeks without public auction naturally exerted a steady effect upon prices and the market after the holidays opened at firm rates for pretty nearly all descriptions. In spite of the heavy increase in imports since the commencement of the season the stock in London at the end of December was scarcely 3,000,000 lbs. more than a year ago.

Indian—The quantity brought forward was moderate for the time of year and the sale passed with a generally steady tone. Medium grades continue to be the cheapest kinds offering. Teas for price were, if anything, a trifle firmer.

Ceylon—Owing to the accumulation during the holidays, the sale was fairly heavy, but passed off with good spirit and with all-round competition.

Java—Rates current before the holidays were fully maintained with general bidding and a distinctly firmer market.

Wm. James and Henry Thompson writing from London, January 7th say: Though the ruling factor in the tea trade of the United Kingdom may, perhaps, be said to be the one pound canister, yet it is probable that the sale of this blend is not much pressed, but it serves as an advertising medium and accounts for the narrow margin of value between common and useful liquoring tea which has existed for some time past.

Indian—The quantity, though larger, has met with a good reception and prices on the whole, especially for teas up to sixpence per pound, and also for best liquoring kinds have been in favor of sellers. The medium teas, however, about sevenpence per pound are still slow of sale.

Ceylon—Common tea remains steady with rates ruling as before the holiday, and for Pekoes above common the quotations were slightly in favor of sellers in many cases, broken Pekoes between seven pence and nine pence also showing improved rates.

PREMIUM OFFICE OPENED.

A premium office has been opened by the Duncan Mfg. Co. at 85 Inspector street, Montreal, where a large number of useful and ornamental articles such as chairs, tables, rockers, pictures, easels, lamps, cutlery, glassware, silverware, clocks, jewellery, etc., can be got for five wrappers and upwards. Orders from outside points are promptly filled and catalogue of premiums are furnished on application.

A FLOURISHING BUSINESS.

Dividend checks covering quarter ending December 31st were mailed on January 15th to the 300 merchant stockholders in E. W. Gillett Co., Limited. The dividend was $2.50 per share for the three months or at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum. Sales for 1903 show a tremendous increase, Royal Yeast alone totalling nearly 30,000 cases more than in any previous year.

FORMED PARTNERSHIP.

J. Edgar Rutledge, grocer, of Fort William, Ont., has admitted his brother, T. W. Rutledge, into partnership and the business will be carried on under the style and name of "The Climax."

LARGER POWERS OF SELF-GOVERNMENT.

A GREAT deal of needless capital is being made in both Canada and Great Britain out of the remarks of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as to the necessity of Canada being given larger powers in regard to treaty making and questions arising over international territorial disputes.

In Great Britain, particularly, there appears to be people who see in the proposal the entering in of the thin edge of the wedge of political independence. It means nothing of the kind. What is really meant is larger powers of responsible government, which is dear to the heart of every Canadian.

The principle is not new in Canadian politics. It was enunciated many years ago by Mr. Edward Blake. And if it was felt to be a necessity then, it is a great deal more so now.

We are simply wanting the power to manage our own affairs and any one who is at all conversant with Canadian history, knows that the greater the latitude Canada has been given in matters of self-government, the stronger have become the ties of consanguinity between this country and the Motherland. There are still a few statesmen in Great Britain who regret that Canada was allowed in 1846 to regulate her own Customs tariff, but had she not been so allowed, it is scarcely probable that Canada to-day would have been a part of the British Empire.

The securing of the power outlined by Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be another step in the direction of completion in the matter of self-government, and like all previous steps in that direction, mean the cementing, not the dismemberment, of the Empire.

The trend of things is already in that direction. At one time Canada had practically no voice in international affairs affecting her welfare. The injustice has, however, been disappearing by easy stages, until in the last international tribunal to settle the Alaskan boundary question, two out of three jurists representing the Canadian or British side, were the appointees of our own Government. The rights granted toCanada in 1878 to decide whether or not she should be included in any treaty made by Great Britain with a foreign power, was also a step in the direction towards that more complete system of responsible government which Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and, we believe, the majority of the people of this country, are seeking.

By granting the larger powers outlined by the Premier, the source of the only serious grievance Canada has had against the Imperial authorities during the last half century will have been removed. It, therefore, follows that in the interests of the unity of the Empire, these powers should be conceded.

It is only a question of time before the right to manage our own affairs in regard to treaty making and territorial boundary questions must be granted, and Canada should now be sufficiently in the confidence of the British Government to have this right unhesitatingly accorded her.

VISIT THE TRADE CENTRES.

THE merchant whose ambition is higher than the mere selling of a pound or raisins, or a cake of soap, finds frequent visits to urban communities of far greater value to him in the building up of his business, than any amount of shrewdness in buying. He finds at least two trips a year, no matter at what distance he may reside, a necessity both to good buying and good selling.

Every visit to the city serves to bring him closer in touch with existing conditions in all ines of goods. A valuable knowledge can be obtained in this way of new goods for specialties, novel ideas for window and interior decoration and the like. He will also have the opportunity of making the personal acquaintance of the wholesaler with whom he deals, while at the same time, if he keeps his eyes open, he may gather a general fund of information that will be of considerable interest to his customers. Bargains can be always picked up on these trips that will perhaps pay the expence incurred.

The merchant who thinks to save money by remaining at home, or considers himself too busy to leave, or is disinclined from any other cause, is not in a position to successfully compete with his rival who regularly visits the commercial centres.

OATMEAL SKYWARD.

FOR some time past the millers have been complaining that there was no money in oatmeal at the price prevailing. The recent advance in oats partly in sympathy with other cereals and partly in consequence of the scarcity of first class samples was the last straw. An advance was without doubt justified by the high price of the unmilled oats. The extent of the advance is what is somewhat startling. The millers evidently have determined to recoup themselves. However, as retailers have bought freely in anticipation of the rise there should be no particular hardship for the present. Porridge will still remain a popular breakfast food.

RECENT APPOINTMENTS.

THE ways of politicians are past finding out. A few short years ago a party in opposition was railing against the appointment of members of Parliament to office and but the other day Mr. Blair's appointment to the chairmanship of the Railway Commission afforded a flagrant instance of the violation of this principle. The one paliation of this appointment was Mr. Blair's eminent fitness for the position. It was hoped that in assigning Mr. Blair's late portfolio eminent fitness should again have been the criterion. Mr. Emmerson, who was called to take up the important duties of Minister of Railways and Canals, is a gentleman of considerable ambition, and of a little more ability than the average member of Parliament, but what are his especial qualifications for the Ministry of Railways and Canals do not appear.

This is a department of supreme interest and importance to the industrial and commercial world of Canada. Transportation in our wide Dominion is one of the most delicate problems with which the business man has to deal. The Minister of Railways and Canals should be a business man, one thoroughly acquainted with the intricacies of freight rates, classifications, drawbacks, competition and the intimate relation these have upon the success and failure of industrial and commercial enterprises. It appears that political interests have outweighed business interests in this appointment.

It is with quite different feeling that we can speak of the appointment of Dr. Mills of the Ontario Agricultural College, to the Railway Commission. Here is an instance of an appointment where political considerations had no weight, the kind of appointment that should be the rule and not the exception. Dr. Mills is a man who is thoroughly conversant with the interests and views and the needs of the agricultural class. He represents the classes who perhaps of all, have the greatest interest in the problems of transportation. In experience, in intellectual capacity in every way he is eminently fit for the position to which he has been appointed, where he will doubtless be able to serve the farmers of Canada as effectively as he has so long and so efficiently served those of Ontario as Principal of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

It is to be regretted the considerations which directed the appointment of Dr. Mills were not dominent in the selection of a Minister of Railways and Canals.

STOCKING NEW LINES.

ARE our Canadian grocers liberal or conservative in the reception they accord to new lines, goods they have not heretofore handled? The answer to this question will depend largely upon the person to whom it is put, and the view he takes of the proper function of the grocer.

The manufacturer or traveller who is introducing a new product, if he is worth while at all, is naturally thoroughly convinced that his line is the best on the market, and it is merely the prejudice and old-foginess of the retailer that prevents him from stocking up largely at once.

The retailer looks at the matter from another standpoint. He already has a line of goods which to a greater or less degree takes the place of the new article. His customers are making no complaint, why should he change? Or perhaps the product is something new altogether. He is doubtful whethere or not there will be sale for it. Nothing of the kind has ever been called for. It is not his place, he argues, to take the risk and to work up trade for the manufacturer. Some even take the ground that the grocer's business is merely that of an automaton, to give the people what they ask for.

That there are not a few who take this view, the more's the pity. Should the whole trade act on this principle, stagnation would be the result, and the calling of the grocer would afford no attraction for the man of brains.

Houses introducing new goods are generally willing to put them in on sale to be paid for when sold. In stocking these goods therefore, the retailer runs no risk, and has the use of so much extra capital until the consignment is disposed of.

It is not for a moment suggested that every new grocery line should be stocked. It would require an establishment as large as a departmental store to carry out such a policy. But every new line offered should be given careful consideration and if warranted by its merits should be given a trial.

People are constitutionally fickle. For no apparent reason they tire of the old and if given a chance will try something new. They want to be up-to-date and the grocer who gets the reputation of being up-to-date, who always has the very latest things on the market, the very earliest fruits and other specialties of the season, is the grocer who will capture the largest and best trade of his locality.

Discrimination is, of course, a prime requisite, but combined with a judicious discrimination the grocer should always exercise a certain liberality in considering the advisability of stocking a novelty.

CANADIAN PROVISIONS APPRECIATED.

IT has been a common complaint that we colonials are not sufficiently appreciated by our kin of the Motherland and every instance of ignorance or indifference, we have had held up for our indignation. Letters addressed by careless clerks to Montreal or Toronto, U.S. A., have rightly roused our dugeon, but have unrightly been taken to represent the average intelligence of the Briton in matters colonial. It is a pleasure, therefore, to find that we are not always confused with our neighbors to the south, that a distinction is made and much to our advantage, by business men, who have experimental knowledge of the superiority of our products.

The English grocery trade has been perturbed for some time over the announcement that an American millionaire company was to buy up the entire grocery trade of Great Britain, commencing in Lancashire. The London, England, Grocery, commenting on this announcement is not quite sure whether it is "another case of Yankee flapdoodle or an astute dodge to frighten the trade into larger buying of their (American) discredited goods," but quotes approvingly "an influential merchant" as follows:

That Canada has successfully laid hold of the trade for bacon, cheese, and butter is undeniable. The absolute superiority of her goods—careful packing, freedom from adulteration, and uniformity in selection—has enabled her to do this; and it is for this reason that American provisions generally are left severely alone just now. The advantage thus gained by our Canadian friends must not be lost, and I would urge all retailers to push Canadian and Colonial goods, and advertise them freely as such, for they will best fight this combination, if such a thing exists, with the weapons of good, cheap and wholesome food such as we are now receiving from our "kin beyond the seas."

Canada will be exceedingly grateful if British retailers will follow the advice of the gentleman above quoted. Great efforts are being made to bring our provisions and dairy products up to the highest standard and we hope for still greater success in the future.

WESTERN MARKET CONDITIONS.

By Our Winnipeg Representative.

AN inquiry among the wholesale trade generally brings the information that collections are slow, in fact very considerably slower than was anticipated for January and there has been more renewing than was expected. Wholesale houses, especially in dry goods and hardware lines, are exercising some caution in their shipments of Spring orders. This is merely along the line that your correspondent wrote some six weeks ago. The movement of wheat has been smaller and though there is a fair demand at the present time there has been considerable holding back. The war news is giving the Western farmer the impression that he will make money by holding, and this is preventing the movement of money that otherwise might be in circulation.

The crop is considerably smaller than estimated, and a good deal of the more western wheat is of a low grade, and consequently brings low prices even when it is sold.

The merchants who have wisely confined themselves to a few houses will have no difficulty, because there is a mutual understanding of the position and consequent forbearance and extension of time, but the merchant who has foolishly spread his accounts among a great many firms is pretty sure to be harrassed, particularly by smaller creditors.

Western wholesale houses are not worrying over the situation in the least, knowing full well that it will right itself in time, but they all freely admit that collections are very slow and that a number of country merchants are finding it necessary to ask for renewals in many cases where previously they saved their discounts.

The Eastern wholesale houses would do well to ponder this matter carefully, for not a few country merchants complain that they are fairly harrassed by the calls of travellers for eastern houses who simply almost insist on selling them goods. These are too frequently young men whose zeal for large orders runs away with their discretion in the matter of credits. Money is tight just now and is likely to remain so for some months at least.

CARE IN HANDLING BUTTER.

COUNTRY merchants who take in more butter than they can handle locally and are accustomed from time to time to forward it to commission houses in the larger centres, every year lose a very respectable profit simply because of lack of care in putting up that butter for shipment. Commission men with whom "The Grocer" has conversed, speak in despairing tones of the way in which much of the butter arrives. Large rolls and small rolls, good, bad and indifferent are all put in together, and on arriving at the commission house there is but one quality, bad. In many cases also there is no attempt at neatness in packing and consequently butter which should have graded as best dairy is fit only for cooking purposes.

In forwarding rolls, a little care will be handsomely rewarded. Rolls of the same quality and size should be packed together in neat, clean boxes, to be certain of receiving the highest price.

The whole trouble, however, is not ascribed to shipping. It is alleged that butter as it is received is all put away together, the best sold off locally and what is left bundled off to the city at irregular intervals. If this is true to any great extent there is still further room for improvement. In the first place a cool, dry, clean place should be afforded for the butter which should be graded as received, so that the good may not at any time be contaminated by the strong. In the second place shipments should be regular and frequent, at least once a week all surplus butter should be got rid of unless the retailer has exceptionally good cold storage facilities.

If the butter is graded as received, shipped regularly in neat, clean boxes there would be less complaint from commission men as to the poor quality of dairy butter, and the local merchant would reap a profit which under conditions above described is lost altogether.

TIME FOR A CLEANING UP.

IT is not necessary to wait till the Spring time for giving the store a good overhauling. Stocktaking always brings to the front a quantity of goods which somehow got away back in the shelves and are now not as saleable as they would have been six months ago. It also changes the appearance of the store more or less. In fact there is no better season of the year than now to take the spare time of a week or so to so rearrange the stock as to give it the brightest, most attractive appearance possible. Then follow up this rearrangement by introducing the scrubbing brush to the floor and the dust cloth and even the paint brush to the counters, shelves, scales, show cases, etc., etc. This work entails very little expense yet is always productive of good.

$500.00—FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

We believe that OUR INCREASE ALONE in sales of "SALADA" Ceylon Tea in the past year over our sales in 1902 was greater than the entire tea business of any other wholesale firm in Canada, in either packet or bulk tea.

If any Firm has a contrary opinion, we are prepared to donate Five Hundred Dollars—$500.00—to any Charitable Institution if we are wrong; the contesting Firm to do the same, if we prove absolutely that our INCREASE ALONE in the past year over the preceding one was greater than their entire business, packet or bulk, in 1903. We will allow the contestants to include in their sales Ceylon, India, China and Japan Teas, on our part THE INCREASE IN 1903 OF "SALADA" ALONE. Results to be published.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Jan. 21, 1904.

Groceries.

THE impetus felt in trade the first two weeks of the year has been somewhat checked in some parts of the province by the heavy snow and the severe weather which prevailed the early part of the week. In some places the delayed trains and impassable state of the roads made it very difficult for travellers to make their rounds, as well as detaining the people at home. Despite of this, however, some jobbers report good trade. Collections are, on the whole, quite satisfactory, and the outlook generally is good. Canned goods are particularly firm with a rising tendency in several lines. Corn is unsettled, ranging from $1 to $1.15. Peas have stiffened some, while for beans and some lines of canned meats there is an active inquiry. Coffees are still rising in New York, and prices here are quite firm. There is a good active demand and stocks are gradually disappearing. Spices are firm. Syrups and molasses are meeting with a good active demand at steady prices. Rice and tapioca are without particular interest. Teas are attracting more attention, and there is a good active demand for most lines, while prices are fully maintained at recent quotations. Dried fruits are less interesting than recently. Currents, however, are firmer, and shelled walnuts and almonds show further advances. There is a more active demand for prunes and a scarcity of small sizes. Cured fish are more in demand. Sugar is irregular this week. A decline of 1-16c. may be recorded in raws, but this has not been communicated to the refined market, which is steady, though demand is light on account of the situation in raws. No immediate change is anticipated.

CANNED GOODS.

The demand for canned goods continues quite active in most lines and prices are not altogether settled. Some corn is still to be had at $1, with $1.05 for larger lots, while $1.10 to $1.15 is the best price to be had from other holders. A little later when the volume of business becomes a little larger a level will doubtless be reached. Peas are scarce and advanced to 90c.-$1.40. Beans are particularly scarce. Canned poultry and chicken soup are other lines which are reported hardly equal to the demand. There is but a limited quantity of Canadian asparagus on the market, which is likely soon to be cleaned up. Sardines are advancing, and higher prices are prophesied as certain. In fact, there is a generally firm feeling with an upward tendency in canned goods. We quote :

SUGAR.

The market this week may be described as irregular, with buyers and sellers both indifferent. United States refiners having anticipated January requirements are not disposed to buy any more for this month's shipment from Cuba, unless at a concession in price. A cargo to arrive has been sold to one New York refiner at 1 31-32c., c. and f., equal to 3 5-16c., duty paid. For February shipment from Cuba there is less pressure to sell, and as refiners so far have made no large purchases for that month, it is understood that they are willing to pay 2c., cost and freight, or equal to 3.34c., duty paid. This price would show a decline of 1-16c. from sales advised in our last, and we have reason to believe that large quantities changed hands on this basis since last we went to press. Present indications are that the market will hold steady unless Cuban planters should force sales in order to realize on sugars as fast as made. Since the Reciprocity Treaty was signed the situation has been very disappointing to them, as the market has declined almost to the full extent of the preference. To planters in other countries which do not receive similar preferential treatment the situation has of course been much worse. For the week ending January 13 receipts at United States Atlantic ports were heavy, namely, 48,639 tons, being more than double the average for the same week of the previous five years. Meltings were 28,000 tons, an increase of 8,000 tons for the week, and, at the same time, 3,000 tons less than for the corresponding week last year. Total stocks in all hands were 91,917 tons, or 29,076 tons less than same week last year. In Cuba there were, according to latest advices, 101 estates grinding, while weather is reported favorable for making crop. Combined stocks in United States and Cuba were last reported as 181,947 tons, as compared with 195,248 tons last year, a decrease of 136,025 tons. European markets are Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 3,621,947 tons, against 3,185,922 tons last year, being an increase of 136,015 tons. European markets are 1½d. lower for the week, latest quotations for 88 per cent. beet being 8s. per cwt., basis f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to parity of 3.96c. for 96 test centrifugals. The refined market has held steadily for the week with new business only light in view of the weaker tone to the raw situation, but with fair withdrawals on contracts. It is felt that prices will hold steady. Similar conditions prevail on the Canadian markets, and we quote prices unchanged as at foot. There is a disposition to hold off, but so long as New York remains unchanged there is hardly likely to be any alteration in prices here.

COFFEES.

In spite of occasional breaks the New York coffee market continues strong and advancing. No. 7 Rio is quoted this week $8.35, cost and freight, New York, as against $8 a week ago. There is a respectable business doing locally and stocks are becoming light, so that jobbers must soon get into the market again. Deliveries at Rio and Santos are very light, confirming the judgment of the bulls. Locally there has been no quotable change, but prices are more firmly held. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is a very good demand for syrups, with prices, if anything, firmer. The molasses war in the Maritime Provinces does not affect this market. The quantity of molasses consumed here is not large, and that mostly New Orleans. Syrups are more favored for table use. We quote:

TEAS.

There continues to be an active demand for most lines, especially noticeable since the beginning of the year. Probably the leaders are low-priced Indians and Ceylons. Stocks are comparatively light. London advices indicate a firm feeling in that market for all grades. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Business in these lines is reported as ranging through dull sorting to fairly active by various houses on the street. Currants are firmer, but no change is quotable. Prunes are picking up and are showing a decided scarcity in small sizes. Shelled almonds are up another shilling on the primal markets, making an advance of 5s. since December. Reports from France indicate a substantial advance in shelled walnuts (chaberts). The crop is rapidly being exhausted. We quote:

Cured Fish.

There is beginning to be a better inquiry for cured fish, which may be expected to improve with the Lenten season. With higher prices and absence of several lines, the prospect is not altogether satisfactory; but, so far, trade has been about as last year. We quote:

Country Produce

EGGS.

There has been no relief to the egg situation. The demand while necessarily not large on account of the small stocks and high prices, is steadily depleting stocks. The cold weather is affecting what small receipts of fresh laid are coming to hand. However, with February in sight a couple of weeks should mark an improvement, especially if, as a year ago, February receipts prove large. This is anticipated by some from the fact that the hens quit laying early in the Fall. A spell of mild weather in the early part of February would make a great improvement in the egg receipts. In the mean time prices keep hardening. We quote:

DRIED APPLES.

There is practically no demand for dried apples as the German market is making no enquiries, and there is little local consumption. Evaporated are correspondingly dull. We quote:

POULTRY.

Poultry is flat. There is little movement and prices have eased off with the demand. Chickens are 1 cent lower and geese from 1-2 to 1 cent down as well. We quote:

Fish.

A brisk trade is being done in fish this week. On account of the extreme cold which has frozen over Chesapeake Bay, the source of the oyster supply, oysters command a high price and are scarce. Stocks of sea herring are good quality. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Owing to the excessively cold weather the fruit market is quiet this week. Lemons are easy with a great deal of frost-bitten stock on the market. California oranges are more plentiful. Mexicans are firm and of better quality. Almeria grapes are nearly out of the market. The demand for bitter oranges is good at present, with prospects of a brisk trade. Jamaica oranges are on the market for the first time. Apples are quiet. Our quotations are:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Jan. 21, 1904

Groceries.

BUSINESS is showing a good improvement, trade during the past week being on the whole very much better than similar period last year. Travellers' orders are coming in well and of good size. Sugars are quiet and little doing. No changes to report in prices. Foreign beet markets are weak and dull. The situation of the tea market is better and a renewal of enquiries prevails. The Eastern war scare has upset New York markets, and business there, and it is reported also, in the West, has been stimulated considerably. Enquiries from New York for large lots of Japans being received. Formosa Oolongs have also been sold a little more freely for Chicago buyers. An active market prevails for China greens—stocks are low and holders none too ready to sell. Molasses trade is quiet and nothing particularly interesting to note. Corn syrups are growing in favor and consumption is reported as increasing. Canned goods are quiet. Tomatoes reported getting scarcer and not unlikely to advance. Patna rice orders have been fairly largely booked, the withdrawal of Japans by the Mount Royal M. & M. Co., Limited, has been followed by a reduction in part of that company of Patnas. Tapioca is quiet. Coffees and spices are reported very strong both locally and New York and higher prices are confidently looked forward to by holders. Cloves are looked to as likely to go into the thirties before new crop can be marketed. Fish trade is looking up, fresh frozen being in especially good favor and demand. Green fruits are very quiet and little doing on account of the cold weather. In dried fruits shelled almonds and walnuts show strong front, and advancing tendency. Vegetables unchanged and little trade the extremely cold weather hindering safe arrival and deliveries.

The situation in the egg market remains unchanged expect that each week the small stocks on hand being rapidly reduced. There are no new laid eggs offering this week. The bean market is now very quiet and prices are steady at figures quoted. In sympathy with the strong tone of the foreign markets local quotations on hops are now very firm and further advances seem not unlikely. The firmer feeling in evaporated apples noted in our last issue has continued this week but there have been no further advances. The rumors of war in the East have continued to strengthen the wheat market and in consequence the local quotations on flour have been advanced 15c. this week In feed, there is nothing of interest to note except a firmer feeling in bran and a better demand for shorts. The advance in rolled oats predicted in these columns some weeks ago has materialized at last and our readers will notice a sharp advance in prices quoted below. Most readers of "The Canadian Grocer" have stocked up during the last few weeks and not much activity in the jobbing trade can be expected until the present stocks pass into the consumers' hands.

SUGAR.

Business during the past week has been very quiet, and but little trading is done. London beet sugar market is dull and unchanged. New York also reported quiet. From the general reports obtainable an easy to be the rule. All sugars advanced 5c. per 100 lbs. on the 14th inst., affecting, however, only Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

As regards the position of molasses this week the prices and quantities agreed upon by the jobbing trade last week seem to be generally in vogue. Trade, however, is very quiet during the week. The demand for syrups seems to be growing, some of the jobbers reporting quite an appreciable difference in their sales as compared with previous years. There is no doubt that the careful manner and saleable sized packages in which the manufacturers are putting up corn syrups for the trade, has been one of the leading factors in this extra demand. TEAS.

Quite an active market has prevailed within the past few days in China greens, Ping Suey Young Hysons and Ping Suey Gunpowders, also teas for price in Moyunes. Stocks are somewhat low and holders are not particularly anxious to sell at this time, as it will be about eight months before similar teas can arrive. Ceylon and India blacks are still freely enquired for, particularly in low prices, and stocks are exceptionally small. The Japan market has been somewhat dull through the holidays, but owing to the Eastern agitation it is expected that an active market will prevail, particularly as New York buyers have been making enquiries for large invoices on this market, and in other parts of Canada. While Formosa Oolongs at any time command but little attention and sales are limited, there has lately been one or two invoices sold in Canada, which it is understood have met with ready sale in Chicago. SPICES.

The firm tone that has prevailed lately in all grades with the exception of ginger, is maintained. Cloves particularly are looked to as bound to show very much higher prices. The statistical position of cloves is very strong. The entire crop of Singapore last season being 25,000 as against 110,000 the previous year. Bombay is buying all available supplies for use by the Parsees in their funeral rites. It is even intimated by one of the large New York brokers that a limit of 30 to 35c. may be reached before new crop is available. This may be rather a pessimistic view but the statistical position being so strong in every quarter would indicate that an advance may be looked for. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA

The withdrawal of Japan rice by the Mount Royal Milling and Manufacturing Co. on the 2nd inst., has somewhat stimulated a demand for Patna rices and some very large orders have been booked by brokers. There is no change to report in prices, but with figures somewhat under last year's quotations the indications are that an advance is altogether likely. As regards tapioca the position is unchanged and a fair demand amount of business only is turning over. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods situation is practically unchanged since last report. Enquiries for corn still prevail and price of same is generally quoted at $1.10 by the jobbing trade. Tomatoes also, it is reported are getting interesting, more enquiries coming in for these goods, and it is not unlikely that an advance will eventuate in the near future. In other lines of canned goods prices are unchanged. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Trade is very quiet In fact the fruit jobbers state that it is quieter than it has been for many years past. They can only attribute this to the extreme cold weather which seems to have put a damper on everything. It is noted that California oranges are reduced 25 to 50c. and Florida oranges 25 to 40c. Fish.

The condition of the market is improving. A good steady demand is looked for from now on until Lent. Stocks generally are going forward in fairly good quantities and good condition There is a scarcity in some grades. Frozen fish this year, all kinds, are exceptionally fine, stock being of the Winter caught variety. There is also a fair demand for dried and cured fish. The demand for salmon has fallen off a little. Green cod is picking up somewhat and better business is looked for from now out. Smoked haddies are in good demand and sales good. In oysters the demand is fairly good for bulk stock with shelled oysters quiet. We quote:

EGGS.

The market continues very firm. There are no new laid eggs offering and supplies of selects and pickled are being rapidly reduced. American buyers have been trying to make some purchases on the Montreal market, but they have found that there are scarcely any eggs to be had here at any price. We quote: Selects, 28c.; pickled eggs, 24c.

BEANS.

There is nothing new to note this week. The market continues very quiet and prices are steady at figures quoted for several weeks back. We quote:

HOPS.

Conditions reported in our last issue still obtain. In sympathy with the upward tendency on foreign markets, local prices are firm and the tendency is towards an advance. The price of choice Eastern Townships and Prince Edward County hops is 32 to 33c.; ordinary hops of fair to good quality are quoted at 27 to 30c.

HONEY.

The market for honey seems dead this week. On what little business has been passing since the first of the year, prices have been well maintained. We quote:

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

This is always the dead season of the year for maple products preceding the activity of the Spring months. On what little business has been passing during the last month prices quoted below have been well maintained. We quote:

EVAPORATED APPLES.

The firmer feeling noted in our last issue has continued this week. The largest shippers have exhausted their stock and as the export demand continues brisk prices are firm. We again quote as follows:

New, in jobbing lots	0 06½	0 06½

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Since our last report there has been an advance of fully 15 cents in sympathy with the increasing strength of the wheat market. The market continues very firm at the advance and further increases are considered likely. Owing to the strength displayed on the American grain markets and the sharp advance in the Winnipeg wheat market the undertone is very strong. A few millers are said to be asking as high as $4.50 per barrel, track, here for Winter wheat patents. The export demand continues good. We quote:

FEED.

The demand for general lines of feed is fair and as offerings are somewhat smaller there is a better feeling in the market. Bran is very firm this week, a slight advance in the Manitoba make having occurred since our last report. The demand for shorts shows some improvement. We quote as follows:

Ontario bran, in bulk	16 50	17 00

Manitoba bran, in bags	....	17 00

ROLLED OATS.

The advance in rolled oats predicted in these columns for some weeks past has been made. It is said that for some time the manufacturers have been making little or no profit on their output because prices were too low. If that be the case, they have aparently decided to remedy matters. Very little business is passing at present as most dealers are well stocked anticipating an advance. Not much activity in the jobbing trade can be expected until the present stocks go into consumption. We quote the following increased prices:

Rolled oats, in bbls	4 55	4 60

BARLEY.

There is nothing of special interest to note this week. Prices are unchanged and orders are now easily filled out of stocks on hand. We quote:

There has been a little more activity since our last report, a few good sales for export having been made. Prices remain as follows:

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Jan. 18, 1904.

BUSINESS is rather quiet here. There is no doubt this is the most quiet month in the year as far as the wholesale grocer is concerned. There have, however, been two months of more than usual interest during the past two weeks. One centred in St. John but its influence is felt throughout the molasses market of Canada. This has been a subject of such interest that it has formed a leading subject of conversation not only among the grocery trade but among business men in general. While it is perhaps early to speak of the success of this movement made by one of our largest molasses importers, it is a long time since there was so dramatic an incident in trade here. The molasses situation is entirely changed from that of a few weeks ago. Then it was a firm market with stocks, which while quite ample, still were chiefly in the hands of one house. It remains to be seen, and the result will be watched with more than ordinary interest, if the depression, caused by the action of our largest local importer in bringing here a cargo of Porto Rico, at this the earliest date a direct cargo has ever been landed and by cutting present prices four to six cents, can be sustained. The other matter of great interest is the advance in oatmeal of upward of 75 cents per barrel, for which very striking advance no sufficient reason can be seen. Another unusual feature of the market is the strong position of cream of tartar. In rice rather lower prices are quoted.

Oil—The high price of burning oil is firmly held, but with the advancing season the interest in this line lessens. Lubricatings have more attention, competition is keen, but prices are quite firm. In this line it is chiefly a matter of quality. The low price of linseeds is a feature. Turpentine is very firmly held. Fish oils are scarce and high.

Salt—There is nothing new. Receipts of Liverpool coarse salt have not been as large during the past few weeks as earlier in the Winter. There is a fair stock now held. Prices are firm. In fine salt market is quiet.

Canned Goods—There is nothing particularly new. Tomatoes are the line having attention. Demand just now is quiet. Stocks are not large and higher prices may be expected. Corn is very firm. Perhaps there is nothing of more general interest to the grocery trade than the canned goods question, particularly as relating to the Canners' Association. The buyers outside the association last season represented the larger quantity of this line handled here. Now while some of the outsiders find themselves short in certain lines, those who bought from the association are far from satisfied. There is no doubt this will be a subject of general discussion at the Dominion Guild meeting in Montreal. Canned meats, which are now quoted are having attention. This is a line which would be much affected in case of war.

Green Fruit—Sales are dull. The stock of lemons held here has been light. There are large lots to arrive, prices quite low. While Valencia oranges are freely offered, Jamaicas are preferred. Cranberries are high. In apples demand is somewhat quiet. Fair stocks are held. Prices are quite firm

Dried Fruits—Market is dull and prices easy, seeded raisins are quite full stock and there is a wide range in quality in the California fruit offered. Malaga seeded while sound look badly and are offered quite low. Valencias are a larger stock than was expected. In loose Muscatels a fair stock is held, and the situation uncertain. California market is weak. Dates are low. Evaporated apples find but a fair sale. In nuts the sharp advance in peanuts is a feaure.

Sugar—Market is unchanged. Prices are low. There is but an average sale.

Molasses—This is the feature of interest. Prices are lower. The competition between the American or Porto Rico company represented here and our largest importer grows in interest. Our trade with one of two exceptions had largely given up the field to the outsider. One importer however, from the start, had been bitterly opposed to their method of business here. It looked at one time as if the local house was in a hard place and might have to come to terms or do without molasses, when the situation was entirely changed by their receiving a direct cargo of Porto Rico and cutting present prices. The question is what will become of the quite large stock held by the other party?

Fish—There have been fair receipts of fresh fish. Herring, however, seem in lighter supply. In dry cod the market continues firm. Pollock are dull. Smoked herring are high and scarce. Pickled, while quite high, seem in ample stock.

Flour, Feed and Beans—In flour the market is very firm. Already Manitobas show an advance. Oats are higher, and oatmeal shows a big jump, something unusual. It is said there is a combine among the millers, though all do not seem to quote the same price. Beans are quite firm. Cornmeal is unchanged. Barley and peas are in rather light supply. The barrel question seems to affect all lines.

A RED ROSE VISITOR.

A VISITOR to the offices of "The Canadian Grocer" during the past week was Mr. Stephen Hustwitt, Winnipeg and Western agent of T. H. Estabrooks ("Red Rose" teas), St. John, N.B.

Mr. Hustwitt was on his way back from St. John, where he had spent a week at the opening of the new tea warehouse and offices of his firm. The description of the warehouse and the country in which Mr. Estabrooks has planned the entire establishment was very interesting and he was most enthusiastic on the subject.

Mr. Hustwitt, who is one of the best judges of teas in the country, has, since taking up business in Manitoba and the Northwest met with very good success. He speaks most encouragingly of the future in his section. In fact the volume of trade has increased to such an extent that it is found necessary to place an assistant in his territory, and Mr. H. R. Arnold now looks after a large portion of Manitoba. It may be stated that Red Rose package teas were not known in the Northwest until introduced there by Mr. Hustwitt.

To many reads of "The Grocer" Mr. Hustwitt's name is no doubt familiar, as he has been a contributor on the subject of teas for some years, and his long experience and knowledge of teas has placed his opinions on a creditable basis.

Mr. Hustwitt's firm carries a heavy stock of teas in Winnipeg, both bulk and package. His territory extends from Winnipeg to Cranbrook, B.C. Mr. Arnold, his assistant, covers from Port Arthur to Winnipeg, the Canadian Northern, Southern Manitoba, and New Ontario.

An interesting thing stated by Mr. Hustwitt was the fact that his people are extending their business into Minnesota. It is the opinion of Mr. Hustwitt that the extension of the railroads under way will increase business very materially. He looks upon the city of Winnipeg as a wonderful city, and is quite enthusiastic over the Chicago of the West.

SOLD OUT.

Thos. Johnston, of Malakoff, Ont., has sold his grocery business at that place to Angus Johnston, who will take possession in February. Mr. Angus Johnston is assistant postmaster at that town.

MR. J. H. MAIDEN.

MR. J. H. MAIDEN whose portrait is presented this week to readers of "The Canadian Grocer," has been connected with the grocery and provision trade of Montreal for the last eight or nine years. Some two years ago he opened up a manufacturers' agency and commission business at 131 Youville square, Montreal, where he has offices and warehouses occupying three flats. Besides the domestic and foreign agencies under his control he is also the proprietor of the Eagle Manufacturing Co., whose baking powders, borax, starches, etc., are establishing a good hold on the trade.

Among the firms represented by Mr. Maiden may be noted the following:

J. H. Maiden, Montreal.

The Ralston Purina Co.'s food products, St. Louis, Mo.; Canadian Packing Co.'s canned meats, lard, etc., London, Ont.; R. Lehmann & Co.'s "Zoeco" condensed milk, cocoa, coffee and chocolate, London, Eng.; Goodday, Mfg. Co., powdered ammonias, Toronto; also the Eagle Mfg. Co.'s "Eagle" brand borax, baking powders, and "San Toy" starch.

Mr. Maiden, who has a good and growing connection with the retail and jobbing trade of Montreal and district, is energetic and enterprising, and in a position to take hold of a few more lines of grocers' specialties. His ideas of business are modern, and, as he is a young man in the prime of life, he is able to give close and careful attention to any business entrusted to him.

MADE IN CANADA FAIR.

The King's Daughters of Victoria, B.C., an organization which includes many ladies of prominence in the Pacific coast city, proposes to hold a "Made in Canada" Fair immediately after Easter. Mrs. A. T. Watt, Victoria, B.C., is the secretary of the fair committee, the other members of which are leaders of circles in Victoria, and Mesdames Shaw (Convener), Croft, Hasell, McMicking, Munn, Morley, O. M. Jones, Hanington, Kent, Burton, Tilton, Rocke, Robertson, Templeman, H. Beaven, Fisher (Metchosin), Maitland-Dougall (Cowichan), the Misses Leitch, Pitts, Newcombe.

Manufacturers who wish to exhibit are requested to communicate with the secretary.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Jan. 18, 1904.

BUSINESS is generally quiet. Collections have been fairly good, in fact several houses report them better than during January of last year. Where accounts have not been paid in full partial payments have been made in most cases. The outlook for Spring trade is good. The only important market changes are in flour and pork. Local jobbing prices of Ontario flours have been advanced 20 cents and some Manitobas are also higher. American mess pork has advanced one dollar and a half per barrel, but there is not much local demand at present. Domestic packers have reduced their prices for hogs on account of the poor quality of the offerings. The Sussex Packing Company has been closed down for a week owing to damage done its power house during a recent gale.

The annual meeting of the Halifax Retail Merchants' Association held last week was well attended. A committee was appointed to confer with the various trade and labor societies in an endeavor to impress upon their members the advisability of making their purchases before 6.30 o'clock on the early closing nights—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Frank Calwell.
Vice-President—Isaiah Mo her.
Secretary—H. Maxwell.
Treasurer—W. E. Crowe.
Executive Committee—Alderman Cawsey, A. Downie, E. A. Wood, Mr. Wilson and the secretary and treasurer.

The feature of the week has been the presence of the Transportation Commission whose sessions in the City Hall was attended by a large number of business men many of whom took part in presenting the claims of the port. On Friday through the courtesy of Mr. Geo. S. Campbell a small steamer was placed at the service of the members of the commission, who spent several hours steaming up and down the harbor examining both the Halifax and Dartmouth waterfronts. The commissioners were impressed with what they saw and expressed

PURE GOLD TALK.

No. 1.

It happens once in a while that a grocer gets disgusted with the coffee he is selling. He has paid the top price, and dealt with good houses, but try as he may he seems to always miss it.

It is a good day for that grocer—and for us—when he discovers that the Pure Gold Company is able to restore his faith in himself and his customers' faith in him.

The Pure Gold Company hasn't any more money than a host of competitors, and so it isn't money that makes the difference. It is rather Pure Gold experience and Pure Gold carefulness. Certainly the Pure Gold Company yields to none in the matter of knowledge of what the Canadian trade wants. And when it comes to care in blending and roasting, the Pure Gold Company stands in a class by itself.

Its coffees are hand-picked. That is "quakers," dirt, nails and imperfections of every sort are removed by hand.

The reward is in the result obtained.

For a year or more efforts have been carried on for the repeal of the Scott Act in Cape Breton. After a good deal of labor the requisite number of names were secured to a petition for the repeal of the Act. This petition was forwarded to Ottawa, but the authorities decided that too many of the signatures were in the same handwriting to be regarded as valid and the petition was therefore thrown out. The Scott Act has been in force in Cape Breton for 22 years. In the whole of Nova Scotia licenses to sell intoxicating liquor are granted only in two counties, viz., Halifax and Richmond. The list of applicants for license in the city of Halifax for the ensuing year has been posted. The usual parties have applied for shop or grocery licenses.

R. J. Matheson, whose flour mill at Dartmouth was destroyed by fire ten days ago has decided to rebuild.

Fire broke out in the coal mine at the Joggins last week and became so serious that it was found necessary to flood the mine. This will necessitate the cessation of mining at the property for six months or more. The mine is a valuable one and a flourishing town has grown up around it which is chiefly dependent upon the industry for its existence.

Work is suspended at the Chignecto mine on account of a strike of the colliers there.

Mr. Comie, the Scotch herring expert brought out by the Government, has decided to locate his experimental station at Canso and has gone to Scotland for a steamer, nets and men to carry on the work. He expects to bring enough fishermen and curers to instruct our local fishermen in the work after the approved Scotch fashion. The Western States and Canadian Northwest now import 200,000 barrels of herring from Europe annually and it is this trade that it is expected to supply from Nova Scotia.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Jan. 16, 1904.

THE close of the week finds trade moving briskly especially in grocery and produce lines, this due in a considerable measure to the demand from lumber and logging camps. Prices of staple groceries show very few changes for the week.

Sugars—There has been an advance on all lines during the week, making the present prices for granulated $4.65 to $4.70, and $4.05 for bright yellows.

Coffee—Market is very firm and the price has again advanced making the present quotation for No. 5 Rio, 9 1-2 to 10c.

All other lines of groceries are without change from last week's quotations.

Flour—There has been a good deal of rumor in the flour circles this week as to heavy purchases by Mr. Tamura, of Japan. A careful investigation goes to show that Mr. Tamura made some purchases of flour, nothing extraordinary, however, and he did not purchase two shiploads of wheat as was currently reported. Mr. Tamura stated that in case of war a small quantity of flour would no doubt be taken by the navy, but their principal diet was rice, and fish, with small quantities of low grade flour, bread about three times a week. The real demand for flour in Japan comes from districts where their wheat crop is short and the high prices of rice are inducing them to sell rice and buy low grade flour. The trade in Canadian flour for Japan has been well developed by the exhibits of the Canadian Goverument at the Osaka exhibition and export trade is steady and increasing but there is nothing phenomenal in it as the present time nor is ther likely to be, even in case of war. Locally trade is very good and prices are fully sustained at the advance of last week, being $2.45 for the 98-lb. sack of No. 1 patent.

Cured Meats—The demand is very good as usually the case when lumber and wood camps are in full blast. Prices continue easy, especially in comparison with last few months; hams, 13 3-4c.; shoulders, 8 1-2c.; breakfast bacon, bellies, 12 3-4c.; backs, 11 3-4c.; spiced rolls, long, 11 1-4c.; short, 10 3-4c.; long clear, 9c.; dry salt backs, 10 1-2c.

Lard—In tierces 9 1-8c; 50-lb. tubs, $4.70; 20-lb. pails, $1.95; 10-lb. pails in cases, $5.95; 5-lb. pails in cases, $6; and 3-lb. pails in cases $6.10; compound lard in pails, $1.75.

Dressed Meats—There is only a fair demand at the present time and prices are rather firmer. Abbatoir beef is quoted at 6 1-2c. for tops; mutton, 8c.; and hogs, 7c.

Live Hogs—There is only a moderate receipt at the present time and prices are shading higher. The general quotation is 4 3-4c. for hogs from 150 to 250, but 5c. has been paid for small lots of choice hogs during the week. Under and over weights range from 4 to 4 1-2c.

Butchers' Cattle—Small shipments are received from time to time that bring about 3 1-2 off cars Winnipeg. Stock coming in at the present time is all in fine shape.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 15, 1904.

THE movement in provision trade is very light at the present time in the city. There is a smaller business in the various coast logging camps at this season, and the fleet of smaller steamers and tugs, is also tied up for want of business. For a good deal of the business of the "mosquito fleet" depends on the activity of logging camps. The movement of goods to the interior is quiet, as can be expected in the month succeeding the holiday season.

From northern quarters comes encouraging news of promised activity there in the coming season. The opening of at least two new gold camps on the creeks discovered last season in districts tributary to White Horse and Dawson, has already created quite a stir in the north and indications here are that there will be a big movement to that section as soon as Spring opens. Inquiries are being received from many distant parts of Canada and the United States for information on this new field.

The changes in local stocks and prices are slight. The movement of new dried fruits is smaller than usual at this season. Possibly the stocks of apples and other green fruits on the market have a tendency to attract demand from the other lines. Price of flour is very high following advances by the big Canadian millers. The 50-lb. sack is now quoted at $1.50 retail, which makes it pretty expensive to eat our daily bread, though the bakers have not yet raised their quotations.

Fruit—The large crop of apples both British Columbian and Eastern has this year had the effect of keeping down the demand for California oranges, despite the extremely cheap figures quoted on the orange crop. One dealer said he had never known the prices for California to be quoted so low as at present. He said there was a line of navel oranges to be bought in San Francisco at $1.35, and they were good oranges too. The big crop of apples in the States last Fall was still affecting the market there too, he said, so that the demand for oranges all round was slack. Whether it is fancy or not, he holds that a good apple will always be taken in preference to even a good orange. The fact remains, however, that whatever the cause, the demand for oranges is very small, and the crop is large and of good quality, while as stated, the price has never been lower. Local quotations show the finest fancy navels not over $3.50 per box, and down to $3. Seedlings are not yet coming in in great quantities. They are quoted in some instances as low as $2.25 and up to $2.75. Lemons, which are also a good crop in California, move slowly just now. The price is from $3.25 to $3.50 for the best.

Apples locally are still plentiful, thought all the choice are from the Okanagan and other interior districts of British Columbia. It is possible that the coast districts may never compete with the upper country in producing apples, but the past season has shown that such a quantity can be produced in the coast sections that a fair percentage of fruit of good quality can be selected. The poorer grades always sell cheap, but this season there has been a big stock of coast-grown apples which have graded well up.

The prospects for the future, taking the record of last crop, are that the trade of the Northwest and largely of Manitoba will be supplied by British Columbia grown apples practically from now on. Britsh Columbia will have such a quantity to export every year in the future that she will not only control the apple business of Western Canada, but the large supply of this fruit will have the effect of keeping out a large proportion of the foreign fruit, especially from California which is at present brought into the country at high prices.

Produce—Market quiet in nearly all lines, is the average report from the dealers. The only item of interest at the present time is the festive egg. This article, fresh, and not limed or otherwise treated is now worth at least 27 1-2c. per dozen to the trade on this market. At that figure there are not very great stocks. At least there is no surplus. Pickled stock is still lighter, though some lots are coming forward. Local fresh are still dear, though they have dropped back to 40c. per dozen retail. Extremely mild weather has induced the fowls to begin laying and retail merchants are receiving more than they did when the price was up so high a few weeks ago. The quantity is so small, however, that it is not a factor in determining the prices on the open market.

Butter is fairly well stocked, but not moving very rapidly. Some lots are received still. Really select dairy is hard to get now. It would command from 20 to 21c. The range of price for dairy is from 15 to 18c. for such stocks as are in hand. Creamery is firm and selling at 24 1-2 and 25c. Cheese is very inactive, and stocks are light. Prices for Manitoba stocks are about 13 to 13 1-2c. with Ontario stock a cent or two higher. The sizes are nearly all large, twins and small cheese being sold out.

THE FUTURE OF THE RETAIL GROCER.

THIS question has been uppermost in my mind for some years, and I have discussed it with many people from time to time, writes Mr. J. Streeter in The Grocers' Monthly (Eng.). I find that a great number of traders give a very gloomy forecast, while others think there are better days in store than we have ever known.

With the latter I am in full sympathy, providing that certain laws and conditions are strictly adhered to. I believe in the law of the survival of the fittest. I also believe there must be moral laws in trade, as there are in nature, and the future success of the legitimate retail grocer and provision merchant depends as much on the amount of trade morality he exercises as it does on his practical fitness, and to prove that immoral methods of trading have (to an extent) placed us in our present position I will give a few examples.

You are all aware that, during the past, many laws have been brought into operation which are iniquitous and very vexatious to the honest man. Why were they needed? For no other reason than to check the dishonest practices of many traders of the past.

Take the tea trade. Why is it that this commodity has been diverted from the legitimate channel and company shops have come into existence? Simply because traders have adopted immoral methods, by selling sugars at a great loss and taking excessive profit on tea to compensate.

Again, take the case of many proprietaries. We have known, within recent years, that many popular lines have been sold at cost price, and under; and the unjust practice of selling margarine for butter or palming off second-rate goods at best prices has been resorted to, consequently the company butter shops have come into existence and taken much of the butter trade.

Again, by giving unlimited credit to the working class, many pounds have been lost in bad debts and interest on capital, and to compensate, high charges have been charged, and unfair prices have, in many cases, been adopted. The outcome of it all is, that the industrial class have opened their co-operative shops.

By becoming more thrifty they are now able to pay cash for their goods, and we now have to face them as severe competitors.

These, gentlemen, are some of the reasons why we, at the present day, cannot claim the field as sole distributors. They also go to prove that the immoral methods of the past have been prejudicial to our best interests, and that, in consequence, we have now to face the competition of the monopolist and co-operative store.

There is one other important reason which largely accounts for our position, viz., "lack of organization." Had grocers of 50 years ago become an organized body, laws would have been framed to protect the honest trader, instead of trapping him. The dishonest practices referred to would have been discountenanced, and the company shops, which were originated by our supposed friends, "the tea merchants," would have been prevented from opening up in direct opposition to the very men that had supported them in the past.

Having thus far briefly dealt with the failings of the past and the present condition of things, I will proceed with my subject, "The Future of the Retail Grocer."

I say, without fear of contradiction, that the only remedy is "organization."

Every reform that has been achieved in the past is due to combined effort, and we have only to look at the mighty power of our own Empire, and the strength of the Labor Party in this country, as a conclusive proof of the immense value of organization and collective action.

You will say, "But we have organization in our Association all over the country." True; and everyone who reads his trade paper and attends the meetings knows of their past achievements and future possibilities. But what does our organization depend on? About six or twelve enthusiasts in each district, who are ready to devote their time and money, are prepared to do anything and everything possible to promote the best interests of the trade they are proud to belong to.

What we want, and what we must have, is a more complete organization—more enthusiasm. Each member of the trade must rouse himself from the present state of apathy and realize his individual responsibility; join our association, come to our meetings, and give us the benefit of his intelligence on all matters affecting the trade.

I should like to say at this point that the possibilities of organization in our trade is unlimited. I will endeavor to show you some of the reasons why we must aim at a more complete organization. I think you will all agree with me that the company shops, at some part of the year, will give better value in some lines than many retailers do. I will endeavor to show you, by comparison, why they can do so.

The average grocer of to-day buys his five or ten cheese; five, ten, or fifteen sides of bacon; one, three, or five casks of butter from the representatives of some wholesale house, who has previously bought in larger quantities from the broker who acts for the producer.

The grocer takes one or two months' credit, and, should he exceed it, he is entirely at the mercy of the wholesaler as to the price he pays and the quality he gets.

The company shop, on the other hand, gets at head office collective orders from all their 100 or 300 branches, and goes on to the market with enough requirements to entirely rule the same. It gets in at a price much below the figure paid by the grocer, simply because it buys collectively and saves travellers' expenses, wholesalers' profits, brokers' commission, and various other charges, and when the retailer asks for cheese or butter to compete with them he is told by the wholesaler that the companies are losing money on every pound they sell. Is that so? I say, decidedly, no. They work for profit, and make it, while the legitimate trader would incur a loss to sell at their prices. To my mind, this in itself is enough reason why we must combine to combat combines.

We will next take the bacon trade. Why is it that we, as retailers, taking the greatest share of labor and risk involved in distribution, as we do, have seen little or no profit for years past, while the traveller, wholesaler, broker, agent, etc., invariably gets a profit? And why is it that if a retailer wishes to go to the market with ready money he is refused a supply? Because, being a retailer, he is not a member of the bacon ring, which, as you all know, is run in the interest of broker and wholesaler, and will not allow us to be supplied except through a wholesale dealer, thus placing us in the position of tied houses, while at the same time they court the favors of the wholesale retailers. These are other reasons why we must combine to combat combines.

We will next take the vexed question of the co-operative stores. I claim that the future of the retailer will be disastrous if we allow these delusive and unjust pirates to continue their progress unmolested. We must co-operate to combat co-operative stores, and collectively expose the dividend fraud, which I maintain is a division of overcharges and not a dividend at all.

We ought also to point out the injustice of the British workman running his own shop, and drawing support from traders by trading under the Friendly Societies Act, to evade the large amount of revenue due to Government by posing as philanthropists, when they are taking a mean advantage of the gullible public.

Again, we want an organization strong enough to enter action against any individual or editor who publicly circulates such libellous statements as appeared in Answers a few weeks since.

I do not think there is a trader here who would not join me in placing his various priced teas before any competent expert to prove that relative value is given by us in each case from 1s. 2d. to 2s. per pound.

I should like to briefly touch on a few subjects which will have to be dealt with to secure success for the grocer in the future:

1. Terms of credit. I maintain that our present system is unjust, as nearly everything we sell for cash is charged to credit accounts the same, and if they are not the public are in many cases led to believe so. I think the fairer way will be to sell everything at a rock-bottom price, and charge 10 per cent. per annum, in proportion to the length of credit taken, beyond a month. This can only be brought about by a collective decision.

2. Technical education for our assistants. I say that we must have better men behind our counters, and it will be to the interests of all concerned to encourage some scheme of teaching our staff the technical part of our trade in a proper manner, and not allow them to pick up their knowledge in the haphazard way many of them do.

I feel certain that it will be helpful to our assistants in after life if they are obliged to qualify in the same way as chemists do. You will agree that it is as important that a grocer should know as much about the food he sells as the chemist does about the drugs he dispenses. I am strongly in favor that physical culture should be taken up by our staff, but not in the mad way they enter into the sports of the present day, for many of them cannot talk intelligently on any subject but football.

3. Combined buying must be taken up for mutual benefits, to place ourselves more firmly in the position we wish to maintain of being premier distributors to the public.

4. "Grocers' Price Lists"—are they a blessing or a curse? You all know it is the ambition of everyone who issues a list to say that he sells at store prices, and to make it an advertising medium for as many unprofitable proprietaries as he can think of.

I maintain that the successful grocer of the future must be a specialist in at many branches of his trade as possible, and not the automatic machine for the distribution of unprofitable proprietaries, neither must he play second fiddle to the stores, and his list must bring his own name more prominently before his customers' notice than the other lines he sells.

5. Forward buying, to my mind, should be condemned. We all know that if we make a good hit everyone else has done the same, consequently we cannot get the extra profit we require to cover the losses we incur on the many bad forward transactions.

6. We must organize to stop the man who buys Canadian eggs from us, at this time of the year, and palms them off on our customers as new laid.

We must also endeavor to stop the progress of the delusive octopus who trades under the name of Pension (or Husbands') tea.

Innumerable other topics, such as the importance of stock-taking, overstocking, up-to-date attractions for our businesses, civility without servility, must be dealt with in the interest of the retail grocer of the future. The personality of the single shop grocer may be discussed to advantage.

In conclusion, I should like to emphasize what are, to my mind, the most important points of those which I have endeavored to bring before your notice this evening, viz. :—

1. Trade morality.
2. Combined buying.
3. Technical education for assistants; and last, but not least, a more complete system of organization.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

Cakes and Biscuits in South Africa.

THE special commissioner of the British Board of Trade who has been investigating the present condition and further prospects of trade in South Africa among other things has this to say of the trade in biscuits and cakes:

Biscuits are almost entirely of British origin, but Australia is beginning to compete, as in most branches of confectonery. The well-known English and Scottish makers have a firm hold on the market. A few German and American biscuits are sold, but they are specialties, and do not make any impression upon the figures of imports.

The trade in cakes which is a very considerable one, is about equally divided between Great Britain and Australia (Victoria). Australia has put on the market some very cheap cakes, which have had a large sale. I was informed that English houses had now produced similar low-priced goods, and were likely to capture a portion of Australia's trade.

The following figures are for Cape Colony only in 1902. Imports of cakes into Cape Colony:

From Great Britain	£37,574
From Victoria	35,341
From New South Wales	1,231
From New Zealand	524
From Other Countries	878

Canada is not represented here to any appreciable extent. The market is one that should afford an opening for our products which are unexcelled.

Sustaining Value of Sweets.

It is a well-known fact that soldiers on campaign, travellers, and other persons who are obliged to bear great and prolonged fatigue, cannot carry on their work without sugar, or some such sugary compound as jam or honey. In a recent issue of the Revue Des Deux Mondes, M. Dastre has given his views upon this subject. He shows that instead of being a mere relish, which makes other foods more palatable, sugar performs an important function in making good the losses caused by muscular exertion and in maintaining health and vigor in the body. He endeavors to prove that the processes of life in the higher vertebrates must be carried on in a sugary solution of 1 1-2 to 1,000, and he takes the view that glucose, which is supplied to the body by means of sugar, is the source of muscular energy.

Sweets the Nations Eat.

Britain consumes 70 pounds of sugar per head per year, the United States 67 pounds, France 30 pounds, Germany, which is a great producer of sugar, but 17 pounds.

Cocoanuts by the Car Load.

A representative of "The Canadian Grocer" while in Hamilton this week had the pleasure of being shown through the works of the Imperial Cocoanut Company by the managing director, Mr. James Somerville. The company are doing a large and steadily increasing business with the trade, as is witnessed by a consignment of several carloads of cocoanuts recently received from Jamaica.

Effect of Sugar Convention.

A SINGULAR and somewhat humorous situation has been created by the fact that in the arrangements with the Continental Powers and Great Britain resulting in the convention, and expressed in the bill, the provisions are entirely confined to bounty-fed sugar, and do not apply to manufactured products of a sugared character, says The Scottish Trader. An effort was made in the House of Commons by Mr. Kearly, M.P., to extend the scope of the provisions to the rejection of sugared articles of foreign manufacture, bounty-fed, but the Government did not assent to the proposal.

It now has evoked the spectacle of the confectioners, on the one hand, denouncing the convention prohibiting the bounty-fed raw material as a national calamity, and at the same time complaining in a very emphatic way at the possible import of the manufactured article subsidized by a bounty by a foreign state.

There are three observations which must be made on this exhibition, in all honesty.

Firstly.—Any judgment passed upon particular classes of dumpings or of bounty-fed imports must be on a general principle, and not determined by the interest of one particular case or class.

Secondly.—Industries deriving a temporary artificial benefit from the import of an artificially cheapened raw material ought not to be listened to in pleading the "building up" of their mushroom prosperity against the destruction and injury of any other domestic or Imperial interest, seeing they may themselves be yet subjected to similar treatment, as in this particular instance.

Thirdly.—What we require is fiscal freedom, apart from conventions and bills, to clap on at any time a countervailing duty equal to any open or concealed bounty upon any class of imports, and notice given to foreign states that in the future this shall be rigorously given effect to.

Candy Lore.

"IN the little glass case, at the cross-roads grocery and notion store, are to-day a few boxes of candy. For a half-century they and their predecessors have glorified that famous emporium to the children of the distant country-side. The grocery store still sells candy, even a great metropolitan store counts it among its important goods, and daily freshens its delicious stock."

The above is from Bon Vivant, published by C. Jevne & Co., Chicago, large manufacturers and dealers in candy. It says:

"Speaking of candy, this country makes and eats the most candy, and New York is the candy city. Not the output of England, France and Germany combined, equals the $150,000,000 worth produced in the United States in 1900. So great is the industry in New York State that the State's iron and steel products do not exceed it in value. When you see a man 'pulling' taffy in the window of a candy shop it may interest you to reflect that in the great religious fetes of India, three thousand years ago, two men pulled it from the branch of a tree in just the same way. To day, so much art is entering into candy-making, a manufacturer can take the color scheme of an entertainment and produce candy in harmony therewith."

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. A. R. Barnard, Montreal's representative of Hunt & Co., is on a business trip to Toronto, London, Hamilton and the West this week.

Mr. Henry Wright, of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., has just returned from a business trip to New York, Boston and other Eastern American cities.

Messrs. Armand Chaput and F. Prudhomme, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, were on a business trip to Ottawa last week, from all accounts successful results were obtained.

Mr. A. M. Piper, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., Toronto, was a visitor to the Montreal trade last week. As an opener for business in 1904 Mr. Piper reported business remarkably satisfactory.

Mr. S. W. Ewing, of S. H. Ewing & Son., Montreal, who had been confined to the house for six weeks through illness, is able to partially attend to business, and hopes soon to be in full harness again.

Mr. A. B. Hardwicke, representing Pyle's Pearline, was a caller at the Montreal office of "The Canadian Grocer" this week. Mr. Hardwicke is making his initial trip for 1904 going east as far as Quebec.

Mr. D. W. Douglas, general eastern representative of E. W. Gillett Co, Toronto is out again. Mr. Douglas has been confined to his house by a severe attack of the fashionable western disease "La Grippe," which he evidently brought with him from the Queen City. Gillett's Lye and Royal Yeast will now receive their customary close attention.

GREEN FRUITS

Health Value of Apples.

A MEDICAL writer says:—"The more mellow apples one eats the better, provided they be taken at meal time. It is best of all to eat fruit before meals, and freely as you like."

This will prevent loading the system with a heavy weight of less digestible foods, says the Independent. Senator Vest says that if a man wishes to live long and be able to keep up his work he must eat not less than one apple with every noon lunch; we are not sure that he said half a dozen. The no-breakfast fad tells us that he must not only go without the morning meal, but that he must live much more largely upon fruit. Some of its disciples insist that the apple may be taken in the place of the ordinary breakfast. John Wesley once referred to apple dumplings as an illustration of the alarming advances of luxuries in England. Charles Lamb quotes a friend who says that "a man cannot have a pure mind who refuses apple dumpling," and Dr. Johnson speaks of a clergyman of his acquaintance who brought his family up almost altogether on this Anglo-Saxon combination. We have recollections of dumplings which might accord with the opinion of Lamb; and then we have recollections of other dumplings which might have been the origin of Calvinism. It must be borne in mind that the ideal apple is one that is fit to be eaten raw, yet the glorious old Spitzenberg is only fit for the cook—in whose hands it may become the very perfection of pie apples. The nineteenth century went out with a marvellous evolution of new sorts of fruits of all kinds, but there was nothing in the list to exceed the delicious juices of the Northern Spy.

There is nothing in the world to exceed the beauty of the apply blossom; while the air is laden with an exquisite perfume that has charmed a hundred generations—has added to the posey, the love and the comfort of Greek, of Roman and of Britton. But if there be anything more beautiful than the apple in blossom it is the same tree loaded down with crimson and golden fruit. Then it is that the apple touches human nature and wakes in the housekeeper the highest conceptions of the science and the fine art of dietetics.

Western Fruit Men.

THE district fruit growers have now elected a permanent organigation, says the Victoria, B.C., Times. Some time ago the preliminary meetings were held and the necessary by-laws and constitutions adopted. Now the association has the stock subscribed and have held their first general meeting. The following were elected the permanent officers:

President—Thomas Bryden.
Vice-President—A. Strachan.
Second Vice-President—A. Stewart.
Secretary-Treasurer—J. C. Grant.

A resolution was passed to be presented to the Dominion Parliament praying for the amendment of the Pure Foods Act, so as to prevent the adulteration of jellies and jams.

In a paper on shipping fruit Mr. R. M. Palmer tabulated the following requisites: 1. That it shall have the carrying quality; 2. That it shall have a good appearance; 3. That it shall be put up in even grades, that is, honestly; 4. That it shall be in regular trade packages, marked with the name and quality of the fruit and the name and address of the grower; 5. That it shall be of as good quality as possible consistent with the preceding requirements. Packages—Apples in 45-lb. box; pears in 40-lb. box; plums in 20-lb. crate, 4 baskets; cherries in 10-lb box, or 24 crates; crab apples in 50-lb. boxes; strawberries in crates, raspberries, bulk, in pails.

Sicily Lemons Short.

Severe storms in Sicily on December 7th and 15th destroyed at least one-half of the lemon crop for 1903. Previous to this the outlook had been promising, although the supply would have been a little behind that of last year. As a result Mr. V. B. Badalamenti-Dina, Toronto, one of the principal agents of the Messina growers, says that 63,000 boxes of lemons are now on their way from Italy to Canada and the United States as against 150,000 boxes last year. This will undoubtedly affect the lemon mar-kept in Canada since Canadian fruit dealers usually rely upon the regular shipment of Messina lemons to Montreal for their Summer supply. There is every prospect that high prices will prevail, especially in the "November cut" which is the lemon that supplies the bulk of the Summer trade in Canada, on account of its keeping qualities.

Among the Fruit Men.

CLEMES BROS.

CLEMES BROS., fruit and commission merchants, corner King and Church streets, Toronto, are justly proud of the fact that they rank among the pioneers in the fruit business in Canada. Forty-two years ago they began in Port Hope under the firm name of C. Clemes & Son. A few years later Mr. Clemes, sr., founder of the business, died, and his two sons, J. P. and M. P. Clemes, moved to Toronto, where they joined W. H. and A. E. Clemes to form the present firm of Clemes Bros. The only change in the personnel of the firm since then is the demise of J. P. Clemes, which occurred six years ago; the other three brothers still control what has become one of the most extensive businesses of the kind in Toronto.

At first Clemes Bros. occupied premises at 51 Front street east. The steady growth of their business compelled the firm to move three years ago to their present commodious warehouse and offices at the corner of King and Church streets.

In the course of an interview with M. P. Clemes a representative of "The Grocer" learned that the firm of Clemes Bros. are the largest Canadian importers of layer figs, a complete stock of which they secure direct from the growers in Smyrna every year. They also employ a buyer in California the year round, who affords the firm the advantage of being strictly on the inside in the orange and general California fruit trade.

A few years ago, says Mr. Clemes, very few oranges were sold in Toronto except Mediterranean fruit. At the present time California oranges are largely taking the place of other fruit. Another striking feature in the evolution of the fruit trade is the increased demand for lemons. The bulk of lemons for the Canadian Summer trade arrives at Montreal from Messina every Spring. Thirther Canadian fruit merchants gravitate to bid on the numerous cargoes of lemons which are disposed of by auction. Clemes Bros. have the honor of being the largest individual buyers at these sales, holding the record with an order for $28,000—$32,000 at one sale.

Clemes Bros. trade is largely in foreign and domestic fruits and provisions. They handle all varieties of Mediterranean fruit such as oranges, lemons, grapes, nuts, etc., and do a large business in California fruits.

New York Grain Market.

THE committee appointed by the New York Produce Exchange some time ago to devise ways and means whereby the New York grain market could be broadened and improved, has finished its labors and submitted a plan to the consideration of the members of the Exchange, says the Flour Trade News. The most important features of the plan are as follows:

At the first meeting of the Board of Managers, subsequent to the adoption of this plan, and thereafter at the first meeting of the Board of Managers, after their election, the president shall (subject to the approval of the board) appoint as a "Committee on Delivery" twelve members of the New York Produce Exchange, who are known as members of the grain trade, nine of whom are specially interested in handling cash grain, and three of whom are specially interested in dealing in "futures." Of the nine members to be chosen from the cash trade, three each shall, so far as possible, represent the trade in wheat, corn and oats, and five of the nine shall be exporters. Every local exchange which shall accept this plan, may appoint one additional member of this committee, such members to have the privileges of visitors on the floor of this Exchange during thirty days in each year.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on Delivery to fix the differences at which deliveries of grain on New York contracts for "futures" may be made, at the places hereinafter mentioned, and to fix the differences relative to the contract price at which other than contract deliveries may be made. In all cases where delivery on contract for "futures" is made outside of New York there shall be added to the difference due to outside delivery, any penalty for delivery of lower grades than contract, provided for in case of delivery of lower than "contract" grades, if delivered in New York.

Any and all grades of grain deliverable on contract for "futures" on this Exchange, shall also be deliverable, with five days' notice, in lots of 5,000 bushels or multiples thereof, and all in one warehouse, at the following places, when inspected and graded in accordance with the rules and regulations of the New York Produce Exchange, and when same has been properly stored in warehouses licensed by the Committee on Delivery, viz., Buffalo, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk, Newport News, New Orleans and Galveston.

There shall be appointed by the Grain Committee of the Exchange, within 30 days after the passage of this plan, inspectors of grain, who shall be thoroughly familiar with the grading system of this Exchange, for each one of the places above mentioned, which shall accept the plan, such inspectors to be known as deputy inspectors for the point to which appointed. The deputy inspectors shall, as needed, appoint assistants, with the approval of the inspector-in-chief, to handle the varying volume of business. The deputy and assistant inspectors shall inspect the grain arriving at the points where they are appointed, in accordance with the rules and regulations of the New York Produce Exchange, and they shall inspect out of store, or going aboard vessel, all grain loaded out of the warehouses in their places. All certificates issued shall be in accordance with those of this Exchange and bear the words "New York Standard."

The Committee on Delivery shall meet at the call of the chairman during the first ten days of September and fix differences at which the various grades other than "contract" of Winter wheat and oats may be delivered, and during a like period in November differences on Spring wheat, and during a like period in January differences on corn; all the said differences to apply on deliveries commencing on the ensuing calendar month, and continuing one year therefrom, unless the committee sees fit to make varying differences to suit different periods of the year.

New York Grain Trade.

There is a proposition on foot to include grain at Buffalo in New York deliveries, and thus made the immense ex-lake storage at that port a guarantee against corners in New York trading. In addition the committee recommends that on contracts for wheat, corn and oats, a next inferior grade to those now authorized, be deliverable at a difference arbitrarily fixed, but the discount arrived at in each case to no way detract from the value of the contract from a buyers' standpoint. The proposed changes in rules are not to apply to deliveries maturing before August 1 next.

Scottish Grain and Flour Trade.

UNITED STATES CONSUL FLEMING, of Edinburgh, writes the Washington Bureau of Industries as follows:

The accompanying statement shows the quantity of grain and flour imported at the ports of Leith and Granton from January 1 to October 15, 1903, and for the coresponding period of last year:

of corn in 1901-2 and early in the present year. The normal proportion of the imports of this grain into East Scotland from the United States is two-thirds, when the American crop and prices are at the average. The reduced total of corn imports this year is due mainly to a diminished demand from distilleries. A considerable increase of both wheat and flour compensates for the decline in corn. Large shipments of wheat from Galveston to Leith is a recent development in the grain trade.

I am told that Canadian millers are making a strong bid for the flour trade. Much British capital has been invested in flour mills in Canada, with the special object of supplying the Britsh markets, and dealers here say that when these enterprises shall have been placed on a broad and firm basis—assuming that they can be so placed, against the competition in the United States—not by any possible efforts can American millers hold their trade in these islands. That is the local opinion now, which events may change; it takes no account of the constant improvement of milling processes and the growth of milling interests in the United States.

New Farm Buildings.

An indication of the prosperity prevailing throughout the Prairie Province is to be found in the capital invested in new farm buildings during the past year. By sections it is estimated as follows: Northwestern, $446,680; Southwestern, $1,075,072; North Central, $450,000; South Central, $630,000; Eastern, $360,000; total for province, $2,961,752.

In 1902 the esimated amount expended in farm buildings was $2,228,875. This year there is an increase of $732,877. These figures do not include buildings in towns and villages. They are a fair index of the prosperity of the farming community.

The percentage of wheat crop marketed on December 1, 1903, was—Northwestern district, 43 per cent.; Southwestern district, 54 per cent.; North Central district, 70 per cent.; South Central district 64 per cent.; Eastern district, 70 per cent. Total for province, 58 per cent., or 23,479,287 bushels.

Canadian Wheat Too High.

Mr. S. Tamura, of Kobe, Japan, while in Winnipeg on a commercial mission, was asked as to the truth of the report that he had closed a contract for half a million bushels of wheat for shipment to Japan. He expressed his regret that he was unable to confirm the report, and added: "I came to Winnipeg with the intention of purchasing some Canadian agricultural products, but, on account of the prevailing prices being too high, I have been unable to do anything. I have had some communication by cable with Japan regarding the matter, and have been informed that, owing to the high prices here, orders have been placed for a large amount of Pacific coast wheat, which is now going forward, prices there being cheaper. The price of Canadian flour is also too high for the Japanese market, and it seems to me that I will have to wait until I can get a suitable price on Canadian wheat and flour for our market."

Export Flour Trade.

ONE important branch of the export trade of Vancouver is the handling of flour to Japan and China, says the Vancouver Province. This trade, while of some years' standing, is of but recent accession to rank of importance. Canadian flour of the second class is now in receipt of a heavy call from Japan. Some of the higher grades of flour sell in Japan but the demand is light. The creation of a good market for Canadian flour in Japan may be said to really date from the time of the Osaka Exposition of the early part of the present year. Then it was that the Japanese first came to the knowledge of the superiority of the Canadian brands over those produced in the United States. The dissemination of this knowledge has been rapid and the responses so ready that a large and rapidly increasing flour export trade between Canada and Japan is now in existence. It may be said by the pessimistically inclined that this flour trade will not survive in its entirety the restoration of transportation rates on the transpacific steamships. That, however, remains to be seen and there is at present reason to believe that even the increase of the rates by 40 per cent. will not work material harm to the traffic. In fact one exporter has stated that he is now taking advantage of the cut rates to firmly establish his lines in Japan. The present rate of $3 per ton on flour is a reduction of $2. It had its creation some four months ago when the China Commercial Company, operating a line of vessels from Hong Kong to San Francisco via Manzanillo, Mexico, made the drop for the purpose of pulling the underpinning from the San Francisco lines. As in duty bound the northern lines (like the San Francisco lines) members of the Asiatic Freight Bureau, came to the rescue by placing northern rates on an equality with those of the southern port. San Francisco rates have since dropped to $1 per ton as competition from the China Commercial Company is keenest at that port.

According to Mr. Lowther.

J. W. Lowther, M.P., speaking at Carlisle, said the farmers of Norfolk and Suffolk, where most of the corn in England is grown, scouted the idea of laying down a single acre more because of a duty of two shillings on foreign corn. They had said nothing under seven shillings and sixpence or ten shillings would satisfy them. They were to substitute colonial meat and corn for the foreign. They would have to compete with colonial corn instead, with Australian beef, with New Zealand mutton, with Canadian beef and mutton, instead of as now with Argentine and American. Suppose they did shut out foreign corn and meat, how were the agriculturists of England to benefit?

Hard Wheat in England.

English wheat not being thought equal in quality to Canadian, says a cabled despatch, the National Society of Millers started experiments with a view to obtaining hard milling wheat, with a result that a new hard wheat, has been produced. As far as tests on a small scale went, it has been found of a strength that left nothing to be desired.

Is Japan a Buyer.

The Winnipeg Free Press is authority for the statement that despite contrary reports Mr. S. Tamura, the Japanese Government representative, has contracted for over 500,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat to be delivered on call at market quotations.

COFFEE OUTLOOK.

WILLETT & GRAY'S weekly statistical report for week ending January 14th, have this to say of the coffee situation:

The option markets have again undergone heavy fluctuations in the process of which a great deal of realization has undoubtedly taken place. New buying has come in influenced by the moderate receipts and renewed reports of damage to the growing Brazil crop. Notwithstanding the world's visible showed no material decrease during December, confidence in existing values is imparted by the prospective position of coffee. January receipts for half the month are only 230,000 bags and at this rate the moderate estimate of 600,000 bags will be wide of the mark. If the Santos crop is but 6,500,000 bags, of which 5,300,000 bags are already received, the balance would be 1,200,000 bags, and deducting Sundays and holidays when no coffee is sent into Santos, the daily average receipts would not be over 9,000 bags up to June 30th. This scale would not be maintained towards the end of the crop, and therefore present receipts are the safest guide to the total outturn of the Santos crop. That the yield may be under than over 6 1-2 millions is also indicated by the large precentage of "triage" coffee (about 50 per cent.) in the incoming receipts, a quality poorer than the lowest recognized grades or types and marks the cleaning up of plantation stocks.

These facts may be considered to be discounted in existing values and the subsequent course of the markets will show more or less how the coffee world and speculators regard the outlook for the next crop. It is now quite certain that much damage has been done and the unfavorable weather following the long drought has further deteriorated the crop and dispelled the hopes that some recuperation of the trees would take place before it was too late.

Consuming markets are in good shape so far as supplies are concerned, but Brazil seems determined to exact full prices, so much so that cost and freight business is limited. A better demand is springing up and now that local and interior buyers recognize after the various reactions higher prices are probable on the merits of the situation, they will enter the market more readily.

FISH STAND COLD.

Prof. Pictel, of Berlin, Germany, has been experimenting with the effects of extreme cold on fish life. He has found that many fishes remain alive in a temperature of 45 degrees below freezing point, but they then become so hard and brittle that they splinter like a piece of ice when struck against a hard substance.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

The Soldiers' Smoke.

TOBACCO played a prominent part in the heroic struggle at Rorke's Drift. Not for the first time, the British soldiers then smoked as they fought, and fought as they smoked, pausing now and again to light up their pipes with pieces of burning wood from the hospital, which the ferocious enemy had succeeded in setting on fire. Our "only General," as Lord Wolseley was wont to be called, is said to have celebrated the British victory at Tel-el-Kebir by indulging in as many as nine cigars, one after the other. The great Napoleon conquered nations, but he could not conquer tobacco, which was powerful enough to place him hors de combat when whole legions could not. Indeed, smoking made him positively ill, but, if he could not find solace in a pipe, he consumed large quantities of the weed in the shape of snuff. Nor must a still more interesting, if no more illustrious, example be overlooked. It is recorded in the pages of history that the beautiful and courageous Queen Marie of Naples performed prodigies of valor under the inspiring influence of tobacco. In the siege of Gaeta, the final stronghold of the ill-starred House of Bourbon in Italy, she personally headed more than one fierce and desperate onslaught upon the enemy with a cigar between her lips.

Mrs. Russel Sage on Tobacco.

Mrs. Russell Sage doesn't like tobacco smoke, and she doesn't hesitate to let people know that she doesn't like it. At the same time she blames her own sex for the prevalence of smoking in public places. In a recent interview she said:

"Women are willing to drive and walk with men while they smoke; they even permit men to smoke while dining with them at public restaurants, and at length men feel dreadfully abused if they are required to desist from smoking for an hour or so. A man can drink without interfering with the comfort of others, but the smoker makes his presence felt all over the room."

Mrs. Sage thinks men were once more "courteous and considerate" than to do such a thing, and she thinks such a time will come again, and that the American woman will bring it about. "As soon as she insists upon courtesy men will be courteous," she adds.

Smoking Under Water.

Says an expert swimmer: "It looks very strange to see a man go under water with a lighted cigar in his mouth; smoke calmly at the bottom, and come to the surface with the cigar burning as nicely as if he were smoking in his easy chair. Apparently he defies all natural laws, but of course he doesn't.

"It is a simple trick, but it requires practice. Just as I throw myself backward to go down, I flip the cigar end for end with my tongue and upper lip, and get the lighted end in my mouth, closing my lips water tight around it. A little slippery elm juice gargled before going in prevents any accidentaly burning of the mouth. Going slowly down backwards, I lie at full length on the bottom of the tank, and blow smoke through the cut end of the cigar. Just as I reach the surface again, another flip reverses the cigar, and there I am smoking calmly. The reversing is done so quickly that nobody notices it."

Succumbed to Tobacco at 90.

A man who lived at Orange, N.J., and who died at the age of 90 years, is said to have killed himself by the excessive use of tobacco. His habit was to chew—not chewing tobacco, but the points of cigars. His claim was that there was

The Home of the "Ronto."

T. J. HORROCKS, wholesale tobacconist, Toronto, confesses that he too has fallen victim to the "growing" epidemic which has affected so many Canadian mercantile houses of late.

He started business three years ago in an office six by eight at 6 Wellington street east, with patronage and trade a minus quantity. Things began to come his way, however, from the start, and the history of his business has been one of steady but rapid growth. For the past year he has felt that the present premises were altogether too cramped for the increasing demands of business, and is now moving to more commodious quarters at 176 King street east, which are being fitted up as an up-to-date cigar factory.

The new building is three stories high, is well lighted, and will have all the latest improvements. The lower floor will be used as business offices, shipping and stock rooms; the second will be given over to cigar and raw-leaf bonds, casing and work rooms; and the top floor to work-rooms, packing and stripping rooms.

Mr. Horrocks has at the present time an office staff of ten, and five travellers, three for the road and two for local work. In the new factory he will employ at least 25 hands who will work under the direction of Foreman Lucking, an expert in cigar making.

The specialties featured are "Ronto" and "Statesman" cigars, and it is to the popularity of these brands and the increased demand for them that Mr. Horrocks attributes his success in no small measure. Several other brands of cigars are also to be manufactured in the new factory. Mr. Horrocks is wholesale distributor for the McAlpine Consumers' Tobacco Co., and the Erie Tobacco Co., and is the only Toronto wholesaler who handles Tuckett's cigarettes. Mr. Horrocks predicts big things for Canadian tobacconists in the near future.

A Pipe Collection.

An officer in the firm of the big Harris paint works in Philadelphia, has a roll top desk which is literally loaded with pipes. Not a paper, not even an envelope is in the desk. Pigenholes and drawers are ful of splendid pipes, every one of them "broken in," each in the pink of condition, and each beautiful enough for a present. He goes the rounds of the pipes, never smoking a same one twice on the same day.

Tobacco's Apologists.

THE charm of tobacco is an inexplicable thing, says a writer in the Cigar and Tobacco Journal. It lies in the soothing effect, according to M. Fay; it is a seductive anesthesia that has become necessary, says M. Richet; it is, when used within reason, a harmless mental stimulant, Mr. Rochard declares. Yet Count Tolstoi speaks of "the deliverance of humanity from this terrible evil" as "an epoch in the life of the race which will arrive in the near future." Tolstoi's thesis is that men use tobacco simply in order to drown the warning voice of conscience. The more man stupefies himself with narcotics, the more stolid, quiescent and stagnant he becomes intellectually and morally—according to the gospel of Tolstoi.

In spite of it all, it must be remembered that crowned heads of past ages have thundered in vain, like King James, a "counterblast" against the weed. Pope Urban VIII. launched a bull against it; the Czar of Russia, in 1634, forbade his subjects to smoke, under pain of forfeiting their noses; in the same year the Sultan Amarath raised smoking to the dignity of a capital crime; and a few years later a revised edition of the Decalogue, published at Berne, sandwiched between the seventh and eighth commandments a new one: "Thou shalt not smoke."

What has been the result? All the diatribes ever written against My Lady Nicotine have ended in smoke. They always will. Let us grant that tobacco may have a mischievous influence on the health and even cause serious diseases, like angina pectoris, or injuries to the tongue and lips. Yet it is a mental sedative or stimulant; one of the dearest of friends, faithful unto death, if one does not abuse it. M. Jules Rochard, member of the French Academy of Medicine, having abused tobacco for about 50 years, was compelled to abjure it. Did he then, like Tolstoi, proceed to curse his old friend? Not he. "Tobacco," he said, "has never led the reason astray, destroyed the will or perverted the sensibility of anyone. The most hardened smoker enjoys at all times the most perfect clearness of mind. .....A person can break up the habit of using tobacco, while alcoholism and morphine mania are almost incurable." Every word of which is absolutely true.

Enjoyment of The Weed a Universal Weakness

Smoking is universal in Polynesia, China, Japan and Siam. In Burma the mother takes the cheroot from her mouth and puts it into the lips of her nursing babe, while the child purses its tiny lips and puffs away with every indication of pleasure. Kaffirs habitually smoke cigars with the lighted ends in their mouths and their tongues adroitly tucked out of harm's way. Even Stanley's pigmies of Central Africa are inveterate smokers. The sun never sets on the smoking world; before the white man of the Occident puts down his pipe at night, the yellow man of the Orient has lit his matutinal cheroot.

We are now offering at special prices the finest assortment of pipes in Canada. Write us for copy of SILENT DRUMMER.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
John C. Kirkwood,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Hereinare discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Price-Quoting and Price-Cutting.

FOLLOWING upon last week's topic is the subject of price-quoting. To many price-quoting is associated with price-cutting, and since the latter is somthing to be shunned, so is the provoking cause. I suppose every grocer in any good-sized town has gone through the experience of a price warfare, and the recollection is not a pleasant one. The profits in groceries do not permit of price-cutting, and in this fact lies the assurance of peace. The strife may be prolonged, but soon or late it comes to an end. The best way to bring a cut-price contest to an end is to let one grocer do the cutting. It is true he may for the time being find his trade increased, but what with the loss in profits and the hopelessness of attracting the best customers of competitors, together with the practical inability to continue selling at cut prices always, he is glad to abandon his folly and to resume business on quieter and more profitable lines. It is necessary oftentimes to meet the cut price. In this way, the advantage the cutter hoped to gain is taken away, and customers he sought to attract have no occasion to leave their regular trading place. A grocer may intimate through an advertisement that his customers are protected during the period of hurtful price-cutting, but I certainly do not advise advertising challenge prices. If granulated sugar be the guage of battle, I would advise meeting the cut price quietly and without demur. It represents loss, but a loss that may be the least one to face. If possible, don't sell the same goods as are being sold by the cut-price grocer, and so avoid awkward comparison. Of course it is impossible to pursue this course throughout every line of the grocery stock, but in many cases it can be done. A price warfare is an ugly thing, and one I believe the general public disapproves of, and is glad to see terminated.

But price-cutting does not necessarily nor generally follow upon price-quoting. And furthermore, a grocer does not have to quote cut prices in order to make his advertisements attractive. I know that there is a temptation oftentimes when preparing an advertisement to pick out some line that everybody is familiar with and to give a special price, perhaps for a certain day, perhaps an offer without a time limit. The grocer who yields to this temptation mistakes the idea of advertising and is bound to make trouble for himself and others. If Mrs. Dooley's laundry soap, for example, is selling at 5c. straight, there is absolutely no occasion for any grocer to cut the price to 6 bars for 25c., simply to make an interesting advertisement. I dwell on this point, for too often the temptation to do some such rash thing presents itself to grocers, and too often such a cut has precipitated a local price war, neither intended nor desired by the man who brightened(?) his advertisement by a "special."

The grocer has many things, however, that he can reduce the price on from time to time without danger to his own or others' trade. Bulk teas are an example. He may be selling a bulk tea for 40c. and reduce it to 30c. or 25c. without disturbance to the general trade of the community. He may have a special brand of baking powder confined to himself. With it he can do what he likes in the matter of price. Confectionery, brooms, lamp glasses, vinegars, flavoring extracts, little known brands of canned goods, dried fruits, shoe blacking, bulk starch are other lines which can be advertised at less than regular prices without fear. Very often it is good business policy to make "specials" of some line of goods to enliven a dull month or to maintain a reputation for always having "bargains" among the class of trade that demands something of the sort.

To think that only cut prices are interesting to the reader is to have a wrong understanding of things. There are many people who are interested in grocery news, in knowing what new things the grocer is offering. The problem of providing meals for the household can be solved better with the grocer's assistance, by means of his advertisements, than without. Let the grocer get this point of view and he will certainly do better advertising—better because more intelligent, more suggestive, more productive of sales. Most grocers can talk persusaively to the customer who sits facing them. Acquire the habit of addressing customers through the published advertisements in the same language that you use in the store behind the counter, and first-class advertising is sure to result. The grocer may fearlessly give prices if his advertisements are of this sort, with advantage to himself and with satisfaction to the public whom he addresses. In this style of advertising, prices are subordinated to the goods advertised, and there is no call for cutting.

To advertise lines that one's opposition has, at prices that prevail generally, is not in the majority of instances worth while. It is better from every point of view to emphasize the individuality rather than the similarity of one's stock. To advertise what others can and do supply just as satisfactorily is wasteful. Every store has a character. Its exceptional character, the measure of its difference between other stores of the same class is the thing to insist upon. Every alert, pushing merchant can give a half dozen reasons for his belief that the public should trade at his store, rather than elsewhere. Let him tell and demonstrate these reasons in advertising. What he believes, he can make others believe. The establishment of this belief in the community is aided and strengthened through advertising.

BALFOUR & COMPANY, WHOLESALE GROCERS, Hamilton, Canada

Business Men in International Affairs.

A FEW Canadians have had the privilege of listening, in the last few days to a very distinguished advocate of international arbitration, and the application of the business man's common sense to questions of high political import, in the person of Dr. Thomas Barclay, of Paris, who on Friday last addressed a meeting in Montreal and who was on Monday a guest at the Canadian Club, Toronto. Dr. Barclay came to America a few weeks ago as a member of the Mosely Eudcational Commission and has remained here devoting considerable energy throughout the Eastern States to the advocacy of a treaty of arbitration between Great Britain and the United States. He has addressed himself particularly to the business classes, convinced that they are ready for such action and are amply able to bring about such a treaty if they once assert their power.

Dr. Barclay has every reason for the faith he puts in the business classes. Dr. Barclay, it should be explained, is a Scotchman, who was educated in the Universities of London, Paris, Bonn and Jena, went to Paris in 1876 as a correspondent of the Times, but since 1882 has devoted himself to the practice of law in Paris. He is a member of the Institute of Intenational Law, vice-president of the International Law Association, and has held many other positions of honor, among them president 1899-1900 of the Britsh Chamber of Commerce in Paris. It was during the occupancy of this office that Dr. Barclay was able to demonstrate what business men could do to pour oil on the troubled waters of international jealousy and misunderstanding and to bring about a reconciliation that augers well for the future peace of Europe.

A representative of "The Canadian Grocer" met Dr. Barclay at the conclusion of his address at the Canadian Club, with a view of learning the part taken by the business communities of France and England in the matter of the Anglo-French treaty of 1903.

Nothing, in the opinion of the distinguished visitor, is more striking in the history of peace than the way in which business men have of late come into the arbitration movement. It is not many years since business men sneered at arbitration as the dream of millennium mongers, cranks, faddists and other people whom practical men are in the habit of steering clear of as long-winded time-wasters.

It is my belief, continued Dr. Barclay, that the change which has come over our business world in its attitude towards arbitration is due to the impending conflicts which were avoided, and thus conflict can, in fact, occasionally claim the function of a power for good.

The one instance I refer to was the Venezuela question in which President Cleveland "put his foot down." The other case was the Fashoda question in which the British Government "put its foot down." In both cases an armed conflict would have been the result if it had not been for the real patriotism of the governments which yielded and the certainty that the business world of both countries would have disapproved of fighting for unessential things. If there is anything that distinguishes business methods from other methods, whatever they may be, it is that the business man tries in his mind to reduce every question to its just proportions. The business man has what very often is lacking to the politician, the right sense of proportion. Thus it seems naturally monstrous to the business man to employ a sledgehammer for the execution of a fly, but that sort of consideration does not always appeal to those who are not trained in the world of commerce and industry.

No better instance of the way in which business men can do good by putting their foot down was ever seen than when the Association of the Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom took the relations between Great Britain and France into their hands in 1900. At that moment the hostile feeling between the two countries, so far as the press appeared to echo it, was so strong that on the slightest provocation the guns would have gone off, by themselves.

At the danger of being charged with egotism, I must refer here to my own agency in the change of feeling which began at that time. I had the privilege of being at that moment chairman of the Britsh Chamber of Commerce in Paris, and in that capacity was able to take a public attitude towards the subject of Anglo-French relations which I could not otherwise have assumed. I believe that the assistance which was given to me by Mr. W. L. Courtney, the editor of the Fortnightly Review, in that great periodical, at the same period was the beginning of a more reasonable attitude in Great Britain towards France, and that my article in the Fortnightly to some extent influenced the Association of the Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom in accepting my proposal to entertain them, as president of the Britsh Chamber of Commerce in Paris, if they would come over and hold their Autumn meeting there, and show the French that the Britsh nation—a nation of shopkeepers, and we are not ashamed of it—entertained none of those antipathetic feelings towards the French with which a too bellicose press seemed to credit the Britsh nation. I pointed out the danger of doing nothing, of standing by and letting a small minority drag the two nations into a conflict. In spite of warnings, dissuasion and poohpoohings by the stormbirds of Pall Mall and Fleet street, I got a unanimous response, and the meeting that was held in the Autumn of the same year was the largest meeting of the Association of Chambers of Commerce ever held, and the reception given by the French to them showed that they appreciated the full force and importance of this unwonted and spontaneous action of the representatives of the business world of the United Kingdom. Every French Minister of State, even the President of the Republic himself, gave me practically carte blanche to draw up the scheme of their entertainment, and those who came over from Great Britain —there were 800 of them—went home to tell their fellow-citizens in every part of the kingdom that the French and the British peoples meant to be friends, and that so far as seeing any manifestations of hostility towards them in France, they had received nothing but the warmest and kindest expressions of sympathy in spite of the Boer War then raging, about which every English newspaper was daily culling irritating comments by the French press.

That was how the business men of Great Britain started the movement which has since been so successful. When six months later I proposed a treaty of arbitration to stimulate and consolidate the better feeling, I knew the response I should get from the business men of both countries.

All the chambers of commerce of the United Kingdom now pledged themselves to arbitration. All the chambers of commerce of France did the same. These chambers of commerce not only pledged themselves, they used their necessarily practical influence in enlisting in this cause municipal councils and trade unions, thus bringing into the movement employers and employed, capital and labor, and above all, the moving political forces which produce a more direct influence on the opinion of a nation's representatives in Parliament. This combined influence in both countries was so overwhelming that the British and French Governments could not for one moment hesitate to take action when the time came. They took action in direct response to the work I have described. This was done on the 11th of May, after a question had been put in the House of Commons by my friend, Mr. Ernest Beckett, which elicited so friendly a response from the Prime Minister that the following day the French Ambassador called on Lord Lansdowne and asked him if he was prepared to enter into negotiations.

That question was as follows: "Has the Prime Minister given consideration to the numerous resolutions which have been passed by the chambers of commerce in favor of a treaty of arbitration and conciliation between Great Britain and France?" Mr. Balfour replied that he had noted with much interest and sympathy these resolutions.

It is thus seen that it was the direct action of chambers of commerce which brought the two Governments into contact, and thereby was done what the peace conference was unable to do, what the Czar, with all his influence, fell short of doing, what enthusiasts and idealists (God bless them!) have been trying to do for a hundred years or more, and what might never have been done at all had not the practical business men of the two countries insisted upon doing it. That is what business men can do when they put their shoulders to the wheel, and I have shown how they can do it.

Dr. Barclay is enthusiastic and convincing in his advocacy of an Anglo-American treaty along similar lines, and is convinced that if the business men step into the arena of competition for the consolidation, once and for all, of the peace of the world, they will do the work begun on the other side of the Atlantic with all the magnificent speed and effectiveness with which they do everything they undertake on this side.

Canadian Butter on British Market.

IN regard to position of our Canadian butter on the British market Mr. J. A. Ruddick, chief of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, says that our very finest butter gives excellent satisfaction and it is doubtful if there is any better butter on the market. The trouble is that the quality is irregular, lacks uniformity, or in other words it is unreliable. A dealer may get one lot in excellent condition and of choice quality, but the next one he buys is not up to his expectations, so that when he is offered Canadian butter again, he is inclined to give a price equal only to the value of the poor lot. In this way much of our butter does not receive the standing which it deserves. The butter that is of known quality and that can always be depended on to come up to a certain standard will be more in demand than one which may average as good, but which is frequently of inferior grade as well as of choicest quality. Our butter is also said to deteriorate very quickly after it is landed on the other side, and that being so dealers are not encouraged to trade in it. The reason of this deterioration is because our butter is not kept cold enough at the creameries, is exposed to heat unnecessarily in shipping to Montreal, and is not always frozen properly when it arrives there and before being placed in the cold storage chambers of the steamers. The refrigerator car service is capable of being improved, but it is better now than what the creameries provide for themselves. After butter is packed in boxes the length of time it will keep depends almost wholly on the temperature at which it is held. The age of butter is more properly calculated according to the temperature at which it has been stored than from the date on which it was made. Butter which would turn out well after several months' storage at 10 degrees or under, might become quite stale and rancid in a few weks at 40 to 50. Butter may be held at the creamery at these high temperatures for a week or so without showing much deterioration, nevertheless the fermentations which produce bad flavors, rancidity, etc., have been doing their work and shortening the life of the butter. These fermentations may be checked when the butter is packed in cold storage at Montreal or on the steamer, only to start up again with renewed vigor when the butter is exposed to high temperatures on the other side.

Every creamery owner should give this matter his earnest attention during the coming season. If he finds that with proper management the temperature of his refrigerator cannot be kept down to 36-38 degrees, or lower, the insulation should be improved until it can be.

Peculiar Poultry Fact.

THE sign boards of tradesmen sometimes say such strange things, observes an exchange. The public insists upon having its fads and imaginary tastes. The storekeeper is quick to discover and to cater to them. Louis Goldsmith, the big Eighth avenue butcher in the Harlem, New York City, section, was walking down town the other day. He stopped in front of an egg store and read this on a bulletin board at the side of the little shop: "Fresh laid Long Island eggs." Just a little further down he saw another. It said: "Strictly fresh laid Long Island eggs." Then he turned around to his friend and said: "I'll bet you a dollar that nine out of ten egg sign boards say the same thing. That's a funny thing when you look at it. All the fresh eggs are laid on Long Island, and all the fresh poultry come from Philadalphia. You can't sell it if you don't say so."

It did seem a bit strange that those Long Island hens kept laying "strictly fresh eggs" long after all the other hens in the country had quit laying. It also seemed strange that there are no chickens worthy of the name unless they hail from the Quaker City. The public call for such produce, and it must be sold them, even if the Hackensack hen presumes to lay a Long Island egg, or a Philadelphia fowl happens to be caught down in Kentucky or away over in Kalamazoo. "Canada lambs," "Long Island eggs" and "Philadelphia poultry" are three things which Gotham eaters must have, so the signs have to conform to the public taste.

Detection of Renovated Butter.

Place a piece of butter the size of a nut in a large spoon and melt over a small Bunsen flame. Genuine butter boils quietly, foaming considerably, and leaves the fat comparatively clear, while renovated butter and margarine spurts a great deal without forming foam. After removal from the fire the two latter fats show coagulated masses of casein in the molten liquid. Melting the suspected in a beaker in the water bath, shows the sediment of the casein in pure butter within a few minutes and the supernatant fat clear, while process butter does not clear up within half an hour. The polarization-microscope show the nonerystalline character of genuine butter.—Butchers' Advocate.

To Freeze Eggs for Shipment.

An Ottawa man proposes to send to England a shipment of eggs, packed like coal in a barrel and frozen solid. The eggs, he claims, must be fresh at purchase and all candled. They must then be frozen and shipped in that condition with a hole in the flat end of the egg.

Before using they would require to be thawed out, but they would then be as fresh as when they were laid and if used in a short time would be in first class order.

Two Ship Loads of Meat.

The Cudahy Company started its 1,000,000 pound shipment of mess beef for the Russian Government on its way to San Francisco last week, says the National Provisioner. All this order must be delivered to Russian vessels in San Francisco harbor. The consignments are put up in specially made cases. Other packers have received similar orders, and there will be two full ship loads of meat for the Russian army on this trip.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The severe storms this week and the usual dullness at this time of the year have had their effects with the result that there has been a gradual easing off in several lines of cured meats and lard. Barreled stuff remains unchanged, and dressed hogs are about as a week ago. The fresh meat market continues quiet with prices unchanged. We quote:

Butter—The butter market is reported dull this week. The severe weather has, however, had the effect of diminishing receipts and there has been a slight stiffening in creamery. Dairy is in stock in pretty large quantities and demand ordinary. We quote:

Provisions—A fairly good trade has characterized the past week in provisions, in spite of unfavorable weather. Steady prices prevail. Dressed hogs have sold fairly well in jobbing lots, fresh killed, abattoir dressed, being quoted at $7.25 to $7.75 per 100 lbs., and country dressed at $6.50 to $7 per 100 lbs. We quote as follows:

Butter—The market continues in a healthy state. We learn that deliveries during January up to the present day have been considerably less than the same period last year. Against this the prices this year are fully three cents per pound lower, which will mean that the consumption will be larger. A canvass of the trade shows the stock of the finest Fall and Winter creamery to be very light. There is not much dairy roll butter in the market but in sympathy with the low prices for creamery the prices obtainable for rolls are comparatively low and there is not much chance of higher prices on account of the nearness of Spring and no export trade. Prices for Fall and fancy Winter creamery, 22c. Summer goods, 20 to 21c. Dairy rolls, 17c. Dairy tubs, 14 to 15c., according to quality. We quote as follows: Finest fresh prints, 24c.; finest Fall made creamery in 56-lb. boxes, 22c.; Winter made, 22c.; dairy butter, 17 to 18c. for selected goods, and 14 to 15c. for medium grades.

Cheese—Cheese no change and steady. The feeling, however, is firmer. We quote: Finest strong cheese 11 1-2 to 12c.; mild, 10 1-2 to 11c.

St. John, N.B.

Provisions—In barreled pork the market, while rather firmer, shows little change. Beef is rather higher, with very little business offering. Pure lard continues very low. Refined lard is firm and almost as high as pure. In hams and bacon there is a fair sale at even prices. In fresh meats, beef is freely offered. Prices are unchanged. Some nice new veal is now received. Lamb holds firm. Mutton is low. In pork, receipts are rather larger. Price remain unchanged. We quote:

Mess pork, per bbl	$16 00	$18 00

Good dairy tubs	0 16	0 18

Eggs—These are a luxury. Prices are high and the supply very limited. Western eggs are offered. This is unusual. We quote:

Cheese—The stock held is light. Twins have the demand. Prices are very firm. We quote:

PURE GOLD TALK.

No. 2.

Everybody says "pure" spices; from force of habit, it may be. The Pure Gold Company, however, have given a new significance to the word "pure." Pure Gold Spices are guaranteed to be absolutely pure, and "pure" with the Pure Gold Company means no shells, spent or cheap goods, no fillers of any kind. The guarantee which the Pure Gold Company gives is a "money-back" guarantee, and covers attractiveness, saleability and quality. How is it that other companies don't issue a guarantee of this sort? We think we know, but have you ever thought about it? To have one's Spice account with a firm that guarantees is extremely satisfactory.

Pure Spices are necessarily of different qualities, because of natural varieties, hence :—

—Pure Gold Brand, — very choice (Yellow Label).

—Jardine's Brand, — Selected (Green Label).

—Regal Brand, — Fine (Red Label).

These Spices are put up in tins holding from 1-oz. to 10-lbs.; in wood boxes, and wood pails.

Handling only Pure Gold Spices is good business for the grocer. He knows then that it is impossible for any other grocer to supply better goods; and he knows, too, that he can repeat his orders with assurance.

The Pure Gold habit is good for the grocer, besides being good for his housewife.

Quebec is being held at Sherbrooke this week.

Prof. Robertson, chief commissioner of agriculture and dairying, who has been travelling in England for his health, has returned to Ottawa.

The longest drouth which Australia ever felt has at last been broken and both the sheep and the wool industry of the afflicted island continent will look up. It is expected that 30,000,000 sheep will be sheared in New South Wales this year as against 26,000,000 last year. The lambing has been good.

Meat For the Armies.

THE Armour Packing Company last week forwarded its second shipment of beef for the Russian Government. So far the Russians have not bought to exceed 2,500,000 pounds of beef in Western markets, which is taken to indicate that that Government is not particularly apprehensive of war. Further heavy meat orders would not be surprising, however.

The Japanese are not buying now. They have bought and probably will again. The Japanese are not beef eaters. They will eat chicken or rabbit in preference to beef seven days in the week, while their army practically lives on rice. People who study the eating habits of armies do not generally respect an army fed on game and poultry.

There are only two Governments in the world that buy bacon for their soldiers—the American and British. The German army may get a little bacon home cured, but it does not buy in the big markets and American packers have never sold bacon to any except the two Governments mentioned. The reason is that it is too expensive for most nations to give their armies, and some nations hardly know what good bacon is if they did think they could afford it. The same is practically true of ham.

Swift's Heavy Tonnage.

The annual report of Swift & Company shows that the tonnage transported aggregated, in round numbers, 3,500,000,000 pounds, requiring the capacity of 175,000 cars of 20,000 pounds each, or an average equipment during the twelve months of over 6,500 cars to handle the product from the packing-house to the seaboard as occasion required.

Quality of Australian Butter.

Australian and New Zealand butter is being received in England this year in quantities largely in excess of last year. It is reported that the quality of much of this is very secondary, stale and overheld.

Austria Wants Our Pork.

The lard works of the Vienna Butchers' Society have petitioned the Minister of the Interior to admit frozen beef from Argentina and Australia. Further the importation of pork is wanted from Canada and the United States. A trial shipment of Australian and English meat from London is being considered.

ST. CATHARINES RETAIL GROCERS

The sixth regular meeting of the St. Catharines Retail Grocers' Association was held in their hall over the Canadian Bank of Commerce on Monday evening last. President E. Moore in the chair.

The late W. H. Lindsay,
Formerly of the advertising staff of The MacLean Publishing Co., whose sudden death was recently chronicled in these columns.

The meeting opened with the reading and passing of the minutes of the previous meeting when the following discussion took place:

It was suggested that the constitution be printed in booklet form. After some discussion it was resolved that the Executive Committee be instructed to get estimates on cost of printing and report to the association.

The discussion then turned on the business relations of the wholesale grocers and oil companies to the retailer. After hearing many experiences from all sections of the city on the subject a motion was passed strongly condemning the action of the wholesalers selling direct to the consumers.

After a few more remarks in the interests of the association the meeting adjourned.

SUGAR CASE IN SUPERIOR COURT.

MR. JUSTICE TRENHOLME, in the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec, has dismissed the action of Gordon et al. the Trinidad sugar merchants, against Mr. John Pinder, of Montreal, and has awarded $11,-894.92 to defendant, the amount of money which plaintiffs paid out of a letter of credit for sugar.

The amount sued for was $44,293,81. the balance alleged by plaintiffs to be due them on sugar shipped to Mr. Pinder in 1901, and which he refused to accept and pay for.

Mr. Pinder contended that the sugar was purchased on sample and was not satisfactory.

Messrs. Gordon et al. claimed the sugar was manufactured in accordance with the instructions of defendant's agent, William E. Hurst.

The contract between Mr. Hurst and Messrs. Gordon et al. was made May 4,, 1901, and in that letter Mr. Hurst says he bought on samples given to him by the plaintiffs. Defendants in return said that they gave him no samples, but Mr. Hurst had carried away some sugar from the office without the firm's knowledge or consent.

The court held that the defendant had ordered certain sugar and that the sugar shipped to him was not that kind. The second purchase of molasses sugar was also inferior to what had been ordered so that there were two grounds on which defendant could base an objection and refuse to accept the goods.

As to the defendant's cross demand he is entitled to recover back the $11,-894.92 which plaintiffs paid themselves out of the letter of credit. As to the defendant's claim for damages for plaintiff's failure to deliver the proper sugars to him the court did not award any amount.

Defendant said he could have made three-eighths of a cent per pound profit on the yellow sugar, but this the court would not act upon. The right of the defendant against plaintiffs was reserved to recover the price of 15 bags of crystals first shipped on his accounting for what he has sold, and returning the balance. The plaintiffs were condemned to pay all the costs.

Mr. J. Alex. Gordon, of J. Alex. Gordon & Co., Montreal, acted as sequestrator appointed by the court, and the firm bringing the suit was Gordon, Grant & Co., Trinidad.

NEW ZEALAND'S PREFERENTIAL TARIFF.

ITS PURPOSE AND EFFECT.

THE adoption of a preferential tariff in favor of British-made goods by our sister colony of New Zealand is a matter of very considerable interest to Canada, particularly as our trade with the Antipodes promises to assume no small proportions in the future. "The Grocer" is therefore pleased to give our readers the benefit of a letter, explaining the operation of the new Tariff Act, just received from Manson & Barr, Palmerston North, New Zealand, and which reads as follows :

The Government of this colony having just adopted a preferential customs tariff giving preference to British-made goods, it is now necessary for Canadian exporters to this colony to make a declaration on each invoice in the form as shown on slip we enclose. An individual member of the exporting house or company must make this declaration in his own name but on behalf of his firm.

Will you kindly mention this in your valuable paper, so that it may come under the notice of all Canadian exporters.

We post you under separate cover a copy of this customs act, and you will notice that the preference given takes the form of increasing the duties on all non-British goods coming under the different schedule. The first schedule is practically a dead letter, as all cement imported here is English Portland with very trifling exceptions.

The second schedule is mostly made up of goods at present paying 20 per cent. ad valorem duty, and on all goods coming under this schedule and not being British made the amount of duty payable will be increased by 50 per cent., making it practically 30 per cent. on these lines.

The third schedule is made up of goods that are at present free, but which, if not British made, will now have to pay 20 per cent. duty.

This third schedule will be the hardest on foreign goods, as it gives the British goods a clear 20 per cent. preference, as they will still be free.

We trust you will point out that it will be necessary for all Canadian exporters to this colony to have the declaration on their invoices to get the benefit of the preferential treatment, and, that if they omit this there will be a lot of delay and red tape here till the consignee can prove that the goods were made in Canada.

The act itself, beginning at the second section, reads as follows :

2. From and after the passing of this Act there shall be leviable on the several articles mentioned in the First and Second Schedules hereto imported into New Zealand and not being the produce or manufacture of some part of the British dominions, in addition to the duties authorized under any tariff for the time being in force in New Zealand, the following duties :—

(a.) On the article specified in the First Schedule hereto, an amount equal to the amount payable under the said tariff ;

(b.) On the articles specified in the Second Schedule hereto, an amount equal to one-half of the amount payable under the said tariff.

3. From and after the passing of this Act there shall be leviable on the several articles mentioned in the Third Schedule hereto imported into New Zealand, and not being the produce or manufacture of some part of the British dominions, duties of Customs equal to twenty per centum of the value for duty as defined by the principal Act, or by any Act amending the principal Act.

4. The provisions of sections two and three hereof shall not be applicable in the case of—

(a.) Goods imported on or before the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and four, if it is proved to the satisfaction of the Collector that an order for the goods was sent from New Zealand on or before the sixteenth day of November, one thousand nine hundred and three.

(b.) Printing papers imported by and for the use of the proprietors of any registered newspaper, if it is proved to the satisfaction of the Collector that they are imported under a valid contract for the supply of such papers for a period not exceeding three years, entered into prior to the sixteenth day of November, one thousand nine hundred and three.

(c.) Rails for tramways and other goods mentioned in the Schedules hereto directly imported before the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and six, for use in the construction or equipment of any tramway for which plans and specifications have been completed or are in course of preparation on the passing of this Act.

5. The duties authorized under this Act shall be levied, collected, and paid on importation into New Zealand, on or before clearance from any warehouse for home consumption, at the time of making import entry or home-consumption entry therefor.

6. On the importation of any articles mentioned in any of the Schedules hereto, the importer or his agent, in addition to the particulars required by the principal Act to be given on the entry of dutiable goods, shall state, to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief, the country of which such goods are the produce or manufacture, and shall satisfy the Collector, by declaration or otherwise, of the truth of such statement.

7. If a Collector has reason to believe that any goods are not the produce or manufacture of the country stated on such entry, he may detain them for examination ; and if, after due inquiry, he is satisfied that such statement was false, the goods shall be forfeited and dealt with as directed by the principal Act in the case of forfeited goods.

8. With respect to all articles mentioned in the Schedules hereto imported into New Zealand after the thirtieth

SALADA'S TEA CHALLENGE.

"The Canadian Grocer,"—We note that the last issue of "The Canadian Grocer" contains an advertisement of Salada Tea Co., of Toronto, in which they offer to donate five hundred dollars to any charitable institution if the increase in the sale of Salada tea during the past year does not equal the entire tea sales of any other firm in Canada.

While deprecating this method of drawing attention to our business, we cannot allow such a statement to go unchallenged. If The Salada Tea Co. really think that there is a greater demand in Canada for their packets than there is for Blue Ribbon Tea, we would be glad to have the sales of Salada and Blue Ribbon for 1903 investigated by a chartered accountant. If his decision is in favor of Salada we will pay all expenses and donate five hundred dollars to any charity The Salada Tea Co. may name. Should the investigation prove that there is a greater sale in Canada (we don't do business in the United States so must exclude that territory) of Blue Ribbon than there is of Salada, The Salada Tea Co. shall pay the expenses of the investigation and donate five hundred dollars to the Winnipeg General Hospital.

We enclose our cheque for five hundred dollars, drawn in favor of Wm. Ince, of the firm of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, and will be quite satisfied, if agreeable to The Salada Tea Co., to have Mr. Ince arrange details of the investigation. We are also willing that "The Canadian Grocer" should publish the figures when ascertained.

G. F. & J. GALT.

Winnipeg, Jan. 19, 1904.

COFFEE SITUATION.

WILLETT & GRAY in their latest statistical report say of coffee: Confidence in coffee values is again encouraged by the small crop movement for the month of January, and the fact that the trade proper has come into the market more freely. Speculative realizations have been made on a pretty good scale the past ten days, reducing to that extent the heavy "long" interest in the market. It is not improbable that receipts are somewhat retarded by bad weather reported in Brazil, but otherwise the movement would not justify belief in even the recent reduced estimates. Figures vouchsafed on the next crop show considerable variation, but speculators appear willing to take chances on the smaller estimates, and new buying is being done on the reduced yield and ultimate shrinkage of the world's visible. Warehouse and "ex-ship" deliveries so far this month are very large, and at the same time the inquiry for actual coffee of the usual trading grades is quite active. Forced buying of Rio No. 7 coffee has jumped the price the last few days to 8½c., store terms on spot. Brazil holders have been influenced by this and current cost, and freight prices are prohibitive for the time being. Santos No. 4 is offered at 9¼c., and Santos No. 5 at 8⅞c., regular N. Y. terms.

THE CANADA GROCERS' SWITCH.

The application of the Canada Grocers to secure permission to have a switch from the Grand Trunk to their Hamilton warehouse is meeting with considerable opposition on the part of some Hamilton property owners who claim their property will be injuriously affected.

The Challenge Accepted

and Our Money is Up.

We accept the challenge of The Salada Tea Co., as advertised in "The Canadian Grocer" of January 15th.

We have placed in the hands of the publishers of this journal a check for five hundred dollars, payable to the order of Mr. Wm. Ince, of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto. If The Salada Tea Co. prove their claim the five hundred dollars will be donated to any charitable institution they may name. If they cannot prove their claim they will donate five hundred dollars to the Winnipeg General Hospital.

Merit---sterling merit---has made the sales of

Winnipeg Toronto Vancouver

F. HUGHES & CO.

AMONG a number of changes that have been made in business circles at the beginning of the year "The Grocer" notices the apointment of F. Hughes & Co., manufacturers' agents, as sole wholesale selling agents for the cities of Montreal, Ottawa, and Eastern Ontario of the Ozo Co., manufacturers of pickles, jams, jellies, etc.

The selection of F. Hughes & Co. by the Ozo Co. is a very good one, as Mr. Fred Hughes of the firm is one of the best known men connected with the grocery business. Mr. Hughes has been connected with this line for many years, was formerly a member of the firm of Caverhill, Hughes & Co., Montreal, and was also twice elected president of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association, a fact which speaks volumes for his popularity "on the road" and among business men.

Mr. Fred. Hughes, of F. Hughes & Co., Montreal.

Mr. Hughes will personally call upon the trade in the interests of the Ozo Co., and his firm is sending out an advance circular notifying the trade of their resignation as selling agents for the Eureka Co., and notifying their business friends of their appointment as sole wholesale selling agents for the districts noted above for the Ozo Co.

MR. BERNARD REPLIES.

Editor "The Canadian Grocer":—I notice in your last issue that one of your subscribers calls attention to an apparent discrepancy between the figures I sent you as to the imports of Japan tea to Canada, and those published in an advertisement of his.

He takes great pains to explain why his figures are correct and mine misleading and then wind up by admitting there is only a difference of 200,000 pounds and that his figures were up to the 30th June whereas mine were up to the 30th November.

As all your readers are aware the Japan tea trade in Canada has declined within the last three or four years; not however, because the tea is inferior to others, but on the contrary because of its increasing popularity in United States, causing each year a larger demand which is naturally followed by higher prices, thereby diminishing Mr. Grocer's profits for this article.

In the statistics I sent you the increase to United States to 30th November showed over 6,000,000 pounds, proving that the decrease in the Canadian trade has been absorbed by the United States. This is the whole explanation in a nut shell.

My figures also showed an increase of one and a half million pounds to Canada over last year, and you will find that quality will yet assert itself over the poor imitation which comes from Ceylon and India in Japan packages.

C. M. BERNARD.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 19, 1904.

A SLIP OF THE TYPE.

A typographical error in the issue of January 15th made "The Grocer" say that Mr. R. C. Snowdon had been appointed selling agent in Manitoba, British Columbia and the Northwest for Chinese starch. This should have read R. C. Smardon, not Snowdon. Western readers will note.

WORLD'S COFFEE SUPPLY.

There are 49,000 coffee plantations in the world, says The New York Commercial Advertiser. The total annual production of coffee amounts to 21,500,000 bags, of an average weight of 134 pounds each, or 2,881,000,000 pounds. This production represents a total value of more than $255,000,000 annually from more than 1,800,000,000 coffee trees in full bearing. The land used exceeds 3,600,000 acres. The value of the property is more than $1,350,000,000. The industry gives employment to 2,220,000 men, women and children.

The retail grocery clerks of San Francisco, Cal., have presented a new wage scale calling for increased wages and a shorter work day.

has an interesting family history which is issued in booklet form, and a copy will be sent upon application, if one doesn't reach you apart from a request.

Mrs. Dooley announces to the grocery trade of Canada that she is putting on the Canadian market her laundry soap known by the name

Mrs. Dooley's Laundry Soap

The distinguishing feature of this soap is the incorporation of Borax along with other cleansers. This soap ranks apart from the Borax feature with all other high-grade laundry soaps. With borax added, it excels other soaps. It lathers most freely and the offensive smell that is given off by other soaps in the using of them is absent in Mrs. Dooley's Laundry Soap.

The success of this soap, without pushing on our part, has made us believe that there is a big future for it.

Put up in 60 and 100 bar boxes. Freight paid on 5 box lots. It costs the retailer about 10% less than the other 5c. soaps, and of course pays this percentage in extra profit.

THE COMPENSATION FOR DULL TRADE.

SO trade is dull! The roads for miles about the town are blocked and buyers only come in to do business when they literally need the goods!

To some merchants this condition of affairs will be most depressing; others will welcome the slackening of responsibilities which is the usual accompaniment of the quiet weeks; others, again, will find the compensation for dull trade in the opportunity provided for planning, for reconstruction, for improving the store's appearance, the business system—in short, to introduce the reforms which they have desired for some time to institute.

It has been said that it is to the man who thinks that the plum falls; in equal degree it is to the merchant who plans and who carries out his plans that the plum of profitable trade descends. He so prepares his plans that by a law as immutable as the law of gravitation increased business and a better margin of profit follows each step he makes towards his business ideal.

Some grocers are content. For the contented man, the person who is so satisfied with existing conditions that he will not try to change them in the hope of improving them, one cannot help feeling pity.

Some grocers are hopeless. For the man who has been so often defeated in his efforts to "get ahead," who has become seized with the conviction "My business is as large as it ever will be in this town," one can extend sympathy but little advice, for the latter would be wasted.

Some grocers are lazy. To the man who has got into the rut, who has done his business in the same way, in the same store, and without ever giving the store a good overhauling, one can neither give sympathy nor extend pity.

To all grocers, however, the dull times offer one great compensation. Are you content? Spend two hours in a fair examination to see if your store is what it might be. Then go about for two days and ask your neighbors for suggestions as to how to improve your store and your business methods. You may get a surprise. Are you hopeless? Cheer up! No matter how little capital you have, no matter how hard you have worked in the past, you can make your life better, yourself more useful to the world, to your family and yourself if you will "plan your work and work your plan." Don't try to attend to every detail yourself. Possibly it might be wise to hire a boy or a girl to mind the shop so that you can get out more about town, so that you can get out after trade if it does not come in to you.

Are you lazy? It will take all your candor, all your fairness of spirit to admit it. It would be easier to admit that you are not as energetic as some other business men in the town. But the question is, are you as energetic as you could be and should be? If you are not then the message of dull trade to you is to either get out and hustle or stay in and fix up. Start in to-day to do something different to what you are in the habit of doing, something calculated to increase the attention and respect paid your store by the buyers in your town and district. Trade comes to the merchant who works for it, who deserves it.

PRICES UP PROFITS DOWN.

THE upward movement in the price of wheat which has been sending the bulls into paroxysms of delight, which has been the oil of gladness to the horny-handed tiller of the soil, and the elixer of life to the immigration agent has been but a left-handed blessing to the miller.

The bull movement in wheat which began in Chicago and which has been very well sustained all along the line, is claimed by its supporters to be founded on an actual shortage in the world's wheat supply and to be quite well justified independent altogether of the probable outcome of the Russo-Japanese embroglio. The bears, on the other hand, are persistent in assigning the rise to speculative causes entirely. The result has been an uneasiness of feeling which leaves the milling fraternity nervous. The feeling that the present prices of grain may not be maintained makes them even more anxious than usual to dispose of their products as soon as possible after milling. In the face of a rising market therefor, and despite the advances that have been made in flour, they have not been able to exact prices commensurate with the increased cost of their raw material.

In the case of millers who are putting on the market wheat products in package form, the foregoing does not apply to any great extent, but there can be no doubt that the complaints of the millers in general are well justified by the facts.

REDUCTION IN SUGAR.

Just at going to press Canadian refiners announced a reduction of 5 cents in sugar quotations. This came on the wake of word from New York that Arbuckles had made a cut of 10 cents, leaving a differential in their favor of 5 cents as against the trust and Howell's who, as reported in our market columns of this week, had previously made a concession of 5 cents.

MUD SLINGING IN ONTARIO POLITICS.

UNTIL recently there was good ground for the hope that the mud-slinging school of politics which prevailed some 25 or 30 years ago, was happily a thing of the past. It is the more to be regretted therefor that this sort of thing should be revived as it has been revived in the Province of Ontario. Within the last few months there has been a growing disregard of the amenities of public life both within and without the Legislative chamber. Public questions of the day, instead of constituting the topics of political discussion have been systematically ignored and honorable gentlemen from both sides of the house have addressed themselves to unelevating trivialities and degrading personalities until the general public are, to a great measure, disgusted and heartily sick of the whole unedifying spectacle.

The climax was reached at Woodstock Saturday last when the depth of coarseness and indecency were sounded by Mr. R. R. Gamey. It is time a halt was called when not content with besmirching the characters of honorable judges, holding them up to ridicule and contumely, he must violate the scantity of the family, ignore the most ordinary consideration due to woman and outrage the rights of private life by dragging in the names of two young married people who by no logical process could be connected with the matter under discussion, but for the sole malevolent purpose of inflicting pain upon their families.

The vulgar abuse which Mr. Gamey has for some months been hurling at the Chancellor and Mr. Justice Falconbridge, calling one of them a "cabbage head," was bad enough, but this latest outbreak marks him as a man incapable of appreciating what is demanded by ordinary decency.

No matter what may be thought of the Gamey charges and there are many who think that despite the finding of the commissioners the man was bought, his conduct of late has been a public scandal. The Globe alone of the Toronto papers printed the offensive language used at Woodstock, setting up as its plea the necessity for calling a halt to Mr. Gamey's excesses. The Mail and Empire denounces the Globe for publishing the cruel personality. But if it is reprehensible for the Globe to publish such matter in its columns is not the author of the outrage deserving of still more vigorous denunciation?

Mr. Whitney has taken a creditable course in refusing to be in any way associated with Mr. Gamey in his public speeches. Mr. Whitney can do Ontario public life an invaluable service and strengthen at once, we believe, himself and the Conservative party in Ontario by insisting that Mr. Gamey desist from a repetition of his scandalous speeches touching the life and movements of private individuals.

The low tone of public life was reflected in the House on Wednesday last when the Speaker was compelled to appeal to the members for a better observance of parliamentary dignity.

None should be more concerned in the elevation of public life in this country than the business men. And it is to be hoped that those in Ontario who have any influence with Mr. Whitney will insist that he discipline the member for Manitoulin who seems to have lost all appreciation for the demands of either public or private life.

EGG FAMINE SURE.

NO eggs can be had in Toronto for less than 25 cents. Some houses have already raised the price to 30 and this price is expected to rule generally before the week is out. The severe weather of this week has been a blow to those who expected liberal receipts of eggs by the first of February. There can be practically no receipts of any account now before February 10th, and by that time, if we are correctly informed, there will not be an egg in wholesalers' hands. Already the bottom of the vats are being raked and the few cases of cold storage would go no distance at all.

A prominent firm, one of the largest dealers in eggs in the city, had enquiries the other day from all but one of the city jobbers but made no sales. They are reserving their eggs for the absolute necessities of their city customers.

This is in marked contrast with last year when after the turn of the year eggs went down out of sight and holders were pretty badly pinched. It is to be hoped that in 1904-5 the happy medium may be reached.

In the meantime let us prepare to give up our egg for breakfast until a spell of milder weather encourages the industrious hen to go to work again.

THE GRUMPY GROCER.

CHEERFULNESS has a commercial value. Customers have troubles enough of their own. They don't care to have those of their grocer inflicted upon them, and the man who insists upon recounting his tales of woe or what is practically the same thing, wearing a long face, will soon be recounting his woes to the sheriff and have valid reason for wearing a long face.

Yet there are some men in the business whose apearance and conversation is a standing invitation to a customer to return no more.

It is not necessary for a grocer to be facetious. That sort of thing is dangerous. Where one man succeeds ten will succeed only in making themselves rediculous. But one should always be cheerful. Be sunny, to quote a popular expression. A cheerful greeting changes the whole atmosphere of a store. The customer who came in with the purpose of spending as little as possible, inspired by the spirit of geniality will be disposed to take a more optimistic view of the world at large and himself in particular. He will be better friends with himself and the grocer and will, nine times out of ten, do a good turn for each by making purchases which had he been met with a long face he would not have entertained for a moment.

A RESUME OF THE CANADIAN TEA TRADE 1903-4.

By J. Lockhardt Watt, Toronto.

THERE have been some interesting developments in the tea trade of the Dominion during the past year that dealers would do well to note, and the consideration of which should assist them in the profitable conduct of their business in this article during the year on which we have entered.

The most prominent development of the year is the very large quantity of Ceylon and Indian Green Tea that has been imported during the season and which is steadily going into consumption to the displacement of other green teas and particularly Japan teas.

The trade in China black teas had been rapidly declining, but the past year might almost be said to have witnessed the complete extinction of this trade and the black tea trade of the Dominion is now firmly established in favor of Ceylon and India.

Should the sale of Ceylon and Indian green teas continue to gain ground as in the past year, then it is not a question of a decade, but of a few seasons only, when the whole supply, for the Dominion, of tea, both black and green, will be taken from the British tea growing countries—India and Ceylon.

"The Canadian Grocer" has published some excellent reviews of the tea market of the past year by those in the best position to voice the conditions and give expression to views best worthy of attention, and so reference here is only made to local conditions affecting or having reference to the tea trade of the Dominion.

STOCKS UNLOADED.

For several years past there has been too large a stock of tea carried in this country in first hands, and much of the over-supply has consisted of inferior or undesirable character, and as the retail dealers who possessed a knowledge of the article and the wholesale dealers who had sufficient regard for the interests of their customers and desired to protect their own trade and "tea repute" declined to absorb freely these inferior teas (many of which had been good teas when shipped, but had deteriorated through being held over), we, therefore, continued to import teas freely, with a large stock already in the country. But a steady reduction of stocks has taken place since 1899 until the present time, when we enter the year of 1904 with practically not a single chest of low priced tea in first hands.

The market in London for low priced tea during the early months of 1903 was so favorable that considerable quantities were shipped back from Canada; finding a more profitable sale in London after bearing freight both ways, than existed in Canada at same period.

HEALTHY CONDITIONS.

We enter then on the year 1904 under very healthy conditions and it is hoped and expected that this year the tea trade of the Dominion will be much more satisfactory and profitable to the dealers than for some years past.

It is generally admitted that the tea trade both of the wholesale house and of the retail dealer is much less profitable than was the case some years ago. If this is true—and we think it will not be disputed—it would be well to consider whether those engaged in the trade are themselves wholly or in part to blame, and if they are, whether they can themselves apply the remedy.

The curtailment of the profit in the grocers' tea trade is usually attributed to the fact that a very great proportion (some say as high at 80 per cent.) of the tea sold in Canada, goes to the counter at 25c.

DEMAND FOR CHEAP TEA.

May I suggest what appears to me to be some of the causes for this demand on the part of the consumer for 25c. tea.

First—The public has ascertained that very good tea can be bought at this price, though no one will pretend to say that fine tea can be sold profitably at 25c.

Second—The public has not always (perhaps not often) found that by paying 40c. to 50c. per pound they secure really fine tea.

Third—The public has sometimes (I hope not often) found that whether they pay 25c. or 50c. they get poor tea. Is it much to be wondered then that the public err on the side of discretion and buy low priced tea?

If the causes suggested are at all operative it means that the dealers should either become acquainted with the article, or that they should cease to use their own judgment in buying and rely on a wholesale house with an expert knowledge of teas, in whom they have confidence; asking that teas be supplied them solely with regard to their merits in the teapot and not on their leaf appearance.

EDUCATE THE BUYER.

The dealer should not fail to impress on the consumer, on all suitable opportunities that fine flavory, thick liquoring tea which can easily be obtained by an intelligent buyer to retail profitably at 40c. to 50c. per pound is quite as economical in use and is infinitely more agreeable to the palate than inferior tea at 25c. per pound. These remarks refer particularly to black teas (Indian and Ceylon), and a point the dealer should himself bear well in mind is that the difference between a tea costing say 18c. and a tea costing say 23c. both bought on quality (not leaf) is the difference between an ordinary tea and a really fine tea, so there appears to be room for the cultivation of a profitable tea trade in a 35c. grade, with benefit to the consumer also.

GREEN CEYLONS.

In this grade there is a tendency already to fall into the rut and the cup quality is rather a second consideration, and though for the most part the quality is very good, the estates in Ceylon which produce fine teas that command a high price will certainly not manufacture their leaf into green teas if buyers are unwilling to pay for quality.

It is to be hoped that an effort will be made on the part of all concerned to encourage the growers in Ceylon to maintain the fine quality of their green teas and this can only be done by a willingness on the part of the trade to pay for quality where it exists, and the wholesale dealer cannot afford to do this unless he is supported by the authority of the demand of the retail trade for quality.

Make quality, not price, your motto in the tea trade for 1904.

THE GROCER GOES EVERYWHERE.

"The Grocer goes everywhere." That's what Mr. O. Lefebvre, proprietor of Ocean Mills, enthusiastically says. Last week a little note was placed in "The Grocer" drawing attention to the handsome "Chinese" starch calenday issued by him. During the first four days he received over 100 post cards and letters from points between Truro, N.S., and North Bay. "I think," said Mr. Lefebvre, "by the time the trade in the Far West get their 'Grocer' I'll be flooded with requests for the calendars. I know you have a large circulation in the West. It will be a pleasure for to send one to each inquirer."

$500.00—FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

We believe that OUR INCREASE ALONE in sales of "SALADA" Ceylon Tea in the past year over our sales in 1902 was greater than the entire tea business of any other wholesale firm in Canada, in either packet or bulk tea.

If any Firm has a contrary opinion, we are prepared to donate Five Hundred Dollars—$500.00—to any Charitable Institution if we are wrong; the contesting Firm to do the same, if we prove absolutely that our INCREASE ALONE in the past year over the preceding one was greater than their entire business, packet or bulk, in 1903. We will allow the contestants to include in their sales Ceylon, India, China and Japan Teas; on our part THE INCREASE IN 1903 OF "SALADA" ALONE. Results to be published.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, January 28, 1904.

Groceries.

THE storms of the week which have demoralized both the train and postal service have had their effect on the trade. Travellers have not been able to get in their trips on time, and even mail orders are delayed. The trade for the month therefore which promised to be exceptionally good will be discounted. However this is merely temporarily and when the weather moderates business is likely to show renewed strength. An encouraging feature is that collections continue well up to expectations dispite the weather. Canned goods continue firm in all lines with a stiffening tendency in corn, although a few lines of low priced are still on the market. Sardines are scarce. Coffee continues to soar and the 10 cent mark for No. 7 Rio has been reached. Spices are firm with an upward tendency. There is a good demand for syrups and molasses, the latter showing a slight increase. Rice is moving freely while tapioca is nominal. Teas continue firm. Low priced Indian and Ceylon are scarce, while there is an improved demand for green China, Young Hysons and Japans. Shelled walnuts are much higher on primal markets. Cured fish are in fair demand. The sugar market has been ragged. Raws are nominally unchanged for spot and to arrive, while 1.32 more has been paid for February shipment. In New York the trust and the Howell refineries have reduced refined 5 cents, but there has been no corresponding reduction in Canada.

CANNED GOODS.

The situation continues firm in all lines and there seems to be a pretty general conviction that higher prices will rule when a little later the natural consumption will force retailers to come again into the market. Apples, 3s, are now worth 90c., corn is generally quoted at from $1.10 to $1.15, although there is some offered at $1 and some even as low as 90 cents. The latter, however, is understood to be old stuff. Albert sardines in 1-4s are not to be had and 1-2s what few are on the market are worth 24-25. Sportsman 1-4's are worth 15. We quote:

SUGAR.

The market has been decidedly ragged for the week under review, with raws remaining nominally unchanged on basis of 3 5-16c. duty paid New York, for 96 test centrifugals on spot and to arrive. On this basis about 30,000 bags Cubans were sold just prior to our going to press last week. At same time there was a sale of about 60,000 bags for February shipment at 1.32 more or say 2c. cost and freight equal to 3.34c. duty paid. Since then no sales have been reported, and the market is quiet with prices unchanged and refiners showing little, if any disposition to purchase further. Europe is reported easier and this is having an influence on buyers' ideas, in American markets. For the week, beet has declined 3d. per cwt. and as we go to press is quoted at 7s. 9d. basis f.o.b. Hamburg for 88 per cent., equal to parity of 3.62c. for 96 test centrifugals, duty paid New York It will be observed that cane sugars still have a very large defferential in their favor, and it is not surprising that there are no sugars afloat from Europe for United States ports under present conditions. For week ending January 20th receipts at United States Atlantic ports were light, being only 18,691 tons with meltings unchanged at 28,000 tons. Total stock in all hands was then 82,638 tons, a reduction of 9,309 tons for the week, as compared with same week last year a reduction of 30,222 tons. It will be observed that on present basis of meltings there is barely three weeks' supply on hand. Combined stocks of United States and Cuba were 172,138 tons, a decrease of 29,408 tons from last year. At same time combined stocks of Europe and America show an increase of 159,148 tons, being 3,652,138 tons against 3,492,990 tons at same uneven dates last year. There are now 124 central factories grinding in Cuba, against 100 same week last year. The large supplies of sugar in the world at the present time, tend to discourage the hopes of those who are looking for higher prices, and with these figures before us, it does not seem as if there would be any material advance in quotations in the near future. At same time there is an expectation, owing to the unsatisfactory condition of affairs in Europe during the last season, resulting in some failures among beet factories, that sowings in the approaching Spring will be considerably curtailed; but as these things are always anticipated in advance by speculators there is little likelihood that there will be any material reduction in prices. The heavy sales made recently by Cuban planters will relieve the financial situation for them, and it is not likely there will be much further pressure for sale during the present season. As to cane crops in other countries, values ruling during the past season have been so low that production during the coming season is more likely to be curtailed than increased. However, it will take time for these things to develop, and the future of the market will probably be principally governed by the extent of beet sellings in Europe.

The prevailing weakness in raws has affected the refined situation in New York and we hear of a decline of 5c. per 100 pounds, made by the sugar trust and Howell refineries. So far, there is no change to report locally, and considering the bad condition of country roads and the demoralized state of transportation generally the demand for Canadian refined sugar is very good for the season of the year. Since writing above and just as going to press all sugars in Canada were reduced 5c. We now quote:

COFFEES

Coffee, despite occasional reactionary tendencies, continues to soar. Last week we quoted No. 7 Rio at 8.35 c. and f. New York. Same day this week from the same source, Hard, Rand & Co., No. 7 Rio is quoted 9.20 c. and f. New York, and No. 6 Santos 9.10. Mild grades are sympathetically affected. The situation in Canada is peculiar. It is a long time since the market was so bare of Rios and Santos. When coffee began to rise in New York American speculators entered the Canadian market and picked up everything in sight at prices which showed a handsome profit to the sellers. A large lot for Canada, was picked up in London by Detroit people last week. We advance all quotations for the Rios this week, and the 10 cent mark for No. 7 has now been reached. We quote:

SPICES.

These lines are holding very firm and a fair movement generally is reported by local brokers. Jobbers are meeting the ordinary demand. In New York a very active market is reported in cloves and ginger. Indications of activity in pimento and nutmegs are noticed and it is thought tsese are likely to experience an upward reaction from the present dull markets. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is a very good demand for both these lines, and trade is generally reported good. In New Orleans offerings of molasses are light and the market is firmer. Locally molasses is higher. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

Rice is moving a little more freely than is usual at this time of the year, probably owing to the war scare. Prices, however, remain unchanged. Tapioca is nominal. We quote:

TEAS.

A scarcity is reported in low priced Indian and Ceylons. There is a better demand for green China Young Hysons and Japans, the war scare having somewhat a stiffening tendency, but by no means the effect reported in some quarters. The better values showing at present in these lines is the principal feature in stimulating business. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

There is no great stir in any one of these lines. Nothing new is reported in California fruits. Prices are unchanged and there is not much inquiry from the trade, except for prunes, which are inclined to be firmer. Currants are without feature. Shelled walnuts are advancing rapidly in France and the report is that they will soon be entirely exhausted. Attempts to buy at cabled quotations of last week brought back counter offers at 20 fr. per 100 kilos more, and buyers not acting promptly were unable to buy on second cables at named advance, a further advance of 20 fr. being asked. Country Produce

EGGS.

The egg situation is rapidly nearing an acute stage. There is nothing on the market to be had for less than 25 cents and this may be advanced any day to 30 cents. The snowstorms and cold weather of this week will cut off any possible supply and it will be two weeks at least before supplies can be reasonably expected. By that time it is asserted by those who are best informed, there will not be an egg on the market. Already the bottom of the vats are being raked, and what stocks are in dealers hands could be cleaned out in a day, were they not being reserved for the pressing wants of their city customers. Scarcely any new laid have been received this week and are quoted at from 35 to 40c. We quote:

POULTRY.

Interest in poultry is flagging. Very few live fowls are being received and ducks and geese are practically off the market. There is a very fair demand for first-class young dressed chickens and some interest in young turkeys. Otherwise the market is without feature. We quote:

Fish.

The fish market continues brisk this week. Owing to the cold weather the price of oysters remains high. Haddock is 1-2c. easier and cod 1c. easier. Sea herring are from 35 to 50c. easier. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Fruit dealers complain that owing to the protracted severe weather they can only handle fruit in small lots. Heavy snowfalls in the country make transportation difficult and quick distribution of fruit out of the question. There are plenty of oranges on the market and lower prices prevail as a rule. The orange market in the United States was never so demoralized as at the present time. The cold weather is partially responsible; also the fact that this year's crop is exceptionally large and the trust in control of it, in competition with outsiders, are slaughtering prices. The present demand for Jamaica oranges is only fair. Stocks of navels are plentiful and are improving in quality. Floridas are pretty well out of the market. Florida tangerines are easier. Lemons are easier. Stocks damaged by recent frosts are nearly disposed of. The demand for bananas is poor and lower prices prevail. Cranberries are easier. Our quotations are:

Vegetables.

There is a brisk demand for vegetables this week, particularly for roots of all kinds and supplies are hard to obtain. Cabbages are hardest to get and turnips the least scarce. California celery is scarce and higher. Canadian celery is practically out of the market. Mint has advanced 10c., also butter squash from 25 to 50c. Valencia onions are quoted this week for the first time. Potatoes are rather scarce and the market uncertain owing to the cold weather. We quote:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Jan. 28, 1904

Groceries.

BUSINESS is reported very satisfactory by the jobbing trade, orders are coming in good number and the feeling in the country is that business generally is good and the outlook encouraging. The heavy fall of snow during the past four weeks has, in some sections quieted country trade, farmers not being able to get to town with their produce easily.

There is a decidedly better tone prevailing in the tea trade and quite a number of orders are being booked daily by the brokers. The light stocks in almost every grade have to be replenished, though buyers have kept off entering the market as long as possible. In Japans, particularly, interest seems to centre, this is no doubt due to the war feeling in the East. A sharp advance has taken place in the home market, while the United States market has already responded, and buying in Canada is a feature with American tea houses. Sugars are quiet with fair amount of trading. Foreign markets in beet and cane are weak. Syrups are going out satisfactorily. The reported advance in corn will, if prices go any higher, tend to force manufacturers to put up corn syrups. A change in price of Barbadoes molasses to 38c. per gallon is reported on agreement by the Montreal section of the Guild, 20 puncheons and over are sold at open prices. This reduction applies only to the several districts noted under special section. Canned goods quiet. Portuguese sardines are attracting attention owing to the almost entire failure of the French fisheries last year. American pack of corned beef advanced 1s 5c. dozen, 2s 10c. dozen. Coffees advanced again in New York and local dealers must necessarily follow, in fact some dealers have already put up prices. Spices continue firm. A local broker reported sale of 100 bales cloves at 11-2c. over sale made two weeks ago. Green fruit trade is dull. Almeria grapes are reported scarce. California navels dropped 25c. to 50c box this week. Export apple trade is showing better. Foreign dried fruits are on the quiet side. Advances are noted in shelled almonds and walnuts. Currants maintain their strength in Greece. In nuts F. Baller & Co., Sicily report 39s. 3d. per bale, with new crop October shipment offered at 44s. 3d. Peanuts advanced 1-4c. in the high grades. Rice and tapioca quiet. Fish trade is very good and getting better as Lent approaches. Vegetables firm.

SUGAR.

There is nothing new to report in regard to the situation in sugar. Foreign markets continue easy, in fact to such an extent that it is not without prob-

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are unchanged in price. Jobbers report trade as growing. It is reported that owing to the high price of corn, manufacturers are not unlikely in the near future to be forced to advance prices. The molasses situation is also fairly good. An agreement was entered into this week by which the Montreal Guild reduced the price of Barbadoes molasses to 38c. per gallon for puncheons; 20 puncheons are offered at open prices. This change goes into effect in the following districts: West of the St. Maurice River, and west of the counties of Champlain, Arthabaska, Richmond, Sherbrooke and Stanstead, and east of Hull, with the exception of Three Rivers, Arthabaskaville, Hull and Gatineau Valley, which are open points.

We publish in another column a letter received from Messrs. Jones & Swan, Barbadoes, under date of January 8th, bearing on the sale of molasses which will be of interest and value to the trade. We quote:

TEA.

Reports on the "street" are to the effect that a better tone prevails generally and enquiries for all kinds of teas are more plentiful. There seems to be a particularly good demand for cheap blacks. Oolongs are also in good demand both here and reported from the West. The situation as regards Japans is interesting. A most reliable cablegram received from the East indicates that the situation is exceedingly precarious and a smart advance has already taken place in the home market, and every indication points to high prices for new season's Japans. The United States market has responded with large demands in New York, Chicago and San Francisco with increased prices. These enquiries naturally effect prices in Canada, where last season's stocks are short. Ceylon and India greens are also receiving good attention. We quote:

SPICES.

The latest reports from New York continue very strong. Cloves particularly show a strong front. Small stocks, it is estimated and the demands from grinders, tend to put up prices again very shortly. A local broker advises having sold 100 bales this week at an advance of 1 1-2c. since the last sale of January 2. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The situation in rice during the past week is unchanged from last report. A little more active buying of Patna has prevailed. This is undoubtedly due to the scarcity of Japan rice. The Mount Royal Milling and Mfg. Co. have reduced their Patnas 1-4c. In tapioca, business is very quiet and little trading done. We quote:

NUTS

Advices from Sicily from F. Balbre & Co., report purchases having been effected at 39s. 3d per bale, c. and f., New York, with new crop October shipment offered at 44s. 3d. Peanuts advanced 1-4c. again in the high grades only. This advance does not effect local jobbers as yet. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

Business is very quiet and no striking features noticeable. Tomatoes are firming up and though enquiries have been made from Western points local jobbers are not any too keen to let go. The demand for salmon is good and prices continue firm. It is expected that during the coming Lenten season a more active consumption of all kinds of canned goods will prevail. Owing to the almost entire failure of the French sardine fisheries last year the better grades of Portuguese pack are attracting attention and some good samples have advanced in price. American canned meats have advanced, for corn beef 1s 5c. per dozen, and 2s, 10c. per dozen, but there is a general decline in all other grades of American canned meats. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Business in green fruits has been rather quiet owing to the cold weather. Almeria grapes in kegs are scarce, stocks light and prices high. California navel oranges reported from 25 to 40c per box lower in sympathy with the American markets. Apples show slightly better movement. Export demand for apples is good. Upward tendency is noted and higher prices are looked for in the near future. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Business is very quiet, and difficult to obtain any interesting information. Markets generally are steady, both locally and at foreign points. Shelled almonds and shelled walnuts both show an advance with a very strong market. The reason for this advance on walnuts is attributable to the strong demand for oil making, there being no broken kernels available for export. Filberts show a little easier tone. Reports from Sicily continue weak with small demand. As regards currants cable advices from Greek markets say that the market still maintains its strength, and the recent advance of 1s. to 1s. 6d. is confirmed and maintained owing to the small amount of fruit remaining available for export, the Currant Bank and the Retention Act having absorbed up to the present about 45,000 tons which will be converted into alcohol. Sultana raisins are keeping strong, good qualities readily fetching the highest prices of the season. We quote:

Fish.

Business on the whole is fairly good. Owing to the near approach of Lent the demand for all kinds of fish is improving every day. There is a good supply of haddock and cod, and the same satisfactory. During the past week a few more arrivals of large Halifax sea herrings reported. They are coming in, in prime condition, weighing from 57 to 60 per hundred, and meeting with ready sale. Tommy cods are very scarce, and prices have advanced to $2.25 to $2.50 per bbl. This advance in the Tommy cods is owing to the run of this fish to the spawning beds. On their return at the end of the month the catch will naturally be better and prices reduced. A few carloads of salt herring have arrived during the week. Quality of same is very fair and sales good. The demand for green cod is picking up, and, owing to the scarcity of this article, it is thought that an advance of price will take place before the Lenten season opens. Smoked haddies and boneless codfish are in good supply and demand. Bulk oysters, owing to the cold weather at the fishing grounds, are scarce, and ample supplies are not looked for for a few weeks. NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,

St. John, N.B., Jan. 25, 1904.

WE are certainly having an old-fashioned Winter. January has been a very cold month and we have lots of snow. However, we do not have it as cold as at inland points and our harbor is always entirely free of ice. The Winter port business is extremely large. It looks now as if we were to get the Government assistance we have asked toward preparing four more berths. These we needed for the next season's business, and with them we will be in a position to handle all the business that is likely to offer for at least a few years or till another trans-continental railway shall make this their port. In markets the light movement of goods prevents changes in values being so much noticed or so extreme as at other times. Cream of tartar is higher. This is unusual at this season. Cloves continue to advance and Pimento is firmly held. In rice, prices are rather lower. Canadian cleaned rice which supplied our market for a number of years, has not been seen here for a long time.

Salt—In Liverpool coarse salt, the weekly steamers continue to land quite large shipments. Sale at this season is not large, and full stocks are held by the importers. In fine salt there is but a light business. English extra fine, boxed here, is freely offered. It is said the Canadian manufacturers will this year be able to fill all orders promptly.

Oil—There is no change in the firm price of burning oil. There is as usual rather lighter sales as season advances. Lubricating oils are very actively pushed. Prices are firm. Paint oils have improved sale. Prices are low except linseeds. Fish oil is scarce and high.

Canned Goods—Some Canadian tomatoes outside the association were offered quite reasonably, and at least lower than good American will cost. Corn is very firm. In domestic canned fish, clams and scallops are about out of the market, and both round and oval haddies are in very light supply. There is a fair stock of sardines and kippered herring. Salmon, except perhaps springs, are ample stock. Of late years there seems rather less demand for gallon apples. In fruits the market is quite well supplied.

Green Fruit—While there is a fair sale for apples, prices have not advanced. In oranges, Valencias have free sale, Jamaicas are about done. It is getting late for Californias. Floridas are still offered. Lemons are low. A few Malaga grapes still move. Cranberries, while bringing full price, are not high for the season.

Dried Fruits—Quite large shipments of dates have been received. Prices are low. In raisins the market is well supplied. Currants are unchanged. In prunes, stocks of small sizes are light, and prices firmer. Apricots are high. Evaporated apples have advanced about a half cent. Onions are higher. In peanuts the advance continues.

Sugar—While the market is firm and there is continued talk of higher prices, there has been very little change as yet. Prices are lower. There is a steady sale with dealers inclined to hold quite full stocks.

Molasses—The situation is unchanged with the market dull. Prices having been cut by one importer creates an uneasy feeling on the party of buyers. It looks as if the number of importers this season would not be large, and prices would rule low. The holder of the larger stock here has not made a decided move since the changed conditions brought about by the arrival of a cargo here, except to hold prices quite firm.

Fish—There has been good business in fresh fish. The supply of frozen herring at this season is better than for some years. Fresh cod and haddock have also been quite freely received. Good prices are obtained. In smelt, the business is confined to the north of the province, and the fish go to the American market. Earlier in the season the catch of lobsters, particularly in Nova Scotia, was quite good. In finnan haddies there is quite good supply. Smoked herring are rather higher and very firm. The supply is light. Dry fish are firm. Pickled herring have but a fair sale at the rather high prices. A fair stock is held.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour, markets are very firm at some little advance. Sales have been quite good. Feed is in light demand. Oats are firm. Oatmeal seems firm at the advance. Buyers feel present price is too high. Owing to the unusual difference between prime and handpicked beans quite a few of the former have been brought here. Quality has been good. Price is tending closer to handpicked. Cornmeal is unchanged. Barley is firm and stocks light. Split peas are scarce. In yellow eye beans offered, there is quite a range in quality.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 22, 1904.

AN interesting innovation in ordinary relations between employers and employed was introduced by The W. H. Malkin Co., wholesale grocers of Vancouver, at a dinner given by the company to its staff. The dinner, the first of the kind to be given by the company, took place at the Hotel Badminton, on Monday evening, every member of the firm's large staff being present. W. H. Malkin, president of the company, and the past president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, presided, the vice-chair being taken by J. F. Malkin. The table was tastily set, and a very select menu of choice viands was daintily served. Bright music, songs and speeches varied the pleasant evening, which was well calculated to strengthen the bonds between the company and their employes.

Not the least interesting event of an evening which will be memorable in the minds of every man present, was the presentation of a magnificent gold-headed cane to President W. H. Malkin by the staff. Frank McIntyre made the presentation, and read an appropriate address, expressing the appreciation the various members held for their worthy chief.

Mr. Malkin, in responding, was quite taken by surprise, he said, and felt deeply impressed by the evidence of confidence he had just received. He, in his turn, was able to spring a most agreeable surprise on the staff. He made the announcement that the firm had chosen this as the occasion to announce to the staff that every member who had been one year in the employ of the house would receive a bonus of 5 per cent. of his past year's salary. This was to apply, he said, on 1903 salaries, so that the benefits were to be felt at once.

Mr. Malkin, who is a thorough believer in the system of encouraging employes to identify themselves with the house, and carries into practice the belief that the individuality of the employe is impressed on the business more and more every year, made the further announcement that he would offer a special prize of $25 to the employe offering the best practical suggestion for the benefit and advancement of the business during the year. Each employe was at liberty to hand in as many suggestions as he wished. The details of the competition will be arranged, and it is safe to say that the firm will have some original ideas presented for their consideration.

A plan adopted by the Malkin company, and which has much to commend it to other business houses, is that to every employe who has been four years in the service of the company, a substantial interest in the business is given in the shape of a block of paid-up stock. Several of the staff are, under this arrangement, already stockholders, and, by the interest they take and the desire they show to increase their holdings by investing in the stock of the company, the proposition is a wise one.

The dinner, which is likely to become an annual affair with the firm, was a success in every way, was such a success that the employes will not be likely to forget its pleasant features during the year. During the evening several members of the staff, blessed with good voices, favored the company with songs, among them being Philip Malkin and R. Biernackie. A recitation, "Tennyson's Revenge," delivered in splendid style by J. F. Malkin, was another feature.

The boards of trade of Vancouver and Victoria have been very active in the past few weeks in connection with the business legislation being carried through the Legislature by the new Government of the province. The particular issue on which the main interest centres is the Assessment Act, which bears particularly heavy on merchants located in the cities of the province. As one speaker at the meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade put it this week, the new assessment taxes a man on what he owns, what he owes, and what is owed to him.

The president, H. T. Lockyer, pointed out the very serious weakness of the Act in its treatment of resident established business houses as compared with commission men and brokers representing eastern houses. The latter might do several thousand dollars of business per week and not be subject to the taxes levied by the Act. It was well known that some of these brokers held in warehouse large stocks of goods for delivery, and they were not taxed on these. It paid better to be outside of the province than in it to do business here. Other members followed on the same line, and pointed out the difficulty there was to do business at all and pay the taxes demanded under the Act. A resolution was passed urging on the Government to appoint a commission to revise or make recommendations on the Assessment Act.

Another legislative matter was discussed, which has been referred to before in this column, the proposed amendments to the Bills of Sale Act. The Board of Trade has sent a delegation to join with others in urging on the Government radical changes. They propose that the present method, by which over-holding unregistered bills of sale is possible, to introduce the following amendments :

1—To reduce the time limit of registration to five days in case where the goods in the bill of sale are within the corporate limits of a city or town in which is situate an office of the County Court wherein such bills of sale may be registered, and in all other cases within the period of fifteen days after the making thereof.

2—To amend the existing Act by rendering an unregistered bill of sale void as against all creditors, subsequent mortgagors or purchasers for value.

3—To amend the existing Act by adding a new section to render successive unregistered bills of sale void as against creditors, mortgagors or purchasers.

4—To amend the existing Act by adding a new section making it compulsory to renew registration in 12 months by filing a statement verified by affidavit showing indebtedness on existing security.

5—To amend the existing Act by adding a new section that possession shall not cure non-registration.

Freight rates, as proposed by the new tariff issued by the C.P.R., were also discussed by the Vancouver Board of Trade this week. A recommendation was made from the Special Committee that the Transcontinental Freight Bureau west-bound tariffs be made to apply to British Columbia terminal points. Some members suggested that the new Railway Commission should take up such a subject. Others thought the Board of Trade would have to prepare the case for presentation before the new commission.

Business in grocery lines is quiet and is not anticipated, in wholesale circles at least to improve much in this month and February. Some inquiry for outfits from the north has begun to come in. Wholesale men think it is due to the preparations being made for exploiting the new gold fields, located 175 miles from White Horse last Fall. No actual movement of goods is reported yet, but from the inquiries received, it is expected that orders will be coming in early. The railway running from Skagway to White Horse makes it possible to have the goods delivered at any season, as there is no Winter haul or Summer water stretch frozen up. From the north reports still arrive of increasing activity in preparation for the anticipated rush.

In the local markets there is a quiet feeling all round. Dried fruits, which are moving fairly, are easy in price. The rise in flour quoted from the big mills two or three weeks ago, has gone into effect here.

In the egg market there is a great scarcity of all pickled stock; in fact they are cleaned out. The situation is somewhat relieved by importations of fresh-laid from California. The price, laid down here, is 30c., though, so that by the time the retail man gets them ready for the consumer, they are dear. Local fresh ran down to 40c. retail, but are scarce.

Butter moves but slowly. There is still plenty of Manitoba and N.W.T. stock on hand. The local creameries have raised the price to 35c. to the trade again, so that it has made a little excitement. It has nearly made it possible to bring in new California butter, though this is rather early.

Fruits are quite featureless. Oranges from California are beginning to move and are improving in quality maturity. The first carlot to arrive by rail is reported to arrive to-day.

ONTARIO WHOLESALE GUILD.

A meeting of the Executive of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild was held in Toronto, Tuesday morning and afternoon and Wednesday morning, when the matters to be brought before the Dominion Wholesale Guild on February 10th were discussed. There were present the president, Mr. Bristol; and the secretary, Mr. T. B. Escott; Mr. W. G. Craig, the other member of the executive, being absent through illness. Mr. H. P. Eckhardt, who is not a member of the guild, was present on invitation, and discussed with Mr. Bristol and Mr. Escott various matters of interest to the trade. The meeting was very harmonious.

For those who do not dance an attractive programme of comic and sentimental songs has been arranged while a card corner has also been provided.

The committee in charge are making every effort towards providing for the comfort of their guests and the event promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the association.

Invitations may be had from the president, F. W. Johnston; the secretary, E. B. Nettlefield, or from any member of the association.

LIPTON WINDOWS.

As a result of the campaign being waged by Mr. J. A. Curtis, who represents the tea and coffee interests of Sir Thomas J. Lipton, with the Canada Grocers, Limited, a number of Lipton tea windows are to be seen in Toronto groceries. David Bell, 702 Yonge street; W. N. Armitage, Carlton and Church; and A. V. Bradley, Spadina avenue, are among those who have dressed their windows with Lipton teas. The background in each case is formed by a couple of huge Union Jacks, and the tea, in the square tin Lipton packages, is arranged in pyramids, interspersed with various pictures advertising these teas. The windows are very effective.

AGENTS WANTED.

It will be noticed by an advertisement on page 40 that agents are wanted in Canada for Perth Whiskey De Luxe. The firm manufacturing that whiskey has been established over a century in Scotland.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The attention of the trade is called to the ad. of Jas. Rutherford & Co., Montreal, in this week's "Grocer." Special values in Ceylon and Indian greens as well as Japan fannings and siftings are offered.

Buyers of green Rio coffee should communicate with H. P. Eckardt & Co.

A carload of Aylmer boneless chicken, turkey, duck and chicken soup is at hand this week with L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal. Prices are exceptionally attractive and in view of the scarcity of these goods this year intending buyers should communicate with this firm.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering exceptional value in a roasted coffee at a low price.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, who are distributors for Greenbank's lye and chloride of lime, report demand for these goods rapidly increasing. They are now booking orders for Spring, and will be pleased to give the trade full particulars.

Heinz tomato soup is delicious and is also a good seller.

Attention is directed to the offerings of Roequefort cheese made this week by L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal. See advertisement in another part of this issue.

THEIR FIRST ANNUAL MEETING.

The first annual general meeting of Canada Brokerage Co. was held on Tuesday afternoon, the 26th inst., at the offices of Jones, Lennard & Gibson, the solicitors of the company. After paying a dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, a surplus was left to the credit of profit and loss. The shareholders present expressed themselves as highly pleased with the results of the last six months, and feel that the success of the company is assured.

The old directors were unanimously re-elected, viz., Mr. F. W. Hudson, Mr. W. F. Morley and Mr. H. T. Wilson, and at a subsequent meeting of the board, Mr. F. W. Hudson was re-elected president, Mr. W. F. Morley, vice-president, and Mr. H. T. Wilson secretary-treasurer.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A visitor to Montreal last week was Mr. J. Scott, Winnipeg agent for Comfort soap.

Mr. J. H. Magor, of Frank Magor & Co., Montreal, is paying a visit to New York, combining, as is his nature, business with pleasure. The holiday is a well-earned one as his firm have been more than usually busy during the Fall and early Winter.

Mr. Small of the Canada Maple Exchange and Small's Chocolate Cream, Montreal, who has been confined to the house through a severe attack of typhoid fever, is reported as on the way to recovery, and expects to be able to attend to business in a few weeks.

Mr. L. A. Delorme, of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, has been obliged through illness to lay up for a week or so. Mr. J. Ethier, of the same firm, who has been seriously ill with typhoid fever for some weeks, is on a fair way to recovery, having passed the critical period of his illness.

Mr. O. K. Skroder has joined the travelling staff of Pugsley, Dingman & Co., Toronto. His territory will cover part of Quebec Province formerly looked after by Mr. Fred Perry, who found the increased trade needed an assistant. Mr. Perry retains a large section of Quebec.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

The Grocers' Branch of the Retail Merchants' Association met at their board room Monday night and elected officers for the ensuing year. The new officers were as follows:

Chairman—G. Y. Good.
1st Vice-Chairman—J. H. Walker.
2nd Vice-Chairman—M. Moyer.
Treasurer—J. Bond.
Secretary—W. H. Miller.
General Secretary—E. M. Trowern.

CANNING FACTORY FOR SUSSEX.

Sussex, N. B., is to have a canning factory. G. W. Hoegg, of Fredericton, has been interviewing the farmers around Sussex in regard to the matter of raising corn and peas in sufficient quantity to warrant the establishment of a canning plant. The result of his interviews seems to be satisfactory, for he has secured premises suitable for his purposes and is making arrangements to move to Sussex.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, January 23, 1904.

TRADE has been very steady all week in the general grocery and produce trade. The weather has been very cold, in fact for the past four days the coldest of the Winter, and this of course always retards business. The drop in temperature was inauguarated with a little blizzard on Tuesday. So far as weather is concerned Manitoba and the West generally can be congratulated on having the finest weather going. It is cold, certainly, but it is clear and bright with no heavy snowstorms or much drifting.

Paper is being met just fairly and collections are very slow, although some of the jobbing houses report them as much better than the first week of the new year.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits—Large shipments of Valencia raisins of fine quality have arrived and prices are somewhat easier. Fine off stalk, $1.85; selects, $1.95; layers, $2; Sultanas, 9 to 10c.; Muscatels, for which the demand is small owing to the high price, 8 1-4 to 8 1-2c. California evaporated fruits market is steady and prices are somewhat higher in some lines. New peaches standards 9 to 9 1-4c.; choice peaches, 9 3-4c.; apricots, new, standards, 12c.; choice, 12 3-4c.; new pitted plums, dark, 11c.; ruby prunes 90 to 100, 5 1-2c, for old, 80 to 100, 6c.; new 70 to 80, 7 1-4c; silver standard prunes, 7 1-2c.; choice, 10c.

Sugars—Market is steady at the advance quoted last week, viz., granulated, $4.70; Wallaceburg sugar $4.60 and 100 pound saks 5c. under.

Rice—Japan, 5 to 5 1-8c., the price having grown rather easier; B and Patna are without change.

Syrups—Edwardsburg syrups have advanced 15c. for the 10 and 20-lb. cases making the present price $2.45 for 10 and $2.40 for 20.

Coffees—The market is very firm but No. 5 Rio is not selling over 9 to 9 1-4c. here. The truth is stocks are heavy and although they cannot be replaced to sell at 10 1-2c. the advance is not being taken advantage of.

Canned Vegetables—Canned tomatoes are still quoted at $2.65 and peas at $1.90, but corn is scare and there has been an advance of 20c. per dozen or 40c. per case, making the present price $2.40. It is a little doubtful if all houses are enforcing this price, but as there are no large stocks here, there seems no reason why there should be any inducement to sell at lower rates.

Green Fruits—The trade is the ordinary everday Winter trade somewhat curtailed as to country shipments owing to the cold and the uncertainty of heated car service. Prices show no change since the opening of the year, being: Oranges, navels, $3.50 to $4; fancy California lemons, $5; fancy Winter apples, Spies, $4; other varieties, $3.50; Malaga grapes, $8; cranberries, $11 per barrel, and bananas, which now only come by express, $4 per bunch.

Vegetables—There is little offering in shape of green vegetables, lettuce, celery and parsley comprising the entire round. Sales of potatoes have been light owing to the cold weather. Prices are firm at 60c. per bushel for farmers' loads.

Produce—There is no new feature in this market. Everything is just plodding along in the mid-Winter style.

Cured Meats—The market is very steady and there has been no change in prices. Hams, 13 3-4c; shoulders, 8 1-2c.; breakfast bellies, 12 3-4c.; backs, 11 3-4c; spiced rolls, 11 1-4c for long and 10 3-4c. for short; long clear, 9c.; dry salt, 10 1-2c.

Lard—In tierces, 9 1-2c.; 50-lb. tubs, $4.70; 20-lb. pails, $1.95; 10-lb. pails in cases, $5.95; 5-lb. pails, $6; 3-lb. pails, $6.10; compound lard in 20-lb. pails, $1.75.

Butter—Receipts of butter have been almost nil during the week and anything in the shape of fancy table butter is worth 22 to 23c. wholesale for round lots. The bulk of the trade at present is done by butchers and grocers who offer high prices for fancy butter and get only about half what they could dispose of. The supply of dairy butter on the market has certainly been smaller than usual this season.

Eggs—Receipts of eggs have almost ceased and the few score dozen of new laid coming in bring 40 to 45c. per dozen. Dealers will pay 22c. Winnipeg for case lots of fresh gathered.

Mr. Bremner, who was formely in charge of the Hudson Bay stores at Fort Francis, and who has been in the Winnipeg stores for some three or four months, has left for Kamloops, where, it is understood, he goes to manage the company's stores.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

An Honest Window.

A POINT that must be observed in every window display is that the goods shown must be of the same class as the stock carried. An excellent quality must not be displayed in the window and the customer served from an inferior quality. The window is supposed to advertise just what is for sale inside, and the merchant who attempts to manage his business on a different principle will find a readily suspicious public will pass his store. A customer is ever willing to suspect that the goods he buys are inferior to those which benefit from their attractive arrangement in the window, and any proof of the existence of such a state of affairs will be magnified and turn away the trade of any one who discovers it.

It will often be found necessary to compare the two lines of goods, and no reticence should be shown, if a customer desires it, in removing the article in quality. Nor should the window-dresser be allowed to select all the best for the window, unless it is plainly shown to every inquirer that the goods in the window form the complete stock, and are for sale. A single case of an attempt to unload onto a customer a different quality may mean the loss of a shown in the window in order to prove that what is on the shelves is the same great amount of trade, for corrupt practices are far more injurious than inefficient business ability. In fact it is wise never to place the complete stock of any line in the window under any circumstances, particularly when the quality is of a high class, as the customer is apt to believe that it is customary to carry particular lines for window display and a lower class for sale. It is not an unheard of thing, and the public knows it.

This Week's Illustration.

The cut gives a very poor idea of the Christmas window display of R. Barron, grocer, Toronto. The reflection and the width of window space have rendered indistinct many of the prominent features of the arrangement. The window at the left was filled with fancy baskets, large and small, and the other contained candle shades of different colors and shapes. Perhaps the most striking feature was the strings of Christmas stockings and canes suspended all through the store and extending into the windows. The windows are shallow and open at the back, so that the artistic arrangement of the interior was plainly visible from the street.

A LARGE DIVIDEND DECLARED.

THE Third Annual General Meeting of the holders of stock in E. W. Gillett Company, Limited, was held in the company's offices, Toronto, Ont., on Thursday, Jan. 21st. Stockholders from Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec were present and were delighted with the very satisfactory statement presented by the management. In the unavoidable absence of the president, Mr. E. W. Gillett, who is now in Southern California for the benefit of his health, Mr. Wm. Dobie, general manager and treasurer of the company, was elected chairman.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Geo. Hepburn, and adopted. The statement presented for the consideration of the stockholders, showing the result of the company's business for 1903, was an exceptionally good one. After paying two dividends at the rate of 8 per cent., and two at the rate of 10 per cent., and writing off a liberal amount to cover depreciation on machinery, tools, etc., a substantial addition was made to reserve and contingent account. Sales for 1903 showed an increase of over 15 per cent. over those for 1902 and 26 per cent. over 1901.

The attention of holders of stock was called to the unprecedented record which the management of this business has been able to show year after year in the fact of doing an immense business without any loss in bad debts, and in this respect a clean sheet was shown for 1903.

The above shows this business is in a most flourishing condition, and, owing to the efficient manner in which it is managed, future prospects are of the brightest. The meeting, at its close, passed a vote of thanks to the presiden, Mr. E. W. Gillett; the general manager and treasurer, Mr. Wm. Dobie; the secretary, Mr. Geo. Hepburn, and travellers and office staff for the careful manner in which they had conducted the affairs of the company. Mr. David Hoskins, chartered accountant, was appointed auditor.

Last year's Board of Directors, consisting of Mr. E. W. Gillett, Mr. Wm. Dobie, Mr. John Firstbrook, Mr. H. C. Baker and Mr. M. A. Thomas, was re-elected.

Subsequently a meeting of the Board of Directors was held, at which the following officers for 1904 were elected:

President—Mr. E. W. Gillett.

General manager and treasurer—Mr. Wm. Dobie.

Assistant general manager—Mr. Geo. H. Macfarlane.

Secretary—Mr. Geo. Hepburn.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

Confectionery for Anniversaries.

THE Americans are large consumers of confectionery, and the confectionery manufacturers use every possible occasion to stimulate buying. At this season St. Valentine's Day gives them a fine opportunity for bringing forward novelties of all sorts, and the quantity of fine candy elaborately boxed, sold for gift purposes is enormous. A little later Washington's Birthday provides another good occasion and boxes and novelties introducing as decorative features hatches and cherries are everywhere shown. St. Patrick's Day follows a little later, and the shamrock, the "dudeen," and the typical Irish hat are introduced in various forms. And so it goes on. Not only in confectionery stores are these anniversary occasions exploited, but also in the large departmental stores the spirit of the times manifests itself in suitable emblems and decorations.

The Canadian manufacturers of confectionery are taking the cue from their American brethren and are educating the retailer to use these special occasions to stimulate their trade in confectionery of appropriate character. The report from the trade shows that the efforts in this direction are receiving their reward.

Confectionery Notes.

A. J. Stewart, Limited, wholesale confectioners, Toronto, are submitting to the trade their new lines of confectionery—Butter Mallows, Lady Fingers and Juliettes. Their salesmen are out with Easter goods and the way orders are being received speaks volumes for the attractiveness of their line.

Sugar Trust's Profits.

From statistics compiled in the sugar trade for the calendar year just closed experts are able to arrive at an approximate estimate of the year's earnings of the American Sugar Trust. The company does not publish earnings, but, according to statistics compiled the Havemeyer Sugar Trust sold 3,068,464,000 pounds of sugar during 1903. President Havemeyer gave a basis on which to work when he said the average price for the year of refined sugar was 4.55 cents a pound. The gross earnings would therefore be $29,155,408. It is figured that the net earnings are .293 cents a pound. Net profits on the whole output of the Trust would, therefore, be $8,990,600. After paying preferred dividends, it is estimated that the American Sugar Refining Company earned on its common stock about 13 per cent.

Concerning Chocolate.

THE introduction of cocoa into England is first mentioned in 1657. The first mention of the manufacture of chocolate in this country was in 1771.

The processes of preparation to-day are these: The ripe pods are cut from the tree by long poles with a knife at the end. They are left on the ground for about 24 hours, and then taken to the "sweating box." This process is somewhat similar to the malting of grain, and on the care with which it is watched depends the flavor of the seeds. Sometimes the sweating is accomplished by covering the seeds with earth in holes in the ground. After this fermentation, the seeds are dried in the sun.

In the manufacturer's hands the seeds are first sorted and cleaned. The manner of sweating and drying naturally makes this very necessary, and it is done effectively by machinery.

Next comes the roasting, another delicate process, since seeds whose fermentation has been successful may here be spoiled by over or under roasting. The action of the heat makes it easy to remove the shells—the cocoa shells of commerce, and these, and the germ of the seed, which has become hard, are separated from the body of the seed.

The remainder of the seed is then ready for grinding. It comes from the mill a thick, pasty liquid. This may be moulded directly for the "bitter" chocolate, or vanilla, or pulverized sugar added for the other varieties. The moulding is accomplished by shaking the paste into the mould.

There are, of course, other and more glaring adulterations of chocolate and cocoa.

U. S. Candy Trust Busted.

THE decision to dissolve what is known as the "candy" trust saved its president and 12 of its officials from being harshly dealt with in the Court of Special Sessions in New York, according to the New England Grocer. Ending a trial which has lasted for several months, they went into court, pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiring to maintain a monopoly, and left with a sentence hanging over their heads. This is the first time that what amounts to a conviction on such a charge has been obtained. The trust fought every step, but the officials felt the decision would be against them, and it was with the understanding that sentence would be suspended that they admitted their guilt. The New York Confectioners' Jobbers' Association is the name by which the trust was known. Comprising the principal wholesalers, it had a national organization, with headquarters in Newark, N.J. In June last, Moses Goldenberg, a member of the association, was expelled after his refusal to pay a fine imposed for a violation of its rules, took steps which resulted in the arrest of the officials, on a charge of conspiracy. Any renewal of the combination means the sentence of the officials.

Men.

Men are like chunks of dough
Which women pat,
With many sighs
This way and that
And shape to suit themselves and throw
Around upon life's mixing board. We rise
Or fall,
And oft are only half-baked, after all.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

APPRECIATES THE GROCER.

J. C. McFarland, Queensville, writes: I have been a weekly reader of "The Grocer" for over 10 years. I find it one of the most useful and inexpensive helps in connection with my business and I feel the loss of it when it does not arrive on time.

T. Kinnear & Co. are offering a special line of Sultana raisins at an exceptionally low figure.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have some very handsome counter cigar cutters which they are giving away with "Chamberlain" and "Lafayette" cigars.

The attention of the trade should have been called to the ad. of the Eagle Baking Powder Co., Montreal, in last week's "Grocer." It will pay to refer back to it. The premium offer is a very profitable one.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. B. Stewart, representing the Hamilton Cotton Co., was a visitor this week to the Montreal jobbing trade.

Mr. O. Lefebvre, proprietor of Ocean Mills, Montreal, is on a business trip to Three Rivers and points east. Where Mr. Lefebvre goes goes "Chinese starch."

Mr. W. A. Hill, for seven years traveller for E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, and late of Wm. Strachan & Co., Montreal, has accepted a position with Dalton Bros., Toronto, to cover the ground between Toronto and Quebec city.

Mr. S. S. Arnold representing R. Herron & Co., Montreal, is at present in Winnipeg. Mr. Arnold, by the way, is making his 20th trip through the Northwest and British Columbia. His specialties are Red Cross Jelly Powder and the lines of coffees and spices put up by his firm.

Mr. Wilson B. Mills, of Toronto, formerly of the American Coffee Co., became the representative of Balfour, Stewart & MacLaren, of Hamilton, and will devote his entire time to the development of this company's coffee trade in Toronto. Mr. Mills is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his new appointment.

Mr. A. G. Snowdon, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, accompanied by Mr. Gregory, Mr. Powers, and Mr. Bremner, is canvassing the trade in Ottawa and vicinity, and meeting with good success with "Bee" brand goods. Their "profit sharing" scheme is evidently meeting with success, judging by the orders they are turning in to the house.

Mr. Geo. H. Macfarlane, who for many years has represented the E. W. Gillett business in Manitoba, Northwest Territories, and British Columbia, has been appointed assistant general managre of E. W. Gillett Company, Limited. Mr. Macfarlane's long experience in the business and knowledge of the requirements of the trade, fit him for this responsible position. His many friends in the West and elsewhere will be pleased to hear of his promotion.

STARTED CANADIAN BRANCH.

We notice another foreign firm opening a branch in Canada, the Myers Horse and Cattle Spice Co., who have two large factories in Great Britain and one at Niagara Falls, N.Y. They are opening at Niagara Falls, Ontario. The lines they put up are Myers' Horse and Cattle Spice, Hog Spice, and Poultry Spice. These lines have a high reputation among those who have used them The goods are put up attractively in cartoons, and the horse and cattle spice also in 30, 35 and 40 lb. bags. They should prove a good line for the retailers as a good profit can be made. Lucas, Steel & Bristol, Hamilton, report they have a car just in and are booking orders.

Canadian Apples Best.

THE Glasgow Herald of January 5th has an interesting article on the "Fruit Imports in 1903." In reference to apples the following statement is made: "The apple trade was unique, 1903 being a bumper year for this fruit. The total weight was 4,550,000 cwt., valued at £2,850,000. In ten years the imports have been nearly doubled, 1903 even surpassing 1896, which was the most prolific season of recent years. The imports in favor of 1903 against 1896 are 3,000,000 bushels. We got the largest parcels from the United States and Canada. These places send us more than 2,500,000 cwt. annually. Of course the Canadian apples are much superior to those of America."

The offhand way in which this latter statement is made speaks volumes for the quality of the Canadian apples now placed upon the British market. The careful surveillance of the Dominion fruit inspectors has evidently done much to prevent our export apple trade from being ruined by a few unscrupulous dealers. a consummation which seemed probable some three or four years ago.

Notes From the Fruit Division.

MR. W. A. MACKINNON, chief of the the Fruit Division, attended the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Growers' Association at Bridgewater, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. He was accompanied by Senior Fruit Inspector A. McNeill, and had a conference with the Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island Inspectors while at Bridgewater.

Mr. McNeill was one of the speakers at a special Farmers' Institute meeting at Orillia, in which district a good deal of interest is taken in apple growing. Mr. F. L. Dery, Quebec inspector, is also attending a number of institute meetings in that province which have been arranged by the Live Stock Commissioner.

Inspector Maxwell Smith, of British Columbia, gave a valuable address on the "Benefits of Fruit Inspection" at the annual meeting of the B. C. Fruit Growers' Association, held at New Westminster on January 7th and 8th. Along with a number of other representatives of the fruit growing industry of the province, Mr. Smith attended the annual meeting of the fruit growers of the Northwestern States at Portland, Oregon, January 11th.

Wants Fruit Exhibition.

Wolfville, N.S., has a movement on foot to secure the King's County Exhibition of fruit and vegetables next Autumn. A committee has been appointed to deal with the matter and the project has been endorsed by the Board of Trade.

Commends Our Fruit Inspection.

United States Consul Fleming, at Edinburg, writes to Washington as follows: The failure of the fruit crop in Great Britain has caused a great demand upon the United States and Canada for apples. Prices rule high, the importers' quotations to the trade ranging from $4.85 to $7.25 per barrel for the best grades and from $3 to $4.50 for ordinary grades. It must be said that Canadian exporters are year by year gaining a stronger position in the Scotch market. About half of the apples imported now are from the Dominion. The system of inspection at Canadian ports and at British ports, whereby the quality of the fruit is in a measure guaranteed, has proved useful to the shipper as well as to the buyer.

The Cranberry Harvest.

A canvass of the cranberry bogs of the town of Carver, Mass., shows that the crops of 1902 and 1903 were substantially the same, the totals for each year being a little over 40,000 barrels. One hundred and forty-four bags were returned with an acreage of 1,329. Considering the great increase in acreage during the last two years the two crops can be considered as only about one-half the normal gathering.

Nova Scotia Fruit Growers.

The Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association will hold its annual meeting in Bridgewater, on January 27 and 28. There will probably be 200 members present and the display of apples promises to be a splendid one.

Among the Fruit Men.

HUSBAND BROS. & CO.

HUSBAND BROS. & COMPANY, wholesale fruit and commission merchants, Toronto, have been successfully established since 1891. When the firm started it was confined to G. & C. Husband and H. M. Mulholland. Three years ago G. Husband died, and C. Husband, owing to ill-health sold out his firm interest to J. W. Sanderson, who, with Mr. Mulholland, are carrying on a fruit and commission business at the present time under the old firm name. Mr. Sanderson had the advantage of eight years' previous experience in the retail trade and has proved an invaluable acquisition to the firm. In conversation with a representative of "The Canadian Grocer" Mr. Sanderson stated that business has improved steadily, having more than doubled itself in the last few years. Eight years ago this increasing patronage compelled the firm to vacate their premises at 71 Colborne street for the more commodious quarters at 82 Colborne street, which they now occupy. They handle foreign and domestic fruits and have a large commission business, of which the department in domestic fruits is the most important. Their commission business extends west to Winnipeg, north to the bounds of civilization in New Ontario and east to Kingston. "The evolution of the fruit trade since we have been actively interested, has been considerable to say the least," remarked Mr. Sanderson. "At the present time the bulk of the imported fruit we are handling is California and Mexican grown. It is cheaper, better quality, and has all but driven Valencia oranges and French and Austrian dried fruit out of the market. Raisins and Malaga grapes still come from the Mediterranean, but the time is not far distant when Southern Californias will have successfully mastered the art of growing even these, so perfectly is their climate adapted for growing all kinds of semi-tropical fruit. Almonds now come from California and are at least equal in quality to the foreign grown nut, the only difference being in the soft shell of the American almond. Since the beginning of the new year Husband Bros. & Co. have received a sample of peanuts from a firm in Japan who are desirous of cultivating a Canadian trade.

Red Bananas Again.

Among the novelties of the season are the red bananas which are being introduced to the Canadian trade. They are finer in appearance and superior in quality to the ordinary banana, but not so prolific. For the latter reason the attempt to import them some years ago was unsuccessful.

The Versatile Banana.

The cultivation of bananas in Jamaica and the West Indias proves a very profitable business. The leaves are used for packing, a wax found on the under side of the leaves is very valuable, hemp is made from the stems and is used for making mats and handkerchiefs of finest quality. The banana is sometimes ground into flour.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Oriental Market for Flour.

SINCE the Osaka exhibition much attention has been directed to the Orient as a possible market for Canadian and American flour. In view of this a report of U. S. Consul Miller on wheat growing and milling in Manchuria is of very particular interest suggesting as it does that the production of such wheat and flour in Asia is likely to increase fully as rapidly as the demand.

In my previous reports, writes Mr. Miller, I suggested that this country offered a better field for the sale of flouring mill and agricultural machinery than for our flour, and my recent investigations confirm beyond all question my previous views.

The situation here seems to be continually misunderstood, especially by the Pacific coast press, and they refer to the impossibility of Russian competition with our Asiatic flour trade by bringing flour from Odessa, and insist that Russian expansion on the Pacific means an increased demand for our flour in Manchuria. I hope this is true, but a careful examination of every feature of the conditions leads me to believe that within a year our flour trade in Siberia and Manchuria will be at an end, and within three years flour from Siberia and Manchuria will be pressing hard upon our flour trade in other parts of China.

The saving feature of the situation, however, and one that baffles all predictions concerning the Chinese market for flour, is the increased consumption by the natives.

Foreign flour is being used now wherever the Chinese can afford to pay for it, and, as their wages rise to a plane high enough for the common cooly to buy food made from foreign flour, he becomes a permanent consumer. This expansion in the market is bound to go on for a long time to come and may develop at such a rate as to provide a market for this increased northern Asiatic production as well as our own on the Pacific coast.

Wherever a railroad is built or cheap transportation is provided into the interior the first foreign article carried in is flour. Millions of the Chinese are fed at the street restaurants and foreign flour is easily prepared into the various kinds of food suitable to the Chinese appetite. The question of its consumption is merely the problem of the ability to purchase. At each successive trip into the interior I am astonished at the expansion of the flour market.

CONSUMPTION OF LOW GRADE OF FLOUR

There is one important feature of this report to which I desire especially to call the attention of our flour exporters, and that is the various grades of flour being produced by the Manchurian mills. It is a subject of common observation that the Chinese use in great quantities very cheap things—of a low grade—and this pertains to their food as much as to anything else. They consume a vast amount of very cheap, coarse, and inferior stuff, such as our people would feed to animals or waste. To provide for all these classes the Manchurian mills make these various grades of flour. The merchant buying the flour can not be deceived as regards these grades, and it would be folly to attempt to impose an inferior article as a high-class; but the market will take a vast amount of inferior or low-grade flour at a low price.

Mills here making four grades find that their greatest demand is for third and fourth grade flour.

On account of the large and growing trade of American flour in the Orient I have given this matter much thought and careful study. When this flour begins to reach the sea in quantities it will be met there by largely subsidized steamship lines prepared to carry it to other ports in China at very low rates.

The great advantage, however, lies in the productiveness of the country, the industrious and cheap labor prepared to produce it, and its nearness to market.

HOW THE PEOPLE LIVE.

The lives of these people are very primitive. The men, women, and children labor in the fields and maintain a cheap, lowly life, living in mud houses and sleeping on mud beds. The entire household furniture and outfit is no greater than could be carried on a single wheelbarrow.

These people are well satisfied to earn from 20 to 30 Mexican cents a day per man, and for women and children much less. Their tools and methods are the simplest and crudest, but they have mental powers sufficient to enable them to learn to handle machinery and better tools with success.

POSSIBILITIES OF PRODUCTION.

Just what the possibilities are in lowering the cost of production by improved seed and better implements I am not prepared to say; but it will at least increase the production and give the people a much improved standard of living at the present price of grain.

Thousands upon thousands of ponies, mules, and carts have been heretofore engaged in hauling the produce hundreds of miles to market, and now that the railroad can do that work these carts can be engaged in carrying the crops to the railway and extending the fields of production into districts heretofore used for grazing only.

During the Spring, Summer and Autumn these animals are used in planting, cultivating, and harvesting the crops; but in Winter they would be idle were they not employed in freighting on the roads. During the Winter months the roads are frozen hard and smooth and carting is good. Carts can be hired to haul produce at the rate of $1.50 Mexican (about 60 cents United States) per ton for 16 miles. This very cheap cart transportation is an important factor in extending the area of wheat production to a great distance from the railway line.

This, with the possibilities of cheap railway transportation, cheap labor, and a productive country, seems to combine all the essential elements for strong and effective competition for American flour in the Chinese markets.

Mr. Atkinson's Dream.

Edward Atkinson, United States statistician, publishes an article in which he hints at the withdrawal of the bonding privilege to Canada to regain the United States wheat supremacy. He admits that Canada has wheat growing territory sufficient if under cultivation to supply the United Kingdom with sufficient for its consumption, but says that the United States has an immense tract of wheat land not under cultivation which could be utilized by immigrants from Southern Europe. This territory is in Texas, Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Arkansas and Louisiana.

er who is not pushed for money feels that he might as well hold his wheat on the chance of higher prices. That is the immediate effect of the boom upon the Ontario grain market, where deliveries from farmers have been light for some time. Of course, the roughness of the weather and consequent impeding of the roads with drifts and deep snow, has been a contributory factor.

J. J. Hill Indulges in Prophesy.

JAMES J HILL in an address before several hundred representative farmers of the Northwest attending the Agricultural Society's convention at Minneapolis recently, gave a graphic description of the conditions which will confront the people of the Northwest in a few years if Mr. Chamberlain's protective policy is adopted by England and the fight against the railroad interests of the state are carried on. Mr. Hill believes that the ultimate result of England's policy will force the Northwest to find new markets for its greatest product, that is, wheat. This will mean that the wheat products must be shipped to the Orient, which is already a heavy consumer. If the railroads are not allowed to make low rates, because they have it in their power to do so, Mr. Hill argues that in three years these policies combined will cost the Northwest millions of dollars. He further believes that within ten years Manitoba can be supplying Great Britain with all the wheat she can use, which will in itself necessitate the location of new markets. Mr. Hill told of the investigation of possibilities in the Orient made by the agent of his road, how this business was worked up and how now the largest single orders ever received by Minneapolis millers from any one place come from the Orient. Here are some crisp exerpts from President Hill's address:

There was a time when our popular campaign song was "Uncle Sam is rich enough to give us a farm." To-day he has not any farms to give us that we can cultivate. All of the agricultural land that can be cultivated without irrigation is gone, and the people are selling their homes in the United States and moving into northwestern Canada, west of Winnipeg, where they can buy land at from $6 to $10 an acre. More people have gone there than many of our men would like to acknowledge. Mr. Chamberlain took a leaf out of our political economy and started out on a political campaign in Great Britain in favor of a preferential tariff, in favor of a tariff under which Great Britain would admit the agricultural products of her colonies free, and the colonies in return would give her free access to their markets and tax everybody else; Great Britain, on the other hand, agreeing to put a tariff or a tax on the imports of every other nation. The agricultural industries of this country are enormous. Last year the figures, as I remember them, furnished by the agricultural department of the general government gave three thousand million dollars as the value of the products of the farms of this country. Great Britain and her colonies buy from us above 70 per cent. of all our exports. Suppose they put a tariff of 12 cents a bushel on our wheat. Remember that the surplus wheat we export fixes the price of the entire crop, that which we sell among ourselves and that which we sell to go abroad. The surplus grain always fixes the market price. If your wheat is taxed 10 cents a bushel on 180,000,000 bushels in your three northwestern states,it would amount to $18,000,000. That you have got to pay. These conditions are not far from you. Every day you see in the newspapers that Mr. Chamberlain is winning his way. He has made more progress in the first year than he expected to in the first three years when he took it up a year ago, and it is only a question of time when you have got to pay this tax if you send your wheat to Great Britain.

You may say "Oh, well, they have got to buy their bread from us, or their people will starve." I will call your attention to the fact that 20 years ago the Province of Manitoba did not export a bushel of wheat. Of the last crop it exported 35,000,000 bushels. At the rate your American farmers are going into that country, in ten years they will raise all the wheat that Great Britain needs. That you will pay the tax or you will hold your wheat, or you will find a new market. You may then apppreciate the value of the Oriental market. Possibly its inception was in the mind of "an Oriental dreamer," but it makes no difference about the dream as long as the dream comes true. When that time comes I want you to bear in mind that an old man called your attention to it before.

Southern States Grain.

REVIEWING the increase in grain production in the South in 1903, the Manufacturers' Record says: "The world's attention has been so largely centered upon cotton by reason of the high prices now prevailing, that the advance in grain production in the South has attracted less notice than it would otherwise have received. The yield of corn in the fourteen Southern States last year was 640,000,000 bushels, against 502,000,000 bushels in 1902, a gain of 138,000,000 bushels; in wheat there was an increase from 48,000,000 bushels in 1902 to 68,000,000 bushels in 1903, and in oats a gain from 56,000,000 bushels to 64,000,000 bushels. The total increase in the grain crop of the South was 166,000,000 bushels, the yield for 1903 having been 773,000,000 bushels, against 607,000,000 bushels in 1902. The total value of the corn, wheat, oats, Irish potatoes, rye, and hay crops (the only ones on which the Agricultural Department has yet made its full reports) for 1903 was $506,887,000, against $402,700,000 in 1902, an increase in these crops of $104,000,000.

Firm Reorganized.

Mr. Arthur Atkinson, the well-known grain man of Winnipeg, has reorganized under the name of A. Atkinson & Co. The firm is composed of Arthur Atkinson, who will be the manager; his brother, of Deloraine, Mr. W. B. Atkinson, a gentleman of abundant means, and Mr. Thos. Coulter, who is the assistant manager. The firm, in addition to carrying on a general business, controls patents of the Atkinson portable steel grain tanks, and the Atkinson portable grain elevators.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Lobsters by the Hundred Million.

NEWFOUNDLAND is the greatest breeding place for lobsters in the whole world, says a St. Johns, Nfld., letter, and of the $10,000,000 spent each year for the crustacean. Newfoundland receives nearly $1,000,000. If paid, however, according to the prices given for fresh lobsters, she would receive half the total, but her isolation forbids the profitable export of live lobsters and her whole product is tinned, being shipped in that form and remaining fit for food indefinitely. Fresh lobsters at five cents apiece are common in Newfoundland during the Summer, when the catch is so enormous that the fisherfolk have to sell the specimens at a slaughter price for local consumption. In addition, some three million pounds of lobsters are exported every year.

Allowing that every lobster yields four ounces of "meat," this represents a kill of twelve million of them annually, but fully fifty per cent. must be added to this for meatless, diseased and immature ones which the traps contain, and which are thrown outside the canneries to perish.

If Newfoundland had the facilities for exporting the crustaceans alive or frozen, she would cheapen the price one-half, and instead of paying at the rate of 20 cents a pound for them, as now, epicures would obtain them for about 10 cents and they would become as familiar in the third-class restaurants as the delectable herring in the poor man's home.

The explanation of Newfoundland's phenomenal catch of lobsters is that profiting by the depletion of the crustaceans in the United States and Canada, she took steps some years ago to prevent similar conditions, both by a close time and by the artificial propagation of the species.

The colony now leads the world in this process. From 300,000,000 to 400,000,000 of them are annually hatched and planted in the coastal waters, and the effect this has in maintaining the quantity and quality of the catch is a tribute to the success of the scheme, which ought not to be overlooked by those who cavil at fish culture. Another proof of the substantial benefit resulting is that whereas the tinned lobsters brought nearly $8 a case of 48 one-pound cans, five years ago, they now fetch $14, so great is the demand and inadequate the supply.

There are few more interesting studies in biology than that of the artificial propagation of lobsters. It takes five years to raise one pound of the "meat," because not more than two or three lobsters come to maturity out of ten thousand eggs produced. The adult female lobster breeds every two years, and it takes six for the progeny to attain maturity. The embryo are contained in fibrils beneath the tail, and are carried from nine to eleven months, according to the temperature of the water. The colder it is the greater the retardation of their development.

The females in this state are termed "berried," as the eggs, which are glued to the outside of the body, are like berries in appearance. For purposes of propagation there is a man attached to every cannery especially trained by the Fishery Department, whose business it is to strip the berried lobsters of these life-germs, which would otherwise be thrown into the boilers with the mothers and destroyed by the heat. Indeed, they are now transferred to floating incubators, provided by the Colonial Hatchery at Dildo, and are hatched therein, having precisely the same chance of survival as if hatched in the usual way, and helping to people the waters with millions of young fry, so that the destruction of the species caused by man and the many enemies the crustacean has may be compensated for.

These expedients of floating incubators are necessary on a coast line of four hundred miles, such as Newfoundland possesses, where it would be impossible to collect all the ova and hatch it at a central station, so 30 sub-stations are maintained. But there is a chief hatchery also, where the most approved scientific methods are applied, with amazing results, although the lobster is not primarily adapted to the ordinary methods of artificial reproduction, the chief obstacle being the difficulty of finding suitable food for the young, this being as yet an unsolved problem.

Pisiculturists talk lightly of millions of eggs, and no wonder! A ten-inch lobster will yield 12,000 and an 18-inch about 90,000. The eggs, as stripped from the mother fish, are deposited in glass jars, so arranged that a constant current of pure sea water is forced through and they sink to the bottom, where the incoming stream keeps them constantly agitated, thus assisting the incubation.

In due time the larvae hatch out and the shell of the egg, so to speak, sinks again, but the young fry, relieved of this armor, floats to the top and is carried out through the discharge pipes into other jars, the outlets from which are covered with screens so that the baby lobsters may be retained and fed until they are big enough to be removed to different parts of the coast and released to make out their future existence in the element for which nature intended them.

They are hatched naturally or artificially, during May, June and July, and as they try to swim about they are devoured by all sorts of fishes in great numbers. This "infant mortality" is tremendous, for they are virtually defenceless, and it is calculated that no more than one per cent. of those naturally hatched attain maturity.

The young lobsters at first are only one-third of an inch long and can hardly be recognized, though swimming at the surface then, lacking the specific gravity to keep below. But as they grow to two or three inches they become more like lobsters, and as their shell forms and hardens they acquire the weight to sink to the bottom to their natural habitat among the rocks.

In the United States, if present prognostications continue, there will be no native lobsters to preserve by any means. In Massachusetts the catch per "trap" has declined from 84 in 1892 to 33 in 1902. The lobster fishery on the New England seacoast has declined to such an extent that seven-eights of the men engaged in it have turned to new lines of work. The problem of remedying this disastrous condition of affairs is exciting the earnest concern of fishery boards of the New England States.

Fraser River Hatchery.

The proposition of the United States for a joint fish hatchery on the Fraser River is not meeting with much cordiality at Ottawa. A prominent official declares that Canada is able to do all that is necessary for the propagation

That THE CANADIAN GROCER is a most valuable advertising medium for those who seek the trade of the grocers and general storekeepers of Canada is as plain as day—yet some folks can't see it.

Like the man who was looking all over the house for his glasses when they were on his forehead, there be some who are looking for more business among grocers yet can't see that the easiest and cheapest way to get it is through advertising in THE GROCER.

And as long as they won't listen to nor see the reasonableness of our arguments in favor of their advertising in THE GROCER, just so long are they going to be denied the business that GROCER subscribers are continually sending to GROCER advertisers.

of fish and care of her fisheries without taking the United States into partnership. If the American canners have suffered during the past season, he says, it is due to the destructive methods adopted by the companies owning canning establishments on Puget Sound, particularly with regard to the substitution of trap nets for the customary boat fishing. The fish, as it were, last season almost intuitively avoided the traps and kept more in Canadian waters, so that while it is true the British Columbia canning returns were not so favorable last year as in previous years, they were relatively much better than the results obtained by the United States canneries.

Depleting Northwest Waters.

Complaints have reached Ottawa that fishing companies, many of them controlled by American capital, are cleaning out the rivers and lakes of the Northwest Territories so that the waters adjacent to them, which with care would have furnished them for years with all the fish they desired, have already been depleted long before settlement reached their limits. The Fisheries authorities accordingly have decided to investigate these reports and ascertain the facts If it is proven that the fishing companies have neglected ordinary precautions to preserve the fish supply the Government will no doubt take steps to see that the departmental regulations are not set at defiance in the future. Some of the waters in the settled parts of the Territories have already been depleted of fish life to such an extent that the companies are operating in remote parts far beyond the outposts of civilization. It is represented to the authorities at Ottawa that whatever is found in the waterways of the Territories should be left for settlers.

To Locate at Canso.

Mr. Cowie, the Scotch fishery expert, who was recently brought out to instruct our fishermen in the most approved methods of putting up fish, has decided to locate his experimental station at Canso for herring curing, and has gone to Scotland for steamer, nets and men to carry on the work. He expects to bring enough fishermen, gutters and packers to instruct local fishermen how to catch and cure herring in the approved Scotch fashion. If the experiment proves a success stations will be established at other points on the coast. The Western States and Canadian Northwest now import some 200,000 barrels of herring from Europe, and it is this trade that it is expected to supply from Nova Scotia.

To Protect Game Fish.

The Governments of Ontario and the Dominion have come to an understanding in regard to the regulations to be enforced for the protection of fish in Ontario. After the judgment of the Privy Council in 1898 the province adopted certain regulations which, however, were pronounced ultra vires. Since that time the authority of the province on fishery matters has not been well defined and resulted either in the overlapping of legal enactments or inaction on the part of both Governments with the result that the fisheries, especially as concerns black bass, maskinonge, trout and other varieties valued for food and for purposes of sport, have suffered severely.

Fish Notes.

The Sea Coast Canning Co., an American concern, are thinking of establishing a sardine industry at Le Lang, Charlotte Co., N.B.

The fisheries of Great Slave Lake are valuable, the most abundant being whitefish, lake trout and pike. The trout grow to a large size and often reach a weight of 50 pounds.

United States Secretary of State Hay will ask the Canadian Government to join in a conference looking to the establishment of an international fish hatchery on the Fraser River in British Columbia for the propagation of salmon.

THE POTATO SHORTAGE.

THE uncertainty of the potato market in Ontario at the present time may be partially accounted for by the prolonged season of cold weather, which has seriously interfered with shipments of potatoes from the Maritime Provinces—usually a regular feature of the Ontario market. Not only is the supply from this source uncqual to the demand owing to the reason just mentioned, but the difficulties of transportation over great distances in extreme weather are such that carlots of potatoes shipped in prime condition are more than likely to arrive at their destination in damaged condition. The result which concerns Ontario buyers is that New Brunswick shippers are chary of shipping stock even in small quantities at such a season.

It may interest the trade and the general public to know that the supply of New Brunswick potatoes, which in ordinary seasons is practically unlimited, is finding a new market in Cuba and the West Indies. One dealer down east recently shipped 3,000 barrels to the West Indies, and even larger shipments are becoming more and more frequent from Halifax direct. Shippers who are interested say the prospects for developing a large West Indian trade are very bright, and that there is practically an unlimited market with little or no opposition.

It is a curious fact that the demand in most of the West Indies is for white stock exclusively, while Cuba wants red stock. Nothing but local prejudice accounts also for a similar peculiarity of the Ontario market, which wants only white stock, and of the Quebec market, where red stock has the preference.

Now that New Brunswickers have begun to cater for a new market they are not using from their warehouse stock to supply local and Ontario demands. As a matter of fact warehouse after warehouse, having 30,000 bags capacity and upwards, are filled to overflowing with potatoes awaiting the opening of the season's trade with the West Indies. Local and Ontario men at best get what comes to these shippers in job lots, and when the weather forbids, Ontario receives no shipments at all, or, at best, intermittent ones, and at the same time runs the risk of getting damaged stock.

QUESTION IS UNANSWERED.

A certain Montreal grocer has for some days been hunting for the owner of a voice that claimed his attention at the telephone one busy morning. When he finds the man the meeting will furnish material for an interesting item, and the following dialogue explains why :

The Voice—Hello, there, is that you, Charles ?

Grocer—Yes.

The Voice—Well, how are you ?

Grocer—First rate.

The Voice—You're looking well.

Grocer—I'm feeling better than I look.

The Voice—That's good ; glad to hear it. Have you got any salt fish ?

Grocer—Yes.

The Voice—Is it fresh ?

Grocer—Yes, came in this morning.

The Voice—Cod or pollock ?

Grocer—Got both. Which do you want ?

The Voice—Well, I don't know ; is the pollock good and dry ?

Grocer—Yes.

The Voice—Well, why don't you give it a drink, then ?

At this point the grocer brought the colloquy to a sudden termination with a remark that would be out of place in polite society and therefore unfit for publication.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

The Smokers' Corner.

A CONSIDERABLE number of the grocery trade found it was a profitable thing to give some extra attention to their tobacco department for the holiday season. Jobbing houses report as a consequence a very active demand for pipes, cigars, and other smokers' supplies.

Now that the holiday season is over there is a tendency to pay less attention to this department. This is a mistake. The customer who bought a few good cigars or found an attractive line of pipes to choose from around the fag end of December is predisposed to drop in again from time to time to replenish his cigar case. You have made a certain number of friends among the almost universal class of smokers. That is part of your capital. You cannot afford to allow this good will to be dissipated by indifference.

Keep your cigar and tobacco department up to the mark.

The size of your stock will depend altogether upon your situation and the trade you are in a position to secure. But, however small, if kept neatly in an attractive little show case, where the goods may be well displayed without becoming dried up, you will continue to attract lovers of the fragrant weed, and you will find a very acceptable revenue from a department which involves the investment of but a small amount of capital, which takes up little room, and which requires practically no extra help.

Do not allow your stock to become depleted or your department to become neglected in appearance. A little attention will prove gratifyingly profitable.

The W. H. Steele Co.

THAT The W. H. Steele Co., importers and wholesale tobacconists, Toronto, are feeling the effects of the good times prevailing throughout Canada at the present time, was quite evident to a representative of "The Canadian Grocer," who recently had the pleasure of being shown through the firm's spacious warehouse and offices at 40 Scott street, by the president, Mr. Steele.

The W. H. Steele Co. started in 1895 at 54 Yonge street, Toronto. In two years and a half they had outgrown these modest quarters and were compelled to move to 116 Bay street. Two years ago the increasing demands of business necessitated another move to the present building at 40 Scott street, which is said to be one of the largest wholesale tobacco warehouses in Canada.

They carry in stock a very large and complete assortment of imported and domestic cigars, tobaccos, cigarettes, snuffs, canes and pipes of all descriptions, including meerschaums, English and French briars. Their pipe and cigar trade constitutes the bulk of the firm's business, which extends to every article coming under the head of smokers' accessories. The following statistics are interesting in so far as they give one an idea of the magnitude of the Steele company's business. They handle no less than 285 brands and sizes of cigars, 30 brands of cigarettes, 30 brands of package tobaccos, 54 brands of tobaccos in tins, and 45 brands of plug tobaccos. The recent development of the cigar trade has been enormous, and The W. H. Steele Co. claim that their share has increased easily 300 per cent., in which their own registered brands "Special S. & H." and "W. H. S. & Co." take a large place. The growth of the pipe trade during the last few years has been equally phenomenal.

When questioned as to the present requirements of the trade, Mr. Steele said the greatest call was for bent pipes and high-class briars. Both in cigars and pipes the trade is inclining to a better class of goods. In cigars straight imported goods were giving way to clear Havanas.

Perhaps the most interesting thing in connection with The W. H. Steele Co.'s business is the fact that all city and country travellers and representatives of the firm, of which there is a large and increasing number, are also shareholders.

To Exhibit Canadian Tobacco.

MR. W. K. COWAN, M.P. for South Essex, was in Ottawa, where he succeeded in inducing the Canadian exhibition officials to consent to include a display of Canadian tobacco from Essex and Kent counties in the exhibit at St. Louis. The object of this is to further demonstrate to visitors to the exhibition the resources of Canada, and what we can produce in this country. Essex and Kent counties raise what is called the Burley leaf, a kind similar to that grown in Kentucky. The agents of foreign manufacturers assure Canadians who do not live in the tobacco belt that the Canadian tobacco is a second grade article. The advantage of having a tobacco exhibit of St. Louis is that Canadian visitors will see raw leaf tobacco from this country along side tobacco from Kentucky, and will be convinced that the former is quite equal to 90 per cent. of the fragrant weed which is sold in the United States.

When Tobacco Was Tabooed.

Writing in "Cigarette Papers" in The people, Joseph Hatton says it is strange that America, which owes so much to the cultivation of tobacco, should have been the most severe persecutor of the smoker. The magistrates in the early days of New England regarded the use of tobacco as more sinful and degrading than drinking ardent spirits to excess. It was only permitted to be planted in small quantities "for mere necessity" as a medicine, and to be taken privately by old men. The Yankee's New England ancestors were not permitted to use it, or buy it in a tavern. No man was allowed to take tobacco publicly, nor even in his own house before strangers. Two men might not smoke together. On a Sabbath day it was forbidden to smoke within two miles of a meeting house. In some townships a medical certificate had to be procured before a man might smoke at all.

An Absurd Joke!

"A thing which strikes me as absurd," says a well-known tobacconist, "is the stories told and printed of women who present their husbands with unsmokable cigars and inferior tobacco. In my long experience I have found that the women are better buyers even of tobaccos than the men. When a woman enters my store and announces that she wishes to buy hubby a birthday or Christmas present, I save time by handing out the best I've got. Most of the fair sex know just what brand of goods they want before they call, and no amount of eloquence can sell them anything else."

Medicinal Use of Tobacco.

A good deal of the world's tobacco crop is neither smoked, snuffed nor chewed. At one time tobacco was largely prescribed in medicine, and even to-day considerable quantities are so made use of. As an external remedy for wounds and bruises and sprains, a wet tobacco poultice is commonly used in all countries where tobacco is grown. On sore throats and erysipelas, sciatica and swellings of various kinds, tobacco, externally applied, has a wonderfully good effect. Moist tobacco is one of the best cures imaginable for the bite of a poisonous insect. Being so good as it is, tobacco is sometimes applied by soldiers to raw wounds. It is said that no case of lockjaw or mortification has ever occurred where this precaution has been taken.

London's Women Smokers.

THOUGH in the streets one does not see much evidence of the fact, there is no doubt that the working women of London are beginning to smoke. Whether or not it is the result of example set by the aristocracy, is a question. But it is a fact that the smoking-room is at the present time a feature of all the ladies' clubs, and so far now from its being a secret sanctum into which the merely introduced guest could not be taken, one finds that ladies who have acted as hostesses to little parties of friends, which may include men, take their visitors to the smoking-room after lunch or dinner, and there offer them their own cigarettes. And they are fastidious as to the brands of cigarettes that they buy, too. There are shops not far from Bond street which specially cater to their lady customers, who pay very high prices for their finely flavored, delicate and fragrant Turkish or Egyptian tobaccos.

He Made a Sale.

A CIGAR salesman of Minneapolis was recently on a flying trip to Hudson, just over the Minnesota line in the neighboring state of Wisconsin, says The Cigar and Tobacco Journal, and naturally found it convenient to put up at the town's leading hostelry. Upon paying his bill, he incidentally remarked to the landlord that he sold cigars, and suggested that he had a brand which he would like to place on sale in the hotel cigar stand. The landlord thereupon took the salesman to a small vault, where he showed him a stock of several hundred cigars of various brands. "There," he said, "is my stock. Each brand represents a blamed good fellow who stops with me. Not all of the patrons of the house who sell cigars get on the list by a jug full. But you appear to be the right sort, and you may send me a thousand. You couldn't sell me 50 more than a thousand if you talked all day. And you couldn't give me 50 if I didn't like you. If the cigars are all right, I'll buy more. If they aren't all right, you'll never sell me another lot."

And in recounting the story, the salesman remarked: "There's a fellow you can tie to."

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
John C. Kirkwood,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Hereinare discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Some Examples of Grocery Advertising.

I REPRODUCE this week three advertisements taken from a single issue of an Ontario weekly newspaper, which illustrate three distinct styles of advertising, and a consideration of them will prove profitable.

The first advertisement, that marked No. 1, opens out with "First-Class at moderate prices is what you want.

FIRST-CLASS GROCERIES

We stock everything in the Grocery line and make a specialty of delivering. We give Discount Coupons with cash purchases, entitling you to our beautiful semi-porcelain Dinnerware.

"City Grocery."

I. BRUBACHER.

Example 1.

Groceries," boldly displayed and well set. It is by no means an original beginning, yet, to emphasize the fact that one sells first-class groceries is good advertising. Mr. Brubacher does not follow up this claim to sell first-class groceries by any illustrations, and without specific statements no general statement can count for much. "We stock everything in the grocery line" is not good. It is an idle assertion,—not an untrue one necessarily, but idle because it interests no one. In advertising, which is business talk, learn to cut out every useless word. It weakens an advertisement to cumber it with vague generalities. People want facts and figures which they can weigh and measure. "We make a specialty of delivering" may be a point worth insisting upon. Not knowing local conditions and customs in this regard, I am unable to say anything about this announcement.

In this advertisement mention is made of giving "Discount Coupons" with cash purchases. I sincerely hope that "discount coupons" is not a fancy name for trading stamps. Trading stamps are good for only one man, namely, the man who sells them to the grocer. They are very bad for the grocer, because very costly. They bring him nothing worth having, and make for him both trouble and anxiety. I fear they make him a very profane man before he has had many months experience with them. As for the public, they are disappointing. The glitter of cheap premiums and the realization that the rewards given for gathering these stamps are paid for full price and more, soon work their own cure. In Mr. Brubacher's case the reward is dinnerware, whether single pieces or a complete service is not clear. Just here, I want to say to grocers that they will do well to steer clear of premiums of all sorts as trade inducers. Experience is a good teacher, and experience disapproves almost unanimously of premium schemes of all sorts. I write these words of counsel for the benefit of the new men in the grocery business who may be called upon to face temptation, and who may not know the history of others. Mr. Brubacher's advertisement is to a certain extent characterized by animation, and is, on that account, worthy of praise. It lacks, however, in meatiness, in reality, in convincing quality. Mr. Brubacher can write a very much better advertisement, I am sure, and I hope some day to see his better work.

The "White Grocery," Elmira.
RUPPEL & CO.

Example 2.

Example No. 2 is, I am glad to say, unusual. Occasionally one sees advertising of this sort, but it cannot by any test be called good advertising. It is publicity, but not advertising. True, it tells one that Messrs. Ruppel & Co. are grocers and that their store is known as the "White Grocery." I see the sign and the color of the paint, but I don't know a single thing else. My eyes have been spoken to, but not my intelligence. I am not even invited to deal at the "White Grocery." There is not a solitary reason given me, a non-customer, why I should ever enter the store. Why should Ruppel & Co. pay the publisher of The Elmira Signet $1 for nothing? Of course the newspaper publisher is not to be blamed. He gave a dollar's worth of space, and has a right to the dollar, but Ruppel & Co. haven't used the space to earn the dollar back. As an example of advertising I think it very poor.

Example No. 3, that of A. Ruggle & Sons, is the best advertisement of the three, and is in itself a very good advertisement. It talks nothing but business. There is not a breath wasted. Every word counts. It is an advertisement that informs, that rings honest, that breathes out business, that tempts the purse. The raisins are declared to be good stock, and so are not likely to disappoint the buyer—a point that is worth considering always. This advertisement is in its wording all that can be desired, and is in marked contrast to the other rather dull, silent examples. I hope that everything that Ruggles & Sons put in the paper is of equal quality judged from an advertising point of view.

The retail grocer can advertise to advantage, but he must ask for business in a pleasing way. How can a grocer, or any merchant for that matter, expect to get new customers if he never invites new trade? People go where they are bidden, when they are welcomed. Give the public both an invitation and a reason for having their trade

Cured and Packed
Where Caught!

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

One reason why the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies, Kippered Herrings, etc., retain the rich, delicate flavor of the freshly-caught fish is because they are cured and packed right at the water side where they are caught.

There is no dirt, no slime in the "Thistle" Brand to spoil the natural flavor. There are no "odds and ends" thrown in in a hurry. The "Thistle" Brand contains nothing but carefully-selected fish—only the best will do for the "Thistle" Brand!

The cost per tin, or can, to clean, cure and pack the "Thistle" Brand is without doubt greater than the cost involved in marketing any other Brand in the country, yet the high quality has been steadily maintained from year to year even in the face of strong competition. The "Thistle" Brand competes on quality and not on price. It is the Standard Brand of Canned Fish!

Highest Quality Always.

PROPOSED ONTARIO BUSINESS TAX.

FOR some little time past the business men of Ontario have been manifesting quite keen interest in the new assessment act which was introduced last session of the legislature and left over a term for further consideration.

In view of an early consideration of the bill in the legislature a representative of "The Canadian Grocer" interviewed Mr. J. C. Forman, the assistant assessment commissioner of Toronto, for the purpose of getting an expression of opinion from him in regard to the bill as drafted last session, and particularly as to that part of it relating to the taxation of business houses. In effect, he said :

"Personal property will cease to be assessed when the new assessment comes into force. A loss of over $10,000,000 occasioned by the annulment of the personalty tax and in addition, a large loss on income now assessed for taxation at 4½ mills, are to be made up by what is known as the house tax, the business tax and the income tax, respectively.

"The business tax is a tax of from 7½ to 10 per cent. on the annual value of the premises occupied by a business man for business purposes, the said annual value being ascertained by applying 7 per cent. on the assessed value of the property, i.e., on property assessed at $10,000 the business tax on a 7½ per cent. basis is $52.50. The civic authorities may fix the rate of taxation, but must restrain themselves between 7½ and 10 per cent.

"Merchants are liable to assessment on income derived from that other than their business. There is no exemption on this income, but the rating under the new act is from 5 to 7 mills on the dollar. In addition, every person is liable to assessment on his respective income ; those in receipt of a fixed income are assessable on the excess over $1,000. A professional man, i.e., doctor, lawyer, broker, etc., becomes liable if his income is over $4,000, but it must be remembered that he as well as the merchant is also assessed on the annual value of premises occupied.

"The House Tax. Here there is exemption on the annual value (rental) in towns and cities, graded according to population. In Toronto, the exemption is $245, or 7 per cent. on house and land valued at $3,500. Thus every dwelling of $3,500 and under is not liable for the tax. All property over $3,500 becomes liable after the deduction of $245 exemption, and is assessable at from 5 to 7½ per cent. on annual value.

"This is not a heavy tax, since property valued at $4,000 would contribute only $2.63 at the maximum rate of 7½ per cent. on annual valuation."

Since our interview with Mr. Forman, the Hon. J. M. Gibson Attorney-General for Ontario has brought down the measure in an amended form, meeting to some degree the most serious objections which had been raised by the business community. In introducing his amendments, according to the report in The Toronto Globe, Mr. Gibson opened with an explanation of the changes he proposed as compared with the text of the measure recommended by the Assessment Commission. The following was suggested as the clause defining machinery to be exempted :—"All machinery used for manufacturing purposes only, except that owned, operated or used by a person having right, authority or permission to maintain, or operate within Ontario in, under, above, on or through any highway, road, street, lane, public place or public water, any structures or other things for the purposes of bridges, tramways or street railways, or for the purpose of conducting steam, heat, water, gas, oil, electricity, or any property, substance or product capable of transportation, transmission or conveyance, for the supply of water, light, heat, power, transportation, telegraphic, telephonic or other service."

The chairman remarked that it would be a disappointment if the immense amount of machinery in Toronto would be exempted ; therefore, he suggested the clause which made specific instructions that the exemptions would not apply to the machinery of street railways, telegraph, telephone and like companies.

BUSINESS TAX SCALE.

The changes proposed in the business tax were rather revolutionary. The chairman said there was plenty of elasticity in their opportunities, but he favored a graded tax, by which the following for business tax purposes would be added to the ordinary assessment of the following classes, and in the following proportions :—

Distillers, 125 per cent. This would work out so as to reduce somewhat the taxation hitherto paid by them.

Brewers, 100 per cent.

Wholesale merchant, insurance company, loan company or a trust company, as defined by the act ; express company, land company, bank, banker or any other financial business; 75 per cent.

Departmental store or retail merchant dealing in more than five branches of retail trade or business in the same premises or in separate premises under the same roof or connected premises, where the assessed value of the premises exceeds $20,000 ; manufacturer, lithographer, printer or publisher, or hotel or club, 50 per cent. of the assessed value.

EFFECT ON THE BIG STORES.

Mr. MacKay : Will that assess departmental stores heavily enough ?

The chairman : I think it will ; it will make some of them pay a good deal more than they are paying now, and will make one of them somewhat less—Eaton slightly less and the other two considerably more.

Mr. Lee : That will hit every storekeeper in the country who keeps a small store, carrying all lines.

The chairman : No ; the provision respecting $20,000 exemption was designed especially to meet their case.

The assessment of barrister, solicitor, notary public, conveyancer, physician, surgeon, oculist, aurist, medical electrician, dentist, veterinarian, civil or mining or consulting or mechanical or electrical engineer, surveyor or architect, 50 per cent. of the assessed value.

The assessment of retail merchants, photographers, theatre, concert hall, curling or skating rink, or other places of amusement, boarding stable, livery or letter of vehicles or other property for hire, and restaurant, eating-house, or other place of public entertainment, or any trade or commercial business not before specially mentioned, 25 per cent. of the assessed value.

Every person carrying on business of telegraph or telephone company, or tramway or street railway, transmission of oil or water, or of steam, heat, gas, or electricity for the purpose of light, heat or power, 25 per cent. of the assessed value, other than a highway, road, street, lane or public place or water, occupied by such person exclusive of the value of any machinery, plant or appliances erected upon, in, over, under or affixed to such land.

That, the chairman explained, would make public utility companies pay a business tax. Another provision made $100 the minimum assessment under this business tax.

EXEMPTIONS ON INCOME.

The income tax was adjusted to provide exemptions up to $1,000 of personal earnings and to $400 in the case of income derived from other sources than personal earnings. It was provided that every person not liable to business assessment and every person liable to business assessment in respect of income not derived from the business in respect of which he is assessable shall be liable to income tax.

The chairman here pointed out a difficulty arising in the case of a secretary or manager of an incorporated company owning the most of the stock, who would pay the business tax through the company and an income tax as an individual. The result would be to encourage dissolving the company and forming a partnership.

Mr. Hoyle: There will not be a clause but will impose hardship in some cases.

The chairman suggested a clause covering the objection he noted by providing that persons personally engaged in the management of a company shall not be assessed on income.

Mr. Foy agreed that this was a wise provision, but at Mr. Hoyle's suggestion that the members "be allowed to sleep over that clause," it stood over.

TAX ON CORPORATIONS.

The proposed taxation of telegraph and telephone companies was next explained. In cities, towns and villages they are to be assessed on a percentage of their gross receipts. In every township they shall be assessed at $200 for every mile of one wire, and $7.50 per per mile for each mile of additional wire placed or strung, with exemptions in townships from other municipal taxation, and in cities for all structures, on, over or under or fixed to any highway, road, street, lane, or public place or water.

Provision was also made for a full annual statement by the companies to the Provincial Secretary and to the municipality concerned of the gross receipts and mileage of wire in every township municipality in the province in the year past.

SMALL PLACES TO SUFFER.

Mr. Latchford: I think there should be a distinction between places where there is very little business and those where there is a lot of business. The result of this will be the closing up of the offices in the remote districts.

The chairman said it was true there were many little lines running into farm houses in the country. He believed the proposed provision would wipe out one of the most annoying, nagging and distressing sources of quarrel between the so-called public corporations and the municipalities.

Mr. Latchford: How would it be to make an exception in the case of remote places where the receipts are less than $50 or $100.

The chairman: I would sooner give the municipalities authority to reduce the assessment or exempt them.

Mr. Hoyle: The principle of the bill is a sound one.

The clause compelling employers to state the wages of all their employes receiving over $1,000 was altered so as to include all employes.

TWO TAXES DROPPED.

The chairman then announced that it was proposed to drop the provisions for a house tax and for a Provincial Board of Assessment. The bill made certain provisions for taxing the property of ordinary steam railways when running along roads or streets in a municipality, the assessment of steam railways in respect of right of way, and so on.

It was the intention of the Government that a very substantial addition to the tax of railways to the province should be passed at the present session. With that provision and the one for the telephone company's tax there did not seem to be any necessity for the Provincial Board. They had considered the matter fully, and there did not seem to be any necessity for trying to get at such an intangible thing as a special franchise.

The chairman then quoted sections from the Assessment Act passed within the last two or three years, which he desired to have incorporated. The principal clause was that providing that the property of companies having structures on the public highways be assessed at their actual cash value. Provisions were also read to make it incumbent on railways to forward each year full returns of their mileage, lands, vacant lands, etc.

HARD ON VEGETARIANS.

New York vegetarians are having rather an expensive season in supplying themselves with food, says a despatch from Gotham. All kinds of green vegetables are high in price and scarce in quality, owing to the long continued cold and people in ordinary circumstances have been compelled to fall back on canned goods. Spinach costs about as much as mushrooms do ordinarily. Lettuce is fifteen cents a head while celery, peas, beans and strawberries, all of which generally are plentiful in the markets, are now almost unobtainable.

In a recent interview, John D. Rockefeller spoke as follows :—" Do you know that I recently read an article by a well-known scientific man to the effect that cheese is an excellent article of diet? I wish that I had read that article a long time ago. I had been afraid that cheese had a tendency to produce indigestion, and for that reason never touched it. Now, I find that its effects are directly contrary, and I eat a great deal of it and find that it agrees with me. Fresh and Cured Fish

The Nova Scotia Fisheries.

MERCHANTS engaged in handling the various products of our Nova Scotia fisheries, according to the recent annual report read before the Halifax Board of Trade, had a year which may be described as one partly satisfactory and partly disappointing. The somewhat large supplies of dry fish on hand at the beginning of the year were marketed steadily throughout the first six months, and gave fair returns on their moderate first cost. On the return of the banking fleet from their spring voyages, it soon became evident that the quantity of fish secured by them was below the average, and prices at once advanced.

It was not until later that the very heavy shortage in the landings of our fishing vessels became so marked. Reports from the fleet through the summer were poor, and when arrivals from the summer voyage took place it was found that they had only secured trifling fares and that the total shortage was fully 100,000 quintals.

Besides finding fish very scarce on the usual fishing grounds, the catching of any was much hampered by lack of bait, and this board cannot too strongly urge the Dominion Government to continue their policy of assisting in the establishment of freezing plants for the storage of bait.

With such a light supply of bank codfish, the volume of trade during the last few months of the year has been seriously curtailed. Arrivals from Newfoundland and Gaspe were about an average quantity, but the stock of fish available in Nova Scotia, at the close of 1903, is the smallest for many years.

Owing to this partial failure prices have been on a very high basis, and much business lost to Halifax, owing to Newfoundland being able to supply the goods more cheaply.

The other kinds of fish on which our export trade depends have also been in light supply. Mackerel were taken in fair numbers in some localities, but on the whole the quantity secured was small. Herring were even more scarce than other years, but few having visited our shores, where formerly large numbers were taken during the autumn months.

Crabs are Fastidious.

THE crab is the Beau Brummel of crustaceans, and no living creature gives so much attention to its wearing apparel, writes a Maryland correspondent to the Washington Star. Compared to him in this regard the extremest dude leads a careless and easy life. If he were a member of the human family his tailor's bills would consume his entire earnings. From the time he leaves his shell he passes through more frequent transformations than probably any other member of the animal kingdom. On emerging from the egg he looks somewhat like an impossible combination of those omnipresent products of New Jersey—the flea and the mosquito.

To speak more definitely, he has a flat, irregular shaped body, with a long proboscis, a long tail, long swimming appendages, with spine-covered, toe-like branches at the ends, with small eyes fixed flat on top of the head. He is not handsome, but decidedly dressy. At an early age he begins to shed his skin, and having accomplished this feat several times he begins to grow at a rapid rate. Being ready to begin business as a crab he abandons swimming as a profession and takes to the bottom, goes foraging along the shores, or attaches himself to the floating seaweed. The crab literally grows by shedding. As fast as his garments grow too small for him he casts them off and comes out in a new suit. After he reaches the edible size he sheds once a month, and men who make a business of raising crabs say there is no regular time for shedding. When his full growth is attained he ceases to shed, and indications are not wanting that he reaches a ripe old age, as specimens have been taken with full-grown barnacles and oysters attached to their shells. After a crab sheds he is the soft-shell crab, so suitable for frying and so dear to the heart and palate of the epicure. A crab approaching the shedding process is known as a "peeler," "shedder" and "buster," and unless the crustacean is taken in hand immediately after shedding it quickly becomes a hardshell and as such does not possess the market value of a soft-shell.

There is nothing so difficult to properly prepare for shipping as a box or crate of crabs of the soft-shell variety. They must be handled with the greatest care, for if one should die while being shipped the chances would be that the entire crate would be spoiled. Crabs are classed as "culls," "medium" and "prime," and the crates in which they are packed for shipment are provided with trays in which the crustaceans are placed between layers of shaved ice and soft seaweed. The weight of a piece of ice as large as a pea on the head of a soft crab will cause its death.

Owing to the immense amount of phosphorus in crab meat it has been found difficult to can it so that it will keep well, and on this account the larger part of the crab meat is shipped in buckets and tubs to the larger cities.

Hardshell crabs are not troublesome or expensive to ship, it being found that they can be dumped into sacks or boxes like potatoes or corn. It takes a great deal of knocking around to kill a hardshell. The average gross price per hundred for hardshells is 60 cents.

Reflections of a Fisherman.

To bait, or not to bait—that is the question.
Whether 'tis nobler in the man to leave
The streams and shallows to untroubled roach,
Or to take arms against a sea of fishes,
And, with a worm, to hook them? To try for bleak:
No more; and, for those bleak, to say we end
The heartache and the thousand unnatural shocks
That fish is heir to—'twere a consolation,
Doubtless to the fish.
To try for bleak;
For bleak! Perchance for bream—(ay, there's the rod!)
For in the flowing streams what fish may come,
When we have thrown about our endless coil
Of well-waxed line? There's the sport
That makes the rapture of the fisher's life.
For who could see the gay and glist'ning fish—
The tempting perch, the fat and flabby roach,
The shoals of happy dace, the stately jack,
The insolent young salmon, and the eels
Float and flourish in the royal Thames,
When he himself might his own breakfast get
With a mere fish-hook?
Who would fardels bear,
To sit and wait under a dreary sky,
But for the hope of something biting soon,
The undiscovered worm, from whose hook
No nibbler returns?
Settled, the question,
For we would rather catch those fish ourselves,
Than leave them for others that we know not of!

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Quebec to Develop Butter Industry.

SPEAKING to the Quebec dairymen at Sherbrooke last week the Hon. Sidney A. Fisher quoted from the census to show the enormous progress that had been made in the dairy industry in Quebec and in the Dominion at large.

In 1891, he said, the manufacture of butter and cheese stood eighth among the industries of Canada. In 1901 it stood third, being exceeded only by that of lumber and flour. In 1901 the lumber business of the country amounted to $60,000,000; flour, $31,000,000; and dairy $29,000,000. In Quebec province in 1891 there were 728 factories, in 1901, 1,992 factories. The value of the products in the province of Quebec increased from $3,000,000 to $13,000,000, and in Ontario from $7,569,000 to $15,000,000. The dairy industry doubled in Ontario. It quadrupled in Quebec. Ontario in 1901 produced in cheese $13,110,000 and in butter $1,527,000. Quebec produced $4,916,000 in cheese, and $957,000 in butter. This showed that the people of Quebec found butter making more profitable. The dairymen of Quebec should strive to make their butter better. Canada was first in the English market in cheese. She sent to the mother country 70 per cent. of all the cheese she imported. Ontario had made the cheese industry almost perfect. Why, he enquired, do we send only 7 per cent. of the butter imported by the mother country? It was on the dairymen of Quebec that the responsibility in this connection lay. Quebec was responsible for Canadian butter. They should make the butter trade what Ontario had made the cheese trade.

Our Cheese in South Africa.

MR. G. VALDER, the commercial agent of New South Wales in South Africa, has sent home a detailed report on the import trade in cheese, says the Commercial Intelligence of December 23rd, 1903.

"The Gouda, or Flat Dutch, is," he says, "the kind preferred, the sale of Edam, or round Dutch, being very small in comparison. These cheeses usually weigh from 9 to 12 lbs. each, and this size seems to be preferred, although he saw one good brand the cheeses of which weighed about 18 lbs. each. These are all packed four cheeses in a case and in one layer. Dutch cream cheeses of about 2 lbs. in weight packed in the same way but with a larger number in a case, are also imported; but the sale is not large.

"I have heard that it is the intention of some of our cheese makers to attempt the manufacture of Dutch cheese; and provided it can be turned out equal in quality to the article imported from Holland, there would be a good prospect of a big trade for it here. Canadian cheese is very popular throughout South Africa, being of good even quality and keeping well. Much of the cheese imported from England is Canadian. Each cheese, which usually weighs from 60 to 70 lbs., is packed separately in bentwood cases; and each case is sewn in strong sacking. This method of packing has also proved very satisfactory. Prices of late for this cheese have varied from 10d. to 1s. per lb., i.e., 7d. to 9d. net. It might also be advisable for our cheese makers to consider the question of putting up cheese in tins for export to this market. Of late a considerable trade has been done in tinned Dutch cheese. This class is usually put up in 12 oz. tins.

"Colored cheese is generally perferred. For Cheddar cheese, Mr. Valder recommends sending cheese of from 20 to 30 could hear of regarding Canadian cheese lbs. in weight in preference to the larger sizes. The only complaint that he was that the size was too large for most of the storekeepers."

Manitoba Live Stock and Dairy.

The Manitoba Live Stock and Dairy Association convention opens in Winnipeg on the evening of Monday, February 22nd, and closes the following Saturday with a visit to the different abattoirs and packing houses. From three to nine meetings a day will be held so that the whole business of the convention may be held within the week, instead of spreading it over ten days as last year.

New Zealand Butter.

CANADIAN butter suffers to some extent by comparison with that from New Zealand, but, says Mr. J. A. Ruddick, chief of the dairy division: "The comparison is really not a fair one, because New Zealand butter is all grass butter, and it arrives fresh in Great Britain during our winter season, so that any Canadian butter which comes into direct competition with it must necessarily be winter made or held summer stock. New Zealand butter, however, has a reputation in England for keeping quality, and it will be of interest to Canadians to learn how that reputation has been acquired. In the first place, having no natural ice, the majority of the creameries are equipped with mechanical refrigerating machines. Their creamery refrigerators are kept fairly cold, but they have no refrigerator cars such as we have. The secret of their success is that butter is shipped from the creameries twice a week to cold storage, where it is immediately placed in a chamber at ten degrees and held there until forwarded to England. It must be at least four full days in store before it is shipped to give time for a thorough freezing to the center of the package.

Although the butter is sometimes carried several hundred miles to the London steamer, its temperature must be below freezing point of water; otherwise it will be refused and sent to cold storage to be re-frozen. The temperature in the chambers of the steamer is about 10 degrees. It is placed in the steamer with the frozen mutton, which must be kept at a low temperature. It is easy to understand that butter handled in such a manner, although it is two months old when it reaches the market, will have more life in it than some of our butter, which has been held two or three weeks in a creamery at a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees. If our creamery owners and patrons expect to compete with the Danes, who are so close to the market, and with the New Zealanders, who employ such low temperatures almost from the day their butter is made; it is time they were making a more serious effort to improve matters at their end."

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The situation in the provision trade can best be described as quiet. There is little demand ordinarily at this time of the year and the severe weather and impassible state of the roads have further aggravated matters as a result there has been a general weakening. Long clear is off a half cent, as are also backs. Heavy mess and short cut show a decline of 50 cents and shoulder mess of a dollar. Lard is down again, and one would think about as far as possible. It is so low that no call for compound is met at all. The fresh meat market is active this week. Beef remains the same but a wider range than usual is quoted in lamb. We quote:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 08	$0 08½
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09½	0 10

Butter—A very fair demand for creamery is reported and consumption is keeping a fair ratio to production. The quality of dairy coming forward however, is not the best and only a very ordinary demand is met. As a result there is accumulation on all hands and surprise is expressed in some quarters that the price keeps up to its present level. The outlook is not particularly encouraging considering the absence of export demand, and on the whole an easier feeling must be recorded. We quote:

Montreal.

Provisions—Prices have ruled steady during the week, under an improved demand from both local and country buyers. The trade in dressed hogs was also fairly good, the demand from butchers for small lots creating some activity. Fresh killed, abattoir dressed hogs remained at $7.25 to $7.75 per 100 lbs., and country dressed were quoted at $6.50 to $7 per 100 lbs. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 50	$18 00

Butter—There is no export demand at present. Those who were holding Fall butter in expectation of a better demand after the holidays have become a little uneasy, and are now more anxious to sell than they were ten days ago. The majority of creameries have closed for the Winter, so from this forward lighter recipts are expected of fresh made goods, and there will be a falling back on old stock. Summer goods are off flavor pretty much, and are now selling at 19 to 19 1-2c. Fancy Winter creamery is also lower. We quote:

Fancy Winter creamery	0 19½	0 20
Summer goods	0 19	0 19½
Dairy rolls	0 16	0 17
" tubs	0 14	0 16
Finest Fall made	0 20	0 20½
" fresh prints	0 21	0 22

Cheese—The cheese market is firm in tone, as, though holders are trying to meet prices, the goods are in strong hands which can maintain quotations. Mediums and good useful or late ends are quoted at 9 3-4 to 10c., October make at 10 1-2c., and September make at 10 7-8 to 11c. The market is steady to firm. There has been a heavy decrease in stocks on this side, and larger shipments are now going forward, with some goods changing hands. Holders are looking for a firmer market.

London Provision Markets.

Thomas Nesbitt & Co., writing from London, Eng., under date of January 18th, say:

Weather damp and foggy. Business generally quiet.

Butter—Market dull and prices easier. Colonial supplies are still heavy.

Bacon—Irish 2s. dearer, Danish leanest about 1s. higher. Fat selections rather lower, and difficult to clear.

Hams—In limited request.

Lard—Bladdered quiet. Pails and boxes American in more demand.

Eggs—Market quiet at reduced prices.

Cheese—Trade quieter at late rates.

Canadian Provisions 1903.

The exports of Canadian provisions to Britain for 1903, in all lines except butter, show striking increases over 1902. Bacon especially has done well with an increase of 22,709,344 pounds, and cheese with 15,521,744 pounds, while hams are well in the running with an increase of 3,759,504 pounds.

The decrease in butter is no less than 11,233,712 pounds. New Zealand seems to have captured the trade.

Mrs. Dooley

has to charge a fairly good price for her soap, just because it is a good soap.

But since she hasn't a fortune to spend on advertising, she can afford to to sell her soap at less than the big soap makers.

The grocer will appreciate this fact.

Mrs. Dooley's Laundry Soap

costs him about 10% less than his other five-cent bars. And of course he gets this 10% in his sales. 10% extra profit is much to be desired.

CONVENTION OF SALESMEN.

THE 6th annual convention of the salesmen of S. F. Bowser & Co., Inc., Fort Wayne, Ind., manufacturers of the Bowser self-measuring oil tank, was held last week at the firm's office. Over seventy salesmen from all parts of the United States and Canada were present and participated in the discussions and all the salesmen were fully informed regarding the latest improved outfits. The convention lasted for three days and terminated with a banquet Friday evening at the New Aveline hotel. The menu was all that could be desired, the toast list long and the responses most witty.

Officers and Managers of S. F. Bowser & Co.

The menu card was especially gotten up as a souvenir, the first page showing portraits of the officers and managers. The entire convention was a most interesting and enjoyable affair and the salesmen go to their respective territories more enthusiastic than ever regarding the merits of their goods.

Messrs. Bowser & Co. state their present line is far in advance of anything they have ever offered and absolutely the best that years of practical experience, the best of material and workmanship can produce. They show one style of their outfits in their display ad in another column of this issue.

NO METHOD IN DISTRIBUTING HONEY.

THE annual convention of beekeepers of Brant and adjacent counties opened in Brantford Tuesday, and a number of important questions were considered. President Edmanson dealt with the matter of over-production of extracted honey, and attributed the fault, not to a surplus of honey on the market, but to a lack of care in distribution, claiming that the larger cities were flooded while smaller towns were entirely overlooked.

A resolution was passed, calling on the Government to appoint lecturers specially qualified to speak on the bee industry at meetings in connection with Farmers' Institutes.

It was the opinion of the convention that there is a growing market for honey in Manitoba and the North-West, and that producers should note conditions in that section. There is a scarcity of comb honey at present, but producers are warned not to meet the other extreme by producing too much next season. The convention unanimously opposed the introduction of "clunk" honey into the Canadian market, as a mixture of broken combs and extracted honey tends to adulteration.

Particular attention was paid to a development of local markets, and the delegates at length declared in favor of a house-to-house canvass on the part of producers. In this way the honey will be sold direct by the producer to the consumer at a reasonable profit.

VIRGINIA PEANUTS EXCITED.

"The market in Virginia is wild and excited over farmers' peanuts," said a prominent handler of peanuts the other day. "There has been a further advance in the price of hand-picked, making them cost 5½c. in New York. Virginia jumbos in the shell are scarce and hard to get. They are selling in New York at 7½c. to 8c. Virginia shelled also are scarce and higher, and all indications point to a further advance in the near future."

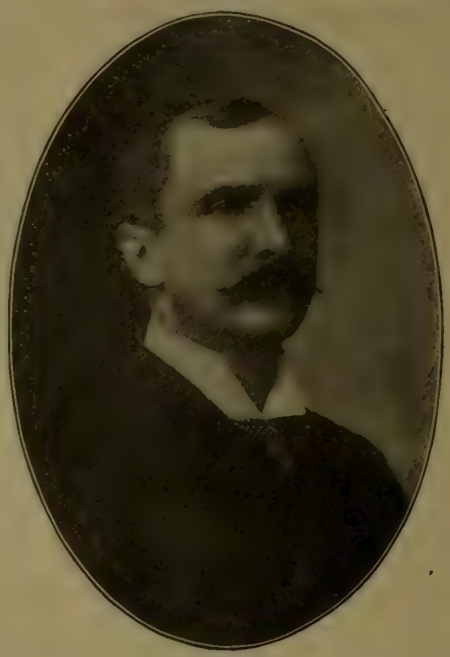
WHOLESALE GROCER HONORED.

THE elections of the Montreal Board of Trade held January 27th resulted in placing on the Council of the Board, among others, Mr. Albert Hebert, of the firm of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., wholesale grocers.

As intimated a few weeks ago by "The Canadian Grocer" when nominations were placed for the Board, Mr. Hebert was listed as a likely winner on the ticket and it is with pleasure that we record his election. Mr. Hebert is recognized as a business man of large and progressive ideas, energetic to a degree and ever alive to all mattrs pertaining to the growth, developmnt and advancement of the city's commercial interests, and the Council of the Board of Trade is undoubtedly strengthened by his election. Mr. Hebert was the nominee of the Grocers' Section and the fact that he stood high up in the list of members selected, shows his candidature to have been generally endorsed by the members of the Board of Trade.

THE COFFEE INDUSTRY.

Coffee plantations are said to number about 50,000, distributed in America, Asia and Africa, says the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal. They produce two billion pounds of coffee each year.



Mr. Albert Hebert.
Of the firm of Hudon, Hebert & Cie, recently elected to the council of the Montreal Board of Trade

This represents a trade of about $255,000,000 annually. There are over three and a half million acres of land now producing coffee, and the investment is said to equal nearly $1,500,000,000.

The industry employs two millions of people, and the average selling price is nearly 9 cents. Low prices have prevailed for some years past.

BISCUIT COMPANY ASSIGNS.

The assignment of the Pett & Sons' Company, Limited, of Walkerton, Ont., was made last week. The business was established by H. F. G. Pett & Sons about four years ago for the manufacture of biscuits and confectionery. In July last the town granted the firm a bonus of $5,000, at which time the factory was enlarged.

A year ago the concern was incorporated as a joint stock company under the name of Pett & Sons' Company, Limited. The assignment has been made to Sarah G. Pett. No statement has been made, but the liabilities will be heavy.

MONTREAL'S NEW MAYOR.

THE municipal elections of Montreal held on Monday, February 1st, had an especial interest for the grocery trade of the city, inasmuch as one of the candidates for the mayoralty was Ald. Laporte, senior member of the wholesale grocery firm of Laporte, Martin & Cie. That Mr. Laporte would be elected was the general opinion at the inception of the campaign, as his record of eight years as an alderman and his position as chairman of the Finance Committee and the very creditable, honest and satisfactory work performed by him during his aldermanship, in the interests of the entire city, had earned for him the endorsation and respect of the public. That his majority of 12,568 was the largest ever polled by any candidate for the mayoralty proves conclusively that a conscientious, capable man giving his services to a municipality is appreciated by his fellow citizens. Strong efforts were made by his opponents to discredit him in the eys of the workingmen, but the fact that Mr. Laporte himself was a workingman who had worked his way up by industry from a humble position in a nail factory to the head of one of Canada's leading wholesale grocery houses, was not forgotten by the people and even in the wards where the workingman's vote was the heaviest he polled a majority.

There was seemingly a unanimous desire on the part of all classes, French and English, irrespective of politics or religion to see that Mr. Laporte received the high honor for which he had offered himself, and the feeling in all circles now that the elections are over, is that the chief executive of Canada's greatest commercial city is a thoroughly reliable man, a business man with no contracted ideas and one free from corporate influences. To the retail grocers of Montreal the election of Mr. Laporte was a matter of especial interest and the 1,460 retail grocers of the city no doubt saw that their ballots went with their influence, in the right direction. "The Canadian Grocer" felicitates the citizens of Montreal on their excellent choice and feels satisfied that the chair for the next two years will be filled with honor and credit.

Mayor Laporte, of Montreal, elected for a two years' term on Monday last, by the majority of 12,568.

SAN TOY STARCH.

A new laundry starch has been placed upon the market by the Eagle Mfg. Co., Montreal. This starch is to retail at 5c. and 10c. per package. The quality is said to be No. 1, and the prices are such as to give the trade a very good margin of profit. The starch is put up in very handsome packages, the colors being deep red with black background, and the face of the package represents a sacred Chinese tower, with two Chinamen in the foreground.

Particulars as to prices, etc., will be cheerfully given by the Eagle Mfg. Co., Montreal.

ENQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE

The following were among the inquiries relating to Canadian trade received recently at the Canadian Government office in London, Eng.:

11. A firm of implement makers is seeking supplies of spade, shovel and fork handles from Canada.

12. A gentleman with a thorough knowledge of the hardware, paint and glass trades, is prepared to undertake the representation in England of a Canadian house of good standing.

13. Inquiry is made by a Dublin firm for names of Canadian exporters of oaken and soft wood shives.

14. A firm manufacturing metal shelf brackets, door handles, hinges, hat and coat hooks, etc., are seeking a market for these goods in Canada.

15. Inquiry is made for the address of a Canadian manufacturer of a certain cement or glue largely used by musical instrument makers.

16. A Glasgow firm of grain and flour merchants is desirous of taking up the representation of a Canadian house.

CLERKS IN MUNICIPAL POLITICS.

Eight hundred Montreal dry goods and grocery clerks met in St. Joseph's Hall at St. Catherine and Elizabeth streets last week and passed a resolution approving the candidature of Mr. Trefle Bastian in St. James ward. The reason for the action was that Ald. Giroux opposed the by-law for early closing.

Blue Ribbon Ceylon Tea

WINNIPEG, January 19, 1904.

THE CANADIAN GROCER, Toronto.

Sir,—We note that the last issue of "The Canadian Grocer" contains an advertisement of Salada Tea Co., of Toronto, in which they offer to donate five hundred dollars to any charitable institution if the increase in the sale of Salada tea during the past year does not equal the entire tea sales of any other firm in Canada.

While deprecating this method of drawing attention to our business, we cannot allow such a statement to go unchallenged. If The Salada Tea Co. really think that there is a greater demand in Canada for their packets than there is for Blue Ribbon Tea, we would be glad to have the sales of Salada and Blue Ribbon for 1903 investigated by a chartered accountant. If his decision is in favor of Salada we will pay all expenses and donate five hundred dollars to any charity The Salada Tea Co. may name. Should the investigation prove that there is a greater sale in Canada (we don't do business in the United States so must exclude that territory) of Blue Ribbon than there is of Salada, The Salada Tea Co. shall pay the expenses of the investigation and donate five hundred dollars to the Winnipeg General Hospital.

We enclose our cheque for five hundred dollars, drawn in favor of Wm. Ince, of the firm of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, and will be quite satisfied, if agreeable to The Salada Tea Co., to have Mr. Ince arrange details of the investigation. We are also willing that "The Canadian Grocer" should publish the figures when ascertained.

A POINT IN PARTNERSHIP LAW.

IN disposing of a motion for an interim injunction in the case of Smith v. Greer this week Mr. Justice Street in the Single Court, Osgoode Hall, Toronto, touched upon a point in partnership law which will interest business men generally. It was held that "Upon the dissolution of a partnership in the absence of an agreement between the partners to the contrary, the firm name, being a part of the good-will and not having been dealt with upon the dissolution remains the property of all the partners like any other undisposed of partnership property. Each member of the late partnership is entitled to carry on business in the firm name subject to the limitation that no man has a right to hold out his late partner as still being his partner in business contrary to the fact."

That is to say, if the firm of Smith & Jones dissolve partnership, in the absence of any agreement as to the disposal of the firm name, either Smith or Jones or both may set up again under the name of Smith & Jones, subject to the aforesaid limitation that it is not held out that the former member is still one of the firm.

UNITED STATES PURE FOOD LAW.

IF it is not killed by the Senate or vetoed by the President, the United States will enjoy the luxury of a Pure Food Law on the first day of September next. The bill has passed through all the vicissitudes incident to Congressional committees in the lower house and must now run the gauntlet of the American House of Lords, the Senate, and secure the approval of President Roosevelt before the pure fooders can lay down their arms assured that the wooden nutmeg and the basswood ham have been relegated to the limbo of Down East reminiscences.

The general scope of the bill may be said to be first, the fixing of standards of foods and drugs as to their purity, strength and character and defining of what shall be considered adulteration or misbranding of foods and drugs; and second the prohibition of interstate commerce in such misbranded or adulterated articles.

It must not be thought that up to this time there have been no pure food laws in the United States. Such laws have been passed in many of the states, but have been necessarily restricted in their operation to transactions within the state itself. The result has been to render them largely nugatory in effect. It is a matter of curious interest to note, as well, that the Federal Government has jurisdiction over inter-state commerce alone. A double system of pure food laws is therefore necessary to protect the unfortunate American from his over-reaching food purveyors.

An important part of the act under discussion is the definition of what shall be regarded as food and what shall be recognized as adulteration. A food is defined to include all articles used for food, drink, confectionery or condiment by man or domestic animals, whether simple, mixed or compound, and for the purpose of the Act an article shall be deemed to be adulterated:

In the case of confectionery:

If it contain terra alba, barytes, talc, chrome yellow, or other mineral substances or poisonous colors or flavors, or other ingredients deleterious or detrimental to health.

In the case of food:

First. If any substance or substances has or have been mixed and packed with it so as to reduce or lower so as to thereby injuriously affect its quality or strength.

Second. If any substance or substances has or have been substituted wholly or in part for the article.

Third. If any valuable constituent of the article has been wholly or in part abstracted.

Fourth. If it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article.

Fifth. If it be mixed, colored, powered, or stained in a manner whereby damage or inferiority is concealed.

Sixth. If it contain any added poisonous ingredient which may render such article injurious to health.

Seventh. If it be labeled or branded so as to deceive or mislead the purchaser, or purport to be a foreign product when not so.

Eighth. If it consists in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed, or putrid animal or vegetable substance, or any portion of an animal unfit for food, whether manufactured or not, or if it is the product of a diseased animal, or one that has died otherwise than by slaughter.

It is provided, however that mixtures or compounds, into which no poisonous or deleterious ingredients enter, shall not be deemed to have been adulterated provided that they are labeled, branded or tagged so as to show the character and constituents thereof.

As the Federal Government, as above stated, can not interfere with commerce wholly within the state, it can only prohibit contraband articles passing from one state to another, or to or from a foreign country. To enforce this prohibition a $200 fine is enforceable for the first offence and the Department of Agriculture is given extensive powers of examination.

A most remarkable provision, that the certificate of the Secretary of Agriculture to the effect that any of the provisions of the Act had been violated should be admitted in evidence in all courts of the United States without further verification was stricken out.

The working of the new Act should it become law will be watched with interest by Canadian dealers in food stuffs. Our American friends are seriously handicapped in dealing with such matters by their rigid constitution and peculiar division of authority between the Federal and State Governments. It is to be hoped that the new law may prove a solution of the difficulty.

CANADA'S INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

THE census statistics for 1901, which have just been completed, furnish interesting information about the progress of the various branches of Canadian industry. From figures to hand it is manifest that Canada's progress during the census decade 1891-1901, was essentially due to her agricultural and forest resources. Of the aggregate gain in production fully 85 per cent. is credited to flour and grist mills, butter and cheese factories, meat packing and slaughtering establishments, almost wholly the products of agriculture. Of the other 15 per cent. increase a large share consists of the expansion in the manufacture of wood pulp and of log products.

Among the lines in which a satisfactory gain is recorded are the following:

Product.	1891.	1901.
Log products	46 750,000	$50,805,000
Wood pulp	1,050,000	4,462,000

In woollens, ship and ship repairs, foundry products and distilled liquors small reductions are shown. The total production, however, shows a gain, which though not nearly as large as it should have been, is an evidence that Canada expanded more industrially than she did in numbers. The total number of manufacturing establishments with five employes or over in 1891 was 13,679 with a product of $363,156,797 as compared with 16,300 with a product valued at $481,053,375 in 1901.

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

THE imminence of war in the East is regarded with keen regret by those who have hoped for a peaceful solution of the differences existing between Russia and Japan. The aggressor is assuming a terrible responsibility, and is precipitating a conflict which may engulf all Europe in a bloody and devastating warfare. War is a hideous monster, which only residual barbarism and want of imagination makes possible among men to-day.

Apart altogether from humanitarian reasons war is a calamity to the world at large and to the business world in particular.

In the first place hundreds of thousands of men, the pick of the countries involved, are torn away from useful employments, where they have been engaged in producing articles to supply the multitudinous needs of a poverty-stricken world, to tramp or ride hundreds of leagues, for what? To take the lives of similar workmen who have been similarly torn away from useful employment for a like unprofitable purpose.

The goods these men would have produced are lost to the world, at the same time thousands of other workmen are turned from the production of the necessities and luxuries of life to the production of instruments of destruction to be used by the first set of workmen against their opposing fellows.

In all this millions of dollars are swallowed up by the cavernous maw of the war. Where does all this money come from which upsets the humdrum industrial world and converts it into a system of arsenals and cartridge factories? It comes from the general fund of savings which would otherwise have found investment in the development of industries, in the production of commodities for the use of mankind and in the payment of workmen who would thus have been put in a position to purchase the commodities so produced.

But war absorbs this fund; money becomes scarce and interest high; owners of factories can not secure the funds to extend their works; progress is checked. The nation, or the world at large, like the prodigal, has wasted its substance on riotous living and must bear the penalty of hard times.

Britain felt it after the Boer War which fortunately occurred at the crest of a wave of extraordinary prosperity. Its effects, however, are still seen in the low price of consuls. Consuls are no less safe than ten years ago; the high rates of interest due to the scarcity of money consequent upon the vast expenditure upon the war has depreciated consols to their present low rate. Had not such a stupendous amount of money been sunk in the Boer War we would have found little difficulty in securing funds for our transcontinental railway at a rate very considerably below what now must be paid.

Should the Japano-Russian embroglio develop into a war of great magnitude, certain lines of trade may be temporarily stimulated, but the final result will be to absorb the surplus capital afloat, raise the rate of interest and precipitate hard times.

AUTONOMY FOR THE WEST.

THE demand for autonomy on the part of the Northwest Territories is an evidence of the awakening consciousness of the West. The demand is a most natural one and should receive ready sympathy from the still surviving stalwarts who waged a long but finally successful struggle for the boon of self government in the older provinces.

The rapidity with which the territories are being filled up will result in rapidly changing conditions which will need to be met with legislation suited to local needs. The Dominion Government which for many years administered these wide acres in an admirable manner is now confronted with conditions which are changing rapidly and can receive adequate treatment only from those who are on the spot and whose interests are bound up in that of their prairie territory. The Dominion Government should make haste to divest itself of a trusteeship which it has faithfully observed but which it can no longer maintain either with justice to itself or advantage to the West.

It is true that in granting autonomy to the provinces the Dominion gives up certain advantages, but after all it is only right that these advantages should acrue to the provinces-to-be themselves. There is no force in the contention that as the Dominion has spent large sums of money in building the C.P.R. she should exact the last farthing from the West. The east is receiving, indeed has received its payment in the additional business and prosperity that has come to the East through the Western development. The East can prosper best only through the prosperity of the West. Whatever develops the West benefits the East. As the West is best qualified to attend to its own proper development the sooner authority is given them so to do the better for the Dominion at large.

THE MONTREAL TECHNICAL SCHOOL

MONTREAL citizens, and particularly the busines men of Montreal, should take a live interest in the prospectus of the projected Technical School for that city. The movement towards the establishment of such a school was inaugurated by men representative of the industrial, commercial and financial interests as well as the educational organizations of Montreal.

The Board of Governors have formulated a course of studies, have secured a suitable site, and also obtained the promise of co-operation from the Mechanics' Institute and of a large degree of financial support.

However, further financial assistance is required and it is from the business men of the city that the promoters of the school have reason to expect and to receive the money required. "The Canadian Grocer" has repeatedly pointed out the advantages of more widespread technical training. In Germany, Britain and the United States technical education is one of the foremost characteristics of industrial progress. Canada has been slow to move in this direction, but there seems to be every evidence that greater attention is being given to the matter and a more general belief in its efficiency.

It is proposed to provide accommodation for 2,000 to 3,000 men, women, boys and girls who seek to extend in a systematic way their knowledge and training yet are not able to take an university course. In drafting the course of studies the committee have planned a three years' course of evening study, suited to those employed during the day who aspire to thorough knowledge of the principles of their trade. The courses proposed are as below:

Department of preparatory instruction (one year course) — arithmetic, drawing, algebra, practical geometry and mensuration, mechanics, elementary physics and chemistry; English, French, commercial arithmetic and composition.

Mechanical and electrical engineering.—Steam, machine construction, mechanical drawing, strength of materials, applied mechanics, applied electricity, locomotive engineering, and instruction in shop work (including pattern making, moulding smith work, pipe fitting and electrical fitting).

Building trades.—Building construction, applied mechanics, architectural drawing and shop work (including carpentry, joinery, plumbing, brick work and masonry, house and sign painting, metal plate work, plastering and steamfitting).

Textile trades.—Applied chemistry, textile design, spinning, weaving, dying and color printing.

Printing trades.—Drawing and design, typography, lithography, engraving.

Applied chemistry. — Chemistry (organic and inorganic), applied chemistry, including chemistry of oils, soaps, colors, brewing, rubber manufacture, paper and pulp making, glass manufacture, metallurgy.

Flour milling.—Flour and general milling, mechanical drawing, steam, applied mechanics.

Boot and shoe trades.—Pattern cutting, boot and shoe making, mechanical drawing.

Commercial course.—French (conversation and correspondence), commercial geography, elements of commerce and commercial law, bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting, advanced English composition (additional languages, e.g., German and Spanish, if found advisable).

Domestic industries. — Cookery and domestic economy, laundry work, millinery and dressmaking.

Applied art.—Drawing and coloring, design and composition, modelling, applied design.

Navigation. — Navigation, nautical astronomy, naval architecture, shipping (in its legal and commercial relations).

It is estimated that fully $250,000 will be required to make the school a success, of which less than $150,000 will be used for building and equipment. Arrangement has been made with the Mechanics' Institute whereby it will devote to the movement, as soon as an equivalent amount has been subscribed, the equity in its property, amounting to about $100,000. It is not likely that Montreal business men will be found wanting in the proper spirit of generosity when this need is placed before them.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Wm. F. Clough is canvassing the trade in Ottawa City for the New York specialties controlled in Canada by Wm. H. Dunn.

Mr. Crysdale, of Crysdale & Sons, Oshawa, was in Toronto on Tuesday on business. He reports that trade is fairly good in Oshawa.

Mr. D. Bremner, western representative of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, was in the city during the past week and left on Friday on his western trip.

Mr. Wm. H. Dunn, representative in Canada for United States manufacturers, is visiting the trade in Toronto in the interest of Enameline Stove Polish, Babbitt's Soap Powder and Borden's Eagle Brand Milk.

Mr. Albert N. Reay, the Canadian representative of the Force Food Company, recently returned from a business trip through the Province of Quebec and reports trade as very satisfactory in that section of the Dominion.

Mr. J. S. Agar, representing the Toronto Coffee & Spice Co., Limited, Toronto, is at present visiting the jobbing trade of Montreal. Mr. Agar's territory includes the jobbing trade of Ontario and Quebec. He reports that business has been most satisfactory in their lines.

PLANT ENGLISH WALNUTS.

The experiments that have been made by a few enterprising farmers of Clarke county, Wash., in growing English Walnuts, have been sufficient to justify the planting of orchards of these trees. The time may come when large walnut orchards will replace many of the prune orchards of the county.

THE CHALLENGES.

Below we present to the grocers of Canada photographic cuts facsimiles in miniature of two advertisements that appeared in this Journal, the Salada's challenge on January 15, the Blue Ribbon's acceptance of same on January 29, page 25.

$500.00—FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

We believe that OUR INCREASE ALONE in sales of "SALADA" Ceylon Tea in the past year over our sales in 1902 was greater than the entire tea business of any other wholesale firm in Canada, in either packet or bulk tea.

If any Firm has a contrary opinion, we are prepared to donate Five Hundred Dollars—$500 00—to any Charitable Institution if we are wrong; the contesting Firm to do the same, if we prove absolutely that our INCREASE ALONE in the past year over the preceding one was greater than their entire business, packet or bulk, in 1903. We will allow the contestants to include in their sales Ceylon, India, China and Japan Teas; on our part THE INCREASE IN 1903 OF "SALADA" ALONE Results to be published and Our Money is Up.

We accept the challenge of The Salada Tea Co as advertised in "The Canadian Grocer" of January 15th

We have placed in the hands of the publishers of this journal a check for five hundred dollars, payable to the order of Mr Wm Ince of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto If The Salada Tea Co prove their claim the five hundred dollars will be donated to any charitable institution they may name If they cannot prove their claim they will donate five hundred dollars to the Winnipeg General Hospital

Winnipeg Toronto Vancouver

There also appeared in the issue of this paper of January 29, page 24, the following challenge from Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt:

THE CANADIAN GROCER,—We note that the last issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER contains an advertisement of Salada Tea Co., of Toronto, in which they offer to donate five hundred dollars to any charitable institution if the increase in the sale of Salada tea during the past year does not equal the entire tea sales of any other firm in Canada.

While deprecating this method of drawing attention to our business, we cannot allow such a statement to go unchallenged. If The Salada Tea Co. really think that there is a greater demand in Canada for their packets than there is for Blue Ribbon Tea, we would be glad to have the sales of Salada and Blue Ribbon for 1903 investigated by a chartered accountant. If his decision is in favor of Salada we will pay all expenses and donate five hundred dollars to any charity The Salada Tea Co. may name. Should the investigation prove that there is a greater sale in Canada (we don't do business in the United States so must exclude that territory) of Blue Ribbon than there is of Salada, The Salada Tea Co. shall pay the expenses of the investigation and donate five hundred dollars to the Winnipeg General Hospital.

We enclose our cheque for five hundred dollars, drawn in favor of Wm. Ince, of the firm of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, and will be quite satisfied, if agreeable to The Salada Tea Co., to have Mr. Ince arrange details of the investigation. We are also willing that THE CANADIAN GROCER should publish the figures when ascertained.

G. F. & J. GALT.

Winnipeg, Jan. 19, 1904.

The head of the firm of Messrs. Galt being the president of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co. The Salada people wired Messrs. Galt as follows:

G. F. & J. GALT, Winnipeg, Man. Toronto, January 30, 1904.

Note you accept our challenge published GROCER. We also accept challenge contained in your letter published GROCER, and have handed GROCER two cheques five hundred dollars each. Have asked Mr. Watt to confer with Mr. Ince and arrange to proceed at once.

P. C. LARKIN & CO.

And received the following reply:

P. C. LARKIN & CO., Toronto. Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 1, 1904.

Glad you intend to accept our proposition, wiring Ince to-day.

G. F. & J. GALT.

We, having on the 26th, asked Mr. J. L. Watt, of Messrs. Watt & Scott, Toronto, and Watt, Scott & Goodacre, of Montreal, to act for us. Mr. Watt wrote to Wm. Ince, Sr., as follows:

WILLIAM INCE, SR., ESQ., City. February 1, 1904.

Dear Sir,—Referring to the subject of our conversation in my interview with you on Saturday, Messrs. P. C. Larkin & Co. wired Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt that they noted their acceptance by Blue Ribbon Tea of the challenge published by the Salada Tea Co. in CANADIAN GROCER, and that Salada Co. also accepted the challenge published by Messrs. Galt in the ast issue of the same paper, and Messrs. Galt have wired Messrs. P. C. Larkin & Co. in reply as follows: "Glad you intend to accept our proposition, wiring Mr. Ince to-day."

In view of the above, and that in my conversation with you I mentioned Messrs. Clarkson & Cross as a firm of accountants in whom both parties would have the utmost confidence to make the investigations, and this name having met with your entire approval, I now ask if you will please authorize this firm to proceed at once with the investigation, of both Salada's challenge accepted by Blue Ribbon, and Salada's acceptance of the challenge made in Messrs. Galts' letter; a copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER containing both challenges to be handed to the accountants with instructions to proceed in each case on the lines indicated in the respective challenges.

A prompt answer will oblige.

Yours respectfully, (Signed), J. L. WATT.

Mr. Ince replied as follows:

J. L. WATT, ESQ., Toronto. Toronto, 2nd February, 1904.

Dear Sir,—I have your favor of yesterday, and in reply beg to say, that I must respectfully decline to take any action whatever in reference to the question of the sales of "Salada" and "Blue Ribbon" Teas, until a definite understanding is come to between the two Companies.

The challenge of The Salada Company reads as follows:—"We "believe our increase alone in sales of 'Salada' Ceylon Tea in the past "year over our sales in 1902 was GREATER THAN THE ENTIRE TEA "BUSINESS of any other wholesale firm in CANADA, IN EITHER PACKET "or BULK tea."

This refers, of course, to Salada in Canada only; indeed, "in Canada" is underlined and is a challenge to all the wholesale houses in Canada, and in Canada only, and this is the challenge which it appears to me The Blue Ribbon Company accept. You might ascertain from The Salada Company whether I am correct in my interpretation, and if I am I will submit it to The Blue Ribbon Company, and see whether it accords with their views. Yours very truly, WM. INCE.

And received the following reply:

February 3, 1904.

WILLIAM INCE, SENIOR, ESQ., City.

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your favor of 2nd inst.

The position appears to be that a challenge was published in THE CANADIAN GROCER by The Salada Co. on January 15th and subsequent issues; that on page No. 25 of the last issue of THE GROCER, Blue Ribbon Tea published an announcement of their acceptance of the Salada's published challenge.

As we were agreed that Messrs. Clarkson & Cross were quite acceptable to both companies to conduct the investigation, there appears nothing to be done but to instruct them to proceed, and your declining to do so would constitute a default and The Salada Company would claim the deposit on behalf of certain charitable institutions.

The position appears to be equally simple with regard to Messrs. Galt's challenge published on page No. 24 of the last issue of THE GROCER and which The Salada Co. have accepted, and as we are agreed as to the accountants, there is nothing further to be done but to have your friends (if they have not already done so) deposit another cheque for five hundred dollars against Salada's second cheque and order the investigation to be made. I am,

Yours very respectfully, J. L. WATT.

We want no argument. Every word in challenges and acceptances is in print. There can be no dispute. all there is to do now is to give the matter to the accountants agreed upon, and we look to Mr. Ince to do this without any reserve.

"SALADA," Toronto and Montreal.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, February 4, 1904.

Groceries.

AROUND of the wholesale trade this week has discovered little of interest. Tales of bad roads and snowed in travellers are common, but in spite of this the feeling generally is optimistic and orders are better than might be expected under the circumstances. So soon as the weather moderates a little a noticeable improvement is expected. Collections are quite satisfactory. There are few changes in price to record. Canned goods hold a strong position and a steady consumption is going on. There is still a difference of opinion as to corn but the general tendency for this along with other vegetables is higher. A tip has also been given that canned meats may also be expected to go up shortly. Coffee is still going skyward and 1-2 cent rise is recorded in Rios, while Santos and mild grades are firm locally. Spices are in a firm position generally. Syrup is meeting with a fair enquiry at firm prices and molasses is in ordinary demand. New Japan rice has arrived on the local market and has excited some interest. Tapioca is firm and unchanged here. Teas fully maintain values. There is a good demand for fine Ceylons and some enquiry for medium Japans. Dried fruits are exciting little interest except that there is a better enquiry for prunes. Cured fish are brightening up with the approach of Lent. Sugar is unchanged locally, but trade has been stimulated by an advance of 5 cents for barrelled by a couple of American refiners. The feature of the week is the withdrawal of the Dresden and Wallaceburg refineries from sugar list preparatory to going to the retailers direct.

CANNED GOODS

There is no special feature to report this week beyond the strong position held for some little time now. A steady consumption is going on now, and there is no doubt in the minds of many that prices will be higher later on as stocks generally are light. Corn, peas and beans are not unlikely to go higher before a great while and tomatoes later in the season. There is still some corn at $1, but the most ranges from $1.10 to $1.15, with some as high as $1.25 for fancy sugar. The probabilities are for an advance in canned meats early this month. Canned salmon are very firm although at present demand is light, a fact which will be remedied when Lent come. We quote:

SUGAR.

There is no change to note in the raw situation, prices remaining nominally as last advised. Quotation for 96 test centrifugal is still 3 5-16c. duty paid, New York, or 1 31-32c. cost and freight. There are, however, no sellers for shipment from Cuba at less than 2c. cost and freight, which U. S. refiners do not as yet feel able to pay. We hear that the Cubans have sold practically all their production up to the end of first half of February and that only a comparatively limited quantity of the make for the second half of February remains to be marketed. There have been only slight fluctuations in Europe for the week under review and as we go to press the quotation for 88 per cent. beet is reported at 7s. 8 1-2d. basis f.o.b. Hamburg for February shipment and 7s. 9d. for March. Cane sugars have still a differential of over 5-16c. in their favor in the New York market and therefor we hear of no transactions in beets.

For week ending January 27 receipts at United States Atlantic ports were 23,689 tons with meltings unchanged at 28,000 tons. Total stock in all hands was 78,327 tons, a reduction of 4,31' tons from previous week, and 51,143 tons compared with same time last year. Cuban stocks according to latest advices were 100,500 tons, or about the same as last year at similar date. There are 149 central factories grinding as compared with 135 last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 3,558,827 tons as compared with 3,415,261 tons at same uneven dates last year. The increase of stock is 143,566 tons. United States refiners seem to fully appreciate that prices of raws are low at present, but are taking advantage of prevailing conditions to keep them so, for some time to come. The future of the market seems to depend pretty much upon the action of beet growers in Europe. When the time for sowings comes round again.

The feature of the week in American refined was an advance on Tuesday 2nd inst. of 5 cents per hundred pounds for sugar packed in barrels. This advance was made only by the American and National refineries, Arbuckles remaining unchanged. The only apparent reason for the advance is the very much increased cost of cooperage stock on account of scarcity of material. While there is no other special significance to be attached to the change it has had the effect of greatly stimulating the demand across the line. The same effect is noticeable in our local market though prices here are, so far without change. The outstanding feature of interest for current week is the withdrawal from the sugar list of the Dresden and Wallaceburg refineries, so far as sugar made in campaign just closed is concerned. These refineries have decided to offer their sugars to the retail trade direct, and we have therefore to withdraw them from the list at foot. Being without selling prices we are unable to quote these sugars at present time. We quote:

COFFEES.

The situation in coffee has been fully maintained and still shows an advancing tendency. There seems to be a more bullish feeling in Europe than heretofore. Late advices from New York report No. 7 Rio at 9.25 as against 9.20 a week ago and Santos No. 6 at 9.30 as against 9.10 last week. There is a fair demand for Rios locally in spite of a further advance of a half cent. Santos have shown considerable movement among jobbers while a steady trade is reported for mild grades. SPICES.

The New York market is active with a good demand generally. A further stiffening is reported in cloves, ginger and cassia. Supplies of pepper, black and white, are limited. The trade is buying freely for manufacturing purposes. There are some signs of strength in nutmegs which for the past two months have been irregular. There is a good ordinary demand reported locally and prices remain about as at last writing. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A very fair seasonable demand is being met for these lines. The principal call is for corn and sugar syrups of bright quality for table use. Prices are firm. For molasses good ordinary baking is meeting some enquiry. This is principally New Orleans. Barbadoes is not a very important article of commerce here, comparatively speaking and is still quoted at prices which have ruled for some little time. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The first direct shipment of fine Japan rice arrived last week. It is a good sample and is meeting with a very good demand owing to the fact that the market for this grade has been bare for some time. Tapioca is higher in price on the primary markets but no quotable change is reported here. We quote:

TEAS.

The market does not show any feature of very particular interest this week. There is some enquiry for finer grades of Ceylon which are showing extraordinary value in lines costing between 20 and 30 cents. There is also some demand for good medium grades of Japan. A London cable reports that sales this week have gone off at about previous rates with the exception of a weakness in broken Pekoes. The war prospects have little effect in Canada, but are seriously regarded in the United States. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

There is little to record in these lines outside the fact that a better demand for prunes. A light demand might also be mentioned for apricots and peaches. Shelled walnuts are still advancing. Beyond this there is little of inteerst. We quote:

Country Produce

EGGS.

The situation is even more acute than last week. Stocks are practically exhausted with the exception of a few odd lots which most commission men are sparingly dealing out. Enquiries from outside points are received daily and egg men would be glad to see the arrival of new stock, an event which with prevailing weather conditions seems no nearer than last week. Prices have been advanced again since last writing. Strictly new laid are nominally the same but scarcely any receipts are reported. Other grades are up from three to four cents and there is practically nothing to be had under 30 cents. We quote:

Fish.

Green Fruits.

The trade in green fruits is dull owing to the recent heavy storms which have made the distribution of fruit in bulk slow and intermittent. The express trade is somewhat better, although this too has suffered. Oranges are plentiful, especially Californias, and easier in price. Many stocks are arriving in poor condition. This is accounted for by the fact that the season is about over and over-ripe fruit often begins to waste during long transportation. Jamaica oranges are about out of the market. Bananas are plentiful although some stocks are uncertain on account of the changeable weather. Small stocks of frost-bitten lemons continue on the market. Japanese tangerines are easier in price and demand is only fair. Florida tomatoes are easier. Lemons are firmer Pineapples are scarce. Almeria grapes are easier. We quote :

There is a brisk demand for vegetables this week with supplies hard, and in many varieties impossible to obtain. Market gardeners have experienced great difficulty in delivering even small stocks. Cabbages are particularly scarce. Potatoes are 20c. firmer. Onions 10c. firmer. Carrots, 15c. firmer. Parsnips, 10c. firmer. Butter and hubbard squash are nearly out of the market. Celery is scarce. FLOUR.

There is a fair demand for flour at quotation prices. The future of the market is difficult to determine, much if not all depends on whether Armour of Chicago corners the market or war breaks out between Japan and Russia. In the event of the latter, prices will probably advance permanently. Manitoba flour is higher. Manitoba bakers' is 35c. firmer and straight roller 70c. firmer. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Feb. 4, 1904.

Groceries.

THE general grocery market is in fair condition. With better roads throughout the country there would doubtless be much improvement, as the great bulk of the trade is now being done with points on the railroad lines, and many customers are thus at present buying but little. There have been few changes during the week. The drop of 5c. in all sugars last week, which occured just too late to be included in our quotations will be found quoted below. There has been some advance, about 1-4c. in the price of violet brown paper and manila paper. Syrups, molasses, canned goods and dried fruits are unchanged in price this week. On the fish market there has been an advance in bulk oysters, of 10c. per gallon. Ground oil cake is now selling very freely.

SUGAR.

The price of sugar has not changed since the drop of 5c. last week, quoted below. At the new figures there is a fair demand, a little better than last week, but still no more than ordinary. The market is very uncertain.

The Dresden and Wallaceburg beet root sugar refineries have just issued notice that they have removed their sugars from the grocers' list, which action means that these refiners will be free in future to sell at any price which may be necessary for them to accept in order to dispose of their output. Hitherto they have been marketing their output under agreement with the older refineries, such as the St. Lawrence and Canada, to maintain certain prices at which doubtless it was difficult for them to dispose of their entire output in competition with that of the latter. By breaking away and acting independently they will be at liberty to accept whatever price they may choose.

Asked if this action meant that price cutting would be a feature of the near future the wholesale dealers expressed the opinion that it would not, but that the different qualities in competition with each other would simply find their level. The trade, however, have given the subject little attention. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Jobbers are quoting Barbadoes molasses from 1 1-2 to 2c. lower this week. Trade is still very quiet, though at the new prices the market has shown some slight improvement. The feeling in molasses, however, is stil easy. Corn syrup is reported to be in good steady demand at the figures given below. We quote:

TEA.

The situation this week in teas is very quiet. In fact it is reported as rather on the dull side. Compared with last week's business it is practically stagnant. COFFEE.

The firm tone prevailing in New York market is having its effect locally and the feeling is that all will have to advance their prices particularly in lower grades. The mild or high grade coffees have been very largely effected by the strong market prevailing and the advance is so marked that higher prices are justifiable, in fact they are practically forced up. The tone continues very strong, a further advance being noted in cloves, ginger and cassia. Peppers also are high and stocks light. Foreign Dried Fruits.

There is no quotable change this wek. Valencia raisins are very slow, as also are Sultanas, and currants. Figs are quiet. Dates are in fair demand, and Malaga raisins also sell fairly well. California raisins are moving out well. Prunes are the most active of all the dried fruits, and a brisk trade is doing. We quote:

Green Fruits.

The local market for green fruits continues quiet. Another drop of 25c. is reported in California navel oranges, following the reduction on the American market. There is a glut of lemons on the market at present for farmer packed fruit, which is quoted at $1.25 to $1.75. In the Old Country there is a good strong market for apples, the London market being about 15 per cent. higher than Liverpool or Glasgow for prime fruit. We quote:

Fish.

The demand for fish continues to increase as the Lenten season approaches, and all kinds show signs of improvement in sales. Herring have declined 10c. owing to the large quantities arriving. Haddies are slightly higher, as are also round pike. Oysters are higher. Expected supplies have not been so large as it was thought they would be the oyster beds having been frozen up. We quote:

BEAUTIFUL VANCOUVER.

"The Grocer" is in receipt of an attractive booklet issued by the Vancouver Tourist Association. It is entitled "Vancouver the Mecca of the tourist; the commercial and scenic centre of British Columbia." As an effective argument for Vancouver's right to the title, it makes use of a large number of fine half-tone engravings of the city and surrounding country, and a better advertisement than this artistic little quarto would be difficult to find.

CHANGE AT TROUT LAKE.

Mr. A. G. Fraser of Camborne, B. C., has purchased the business in Trout Lake, B. C., of C. B. Hume & Co. Limited, and has taken possession. Hume & Co. were the first merchants to open up business in Trout Lake, coming in 1893. Mr. Thomas Taylor, M. L. A., was at one time one of the partners and had charge of the business. Trout Lake and Camborne are in the Lardeau district and are reached from Revelstoke by way of Arrowhead.

100 COPIES FREE.

The Force Food Co. have recently issued a very handsome little booklet entitled "The Gentle Art of Using Force." The book is beautifully illustrated in colors and contains a large number of very useful household recipes. The Force Company will be glad to mail 100 copies to any grocer free on application, or should he prefer to send the company at their Toronto office a list of customers a copy will be mailed to each.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling evaporated apricots and peaches at interesting prices.

The attention of the trade is called to this week's ad. of J. M. Douglas & Co., Montreal.

The attention of buyers is called to ad. of W. H. Dunn, Montreal, whose three sellers—seasonable at all times—are particularly so now.

Merchants who wish to increase their coffee trade should handle "Ubero Brand." H. P. Eckardt & Co. are the wholesale distributers.

"San Toy" starch put up by the Eagle Manufacturing Co., Montreal, is an attractive package and should prove a good seller for the trade. The 5c. package being a novelty in package starches is worthy of consideration as an introducer.

Wm. H. Dunn is at present having large samples of Liquid Enameline distributed to each family in Montreal. He reports that this non-explosive stove polish is having a good sale.

The Eby, Blain Co. have just received a shipment of their "Anchor" maple syrup in quart bottles, to retail at 25c.

Hudon, Hebert & Cie, Montreal, are prepared to quote Borden products in round lots. They recently received a car of Eagle Brand Milk and Borden's Peerless Cream.

Upton's new season orange marmalade is now ready.

The Eby, Blain Co. report a very active demand for the "Bluenose" and "Halifax" brands of pure codfish.

The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company report the arrival from Holland by the steamship "Teutonia" of 300 cases of Bensdorp's cocoa. The consignment reached Toronto safely and in good order a few days ago. The trade in this popular and well-known brand of cocoa is increasing rapidly.

The Eby, Blain Co. have some very fine fancy Penang cloves, which they are offering at prices considerably below the market.

White & Co., fruit and commission merchants, Toronto, report the arrival this week of a carload of bananas via New York, containing 350 bunches of exceptional quality and color, undamaged by frost. Also a shipment of Jamaica oranges.

McWilliam & Everist, Toronto, have received a large shipment of Palermo bitter oranges. This firm is exporting 10 cars of apples weekly at the present time.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 29.

ONE of the most important and interesting cases arising out of an assignment has been arousing some excitement among members of the grocery trade, both wholesale and retail, this week. It arose through the arrest last Saturday evening of George Howell, late manager of the B. C. Supply Co., Limited, a retail grocery concern which, through Howell as manager assigned a month ago. J. G. Hutchinson, the former manager of the concern, was also arrested. Howell had bought Hutchinson's stock in the limited liability company known as the B. C. Supply Co., and had taken over the business in November last.

The action in arresting the two former managers was decided upon by a meeting of creditors when the assignee, Mr. Robert Kelly, of Kelly, Douglas & Co., reported grave irregularities. It is alleged that the former manager and Howell bought goods when they knew the concern was insolvent, and that Hutchinson purchased goods from various parties paying with orders on the B. C. Supply Co., after he had sold out of the business.

The total liabilities of the concern are nearly $10,000 with assets of but $2,000, and much of this is in book debts and shop fixtures. The two men were admitted to bail, Howell in $2,000, while Hutchinson's bail was fixed at $12,000, himself in half the amount and sureties for the other half.

Howell once before, in 1896, had an interest in the B. C. Supply Co., but retired, leaving Hutchinson practically sole proprietor. When Howell bought it in again last November and assumed management of the store, he undertook to revolutionize the grocery business in Vancouver. He advertised freely in rather unique and enterprising ways. One of his advertisements was to give a piano to the lucky holder of a coupon which should be drawn on a certain date. As the time in which coupons were given with purchases of goods was very limited, it is hard to see how the piano prize was a paying proposition. Howell claims that he knew of the liabilities which were against the firm when he took over the business but he was distinctly told by Hutchinson, he says, that these would all be settled by the latter. Hutchinson has been for three years dabbling in saw mills and shingle mills, being deeply interested in two such ventures.

Shipments of groceries and supplies to the North have been heavier this winter than during any of the past winters since the Northern country was first opened. Most of the goods has been sent to White Horse where there is a considerable demand for stocks of supplies for the new gold camp, 175 miles from that town. Every one of the local wholesale men have been sending from one to two cars of groceries every boat for the past few weeks. It is not a big trade, but being rather unexpected it is a welcome addition to the usual business with the North.

In addition to the shipments being made by every boat going North, the merchants of White Horse absorbed much of the stock which was sent North for shipment to Dawson and failed to get through before the river froze up last fall. As there was a large quantity of many kinds of goods, practically covering a general stock, it is a lucky thing for the shippers that this extra demand has sprung up this winter. With the goods there, and the many lots shipped this winter, the merchants of White Horse must have turned over a very considerable business in the off season.

Every report from the North continues to give favorable accounts of the outlook for a really good return from the newly discovered creeks. The movement of people with outfits constantly increases and by the time the season opens there will be many hundreds of miners on the ground.

While war news from the Orient continues to be somewhat indefinite the market for rice has been seriously affected. The price has in the past few weeks gone up $8 per ton altogether, and the prospects are that it will go higher as export is practically forbidden. Should war break out there will be further sharp advances. The local quotation is now $96 to $98 per ton. There has been a little speculation in rice among the members of the trade, but not enough to make the movement rank with the grain exchange. People who have risked some money in the stock may make a few hundred dollars but there will be a drop if the war scare blows over.

Whether it is because of anticipated demand in case of war breaking out or not, bookings of flour for the Orient from this coast continue good; this too in spite of the fact that the old rates of $3 to $4 per barrel go into effect with the beginning of February. The withdrawal of the China Commercial Company's fleet of steamers from the route to San Francisco from the Orient has removed the only competitor which persisted in cutting flour rates.

There would appear to be little to warrant the continued movement of flour to the Orient, even in event of immediate hostilities as there are enormous stocks of flour already across the Pacific and far more than would be used in a long time. The market over there is badly disorganized, and even war would not put prices up sufficiently to make it an interesting speculation. The flour shipped has been largely from the mills of Washington and Oregon.

Big consignments of coffee from South America for the importing house of Wm. Braid & Co., Vancouver, are included in the cargo of the Steamer Mera of the Kosmos line, which is now discharging cargo at Puget Sound ports and is due here this week. She also brings 500 tons of nitrate for the Victoria Chemical Works, Victoria, from Chili. The steamers of the Kosmos line run between these ports and European ports by way of South America and the Atlantic. The Mera is making her first trip, but others have been in from time to time. Usually they bring large consignments of raw sugar for the B. C. Sugar Refinery Co. On her return trip the Mera will take large shipments of flour from Puget Sound ports to South America and Europe. Some consignments of fish, canned salmon, etc., will also be sent by the steamer.

Market conditions here are quiet in general, though there is a good deal of activity. The movement in staples is still light, and in nearly every line prices though firm and steady are not high. There are some lines which will be almost sure to advance ere long. Canned vegetables are selling here away below the market according to present quotations from the East. Tomatoes are quoted at $1.45 to $1.50; corn, peas and beans at $1.10 to $1.15. At these figures less freight the goods could not be bought in the east to replace stocks. Corn is quoted in the East at $1 to $1.15, which would make the local quotation away out.

So long as trade is dull and demand light the merchants here do not shift prices much, but should large orders or inquiries for prices come in the figures would go up at once. In fact it is only because it is hardly worth while to make the change that the quotation is left standing.

Another line of goods which it is expected will go up before long is that of canned meats. The navies of the different nations are being provisioned on a war basis, and even should hostilities not begin there will be sufficient movement to cause prices to advance. The recent quotations are considered low.

In dried fruits, the California market seems to be well stocked and prices in leading lines remain steady but not high. Stocks appear to be fairly evenly divided this year, no shortage being reported in any line. The average price of different varieties of dried fruits on this market at present is 8 to 10c. per lb. Local demand is slow in these lines and not likely to improve just yet as there is considerable fresh fruit in the market. Preserved and canned fruits never move readily on this market and the position is featureless at present.

Eggs—The scarcity of eggs from the East, both fresh cased and pickled stock, continues. The relief in the situation is the supply from California which is coming in freely. The service of the San Francisco steamers is every five days so that merchants here can order through a broker by wire and receive stock in very quick time. Prices are lowering a little. Where it cost at least 30c. to lay fresh California eggs down here a week ago, it is now possible to get them two cents cheaper. The price to the trade last week by local wholesalers and importers was 31 and 32c. Next shipments, due in a day or so, will likely sell to the retailers at 30c.

Butter—Eastern butter, that is the Ontario article, has not been on this market at all this season. So far as known this is the first season for many years that some shipments have not been received. In former years, especially five years ago when there was such a rush to the North, there were big lots of butter imported from Eastern Canada. The stocks are being well cleaned up. Creamery both from N. W. T. Government creameries and from Manitoba is getting into smaller compass. There is no really first-class dairy left on the market. Prices are not any higher than at last quotation.

WHOLESALE GROCERS AND WINE MERCHANTS.

There is not yet any foreign butter on the market but in addition to anticipated importations from California as soon as the make of fresh butter there increases a little more, there will be some Australian goods received on the next boat which is due to arrive early in February.

Fruit—California oranges are coming in freely now, and are steadily improving in quality and maturity. The prices are easy, and as at last week's quotations, $3 to $3.25 for fancy navels, $2.75 to $3 for choice $2.50 to $2.75 for standards $2.25 to $2.50 for seedlings. Lemons move slowly and at easy prices, $3 to $3.50 as to [illegible] being quoted.

Local apples run from 50c. to $1 per box. Okanagan apples and those from Kamloops bring $1.50 for choice varieties. Excellent russets and Northern Spys are leading varieties.

Vegetables—California cabbage has started to arrive in small lots. The price is about 3½c. per lb. A little new cauliflower is also being imported from California, but is high at $1.25 to $1.50 per dozen. Greenhouse lettuce grown from Victoria is received regularly all winter. Potatoes appear to be a short stock, though last fall there seemed to be plenty in the market, and the crop was reported good. From California there were inquiries some time ago for 100 tons or more for seed. The stocks in Washington are light also. Locally the price is hard to definitely fix. Ashcrofts have a regular rate which is seldom varied as there is a demand for all that are grown in that favored district. The price for them is generally about $20 per ton. Other stocks range along at present from $12 to $17 per ton.

GEO. S. B. PERRY.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Feb. 1st, 1904.

THERE has been a fair business in groceries during the past week. The snow blockade has interfered somewhat with trade. In the Island of Cape Breton, especially in the Northern districts, the roads for a time were impassable, which interfered with the movement of the travellers. In fact during the greater part of the month of January the severe weather made it difficult for travellers to push sales with their usual energy. In some respects the heavy snow fall and steady cold has been beneficial and will swell the lumber output considerably.

There has been no important change in the markets. The chief feature in produce is the scarcity of eggs. There are now less than 100 cases of held stock here and these are in the hands of one firm who are letting them out in small lots to their regular customers. The price has been advanced to 27 cents for held eggs. A case or two of fresh laid are coming in occasionally and these sell as high as 40 cents a dozen. As the cold weather is unfavorable to production it is impossible to tell how the market is to be supplied for the next month. Cheese is very dull sale at 11½ to 12 cents in a jobbing way. A few dealers are overstocked and none of them are making money on cheese this season as they are now selling for less than they paid for choice Septembers some months ago. Butter is steady and quotations are unchanged.

Flour is very firm at the advance of last week. Retailers have now advanced their prices about 30 cents per barrel. Oatmeal also is firm at the sharp advance of last week. The demand is now heavy as consumption is large at this season of the year. Cornmeal is steady, the expected price-cutting on this market not having been realized.

Molasses is very unsettled as a result of price-cutting on the part of a St. John importer. Wholesale houses are now offering this article at from 5 to 7 cents below the December prices. The trade here is chiefly in Porto Rico, but Barbadoes has also opened lower than last season. Sugar is unchanged and the demand is steady. The trade here does not anticipate much change in sugar for some time. The Acadia Sugar Refinery now advertise their output as the product of West India cane, the importations of European beet root for refining purposes having been abandoned.

Bank fish are easier at first hands. Grades suitable only for the Southern export trade have been offered by fishermen at from 50 to 75 cents below the highest figures for the season. Fish suitable for domestic and grocery trade are still very high and the supply very limited. Mackerel are higher. Nova Scotia mackerel ran very large in size this season and therefore retailers have to watch their profits very sharply as the number to the barrel is smaller than usual.

A new steamboat has been put on the Bay of Fundy and is now making regular trips between St. John and Pansboro. There is a proposition on foot to have her call also at the ship railway wharf at Fort Lawrence, thus giving Amherst water carriage from St. John. This would no doubt benefit Amherst retail merchants by reducing their freight charges. It would also benefit St. John wholesale houses, but the advantages to Halifax are problematical.

The new steamer Senlac has not yet completed her first round trip on which she started two weeks ago. This boat plys between St. John and Halifax, calling at the South shore ports of Nova Scotia en route. She reached Halifax several days over due and started to return with a large cargo shipped by Halifax wholesale houses. Something went wrong with her steering gear and she was compelled to return and her future sailings are uncertain. Some are already expressing a fear that she is not up to the requirements of the route in mid-winter.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Jan. 30, 1904.

THE usual round of jobbing houses is productive of little in the shape of news. Prices are firm in most lines, and trade, though rather quiet owing to the cold of the week just past, has been quite satisfactory.

Canned Goods—The only point of interest at present is a further advance of 10c. on corn, making the price for the coming week $2.50 and an advance on peas making the current price $2.25. Tomatoes are still selling at $2.65.

Green Fruit—The amount of trade for the past week has necessarily been light, but with the change to really mild weather that came with Friday there was increased demand. The only new line in the market is bitter oranges which came in Saturday and are quoted at $6.00 per case. A car of celery from California will arrive to-morrow and will sell at 90c. per doz. bunches.

Oysters—are very scarce in Winnipeg owing to the extreme cold and heavy ice about Baltimore preventing the tugs getting in shore with the oyster tows. Under date of January 25th one of the large shipping firms of Baltimore wrote their customers here that they were unable to get any selects at all owing to the heavy ice preventing the boats making a landing. Apparently Manitoba does not have all the cold weather that is going.

MR. STEPHEN HUSTWITT.

Winnipeg and Western agent for T. H. Estabrooks, (Red Rose Teas) St. John, N.B.

Mr. Hustwitt, who has just returned to Winnipeg, after being present at the opening of the new Red Rose Tea Warehouse at St. John, N. B., was the first to introduce Red Rose Tea in the West, and has built up a fine connection. Although Mr. Hustwitt has been in the West only a few years, he is an enthusiastic Westener and has great confidence in the future of Winnipeg.

Winnipeg is getting ready for the annual bonspiel, which promises to be as good as ever. The committees have been successful in arranging for plenty of ice and the city rinks have been busy for more than a month playing down for the "spiel."

Travellers will begin to round up from trips with fall samples and will be in the city during the 10 days of the bonspiel. It is likely that more than the usual buying will take place this year, as more and more country merchants like to go through the houses and make selections for themselves. This applies more especially to the dry goods trade but is true to some extent of all. Even if no buying were done the jobbing houses would consider the time well spent in entertaining country merchants, as it always leads to more trade later on. There are a number of new warehouses since last February and these will be objects of attraction to men from outside. Merchants, jobbers, indeed men in all lines of business regard the annual bonspiel as a most desirable feature of the winter programme and great would be the groaning if for any reason it were omitted. It entails an enormous amount of work on the comparatively few men that make themselves responsible for its success, but they certainly have the satisfaction of knowing that they contribute largely to the extension of trade in the city.

Archibald Patterson of Ridgetown, Ontario, was brought up in the Winnipeg police court during the week for infringement of the "Fruit Marks Act" and fined $9 and costs. In a carload of apples 22 barrels were falsely marked as XXX and 14 barrels were falsely packed. Mr. Philp, the fruit inspector, laid the information.

Mr. Troop when seen by your correspondent professed himself as delighted with the prospects in the west.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade will be held to-morrow, the 2nd, and the retiring president, Mr. G. R. Crowe, has invited the members of the board to a dinner to follow the meeting. This is an old established custom. Mr. Crowe is the president and manager of the Northern Elevator Company, and about the 20th of the month will sail from New York for Naples, with his family to spend six months on the continent and in Great Britain.

The Winnipeg Clearing House Association has been thoroughly re-organized and now bids fair to be a working proposition. Practically all city members of the grain exchange have joined the association and at a recent meeting it was resolved that beginning with February 1st all transactions of members should go through the house. The option market opened for business, however on Wednesday of the past week and on Saturday a call board was established and business is now under way. The older members of the exchange express themselves as hopeful that this time the Clearing House Association will be a success. The prospects were never so bright before.

The postponed annual meeting of the exchange will be held to-day.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

This Week's Illustration.

THIS Oriental window was intended for the display of coffees and was built by Mr. J. E. Whiteside for Fred Carne, Jr., Victoria, B. C. The window is 12 feet long by 3½ feet deep and while not being perfectly adapted either by depth or the smallness of the panes for the best effects in window dressing. Mr. Whiteside has brought the science of arranging an attractive window to the point where he seldom fails to have something tasty and artistic. In this window he has built a framework at the back five feet high and covered it with Oriental drapes and curtains. In the centre a divan is curtained off by hanging drapes from a curved piece of wood ¼ inch by 1½ inches by 10 feet, which projects about 15 inches into the window. Inside this on the floor are two 6 inch rolls of wrapping paper supporting a 12 inch plank covered with another curtain. Hanging against the wall in the centre of this canopied part is a heavily gold-embroidered table cloth, while another rests on the floor or seat. The cosy-corner is completed by two Indian pillows.

The floor is covered with a real Turkish carpet and in each corner is a leopard skin with the heads towards the centre. Three small brass East Indian hammered trays are piled up with roasted coffee beans and two more hold green beans. About three dozen tins of coffee are stacked at the back and a few odd cups, larger trays, a water jug, shields and swords and a couple of palms complete the display which must have attracted a great deal of attention. The fine work on the centre cloths, the leopard skins with heads intact and the other Oriental decorations would be sure to stop anyone passing. These were all loaned by Messrs. Carte & McCandles of Victoria, and could be nothing but a good advertisement to them also.

Such a window is one of the very best special windows a grocer could insert. Everything included has always been of interest to everyone who would happen to see it, and yet, different from the average picture window, the decorations were worked in as part of the advertisement, for coffee comes from tropical countries, which the average mind will not disassociate from the home of the draperies, brassware, etc., which are part of the stock of an Oriental store. And then the coffee was worked in simply in sufficient quantity to take advantage of the attention given the decorations, and not crowded in, so as to detract from the general appearance or intrude itself on the gaze of the observer. This is where the greatest knack is in the arrangement of special windows—the inclusion of just enough stock to get some good from the attractiveness of the window, and yet avoid giving the impression of advertising. It is very seldom that more than a slight impression can be given by the picture window, and if that much is gained the window dresser should be satisfied. The artificial palms are particularly suitable in such a window, but no display need be without them.

A New York grocer fills his window with tidbits that can be eaten out of hand—nuts citron, raisins, etc. He finds that men have well developed appetites for sweetmeats, and that they buy them freely when they are attractively displayed.

PRATTS FOODS.

THE sale of stock food has had a remarkable development in Canada of late years, due in part to the progress made in scentific knowledge of breeding and feeding, and in part to the necessities of trade both domestic and export. Poultry food is an excelent article for grocers to handle. The grocer comes into direct contact with the very class of people who can be led to buy poultry food, namely, farmers' wives; they control the "egg money," and have the best of reasons for doing evrything possible to stimulate the egg supply. In like manner cattle food interests the farmer's wife; anything that tends to increase the flow of milk and to maintain the healthy condition of cows is good to use. Here again the selling of a stock food can be best done by the grocer. It naturally follows that other foods and kindred lines find a natural depot in the grocery store.

Among the widely known stock and poultry foods that bearing the name of Pratts Foods stands out strongly. This food, made in Philadelphia, has been sold for a number of years past by the Robt. Greig Co., Toronto, who are sole Canadian agents. Pratts Foods are known throughout the length and breadth of Canada. Their excellence, coupled with diligent advertising are matters of common knowledge. Mr Greig, of the Robt. Greig Company, has done an immense amount of striking work in the exploiting of Pratts Foods in Canada. Space forbids a detailed account of his advertising methods and literature. His policy is to assist in every fruitful way the agent for his goods to get them sold, and to secure the good-will and co-operation of the customer. One is safe in saying that no stock food sold in Canada or the United States has been more successfully advertised. Any grocer who is interested in knowing what the Robt. Greig Co. do to assist him in disposing of Pratts Foods should he take an agency for them, will find much to interest him upon a letter of enquiry.

The annual meeting of the Robt Greig Co. took place recently, and the directors' report must have been gratifying to the shareholders inasmuch as the profits of the past six months' business warranted a dividend of 10 per cent. on the capital stock besides allowing the carrying forward to the profit and loss account of a nice sum.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

Preserved Fruit Bricks.

A VERY toothsome product of interest to the confectionery trade is in the form of preserved fruit in bricks, which are either rectangular or disc-shaped, and done up in toned tissue paper. They are of about the consistency of a soft gum-drop, and, being composed largely of sugar, they hold the flavor of the strawberries, peaches, pears, plums, or what not, admirably. These bricks will soon be on the market in large quantities from California, experiments in their manufacture having attained final success. They are made by boiling down the fruit pulp to a sugar until the desired consistency is reached, when the mixture is poured into pans, and permitted to dry slowly for 10 hours, being eventually cut into suitable pieces and wrapped in the manner described. They will keep in perfectly good condition for years. Old-time housewives used to make plum or cherry "cheeses," as they called them—the art, alas! seems to have vanished—which were so stiff that fanciful forms could be stamped out of them with a pastry-cutter. This delectable quality of stiffness, as well as the absence of stickiness, was attributable to the boiling, which was brought to exactly a certain point (after putting the fruit through fine seives—in order to turn the sugar to candy. It is the same principle that is used in the manufacture of the fruit bricks, which, when they are to be used, are soaked preliminarily in warm water for an hour. They are said to be almost like the fresh fruit, being readily utilised for pastry and other desserts, and their cost is moderate. Before long, doubtless, they will be for sale in all the grocers' shops. The production of fruit pulps in other shapes has already become enormous in this country, most of them being put up in cans for the flavoring of ices and sodawater. One can buy in this form apricot pulp, peach pulp, apple pulp, pineapple pulp, quince pulp, and various others.

Wedding Cake Customs.

APPEARING in the homes of rich and poor, savant and clod, Christian and pagan, the wedding cake is an object of ethnological interest. Its alluring fragrance, wafted for centuries, "far as the breeze can bear," probably first emanated from the dwellings of those Roman patricians whose marriages were solemnized by confarreatio. The ceremony—in which a spelt cake formed a distinguishing feature—was conducted by the Pontifex Maximus. The Navajo ceremony, a curious relic, handed down from unknown ages, is thus described by A. M. Stephen: "The women of the bride's family prepare cornmeal porridge, which is poured into a (wedding) basket. The bride's uncle then sprinkles the sacred blue pollen of the larkspur over the porridge. This symbolical food is first tasted by the bridgroom, and afterwards by the bride, each taking a portion from the four cardinal points. Finally, the basket is passed over to the younger guests, who speedily devour its contents with merry clamor, a custom analogous to the dividing of the bride cake."

Through Aristophanes we learn that cakes were common at Grecian marriage feasts as early as four centuries before Christ: while many passages from the later classics prove their emblematic importance. Of a Greek country wedding in our own times, an eye-witness says: "The manner of compounding the cake has descended from remote ages, as an inheritance. On one end of an immense kneading trough is a saddle occupied by a boy girdled with a sword. At the other end stands a girl, whose tiny hands must be the first to stir the dough. This odd rite indicates to the bride the advisability of taking an interest in her household affairs, and to the bridegroom his duty of protecting their home."

Among the early Christians, any surplus cake and wine blessed by the Eucharist was sent to the home of the bridal couple for their sole use. In parts of Turkey at the present day, the newly married eat cakes of sugared eggs in a room alone; while Chinese etiquette prescribes that the maiden and her affianced be offered cake and other sweetmeats immediately before the wedding.

Although this mutual partaking of food evidently typified at first the sharing of joy and sorrw in wedded life, instincts of hospitality soon suggested the proffering of the sacred emblem to the guests. Among the Gauls of Cicero's day, "hunting for the twig of laurel in the wedding cakes" was a proverbial expression, meaning "wasting time on trifling pursuits." Later, we find that Juvenal particularizes "the bride cakes, which you must dispense to your bridal guests already well-seated." Old English literature is especially rich in similar references. Thus, Ben Jonson sings:

"Divide the broad bride cake,
Round about the bride stake."

And in Ritson's description of Robin Hood's wedding (1600), a guest says, "I got a good piece of bride cake, and so came away."

Naturally, the social Pepys would mention this pleasing custom. His diary of a Summer's day in 1666 records: "Had a piece of bride cake sent me by Mrs. Barbary."

We discover, also, that the bride of to-day who honors her guests by cutting the cake in their presense is following a fashion centuries old. Among exceptional instances in which this duty devolved upon some other person, a most curious example comes from antiquated parts of Spain. "A huge pasty and a stiletto are placed conspiculously in the room where the bridal dance is to be held. Each guest is expected to cut a slit in the pie, and thrust in a coin. The newly married pair eat a little of it every day, hoarding the coins."

At country weddings in certain districts of Ireland, the priest, after blessing the cake, cuts it into small slices, which are placed on a large dish and passed to the guests. Each takes a portion and lays down in its stead a donation for the priest. Thus does the cake uniquely and conveniently play the part of "best man," in feeing the clergyman.

No wedding cake, no future happiness, is an old and deep-rooted belief. So important an item was the cake in Scotland that the relatives of the bride (among the humbler classes) used to provide only this one dish, the guests and landed gentry contributing all other articles for the entertainment. The Cingalese bridegroom brings to his bride a great collection of gifts, among which, occupying the place of honor in the centre, is a huge cake, shaped like a pyramid, and decorated with bright colors. In rural Bulgaria, also, it is the most noticeable object at the wedding feast, being placed on a barrel of wine, beside which Bacchanalian altar the marriage ceremony is performed. PURE GOLD TALK.

No. 3.

We have a word or two to say this week on Baking Powders. We have a right to speak on this subject, for we not only make a Baking Powder, but we have also spent many thousands of dollars in urging the use of a Pure Cream of Tartar Powder, meaning of course, Pure Gold Brand.

Pure Gold Baking Powder is not a whit behind any high-grade American make. No baking powder, no matter where or by whom made, can be better than Pure Gold. Yet there are American Baking Powders sold in Canada in large quantities, thanks to advertising and quality. Possibly there was a time when Foreign Baking Powders were defensible, but that time has gone many years ago. "Made in Canada" is a good cry, just so long as Canadian manufacturers maintain high standards.

Then, too, there is the question of price. There is absolutely not one cent's worth of value received for the extra sum paid for American powders. Why waste public money for the enrichment of outsiders?

We work in the interests of the Canadian grocery trade, and solicit their trade in return.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

WILLETT & GRAY in their weekly statistical report of January 28th size up the coffee situation as follows:

Further developments as to the actual conditions in Brazil of the current as well as the growing crop support the belief that higher prices for coffee have come to stay and the legitimate position ultimately justify same. The Rio and Santos receipts for the month of January will not exceed 475,000 bags; and as European and American warehouse and "ex ship" deliveries are quite large, the world's visible on February 1st will show a substantial reduction, probably in excess of 500,000 bags. This feature has been generally anticipated and discounted, of course, but looking ahead it is easy to conclude that the world's visible will undergo material reductions from month to month because the small balance remaining of the current crop in Brazil, Santos especially, will necessitate withdrawals from reserves in consuming countries.

Notwithstanding varying reports as to weather in Brazil and its influence on the growing crop, we are reliably informed that the chances are very slight for any improvement at this late date and while rainy weather finally succeeded the long drought it was accompanied by storms that did more harm than good in many districts.

The trade demand has improved and top prices have been paid for usual trading grades, revealing necessity to replenish supplies. No. 7 Rio has sold at 8⅛c. regular New York terms on the spot, and 9c. same terms, to be shipped, but we quote at the close 9c. to 9⅛c. No. 4 Santos is freely bid at 9¾c. regular New York terms.

NEW PROCESS OF SUGAR REFINING.

A very rapid method of refining sugar has been invented by Dr. C. A. Kern and Mr. C. A. Spreckles. It consists of mixing the raw sugar with a compound which separates the impurities from the crystal, leaving only the pure sugar which is then manufactured into the different grades, same as by other processes.

An experimental refinery was built at Yonkers, N. Y., with a capacity of five hundred barrels a day, and has been in operation for the last year. A larger refinery will be finished in June or July with a capacity of three thousand five hundred barrels a day, which will also use the new process, which saves about 40 hours time in refining a batch of sugar.

GREEN FRUITS

Fruit Will Repay Attention.

THE expansion of the fruit trade in Canada is a matter of comment among the trade generally. One need but be ordinarily observant to notice the extent to which fruits generally and oranges in particular are being stocked by the trade this year.

The very high quality and the relatively low price of oranges has probably had a good deal to do with the large consumption. This feature should be a matter of interest to the wide awake grocer. Now is the time to educate your customers to a larger use of the delicious and healthful orange. And in this education the fact should be made patent that the very best grades at the most advantageous prices are to be had from the regular grocer rather than from the man with the push cart.

This fruit department if properly looked after should be a special feature in every grocery which aspires toward the best. It is worth while to make a reputation for your green fruit, not alone for the profit from this line but for the additional trade which will be thereby attracted.

Among the Fruit Men.

HUGH WALKER & SON, GUELPH.

THE firm of Hugh Walker & Son, Guelph, reputed to be one of the oldest fruit and commission houses in Canada, was established in Guelph away back in 1856 by the senior member of the present firm, Mr. Hugh Walker, and Mr. G. Warren. At first they carried on a dry-goods, grocery and crockery business until 1861, when they dissolved partnership. After this time Mr. Walker devoted his attention exclusively to the retail grocery and fruit business and gradually worked up a small jobbing trade in foreign and domestic fruits, oysters and finnan haddies. Directly the Great Western Railway was opened, connecting the counties of North Wellington, Grey and Bruce, with Lake Huron, the fruit trade assumed larger proportions and has continued to increase steadily up to the present time.

In the year 1882 Mr. Walker's son George was taken into partnership, forming the present firm of Hugh Walker & Son. They continued for some time to do a retail as well as wholesale business, the wholesale trade steadily increasing until 1891, when they were compelled to move the wholesale branch into the present large and commodious premises on Upper Wyndham street. It was then that the junior partner undertook the management of the wholesale business, and to such an extent did the trade increase that in 1896 they finally sold out their retail business that both partners might devote their exclusive time and energe to the wholesale trade.

Walker & Son attribute their success in establishing one of the most successful fruit businesses in Ontario to handling only strictly first-class quality of goods. They have gained the confidence of the trade generally, so much so that they receive most of their orders by mail and telephone, customers feeling assured that quality and price will always be right at the Walker house.

The fruit trade has grown wonderfully the past fifteen years. The firm can remember when it took three weeks to sell their first car of bananas. They now handle three cars in one week. All other lines have grown in proportion. They make a specialty of high class California and Mexican oranges, for which they have excellent connections with the growers.

Uncle Sam's Fruit Bill.

THE consumption of fruit in the United States is astonishing when summed up in round figures. Besides the immense amount produced within their borders they imported in 1902 fruit to the value of $21,500,000, while thirty years previous to that time importations amounted to $13,000,000. In 1870 only $3,000,000 were imported. The imports of bananas alone into the United States in 1902 amounted to $7,300,000, drawn from the following sources: British West Indies, $3,400,000; Costa Rica, $1,500,000; Honduras, $700,000; Colombia, $560,000; and only $530,000 from Cuba, against $1,500,000 in 1892. The value of the lemons, sweet and sour, imported into the United States from Italy amounts to more than $3,000,000. Of the oranges imported—$400,000 worth—the preference is given those from the British West Indies. Of cocoanuts the United States imported from the British West Indies, $325,000; Colombia, $183,000; Cuba, $175,000; total, $832,000.

In 1900, Chicago received from Italy 15,900 boxes of oranges and 2,150,000 boxes of lemons; from California, 8,000,000 boxes of oranges and 800,000 boxes of lemons; from Jamaica, 800,000 boxes of oranges; and from Florida, 1,000,000 boxes of oranges. The receipt of oranges at New York in 1901 was as follows: From Italy, 2,934 tons, valued at $113,915; from Mexico, 3,900 tons, valued at $136,926; from the British West Indies, 16,925 tons, valued at $444,044; from Japan, 186 tons, valued at $7,751; and lemons from Italy, 72,335 tons, valued at $3 112,308; lemons from Canada, in transit, 1,101 tons, valued at [illegible]030.

As the production in the United States (California and Florida) increases each year, in a very short time the United States will have to look for a foreign market for its enormous production. The production of oranges in the United States amounts to 12,000,000 boxes per annum, of which 10,000,000 boxes are produced in California and 2,000,000 boxes will this year be produced in Florida. The consumption of lemons in the United States amounts to 3,000,000 cases per annum, of which 1,000,000 cases are produced in California, the remainder being imported.

Canadian Apples at Leeds.

Reporting to the Department of Trade and Commerce from Leeds, John B. Jackson, Canadian agent at that port, comments upon the improved quality and packing of the Canadian apples placed on the English market. He says they are good samples of the best Canadian apples, and probably better all round than are offered for sale in Canadian towns. They are retailed in Leeds for $4.25 to $5 per barrel.

Fruits Marks Act.

The Grocers' section of the Toronto Retail Merchants' Association, has appointed a committee to confer with Mr. W. A. Mackinnon, chief of fruit division of the Department of Agriculture, regarding better enforcement of the fruit markets act. The administration of this law at present is unsatisfactory, as in the absence of the inspector of the division there can be no prosecution for violation of the act.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Britain's Cereal Imports.

THERE was an advance to £3,737,957 in the value of the wheat shipments from Canada, says a recent issue of the Times. It might have been hoped that an expansion in our receipts of wheat grain would have been accompanied by a diminution in those of wheat flour; on the contrary, the latter have slightly increased, though they have not regained the level of 1901. Out of the total of £9,722,596 expended on imported flour last year the United States alone took £7,617,041, Canada following for the sum of £1,253.241. Imports of maize in 1903 regained in value the position they had occupied in 1901, the chief feature of last year's trade being the resumption of the premier place by the United States.

Imported oats have again receded in value, but not in quantity, the great size of the home-grown crop operating in the direction of lower prices. More than half of our total import, valued in 1903 at £1 203 928, came from Russia. Imports of beans and peas both declined last year alike in volume and in value. Turkey, Egypt and Morocco are the main sources of the former, the British East Indies and Canada of the latter.

Where Swiss Food is Made..

THROUGH the courtesy of Mr. McIntosh of the firm of P. McIntosh & Son, millers and manufacturers of cereals, health flour, etc., Toronto, a representative of "The Grocer" had the pleasure this week of making a tour of inspection of the McIntosh mills, better known as "the place where they make Swiss food." P. McIntosh & Son have had the benefit of thirty years practical experience in the milling business in Toronto, and have virtually grown up with the flour and cereal trade which at the present time has assumed such magnificent proportions. With regard to their own share of the trade it is no secret that this firm controls a large slice.

Two years ago their manufacturing plant was totally destroyed by fire, and since then they report that they have found it difficult to supply the wants of regular patrons to say nothing of effectually meeting the demands of new business. Plans are under way however for a large new warehouse 100x300, a 100,000 bushel elevator and extensive enlargements and improvements to their mill, by means of which the daily output will be increased easily two fold.

Under present conditions the mill is turning out daily 125 cases of Swiss food, besides 200 barrels of rolled oats and other cereals. When going at full swing their mill uses up no less than 80,000 bushels of oats in a single month. The process of manufacturing McIntosh's special "Swiss Food" from the raw material is extremely interesting. The wheat first passes through a machine which removes the outside hull without crushing the grain. It is next kiln-dried and polished, after which it passes through hot moist rollers where it is flattened and reduced to the flaky consistency of the finished product. It is now ready to be packed by automatic weighing machines in pasteboard boxes and distributed to the trade. One striking fact is that during the entire process not a bit of grain is touched by hand. There is in operation in the mill what is said to be the largest oat roller in Canada, which has a capacity of 15 tons per day. Another feature of the mill is its dust-cleaning apparatus which mysteriously makes way with every particle of dust and chaff after separating wheat from waste.

P. McIntosh & Son manufacture some thirty other cereals, the most prominent among them being their "Crown" brand of rolled oats, "Gluten" health flour and "Aunt Sally's" self-rising pancake flour and whole wheat food. They also conduct a large grain and feed business and are thus enabled to dispose of all their by-products at considerable profit. Their hay business is no mean item; buyers throughout the country gather up no less than 1,000 tons a month which is pressed for local distribution and export.

The export business of the firm is growing steadily. They have already established a permanent market in England for their manufactured products. They are also exploiting in South Africa, although this section of the trade is only in the making as yet. A brisk demand for their cereals has recently been created in the West Indies and there seem to be no obstacles to prevent a very large trade being built up.

U. S. Wheat Exports.

SHOULD the exports of wheat from the United States continue to decline as they have during the past two years, observes an exchange, in two years more she will have ceased to be a wheat exporting country.

This statement is based upon the figures issued by the chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the Treasury Department of the United States. The statistics show that the wheat exports for 1902 were 40,000,000 less than those of 1901, while those of last year were 56,000,000 less than those of 1902, or a total reduction in the two years of 96,000,000. The total exports last year were but 73,263,911, or less than half those of 1901, so that at the present rate of diminution the exports will have disappeared altogether in two years hence. Of course, no one expects that the present rate of diminution will be continued, the strong probability being that there will be an increase very shortly. At the same time the statistics form corroborative evidence that the United States is becoming more and more a consumer of her farm produce. Already she is consuming practically all her own butter and cheese, though formerly she was a large exporter.

Flour exports do not follow the same course as those of wheat. There was a considerable falling off in 1902, but this reduction was more than recovered last year so that the export of flour might be regarded as something of an increase.

Gladstone Flour Mills.

THE Echo Milling Company has begun grinding at their new flour mills at Gladstone, Man. The company is composed of some of Gladstone's most substantial business men, with Mr. P. Broadfoot as president, Mr. Magnus Wilson, vice-president; Ex-Mayor D. Smith, secretary; Mr. W. A. Squair, treasurer. The mechanical work is under Mr. F. B. McKenzie, as head miller, and Mr. Thos. George, engineer. The Good business is principally a question of good judgment. The merchants who stocked up on fad foods were taking chances that their popularity would last. Now their shelves are full of dead stock.

Good rolled oats will always be in demand. That is why you should always have a stock of Tillson's pan-dried Oats. A food, not a fad!

Tillson's Pan-dried Oats

Goldie McCullough Company, of Galt, Ont., supplied the mill machinery and the Vulcan Iron Works, of Winnipeg, the elevator machinery. The capacity is 250 barrels a day. Besides making four grades of flour there is an extensive chop plant, capable of turning out 100 sacks an hour. The elevator along side, which stands 72 feet high, has a capacity of 40,000 bushels; the warehouse adjoining, a 15 car capacity. These buildings are admirably situated between the C. N. and C. P. railways, not 50 yards from either.

The Economy of Wheat Flour.

WHEN investigating the relative nutritive value of foods in relation to their cost the simplest method is to compare the amounts of protein and energy obtainable in the foods for a given sum at market prices, the protein being figured in pounds and the energy in calories, says a writer in the American Miller. A comparison of this kind forcibly illustrates the true economy of wheat bread as food.

In an article on the cost of food as related to its nutritive value R. D. Milmer of the office of experiment stations shows conclusively that foods that are highest in price are not necessarily the most nutritious. Indeed, the reverse is true in almost every instance, the cheaper food materials furnishing a greater amount of protein and energy at a given price. For instance, there is as much total nutriment in a pound of wheat flour as in three and one-half quarts, or about seven pounds, of oysters. However, there are exceptions to the rule. Some articles that are low in price when judged by bulk are not necessarily cheap sources of nutrients. Cabbage at 2.5 cents a pound is low in price, but 10 cents' worth of cabbage furnishes only 0.056 pound of protein and 500 calories of energy, while 10 cents' worth of wheat flour at 3 cents per pound furnishes 0.38 pound of protein and 5,490 calories of energy, and is truly cheap. Ten cents spent for flour would buy more material for building up the body and giving energy for work that could be got from 50 cents to $1 in tenderloin steak, lobster or fresh salmon at regular market prices.

From the foregoing it should not be inferred that bread made from wheat flour is alone sufficient to properly sustain life. While it would probably go further towards doing so than any single article of diet, the human system is so constituted as to require a mixed diet in order to receive the proper nutrients in correct proportions. No attempt has been made to fix a standard, nor probably ever will be, but it is certain that from a standpoint of economy, as well as health, the diet of every healthy person should include a fair proportion of wheat bread.

Flour for Japan.

On February 1 the rate for the transportation of flour from the Pacific Coast to the Orient was advanced from $3 to $4 per ton, but despite that fact, the bookings of space for flour on the Oriental liners running out of Vancouver have continued to increase instead of decreasing in number. The steamship companies engaged in the Oriental trade from this coast expect to carry more flour to Japan and China during the present year than ever before. The steamship Empress of Japan, sailing on the 25th ult., for Yokohama and Hongkong, took out approximately 600 tons of flour consigned to Japan. Her other cargo to the amount of 1500 tons consisted of general merchandise.

Incorporation Granted.

A Dominion charter has been granted to the Keewatin Flour Mills Company with capital of two million dollars and headquarters in Ottawa. The incorporators are A. W. Fraser, K. C., R. M. Cox, of Ottawa; E. C. Whitney, of Whitney, David L. Mather, of Rat Portage; Hon. J. D. McGregor, of New Glasgow; R. L. Borden, M. P.; George Burn, manager of the Bank of Ottawa; Hon. Erskine Bronson, of Ottawa; and John Coates, president of the Ottawa Gas Company. The charter gives them authority to manufacture and deal in flour, to erect mills, elevators, and all other power incidental to the business of milling.

Pancake Season.

When summer days are over
An' the breezes start to blow
That tell us winter's comin',
With its blizzards and its snow,
I'm always sort o' happy;
For although it's cold an' drear,
I know the syrup's waitin'
An' the pancake season's here.

Delicious, thick, an' brownish—
Six or seven in a pile—
With good old country butter—
Don't it make a feller smile?
Jus' loses sight o' trouble—
It'll make him want to cheer,
To see those steamin' pancakes
With the syrup settin' near.

Of course, to other people,
Now they may not seem so sweet,
For different folks have different tastes
Concernin' things to eat;
But when a feller rises
After eatin' maybe ten,
He finds himself a-wishin'
He could do it all again!

Now, when the days are short'nin'
An' the lakes begin to freeze,
When winter winds a-roarin'
Come a-rushin' through the trees,
To me it brings no sorrow—
Nay it's music to my ear,
For then the syrup's waitin'
An' the pancake season's here.

Milling Oats in Germany.

A correspondent to the Muhle states that the milling of oats in Germany is nowadays only profitable under exceptional circumstances. The consumption of the produce by the masses is not great, and in summer sinks very low. Thanks to this and to over-production, the price has dropped tremendously.

Eight or ten years ago crushed oats fetched from $9.50 to $10 per cental, but now the article is sold for $6.50 to $7.50 per cental, although the raw material is dearer now than then. The rolled oats imported from America have been so successfully pushed with the public that the native product, though equally good in quality, is almost invariably rejected, and the preference is given to its foreign rival.

Cereal Notes.

Milwaukee's six flour mills in 1903 made about 1,750,000 barrels of flour.

A London paper says England will never be free from the menace of the Chicago wheat gamblers until Canada and Australia are given a preference on wheat which then, it argues, will be cheaper in London than now.

Little or no Canadian grain has been moving through Minnesota to the seaboard this season, says the American Miller and well-posted railroad men are inclined to think that none will move that way, the Canadian routes having taken command of the business.

RUSSIAN SUGAR KING DEAD.

Leopold Koenig, the Russian "Sugar King" is dead. He began life as a workman, and now at the age of 83 leaves £10,000,000. Some time ago he appeared as chief petitioner for the bankruptcy of his own son, who could not pay him a trade debt.

I FIND that on these cold mornings a little thought mixed with my breakfast makes it more palatable and keeps me warmer during the day.

For instance, the other morning when the mercury threatened to fall out of the bottom of the thermometer, I found my cream frozen when I sat down to the breakfast table.

Necessity has ever been the mother of invention, and I've celebrated a sort of Thanksgiving Day ever since for the discovery I made that morning.

I'm very fond of Chocolate and also of Cocoa. I like the rich flavor and at the same time I know how nutritious they are.

The discovery I made wasn't a discovery, exactly—I simply found a new combination, by using the rich, creamy Chocolate, steaming hot as it was, in place of the cream for my bowl of "FORCE."

I suppose I've eaten "FORCE" in more different ways than anybody else, and I like most of them, but I want to tell you that this combination of the crisp flakes of the world's best food, warm from a quick toasting in the oven, and hot Chocolate instead of cream, is just about the best-tasting thing that has ever passed my lips.

Better try it—to-morrow morning.

There's enough nutriment for brain and muscle in a bowl of "FORCE" and a cup of Chocolate to carry one through a much harder day than you or I are likely to have, and enough left to make us feel fresh and strong at the day's end.

This new recipe isn't in my book, "The Gentle Art of Using Force," but it contains some other good ones.

I'll send you a copy for a 2c. stamp.

Be Sunny!

Yours truly,

Sunny Jim

WALL PAPER

THE PAPERHANGER'S ART.

TO make paper stick to a painted or varnished wall, nothing is better than a little Venice turpentine added to the paste when it is made, or isinglass, dissolved in water and a little glycerine is good; three sheets of isinglass to a pint of warm water, and two ounces of common commercial glycerine. Gelatine will answer in place of isinglass; or the walls may be sized with glue size, to which some molasses or brown sugar has been added. But the Venice turpentine is sure, and leaves no nasty coating under the paper as glue or sugar may do.

Venice turpentine in the glue size for a damp wall, is recommended by some paperhangers. Shellac does not prove effective on a damp wall.

Much of the trouble with paper breaking and tearing is due to the workman stretching it too much when hanging it.

It is necessary to keep the hands clean when hanging plain papers, such as felts or ingrains. Felts or ingrains should always be trimmed, no matter how well the edges may look in the roll. Water stains in such papers are caused by their porousness, allowing the paste to come through. Let the paper get perfectly dry, then go over it with clean water, using a clean calsomine brush. Brush the water on quickly and with a light sweep. When the paper becomes dry the stains will have disappeared.

When butting felts and similar papers, use the seam roller on the seams, but don't try to force the edges together with the roller or you will have trouble with the next length. If you are careful when trimming the edges you will not have to force any joints.

Sometimes the edges slightly overlap in places, but all that is necessary is to use the edge of the roller to gently press the edges into place. Some paperhangers leave a very slight space between the two edges, and then force them up into place to make a perfect butt; but this is a bad practice, as the edges will open or shrink upon drying. If you are not skilful enough to make your edges fit closely, then let them lap the least bit, just a hair's breadth, and then you can press the edges into place.

Don't try to make speed on delicate jobs, especially if not expert at it. Fine work demands time and care and the tools must be in good order, and cleanliness observed.

Never crease felts or ingrains on the board, but fold them carefully so as to avoid any crease mark, which would show on the wall.

Pressed papers should be trimmed after having been pasted, which will keep the edges wet and prevent their being crinkled. Use a brush instead of a roller when smoothing down pressed paper; a brush with three-inch bristles being about right for the purpose. It is seldom, or perhaps never, necessary to line walls for Lincrusta some paperhangers saying that it hangs better without lining. Ordinary paste, made good and strong, answers for hanging Lincrusta. It is not necessary to size Lincrusta before painting it.

Size walls for burlap with a light paste, pasting the burlap also, of course. Never hang it dry upon the wall.

Japanese papers are difficult to hang, as the layers of which they are composed are liable to come apart.

A badly whitewashed wall will hold paper if sized with glue and brown sugar, or molasses size. It is best to lime walls for good paper, as it gives a better foundation to work on, and prevents the lime in the plaster from spoiling the color of the paper. It adds to the cost of the job—but it pays.

Walls may be damp from two sources, namely, from water coming from outside, or drawn up from the basement foundations, or from the sweating of the wall when the air is warmer than the wall. In the former case the water is to be prevented from getting into the wall. In the latter, having a fire in the room in damp weather will do. Or the wall may be sized with water-glass or a resin varnish, or several layers of paper will prevent the sweating.

Very bad walls must be battened and canvas stretched over them. Put the battens close enough so that bagging will be avoided.

MONTREAL'S TRADE.

THE annual report of the Montreal board of trade shows that the number of ocean-going vessels entering the port was 802, being the largest on record except 1898, when 862 ships came here, but the larger average size of the ships brings this year well ahead in tonnage, which was 1,890,904, as against 1,541,272 for 758 ships in 1902, and 1,584,072 in 1898, the best previous year.

The abolition of canal tolls had the effect of diverting through Montreal a large amount of trade which would otherwise have gone through New York and Boston. The vessels passing through the Lachine Canal numbered 6,155 as against 5,276 in 1902; the trade of the port increased correspondingly, exports increasing by $11,000,000, and imports by $8,000,000. Montreal handled 29 per cent. of Canada'a export business, and 32 per cent. of the import. Shipments were especially heavy in grain, cheese, lumber and cattle.

The port warden's report shows shipments of 25,497,707 bushels of grain, an increase of 4,401,839; 2,389,848 boxes cheese, an increase of 379,842; 702,280 barrels of apples, an increase of 234,977; 261,607 packages of meats, an increase of 128,291; 225,408,695 board feet of lumber, a decrease of 10,515,801; 147,574 cattle, an increase of 70,422, and 60,900 sheep, an increase of 15,114.

PROSPEROUS B. C.

A BULLETIN just issued by the Bureau of Provincial Information for British Columbia, reviewing the industrial conditions of the past year, says the Vancouver Province, gives the output of the metalliferous mines of the province at 1,276,000 tons. The coal mined amounted to 168,000 tons. The total value of the mining output was $19,200,000, which was nearly two million dollars increase over the previous year, notwithstanding the strikes which paralyzed the industry in the early part of the year.

With the exception of the salmon pack, which was greatly below the average, all other industries show large increases. The cut of timber during the year was 15 per cent. greater, and the dairying output a third. The fruit marketed showed a 35 per cent. increase, and halibut and other fisheries 40 per cent. The value of the total productions of the province was about thirty million. The value of exports was twenty-one million, five million increase over the previous year.

SAVE 25% on your HOUSE PAINTING.

If the grocers who intend painting their residences next Spring will follow the directions given below and wash the buildings with a solution of GOLD DUST Washing Powder, they will use one-third less paint than if they merely attempted to brush the dust off the house without washing it.

DIRECTIONS.

Dissolve one-quarter pound of GOLD DUST in a pint of water, then add the solution to 4 gallons of hot water; apply with a stiff brush, and follow with use of a hose. The stronger the hose is turned on the quicker and more effectual the work will be.

The use of less paint can be accounted for by the fact that after washing the house with GOLD DUST it leaves a smooth surface, so that the same quantity of paint will go fully one-fourth further. Furthermore, it leaves no layer of dirt between the paint and the woodwork, and, as a consequence, the paint will wear longer.

We have letters from several of our customers who used this method, and after washing their houses with GOLD DUST they were so well pleased with the appearance of them that they concluded not to paint them at all.

Retail grocers will do well to call this matter to the attention of their customers, as $3.00 worth of GOLD DUST Washing Powder will make the house look as well as the expenditure of $100.00 in re-painting it would.

Any grocer may experiment with a 5c. package of GOLD DUST by emptying the contents into 8 gallons of hot water, which should convince him that it will pay him to continue.

GOLD DUST can be used for any kind of outdoor work that needs renovating.

GRANT

$60,000 FIRE AT STRATFORD.

ONE of the worst fires in the business part of Stratford occurred on Thursday morning of last week, when the "Hub," one of the leading grocery and bakery stores of this city, owned by the Barnesdale Trading Co., Limited, situated opposite the City Hall on the Market Square, was totally consumed. The building and stock are totally ruined by the effects of fire, water and smoke. When the head baker attempted to enter the bakeroom, situated in the basement, he was met with a dense volume of smoke, and at once rang in an alarm. The fire brigade responded quickly, but were hampered by frozen hydrants and poor pressure.

The fire had such a hold that it consumed the contents of the three floors, in which was an up-to-date stock of goods, to the value of $40,000 to $50,000, and the building, with the exception of the front wall, is a total wreck. It was valued at $10,000, and is insured for $5,000 in the Perth Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of this city. There is some insurance on the stock, but the loss will be heavy. Fortunately it was a calm morning. If it had happened a few days ago during the blizzard which raged in that city, nothing could have saved a large portion of the business section of the city, and the City Hall, valued at $50,000, would have been endangered.

Mr. E. K. Barnesdale, manager of the company, was absent from the city, and did not learn of his loss till his arrival in the city at noon the following day.

THE BRAZIL NUT CROP.

THE crop of Brazil nuts for the year 1903 is now practically delivered, and accurate statistics can therefore be quoted, writes K. K. Kenneday, U. S. consul at Para, Brazil. This year's crop will exceed the great crop of 1902 by 800 tons. In the first place the United States developed an appetite for nuts that was practically insatiable. Never before were such enormous cargoes of nuts shipped as during this season. All the big orders went to the United States. The total shipments of nuts from the Amazon up to date are 7,734 tons. The most conservative estimate of the remainder of the crop (now in transit) places it at 300 tons, a total for the year of 8,034 tons, of which the United States has so far taken 4,964 tons and Europe 2,770 tons. A brief comparison with the shipments of previous years will show how remarkably this branch of the export trade has developed. The total crop of 1900 was 2, 514 tons, of which the United States took 44 per cent.; of 1901, 2,808 tons, of which the United States took 50 per cent.; of 1902, 7,200 tons, of which the United States took 55 per cent. This year the crop is above 8,000 tons, of which the United States will take about 66 per cent. The strong demand from the United States has held the market firm and high throughout the season. Never before has the market been so steady and inflexible, but, though ruling above the average, prices have not been exorbitant and a fair profit has been afforded to buyers and sellers alike.

SPED THE PARTING GUEST.

ON Wednesday, January 27, the Hamilton members' section of the Canadian Grocers, Limited, met at the Hamilton Club, Hamilton, to tender a farewell banquet to Mr. L. T. Mewburn, who is leaving for Calgary, Alta., to take charge of this important branch of the company's business. Among those present were: A. Turner, A. G. Osborne, G. E. Bristol, St. Clair Balfour, W. Somerville, H. N. Kittson, H. C. Beckett, I. T. Gilliard, R. A. Lucas and R. T. Steele. Unfortunately two of the members, C. Turner and J. Somerville, were detained from being present. The president, Mr. Bristol, made a few remarks voicing the sentiments of those assembled and presented Mr. Mewburn with a handsome suit case as a slight token of the esteem in which he is held by his colleagues. Speeches were made by Messrs. Turner, Steele, Kittson and others, and a very pleasant social hour spent. Mr. Mewburn has had the advantage of many years experience in the north-west as Jas. Turner & Company's representative. Undoubtedly the Canadian Grocers Limited have made a wise selection, and they are unanimous in wishing him the best of luck in his new duties as manager of this important department of work in the great west.

RE-SALE OF MOLASSES.

Jones & Swan, general commission merchants, Barbadoes, have issued a circular to the trade calling attention to a change in the system of quoting and selling molasses. They say in the circular:

We beg to direct your very particular attention to the fact that it has been arranged between planters and buyers that the old system of selling molasses at so much per wine gallon and $4 each for puns. shall cease and that in future all transactions in the sweet will be at a price per wine gallon including the cost of the package. Of course small packages will be charged for separately. In future then whenever we quote you for molasses it must so be understood.

Example—If we wired you that molasses market had opend at 16 cents it would mean 16 cents per wine gallon, cask included, but not any charges.

In order to avoid any mistakes in cabling, please go through our code with you and wherever the sentences appear "First cost" or "First cost not including package or any charges" kindly alter same to read "First cost including cost of puncheon but not any charges," and in a prominent part of the code paste the enclosed slip—thus any mistakes will be certain to be avoided.

REPLY TO MR. BERNARD.

Editor "The Canadian Grocer:" We have noted a letter by your correspondent, Mr. C. M. Bernard, explaining why the Japan Tea trade has declined in Canada. He gives as a reason for this, that Japan teas are so popular in the United States that the consumption there has largely increased. We rather fancy that most of your readers are interested in what kind of green tea is making progress in the Dominion of Canada, not elsewhere, and we do not by any means assert that Japan has gone out of the growth of tea. If they cannot sell it in Canada, we quite understand they must sell it in the United States, for the reason that no other countries in the world drink Japan tea but Canada and the United States. The figures we gave of the decline of the Japan tea trade in Canada in four years—showing a falling-off of from eleven million pounds to four million pounds—speak for themselves, and were issued by the Statistical Department at Ottawa.

We do not at all agree with your correspondent that Canadians are unable to appreciate the difference between good tea and bad, or unwilling to pay for good tea, as is insinuated in Mr. Bernard's letter. There is no question in our minds but that Ceylon and India green teas will displace Japan tea in the United States as well as in Canada, in a very few years, simply because they make a better cup of tea at a given price. We told this to the readers of "The Canadian Grocer" in 1899, when Ceylon green teas were first made for us, and we have been telling them ever since, and the decline in the consumption of Japan tea has taken place just as we predicted.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Saved by a Plug of Tobacco.

THE quest for a reliable remedy for rattlesnake bites is one of the problems that has interested scientists and laymen for many years. It is a problem that has never been satisfactorily solved, unless it may be that a solution is offered in the experience of Henry Stanley, an old-time Montana printer, which is given herewith.

Henry Stanley was a printer in the early days of Montana—the days when compositors received $1 for each thousand ems and all printers were "fat." In the summer of 1866 he fell a victim to that migratory feeling and decided to leave Virginia City and go to Helena. He accordingly set out with one companion to make the journey, travelling horseback.

In the Ruby valley, half way between Alder Gulch and Twin Bridges, the two stopped at noon to rest their horses and eat lunch. The animals had been picketed, and the men had thrown themselves on the luxuriant grass when Stanley was bitten by a big rattler. Stanley wore low shoes, and the big snake struck him on the ankle just above his shoe top. It was a vicious bite, and one that would ordinarily have been fatal.

But Stanley was not an ordinary man. His action in this emergency shows this. His companion killed the snake, and then tried to assist Stanley, but there was little that he could do. Neither of the men had any whisky—a fact in itself worthy of note—and that article was the only remedy for snake bites with which the two were at all familiar. Stanley's companion was at a loss to know what to do, but Stanley himself was equal to the occasion.

Before leaving Virginia City Stanley had purchased a plug of chewing tobacco. It had cost him $3, but he had been setting type for a dollar a thousand and he could afford it. It proved to be a most fortunate purchase.

Whisky he had none, and it was impossible to reach town or camp in time to prevent fatal poisoning. The tobacco was the only possible remedy. That $3 plug was all that stood between Stanley and death, so the printer tackled the tobacco. It was the one chance and he took it. Sitting on the ground, Stanley took out his pocket knife and began carving the plug of tobacco. Slice by slice the plug disappeared, and Stanley ate the slices, swallowing juice and tobacco, stems, leaves and filling.

It took half an hour to eat the pound of tobacco. When Stanley had concluded his peculiar meal he announced that he was ready to proceed on his journey. The horses were saddled and the two men rode on. Stanley felt no ill effects, either from the snake bite or tobacco. He was not inconvenienced either by poison or remedy. Stanley always declared that plug tobacco, eaten straight, is the only reliable remedy for snake bites, and his friends shared his belief.

This story may prove that there is a certain cure for snake bites. It also proves that there were Montanans in early days who didn't carry whisky.

When Children Smoked.

MOREVIN DE ROCHEFORT, who published in Paris in 1671 an account of his travels in England, tells the following: "While we were walking about the town (Worcester) he asked me if it was the custom in France as in England, that when the children went to school they carried in their satchel with their books a pipe of tobacco, which their mothers took care to fill early in the morning, it serving them instead of breakfast."

In England, at the time of the great plague, it was reported that no one living in a tobacconist's house fell sick of the disease. This caused a great demand for tobacco. Hearne says in his diary: "I remember that I heard formerly Tom Rogers, who was yeoman beadle, say that when he was a schoolboy at Eton that year when the plague raged, all the boys of the school were obliged to smoke every morning, and

My Briarwood Pipe.

I KNOW of a victim of slander and wrong,
Whose virtues are great, but unheard of in song;
Whose name, over earth, is an emblem of peace—
Whose mission below with Time only shall cease.

It has clung to me faithfully year after year;
It has brought to me solace and comfort and cheer,
Until it seems now for memorial ripe—
Though only a plain little Briarwood Pipe.

As the fumes of tobacco arise from thy bowl,
Contentment and peace bringing swift to my soul,
I praise thee but weakly to call thee a type
Of comfort and rest, little Briarwood Pipe.

We honor promoters of thought that is best—
We hail with delight all true sources of rest;
We welcome whatever can bring to the old
A placid contentment not purchased for gold.

That influence gentle that calms a man's mind,
Matures his discretion—helps make him more kind—
We long to possess—and yet these are a type
Of some of thy virtues, sweet Briarwood Pipe!

How cheerful the glow that illumines thy bowl!
Men have found much of good in that bright little coal;
Ah! They are indeed of a singular type
Who seek to defame thee, sweet Briarwood Pipe!

Men hurry too much in this short little life!
They Murder existence with struggle and strife!
They reach out for wealth, and accumulate store,
And fail to enjoy it in grasping for more.

Now is it not better to live more at ease,
To make others happy—to study to please—
And leave no estate but a memory—ripe
With kind words and deeds, and a Briarwood Pipe?

What charities grand first took form in the roll
Of pretty blue smoke that arose from thy bowl!
Ah! Thou art indeed for memorial ripe.
Little Briarwood Pipe! Little Briarwood Pipe!

—Chas. F. Hardy, in Topeka Capital.

A Tribute to My Lady Nicotine.

THE smoke is worthy of the smoker is the latter day dictum of physician, general, judge. My Lady Nicotine, the most alluring of ladykind, who for four long centuries has been forced to waste her fragrance on the rebuking air, to vanish speedily in thin air, now sees her reputation rescued, her character vindicated, her position as chief comforter of mankind assured. Vive la Reine.

When this fascinating mistress of the fancy was first introduced into civilization it was at the hands of a nobleman and at the English court. But she fell into evil days and ways when the Roundheads renounced the Cavaliers and all their pipes. Men were forced to worship her in secret, and though the fire of the consuming was great, and the incense ascended night and day, it remained for the fag end of the Nineteenth century to confess the debt mankind owes to the weed.

It was but yesterday that a justice of the supreme court of the United States said he had looked upon tobacco and found it good. It was but the other day that Lord Roberts, mindful of the queen's chocolate on Christmas day, gave the timly hint that tobacco is more profitable for a soldier's use than sweetmeats. It was but last week that the Lancet, the great London medical authority pronounced tobacco as a thing which would do the men good and not evil during the days in the field. The Iron Duke's officers were "directed to advise their men strongly against it," but "the soldiers and volunteers of to-day grumble only when their 'smokes' fail them." It is claimed that the pipe eased the way to sleep when bodily fatigue and mental restless was preventing. In conclusion the Lancet says: "We are inclined to believe that, used with moderation, tobacco is of value second only to food itself when long privations and exertions have to be endured."

The Flavor of Tobacco.

Researches of Dr. Suchsland are said to have shown that the flavor of tobacco is produced by the action of microbes during the curing process. This German scientist has found that the flavor of Virginia tobacco is produced by a microbe peculiar to Virginia, and that the sweet savor of Havana cigars is the work of a patriotic Cuban bacillus. Taking bacteria from fermenting Havana leaf, he introduced them into a heap of fermenting German tobacco, which thereupon assumed all the proportions of genuine Havana. Inversely, the German microbe leavened Cuban-grown leaf into the similtude of tobacco grown in the Fatherland.

The Crop in Cuba.

The crop of Cuban tobacco in the field is attaining a remarkable growth. The weather recently was damp and foggy, and this condition was very beneficial to the growing tobacco. New tobacco barns have been built on all important vegas, those already in existence not being commodious enough to hold the tobacco cut and about to be housed.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
John C. Kirkwood,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Hereinare discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The Rise and Progress of Advertising.

THERE was a time, not many years gone in this country, when merchants relied almost altogether upon their salesmen for the selling of their goods. Stores had their customers who "dealt" there faithfully year after year, throughout a life-time in most cases, and even the succeeding generation kept up the connection. These were the days of shutters and coal oil, when the front windows served only to admit light, when merchandise of all descriptions — groceries, dry goods, shoes, hardware, etc.,—was huddled together in quarters far from attractive.

Such conditions are passing or have already passed away. The old-time store is now mainly a memory. Its disappearance was inevitable in this age of social evolution. The specializing tendencies of modern times operated to the overthrow of the old fashioned general store.

Associated with the new order of things, both as an outcome and as a cause is modern advertising. When, for example, there arose a grocery store to contest the trade of the general stores, the very existence of the exclusive grocer depended upon his ability to divert trade from united channels unto himself. At once he felt the necessity of providing attractions,—in store appearance without and within, in prices, variety, or excellence of his stock. But to depend on these things alone to sustain his trade in the days of his beginning was manifestly not enough, and he was by necessity compelled to ask for the trade of his community through the use of printer's ink,—namely, by inserting an announcement of his business in the columns of his local newspaper. Thus advertising in the generally accepted sense of the term began.

At first these announcements were very formal in their style and it is hard to understand how they ever realized their purpose. Occasionally one comes across these old-style advertisements even now, and they are curiosities in all truth. Between the advertising of twenty-five years ago and that of the present lies a fascinating history. Today it is hard to conceive what new things in the way of newspaper or magazine advertising remain to be employed. The mind is baffled when it comes to contemplate the possibilities of advertising as found outside newspapers and magazines.

There are those to be found even yet who are skeptical of the value of advertising, who consider the money spent in this form of business-building mere waste. How they explain the rise and development of business from small things to great, excluding advertising as an agency, would make an interesting statement.

The advertising department of an ever growing number of the larger business houses is a clearly defined one, under the charge of a trained man—a man who commands a higher salary than the great majority of other salesmen and office men. The sum of $200.00 a week, or even $10,000.00 a year, is paid the advertising chief of a large American department store for preparing six or seven advertisements per week. This man commands this salary, and cannot and would not be replaced by a man whose market value is $4,000.00 or $5,000.00. These seem extravagant figures to us Canadians, but to the American merchant whose annual turnover totals up into many millions and whose daily business is largely dependent upon the daily advertisement, the having of a writer who can say and set things so alluringly that buyers are all impatient to exchange their money for the goods offered, is a necessity. No mediocre man will do. No inexperienced writer, no matter how clever, can qualify for such a position. It requires a man whose work has been thoroughly tested,—a man who has tested his own work, who has felt the pulse of the public repeatedly and knows its every flurry. Beginnings are usually wasteful, due to the beginners. To entrust the success of the day's business to untried, inexperienced, ignorant writers would be too costly an experiment. Hence it is that men of ability, trained and trustworthy in their judgments and methods, are absolutely necessary. Such men are rare, just because the opportunities for their developing are few. When found they are worth having, worth paying. They sell through their talent sufficient goods to earn their salaries, and they prevent heavy losses through costly errors or ignorance.

The writing of advertising is not the highest attainment in advertising. Beyond the writer is the advertising counsellor,—a man who resembles in his function the consulting physician. His office is to give advice to advertisers who plan to spend thousands, or hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in advertising. Fortunes have been wasted in misdirected or poorly conducted advertising campaigns. The advertising consulting specialist is called in to make a study of the situation. He investigates thoroughly every phase of the subject, and at the conclusion of his study maps out a course of advertising to be pursued, specifying the amount required; how it is to be appropriated; what classes of mediums to use; what is required in the way of booklets and other literature, whether street cars and bill-boards shall be employed; what is to be spent for illustrations, etc., etc. In short, he writes out a prescription so to speak and charges for his advice. $100.00 a day is paid for such services to some well-known men. The consulting specialist doesn't carry out or execute the plans he formulates; this work is performed by another branch of the fraternity.

My purpose in writing for "The Grocer" this somewhat irrelevant article is to bring out as forcibly as I can the significance of advertising, and to persuade if I can some of my readers who may perchance view this matter of advertising lightly, that there lies in it a force for expanding business very much worth studying and worthy of employment in the conduct of their own business.

Why not tell your customers the reason they get poor bread and pastry sometimes is the fault of the soda? And why not sell the best instead of giving them the cheaper kind for the sake of a little extra profit?

It pays to be fair in everything, and that's why we gladly refund the money if a package of Cow-brand Soda ever proves disappointing. It's worth something to you to be able to say that. Try it and see!

Wasting Your Energies?

If it pays to push an article, it pays to push it to some purpose and to push more with an object of gaining permanent trade than of temporary profit. If the demand for any article stops when you stop pushing it 95 per cent. of your energy has been wasted.

You waste no energy whatever in advocating the sale of the "Griffin" Brand of Dried Fruits and the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Fish, because people who buy them once will buy them again and again. Briefly, the intrinsic merit of both these articles backs up the highest praise you can give them.

"Griffin" Brand Dried Fruits.

Seedless Raisins and Prunes. Dried Apricots, Peaches and Pears in all their original goodness. A revelation to the grocer who has been buying other Brands.

Seleccted with the greatest care and shipped in original boxes right from the Vineyards and Orchards on the Pacific Coast.

Look for the "Griffin" trade mark before you buy.

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

Canned Haddies, Kippered Herring and Herring and Tomato Sauce. Selected, cured and packed by Captain Austin of The Thistle Canning Co., Little River, N.S.

Absolutely clean, rich, delicate, appetizing. Prepared right at the water side where they are caught. The brand of highest quality and so recognized the world over.

WHAT ABOUT THE "FISH" IDEA?

HOW ARE YOU PROGRESSING WITH IT?

ARE YOUR CUSTOMERS EATING MORE FISH AND LESS MEAT?

IS THE SALE INCREASING FOR "Halifax," "Acadia," AND "Bluenose" Codfish.

IF THE ANSWERS ARE IN THE AFFIRMATIVE, WELL AND GOOD. IF NOT, DO YOU REALIZE THAT AN OPPORTUNITY TO GET NEW TRADE AND MAKE MORE MONEY IS SLIPPING PAST?

EASTERN MANUFACTURED GOODS AND THE GREAT WEST

SOME VIEWS OF WESTERN MERCHANTS

"As you are already aware, the recent visit of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to the West was partly with a view of studying the trade situation. Since their return you have no doubt noticed in our papers that a number of them have been giving their impressions of the Great West.

"It would be now interesting to know what in the opinion of yourself and other business men of the West can be done in order that the manufacturers and others in the East may secure the business that now goes to manufacturers in the United States."

THE above is a copy of a letter sent by The Canadian Grocer to a number of merchants in Manitoba and the Territories. Several replies have been received, and those which are here with printed should prove interesting to business men who are interested in the trade possibilities of the great West.

S. K. Colquhoun, of Montgomery & Colquhoun, Delorain., Man.

In response to your letter re the sale of United States goods in Canada and how the business may be secured by Canadian manufacturers, we beg to subjoin the following, which, in our opinion, after 16 years' business in Manitoba, dealing directly with the farmer, are some of the reasons why the foreign manufacturer finds a market for his goods in Western Canada. The question of how we are to prevent the people buying such goods we will touch later on. I think it will be readily conceded that an individual or community will not continue to buy goods from any place or person, giving such goods a preference, unless the goods in question have merit, either in less out lay of money, or superiority in the construction or texture of the articles.

In the village in which I do business, which may be taken as an average Manitoba town, marketing about one million bushels of wheat annually, I find that the principal articles imported from the United States are binders, wagons, ploughs, threshing machines and stoves. After careful investigation I find that the American binder is sold for $15 more here than is the Canadian, the American farm wagon for $10 more than the Canadian wagon, dealers having both kinds in their warehouses. And they state that they sell two American for every one Canadian wagon, and at a higher price. One naturally asks why? To any man of experience, the reason must be found in the fact that the people believe they are getting a better article. This is the unanimous opinion of the people, else they would not continue to buy an increasing amount of merchandise, at a higher price, did it not pay them to do so.

How, then, are the Canadian manufacturers to retain our markets? By making better goods. We prefer to buy the home product. In the first place let them copy if necessary, from people who have been making agricultural machinery for a prairie country before we knew anything about prairie. Secondly, let them reduce their profits to the minimum, to compete with these people. they, we think, should be able to compete with the preference they have over the American manufacturer. If they cannot get the trade in this way they could by a high tariff. The question to be solved is, is it worth while shutting out these goods that the people evidently want to level up our manufacturing interests. This the people have to decide.

We may say, we, the retail merchants, would like to have the Legislature of Manitoba protect us by shutting out by a tariff Eastern goods shipped in by Eastern retailers. But we do not think the people would stand it. Nor do we think it would be in the best interest of all the people, any more than would it be to shut out all foreign made goods in manufactured articles.

Did the Canadian to-day make as good an article he would have his market. I again point out, it is not a question of price, but of quality. Some reason must be assigned. This is the obvious one.

In my store I sell German goods, Britsh goods, Swiss goods, and American goods. My patrons demand the selection. Each country can do some things better than another and natural laws govern trade as everything else.

Maybe Canada has not yet learned all about manufacturing. Let us hope she may become increasingly efficient and enjoy more and more of the trade which should belong to her.

H. R. Foulger & Co., Lacombe, Alberta.

The manufacturers of the States have hitherto secured an equal share, at least, of the business of the West, in the lines in which they had a chance to compete, because, in some cases, they had better goods, and have still, though not to the same extent, and because they were aggressive from the start and advertised more extensively, but mainly because of the inability of the Canadian manufacturers to handle the business, lacking, as they did, the capital, plant, push and men. Eastern manufacturers have had all they could do to fill our orders.

What would have been the state of matters were no goods admitted from the States, and orders to Eastern manufacturers were increased by one hundred per cent.? The progress of the West would have been delayed, which would probably have raised the question if the West was any good after all, instead of being as it is, the assured factor that gives the whole Dominion its magnificent potentiality.

The imports of manufactures from the States have been our blessing and salvation, and without them we might have had crops which we could neither harvest nor market.

But with increased railway facilties, and the confidence of capital and men of the East, we shall become less dependent on our neighbors, and may without injury, but rather profit to ourselves, adopt a policy that will elimin ate foreign competition.

But it must not be forgotten than we want good goods, better than we are even yet getting from the East, and that our manufacturers must have adequate capital to push their business against all comers, and have confidence in their country. Our best farm wagons to-day come from the United States, and they command a 20 per cent. higher price than the Canadian article. Other instances could be given. And until our manufacturers realise the fact that we want the best goods at right prices we cannot ask a co-operating policy on the part of our statesmen, to oust our genial neighbor from the market.

Fowler, Murdoff & Breen, Wetaskiwin, Alta.

We buy very little from United States. We do buy some goods from American manufacturers because we find certain lines are better made than we can obtain from Canadian houses. We think that if the Canadian manufacturers' Association would appoint a commission to study American methods of manufacture and styles that some practical results might follow.

It is difficult for a manufacturing constituency of 6,000,000 to complete against a constituency of 80,000,000 people. We think Canadian manufacturers must study every detail of manufacturing so that goods can be produced at lowest cost, highest quality and lowest price would be formidable weapons with which to meet United States competition.

We have not given much consideration to this matter for, as we have said, our purchases are almost entirely from Canadian dealers.

We trust the results of your enquiries may lead to an increase of inter-Dominion trade and that more and more may Canada be for Canadians.

Frank Whelpley, Sinclair, Man.

In the country districts the great need is better transportation and lower rates, and I believe it is necessary for the Eastern houses to cover the ground much more frequently and establish themselves in Winnipeg, which will be the great distributing centre.

They should get better acquainted with this Western country. There is a vast field for business and they must push for commercial success here as well as in the East. All through the wheat belt trade is different from what it is down there, and you must be more or less on the ground to study conditions.

I take it that on equal terms and prompt delivery every merchant would buy Canadian goods. When the Eastern manufacturer realizes what is west of Ontario he will hustle. The Americans have and are making fortunes out of our land while Canadian Capital earns from 4 to 6 per cent. in the East.

My opinion is: Cover the ground as often; sell on equal terms; and Canada for the Canadians will close the bargain every time.

The W. J. Binning Co., Calgary, Alta.

We are not in a position to give any opinion of value on the question asked, but there is one thing that I think the wholesale people in the East should do, and that is to give the Western people an extra 30 days on shipments. The goods are all bought on just the same terms as Eastern merchants and they get their goods in from two to five days, while we get ours in from three to five weeks from the time of shipment. Often goods are purchased 5 per cent. 30 days and the draft is here long before the goods.

The Regina Trading Co., Limited, Regina, N.W.T.

In reply to your letter asking our opinion on what "can be done in order that the manufacturers in the East may secure the business that now goes to manufactures in the United States," we beg to say that in our opinion the quickest and best way to secure that trade is by establishing a distributing station at some point in the West.

This country is rapidly developing, and along with that development is a demand for a better class of goods, than has been used by the pioneers, larger stocks and quicker service. The large Canadian implement firms have recognized this, and are following close on the Americans in the establishment of large Warehouses with complete stocks.

There is not as much sentiment about business in the West as in the East, but on an equal basis, both merchants and farmers will give the Canadian manufacturers the preference.

The Best Are the Cheapest

For twenty years the National Cash Register Company has made the announcement that it could sell a better cash register for less money than any other concern in the world. We have never failed to do this in a single case.

We are the originators of cash registers and have naturally been the target of all other cash register companies. In the face of this competition we did a larger business last year than ever before. This was because our 365,000 users were well satisfied with their "Nationals."

Over two hundred concerns have failed in the cash register business because they could not furnish a cash register without infringing some of our 895 patents.

Some merchants are led to purchase low-grade cash registers by misrepresentation. Later they find they will not give satisfaction. If you are interested in a low-priced machine, don't buy till you see our agent. We guarantee to sell cheaper than anybody else.

FIVE THINGS TO REMEMBER. A "National" takes care of

1. Cash Sales. 2. Credit Sales. 3. Money Received on Account. 4. Money Paid Out. 5. Changing Money.

We employ 1,400 salesmen. If you would like further information, send in attached coupon. Our agent will then call. This puts you under no obligation whatever to buy.

Baker & Skelding, MacLeod, Alta.

In as far as implements go we find the farmers here prefer the American manufactured article for the reason that they build their goods to suit this Western trade, while the Canadian manufacturers have not as yet grasped this most important fact in all products of their goods. Some goods that are suited for this trade and are being pushed by the dealers, are as soon as they are well distributed, raised in price until they cost as much as the American implements to which they are inferior by means of poorer material. For instance a Canadian ploughshare manufactured from Canadian steel is much softer and will not wear more than half as long as one of American manufacture. And yet the dealers are charged as much for the Canadian inferior steel as they pay for the better article, duty added.

It is our wish to sell Canadian goods but the interests of our customers compel us to handle American goods until the Canadian manufacturers get a better grasp of this trade.

Merrick, Anderson & Co., Winnipeg.

As a rule we find the American manufacturers pay more attention to the finish of their goods; also appear to be in closer touch with their customers as to patterns and styles most suitable for the different localities.

After all, however, the great question is one of price, and if past experiences of business depression in Presidential years is confirmed the coming season, it will be necessary, especially on some lines of stoves, to reduce present prices. The question, however, can hardly be answered in general terms, as each line presents special problems of its own.

Smith & Burton, Brandon, Manitoba.

We do not have occasion to use many American goods in our business, but we believe the Canadian manufacturers would do well to keep in view the fact that generally speaking people in the West want the best quality of goods and prompt and careful attention to shipments.

The freight on a poor article is as much as on a good one and people here have not the same facilities for replacing an unsatisfactory article as they have in the East. Even with prompt shipment it is a month from the time an order is sent until the goods are here and anything that can be done to ensure prompt delivery and proper freight charges will be appreciated by Western customers.

Babb & Kirkland, Portage la Prairie, Man.

Replying to your circular letter re the securing of our Western business to the Eastern manufacturers :

1st. In some instances the Eastern manufacturers should reduce prices in order to combat American competition.

2nd. In other cases, better class, and quality of goods should be manufactured to supply the home market, and thus avoid the necessity of the retailer importing.

3rd. In cases where the tariff is really too low, and bears hardly on the Canadian manufacturer, making it impossible for him to meet foreign competition, let the tariff be adjusted so as to afford reasonable protection.

4th. Again in particular cases it might be found workable to make the tariff retaliatory.

5th. Adjust the tariff from time to time to meet new conditions.

Curry Bros., Innisfail, N.W.T.

Induce the Government to regulate the tariff, and the manufacturers to supply equally as good articles at the same prices.

H. S. Price, Boissevain, Man.

I would certainly like to see Canadian manufacturers get a big share of the Western trade, but some of them will have to do different, or they will lose the trade they now hold. I know for a fact that the retailers would strongly indorse placing some lines on the free list, as the goods I have in view are only fit for a Jew trade.

The greatest trouble has been in getting goods of all lines, then again, had it not been for United States goods this past season we would have been in a deplorable state, as our own makers advanced prices to such an extent, that we are making a far better profit by buying United States lines.

If the manufacturers will carry the stocks and not bull the market when they have the chance, I think they can more than hold their own.

PROFIT IN MUNICIPAL STORE.

The first semi-annual report of the manager of the municipal grocery store operated by the City of Keno(ha, Wisconsis, for the support of her dependants, was filed this afternoon and shows the city has received a profit of more than $2000. The report shows that during the six months ten families, with a total of forty-three persons, have received all their food supplies from the store, and for these supplies the city is charged with $448. The expenditure for the same purpose during the last year before the opening of the store was $2,412. The store is the firIt thing of the kind ever known in Wisconsis and is under the direction of Alderman Peter Jacobs.

MUST SHIP IN BRITISH BOTTOMS.

UNLESS some agreement is entered into between the United States and Canada, the practice of carrying Canadian goods in bond to ports in the provinces without regard to the carrying vessel, must come to an end, and a lucrative business of American railroads and American steamships running from Boston will be shut off. This has been established by the recent enforcement by the collector at St. John, N. B., of the Canadian regulation that goods passing to Canada from the United States shall be transported in British registered vessels.

"The case at hand was that of a consignment of stoves from London, Ont., to St. John, by way of Boston, the water transportation being by the Eastern Steamship Company, whose steamers carry the American flag.

"Secretary of United States Treasury Shaw has been asked to make some agreement with Canada whereby the non-enforcement of the regulation may be brought about."

In regard to the above, Col. Gartshore, manager of the McClary Mfg. Company, stated to a representative of the London Advertiser that the shipment of goods which had brought up the interesting point had been made via the Michigan Central Railroad. Some months ago the C. P. R. had increased its freight rates on goods from London to St. John, Nf B., 50 per cent., and the McClary Company, of course, looked to other roads for a cheaper ratt.

The Michigan Central agreed to carry the goods through to Boston, all rail, and then trans-ship them per steamer to St. John. At the latter place the collector of customs held that under the law such goods carried in bond through the United States, could not enter Canada unless carried in British bottoms. At the time the shipment was mad? the McClary Company was not aware of this point in the customs regulation.

The present trouble has been settled and the goods shipped from London have reached St. John all right, but all such shipments from Canada in future must be made in British bottoms from Boston to St. John or from any other point in the United States to Canada.

ADVERTISING CANADA.

An ingenious method of advertising Canada is being eagerly adopted by many grocers and other small traders throughout England. Their wrappers for goods now bear an excellent picture of Canada's arch of the coronation year, with a pithy description of its evidences of Canada's resources.

BRITISH IMPORTS OF BUTTER AND CHEESE, 1904.

(From The London Times.)

FOR the fifth year in succession the aggregate imports of butter, margarine and cheese into the United Kingdom have undergone an increase both in quantity and in value. In 1903 their total weight amounted to 7,638,091 cwt., and their total value to £30,169,365, this being the first occasion on which their value has exceeded the huge sum of 30 millions sterling. Comparing the figures of 1903 with those for 1898, we find that in the brief space of five years the aggregate imports have increased by 1,188,871 cwt. in quantity and by £6,852,956 in value. It appears, therefore, that during the last five years their value has been increasing at the average rate of £1,370,491 per annum, and there is no evidence to indicate that this rapid expansion has reached its limit.

Save for the slight check in 1898, the expansion in the aggregate totals has been continuous since 1895. In the case of butter, though there were small decreases in the quantities in 1898 and 1900, there has been an uninterrupted advance in values from £14,245,230 in 1895 to £20,798,706 in 1903, or an increase of upwards of 6½ millions sterling in eight years. The following table has been constructed in order to show the quantities and values of the butter we have received from the chief exporting countries in each of the last four years :

Russia did not in 1903 quite repeat her exports of the preceding year, but the fact that she maintains the second place on the list is sufficiently significant when it is recalled that before the year 1900 Russia was not specifically enumerated.

Besides our disbursements to Denmark for imported butter in 1903, we paid £2,351,401 to France, £2,190,560 to Russia, £1,718,692 to Holland, £1,245,022 to New Zealand, £1,108,980 to Sweden, £866,249 to Canada, £572,522 to Australia, £190,678 to the United States, £65,165 to Germany, and £916,998 to "other countries." Average values per cwt. work out at about 108s. for Denmark, 102s. for France, 100s. for New Zealand, and 90s. for Russia. It would be interesting to know the exact composition of the Russian article.

Canada's Lead in Cheese.

Of our supplies of cheese from beyond the seas more than two-thirds come from Canada alone. Last year the Dominion shipped to us 1,848,152 cwt., representing 68.6 per cent. of our entire receipts. This, we believe, constitutes "a record." In any case it is a recompense to our Canadian brethren for their efforts to send us a genuine unsophisticated article of the Cheddar type. At one time this trade was mostly in the hands of the United States, but they lost it through the endeavor to foist upon us an abomination in the form of "filled" cheese—that is, cheese made from milk from which the natural fat had been removed and replaced by a cheaper and inferior fat. The authorities in the United States acted wisely in putting an end to this suicidal practice, but the fact remains that for every ton of cheese we get from the United States we now receive five tons from Canada. Our imports from Holland experienced a little revival last year, whilst those from France underwent a very slight decline. Australasia continues to be an uncertain factor; and, indeed, the whole of the 1903 import from that source was supplied exclusively by New Zealand. The total of £7,054,305 which we expended upon imported cheese last year comprised £4,823,090 to Canada, £953,215 to the United States, £706,463 to Holland, £168,071 to New Zealand, £113,495 to France, and £289,971 to "other countries." Subjoined are details of our imports for the last four years.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The situation is dull and quiet this week with values generally depressed. Dressed hogs are lower. It is complained that while dressed hogs were costing but 80 cents more last year, lard is now 2 cents and long clear 1 3-4 cents less than this time last year. The range in prices for beef is slightly lower than last week, notably in hind quarters, which are 25 cents less. The same applies to lamb. We quote:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 08	$0 08½
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	0 09½	0 10

Butter—There is no change in prices to report this week. Creamery is meeting a fair enquiry with receipts fully equal to demand. Dairy is coming forward in ample quantities, with under grades in too large a proportion. There is accumulation of the latter. We quote:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 20	0 22

Dairy rolls, large	0 15	0 16
" prints	0 16	0 17

Under qualities	0 12	0 14

Cheese—Nothing new has transpired in the cheese situation. There seems to be larger quantities in first hands than was once believed. There is a steady consumptive demand, however, which maintains prices at the present level. We quote:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 10½	0 10¾

Montreal.

The demand for provisions and hog products has been fair, and in most lines prices are steady and unchanged. Pure lard showed some weakness, and sold at 7 to 7 1-2c. Hams and bacon are moving briskly. The market for dressed hogs has been fairly active, though prices are 25c. per 100 lbs. below those of last week, fresh killed abattoir dressed selling at $7 to $7.50, and country dressed at $6.50 to $7 per 100 lbs. Live hogs have been arriving in liberal supplies, and as a result the market declined somewhat. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 50	$18 00
American short cut clear	17 50	18 00
American fat back		18 00
Bacon, Wiltshire, per lb	0 13	0 13½

Butter—The demand continues active and selected Fall creamery has been quoted at 22c.; Winter made creamery, 20 to 21c. For dairy rolls, the demand is good at 16 1-2 to 17c. Quite a quantity of medium dairy in tubs is on the market at 14 to 15c. The butter authorities are speaking already of the effect of war between Japan and Russia on Canadian butter in the English market. It would certainly give Canadian butter a much more important place in the Old Country than it has heretofore occupied. Prices this week are as follows:

Fancy Winter creamery	0 20	0 21
Summer goods	0 19	0 19½
Dairy rolls	0 16½	0 17
" tubs	0 14	0 16
Finest Fall made		0 22
" fresh prints	0 21	0 22

Cheese—The market is very quiet and there is little doing in a local way. There is still a good gap between holders here and English importers, and it has yet to be demonstrated which side will acknowledge defeat. There was nothing very definite on which to base a price, so we quote the range nominal at 10 1-2 to 11c., but it is understood that a leading concern has been picking up quite a few fair-sized lots held at points in Ontario, the terms of turnover being unknown.

St. John, N.B.

Provisions—In barreled pork the market is rather firmer. It has been very unsettled. Beef is dull and very little moving. Pure lard continues very low. Quite large stocks are held. Refined lard is held firm at about pure lard prices. Hams and bacon, while rather easier are held at quite full figures. In fresh meats, domestic beef is firmer and not so freely offered. Western is unchanged. Lambs are in light supply. Veal is becoming more plentiful and is rather easier. Pork, while so much below last year, seems firmer. Mutton is dull. We quote:

Mess pork, per bbl	$16 00	$18 00
Clear pork "	17 00	18 00

Rolls "	0 10	0 11
Lard, pure, tubs "	0 08	0 08¾
" " pails "	0 08½	0 09

Butter—Supplies of average grade are quite large, prices unchanged. Some good Ontario butter is now being received at reasonable prices. We quote:

Best tub Butter	0 18	0 20
Good dairy tubs	0 16	0 18
Fair "	0 14	0 15

Eggs—Are about out of the market. Some Western stock is, however, about due. Prices high and fancy figures are offered for henery stock. We quote:

Eggs, henery	0 35	0 40
" case stock	0 30	0 32

Cheese—Is in light stock and prices are firm. We quote:

HENRY WRIGHT IN MONTREAL.

HENRY WRIGHT, of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, Toronto, was a visitor to Montreal last week and favored the office of The Canadian Grocer with a friendly call. Mr. Wright, who has lately returned from a business trip to his company's branches in Philadelphia, New York and Boston, stated that he was most thoroughly satisfied with the increase in last year's business. It takes a lot of business to satisfy Mr. Wright, consequently it may be assumed that a very large trade was done in 1903. The prospects for the current year are of the brightest, and with the rearrangement of some essential features of his firm's business and the active campaign laid out he anticipates a still further increase. "It has got to come," said Mr. Wright. "We are extending and developing our trade in every direction. Our plant and warehouse capacity has been enlarged, our advertising department put into thoroughly good shape and it will not be our fault if everybody that eats doesn't know of the excellent quality of our products. The system of demonstrating MacLaren's Imperial Cheese and Canada Cream Cheese adopted by us last August in the United States has been an eye-opener even to myself, sanguine as I felt of the successful results of the innovation."

Mr. Wright is a thorough believer in printers' ink and from the inception of his business has never failed thoroughly and in striking manner to advertise the merits of his goods, or push his various agencies. "Constant dripping will wear away a stone," was the succinct way he expressed himself to the writer, "and constantly keeping our goods before the trade has worn away practically all opposition to a trial of our goods." Mr. Wright has never, as he states, missed a single issue of The Grocer since the day he started in business, "and what's more I never will," and it may be said that his firm's ads. are at all times pithy and striking.

Mr. Wright made his commercial headquarters during his stay in Montreal with Rose & Laflamme, commission and import agents, St. Paul street. Socially he was at home at the Windsor.

INSTALLED IN LARGER QUARTERS

The Canada Brokerage Company, of Toronto, have in deference to the increasing demands of their business, vacated their old premises at 48 Wellington street, east, and sought larger and more commodious quarters. These they found in the fine warehouses formerly occupied by Lumsden Bros., Front street east, opposite the offices of The Canadian Grocer. The new stand of the Canada Brokerage Co. is a particularly central and desirable one, spacious, well lighted and up-to-date in every particular.

BROKERAGE AND COMMISSION OFFICE.

Joshua A. Berry has opened a brokerage and commission merchant business office at 13 Scott street, Toronto. He will pay particular attention to food products. Mr. Berry has been in the agency business in New York for some time and he had, during the South African war, quite a little business in the exportation of Canadian canned goods to that part of the world. What he saw that time has induced him to take up his residence in Canada, as above stated.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS "AT HOME."

THE annual "At Home" of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, an event that has been looked forward to with a great deal of anticipation, particularly by the younger members of the fraternity, their wives, sisters and friends, came off at the Temple, Thursday evening of last week, with most gratifying success. Drawing near Lent, as it is the dancers seemed determined to make the most of fleeting time and the long programme consisting of sixteen numbers and four extras, was punctuated by many repetitions. The crowd which exceeded that at any previous function given by the association was amply accommodated on the splendid ball room in the Temple. The brilliant lights and decorations lent a gaily festive air which seemed to communicate itself not alone to the fair ladies, but even to veterans, grocers and travellers, who, despite the weight of years disported themselves with all the zest of the youngters.

The "At Home" was formally opened by President F. W. Johnston at about 8.45. He concluded a few brief remarks by introducing Mr. J. C. Wright, a humorous singer, who was very entertaining. Miss Teresa Flanagan, a charming young vocalist, also contributed to the programme of the evening accompanied on the piano by Mr. E. Bowles.

In a comfortable corner in the corridors tables were available for cards and there gathered an interesting group of old cronies, who scorning the frivolities of the dance enjoyed the solace of a good cigar while an occasional shout of "Euchred," followed the hearty chorus of laughter proclaimed the nature of the game that absorbed their interests.

The refreshments were served by Lloyd in the spacious reception room adjoining the ball room. Tables were daintily spread and care was taken that only a limited number were admitted, this avoiding all crowding.

The travellers who never fail to attend the Grocers' "At Home" were there in full force, accompanied by their friends of the fair sex. Among the representatives of wholesale and manufacturing houses present were:

J. F. Smyth, United Factories; H. Howett, P. McIntosh & Son; R. J. McNichol, Blue Ribbon Tea Co.; R. Raymond, Lever Bros; Frank Brittain, Imperial Extract Co.; E. B. Nettelfield, G. J. Manning, C. E. THE SALADA-BLUE RIBBON TEA CHALLENGE.

Editor Canadian Grocer: In your last week's issue there appeared an advertisement which was a repetition of a letter, signed by Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt, that appeared in your previous issue. Now sir, the same day this challenge appeared we telegraphed Messrs. Galt that we accepted their challenge, and had deposited our $500 to cover Messrs. Galts' cheque. We accepted that challenge, and do again without any reservation whatsoever, and we put our money up to bind that of Messrs. Galt.

We at once appointed Mr. J. L. Watt to represent us. Mr. William Ince, Sr., having agreed to represent Messrs. Galt. Mr. Watt interviewed Mr. Ince, and they both agreed that Messrs. Clarkson & Cross would be satisfactory to both parties as accountants. Mr. Watt is eager to have the matter gone on with at once. Mr. Ince positively refuses to go on, as per his letter of the 3rd of February, printed on page 37 of this issue, and he says he "declines to be drawn into any correspondence in this matter." What are we to assume? What does conduct of this kind mean? A re-assertion of a challenge, and a positive refusal to proceed, or to allow us to proceed.

We give the parties concerned fair warning that, if necessary, we will take legal steps to compel them to proceed on the lines of their challenge, or to pay over $500 towards the "Muskoka Sanitarium for Consumptives," and, in the meantime, warn you against returning Messrs. Galts' cheque now in your possession.

Fresh and Cured Fish

Japan Buying Salmon.

THE Japano-Russian War is likely to create an extensive demand for low grade salmon. For some years of late Japan has been taking quantities of these fish but the prospect of war has greatly stimulated the demand. Mr. H. C. H. Cannon, president of the United Canneries of British Columbia, who was in Toronto last week is authority for the statement that one of the companies had recently received an order for 300,000 of that grade called dog salmon direct from the Japanese Government. This was the first order of that kind, and seems to indicate that the Government regards the dog salmon as suitable food for soldiers. War, if it should be declared, will undoubtedly lead to an enormous demand, and with war prices we will also be able to send the cohoes and hump-back varieties, which hitherto have found a market in eastern Canada and the United States. The finest variety sockeye, which we ship to Europe, will probably be too expensive, but I feel sure that in case of war the salmon used on this continent will all advance in price. Already there has been a noticeable stiffening in all grades."

Erect Refrigerating Plant.

Wallace Bros., cannerymen and fish preservers on the Skeena River, have bought out the Nelson saltery at Port Nelson, B.C., mouth of the Naas River.

It is declared to be the intention of the purchasers to erect a refrigerating plant near the saltery, and next season to embark more extensively in the freezing of salmon and halibut for the English market. Wallace Bros. have been operating a refrigerating plant at Claxton for several years past. It has proved extremely successful.

To Make Oysters Fat.

The annual meeting of the Marine Biological Board was held in Ottawa on Saturday last, those present being Prof. Prince, commissioner of fisheries, director; Prof. Ramsay Wright, Toronto University, assistant director; Prof. A. P. Knight, Queen's University, Kingston; Prof. MacBride, McGill University, Montreal. Among the subjects discussed was the work at the biological station at Malpeque, P. E. I., and a scheme for the improvement of the deep-sea fisheries in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Prof. Wright reported that very valuable observations on the causes of deterioration in the oyster beds of Prince Edward Island have been made, and a new system of fattening the oysters on lays and on bouchots was being tried, which it is anticipated will materially increase the size and quality of this shell fish. Another meeting will be held next month to map out the coming season's work.

Hatchery for Lake of the Woods.

Executive Agent Fullerton, of the Minnesota State Game and Fish Commission, in his annual report recommends that the State or National Government co-operate with the Government of Canada in establishing a fish hatchery at the Lake of the Woods. Mr. Fullerton says that sturgeon in that lake are caught in large quantities, and that unless somethings is done to restock the lake it will soon be depleted.

Shediac Oysters.

The first shipment of oysters from Shediac Bay, New Brunswick, to Toronto, arrived tne first of last week. The oyster beds of Shediac Bay have hardly been exploited as yet, and for the last ten years have been under the protection of the law. During this time they have been raked only twice, on each of which occasions but three week's fishing was allowed.

The special feature of the Shediac oyster is its large size and fine salty flavor. In 1900 a barrel was sent over to "Royalty" as a gift. Few epicureans throughout the country have had ouportunities of sampling this fine New Brunswick product, but now, however, the trade is to be given a chance to pass its verdict on Canadian-grown oysters.

Hard on Lobster Fishers.

The lobster fishermen on the Nova Scotia Coast are said to be having a hard Winter. The catch has been poor owing to the terrible storms and the bitter cold, and many lives and vessels have been lost.

Winnipeg, February 6, '04.

To the Trade.

All those who read the Salada advertisement that recently appeared in the "Grocer" know that it was intended to convey the idea that the sale of Salada tea was so enormous that the increase alone was greater than the entire tea business of any other firm in Canada.

To permit such a statement to go unchallenged was neither fair to the merchants handling Blue Ribbon Tea or to ourselves. We believe that the quantity of Blue Ribbon Tea sold in Canada exceeds the quantity of Salada Tea sold in Canada and consequently proposed that a comparison be made by a chartered accountant and suggested that Mr. Ince act as referee.

If The Salada Tea Company wish also to compare their increase in Canada and United States (we believe they do a large Green Tea business in U.S.) with our entire business, including The Blue Ribbon Tea Company of Toronto, controlled by us, we are quite willing to accommodate them, and have already mailed a second check for five hundred dollars to Mr. Ince for this purpose.

It now appearing that Mr. Ince is unwilling to act unless the parties agree upon the interpretation of certain clauses in Salada's ingeniously-worded challenge and as this would indefinitely postpone a decision, we have endeavored to state plainly the conditions upon which, according to our understanding, the investigation is to proceed.

If The Salada Company are agreeable, the matter may be taken up by Mr. Clarkson at once.

Salt—Reduced Prices

Having completed alterations and improvements we are now in a position to fill all orders. Our plant, as reconstructed, is the most modern in existence, and has the largest capacity in the British Empire for the production of high-grade Salt.

The improvements made having enabled us to effect a considerable saving in the cost of manufacture, we have issued new Price Lists, showing very large reductions.

As it is almost impossible to secure cooperage stock we suggest that our customers order ordinary fine Salt in sacks. Write for new Price List.

JAPAN TEA AND THE WAR.

THE immediate effect of the outbreak of war between Russia and Japan has been to stimulate buying in Japans. Offers were accepted Monday that were scorned on Saturday. There is a general firmness here and advancing prices in New York and Chicago. The future is causing considerable speculation. The fact that Japans are already very high here is thought by some to preclude the possibility of any considerable further advance, and this might be regarded as conclusive were it not for the fact that Japans occupy a very considerable place in the United States. Speculation is more rife there and considerable advances are not unlikely. It follows, therfore, that there being no duty on Japans entering the United States from Canada any advance across the line must be reflected in our market as holders would find it profitable to sell to American buyers. The extent to which the effect of the war has already been discounted is also a factor which must be considered.

Should Japan be seriously menaced by Russia there is little doubt that the United States markets would witness a very material advance in Japans, but from the opening indications, such an outcome is not at all probable. Looking at the situation from all sides, therefore, it would not appear that conditions warranted any alarming advance in Japan tea at present. Should the war be prolonged and workmen withdrawn from the tea gardens to such an extent as to prevent the proper care of the next crop, that would be another matter.

CABINET HONORS FOR BUSINESS MAN.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER did a popular as well as a judicious thing when he took Mr. Chas. S. Hyman into his Cabinet. Mr. Hyman is the stamp of man we should see more frequently in public. He is a business man, one who has made a success of his private vocation, who is thoroughly in touch wiht the business community of the country, who is accustomed to dealing with large issues and who has the business man's capacity for taking a sane and liberal views of matters brought before his consideration.

As chairman of the Railroad Committee Mr. Hyman did good work in a field requiring exceptional astuteness, and as chairman of the committee for the redistribution of constituencies, he was placed in a position requiring the exercise of the greatest tact, a quality which is said to be absolutely essential for Cabinet Ministers. Mr. Hyman well deserves his appointment. Although without portfolio his practical point of view and business experience will be of very great service to the Government. No doubt he will shortly be given a portfolio. As Minister of Trade and Commerce he should be a success and would undoubtedly impart life to a department which heretofore has by no means been equal to its possibilities. The business world will follow Mr. Hyman's Cabinet career with interest and sympathy.

A POINT ON PACKING BUTTER.

COMPLAINTS are still heard from time to time among the commission men of the careless manner in which butter is forwarded to them. "Pound prints," remarked a prominent provision man to The Grocer, "should always be wrapped in parchment paper. It should be a first-class paper. Poor paper is poor economy. But for large rolls even good paper is not satisfactory and poor paper is abominable. Large rolls should be wrapped in cheese cloth. The grocer should see that this is done in every case. He loses nothing on the cloth which is weighed with the roll, and at the same time the roll is kept neat, clean and in good condition."

Anyone who has ever been in a commission house and seen the employes engaged in removing the battered pieces of paper from delapidated rolls will agree with the remarks of the gentleman above quoted.

In answer to an enquiry as to the loss to which the consignor was subject on account of not packing his butter in a neat and tidy manner as above indicated, the gentleman referred to stated that it was often as much as three cents. It often meant the difference between first-class dairy butter and the nondescript class that is quoted under the name of under qualities.

If to any this seem extravagant he need but go to any commission house and see for himself the miserable condition in which much butter arrives.

TRANSPORTATION PARALYZED.

THE demoralization of the transportation agencies in Western Ontario reached a climax Friday and Saturday of last week when the railroads refused to accept freight, for delivery on some of their lines, and even the express companies broke down and declined to accept parcels for delivery before Sunday or Monday, which usually would have required but a few hours. Complaints of general freight being delayed are common, instances are reported of consignments despatched over two weeks ago which have not since been heard of. The accumulated snow has left behind an accumulation of freight which is almost as burdensome to the over-worked railroad officials as the snow itself. This week, however, should do much to straighten out matters, and in the last resort let it be remembered that the Winter is nearly over and it has been one of those old-fashioned kind, the disappearance of which we have been accustomed to lament.

ATTENTION TO CHILDREN.

A TORONTO retailer who has won a large measure of success ascribes the close grip he has on his wide constituency to the attention he has paid to the children and the youth of the neighborhood about his store.

He has made a hobby of learning the names of all children who enter his store, of always greeting them with a pleasant smile and of sometimes treating them to a candy or some other favorite substance from his stock. As the children grow up he keeps in touch with them as well as possible, even if they seldom enter his store. Should one of them marry he manifests his interest in the event in some way or other.

He does all this as an investment. Is it worth while? He is confident it is. He states that many of his customers are those who have married and started housekeeping since he started in business and that even when they have moved away from his district he has been able to retain their trade as well as their friendship; and he boasts, and that with evident reason for the claim, that he does more business for the size of his store than any grocer in Toronto. His business does not consist in the trade of the passer-by but of the regular "call-for-order-and-deliver" business which ensures a steady flow of trade at a fair margin of profit.

He is not compelled to be ever scheming to secure some great bargain, some line which he can sell "away below cost" in order to catch trade or hold what he has. Nor does he find it necessary to keep his store open the unreasonable hours which take away all the pleasure of business and which frequently take the energy out of a man. He has found his business a pleasure and a delight as well as a means of weekly adding to the reserve fund of his bank account. His customers are used to him. His hobby of attention to them in past years is rewarded with their habit of regularly waiting to give him their orders.

Here is a method of competition which is singularly effective yet never annoying to a rival merchant in the same line. The vital force of being sunny, of extending the "glad hand" to every customer who enters the store, whether it be a mere toddler with a few cents in a jug for some "winegar" or a serious matron with her household needs, is incalculable. It pleases the customers and never arouses the "other fellow down the street" to any retaliatory action, as does the offering of a reduction of 1c. or so on some staple line.

Above all things, do not neglect a child because of some older person. The golden principle of "first come, first served" applies to all regardless of age, even though sometimes not of sex. Some children are sensitive on this point. And they have right and justice with them in being so.

NEW DEPARTURE IN TRADE REPORTS.

THE GROCER has had occasion from time to time to suggest ways in which the department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa might serve a more useful purpose than a bureau for the periodical issuance of thick blue-covered books full of dull and more or less undigested and undigestable statistics. On numerous occasions, the last quite recently, we have pointed out the service which was being rendered the business community by the issuance through their department corresponding to that of Trade and Commerce, of weekly reports of Consular agents from all over the world. These reports which bristle with news of interest to the manufacturing and business community have heretofore had no counterpart in our Canadian administrative organization. The Grocer has urged that this was a proper project to be undertaken by the Department of Trade and Commerce. We are glad to know that the Government has at last awakened to the importance of doing something in this matter and the first weekly report containing reports of commercial agents and trade enquiries has been issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce. This first report appropriately deals with butter and cheese. Reports are reproduced of our commercial agents in Trinidad, Jamaica, St. Kitts, Nevis and the Virgin Islands, and give some very valuable information as to the imports of these dairy products, our competitors, size of packages required, tariff duties enforced as well as giving lists of the chief importers of these articles in the various islands named. The first report is most interesting and instructive. A weekly issuance of such reports should foster a healthy interest in export trade and prove a most valuable innovation.

RISE IN SUGAR.

FOLLOWING an advance in New York Canadian refiners added 5 cents per hundred to their sugar quotations at the close of last week. The notable feature of this advance, however, is the fact that it applies but to sugar in barrels and boxes. Sugar in bags has been advanced only 2 1-2 cents per hundred, so that now the difference in favor of sugar in bags over that in barrels or boxes is now 7 1-2 cents. The reason of this is to be found in the higher prices of cooperage stock and general scarcity of barrels. The effect will doubtless be to increase the demand for sugar in bags on the part of those who are in a position to handle the bagged article advantageously. There is already a considerable quantity of sugar thus handled. It will no doubt increase if the present differential is maintained.

OPENED DEPOT IN MONTREAL.

F. C. CALVERT & CO., Manchester, Eng., have recently opened a depot at 307 Dorchester street, Montreal, for the extension of their Canadian business, where a stock will be kept of their various specialties, of carbolic toilet preparations, etc.

Calvert & Co.'s various soaps need no recommendation, but there are one or two other articles which would be of great service to the public and which will have a great sale as they become better known to the Canadian consumer, such as their 10 per cent carbolic soft soap, useful to clear insects from animals, plants, or roses, to remedy greasy heel, mange, and other animal skin ailments, and to destroy contagion, and also useful for house-cleaning.

Another article which should find a ready sale in the grocery store, is Calvert's Carbolic Dog Soap, which retails for 15c. It contains 10 per cent of carbolic acid together with sulphur, and is especially valuable for washing pet animals, being so preapred that it is not dangerous. It destroys parasites, and will prevent most skin diseases and annoyance by insects.

Calvert & Co., whose address is as above given, will be pleased to send grocers a price list, and give any information regarding their manufactures, and supply literature for distribution, in respect of these various useful articles.

CANNED GOODS FACTORY WANTED.

A gentleman from the United States who has recently taken up his residence in Canada is desirous of purchasing a canned goods factory in Canada. He desires a factory that is equipped for putting up canned fruits and vegetables. The Canadian Grocer will be glad to place in communication with him any canner who desires to dispose of his property.

AN ORNAMENTAL HANGER.

The store hanger lately issued by Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, one of which has been forwarded to The Grocer with the firm's compliments, is one of the most attractive of the season. It represents a large grandfather's clock with two pretty children, one on either side. The pendulum is a package of "Bee" starch with the legend:

"Just ten o'clock the ironing all done,
Mamma used Bee starch, we are ready for fun."

The coloring is a deep red background, mahogany clock and the children in blue. The entire effect is striking and the hanger an ornament to every store. By dropping a post card to Snowdon, Forbes & Co. and mentioning The Canadian Grocer, all subscribers can obtain a hanger by return mail.

PLENTY OF SALT NOW.

A WESTERN Ontario caller at the Toronto office of The Grocer this week was Mr. E. H. Henderson, of the Canadian Salt Co., Windsor, Ont. Mr. Henderson reports that his company have completed the alterations they have been making in their works, and now have a plant of which they are very justly proud. The new building is fireproof and the most modern machinery has been installed for the production of fine table and dairy salt. The process of manufacture is described as a compound double effect vacuum system, giving the Canadian Salt Company a capacity of 16 cars or 1,600 barrels per day. Orders can now be filled without the slightest difficulty, the only trouble now is to get cooperage stock for barrels, and cars from the railroads.

New price lists are being issued which make very considerable reductions in prices of salt.

FOOD FAIR.

The Food Fair at present being held at the S. Carsley Co.'s Limited, departmental store, Montreal, is attracting the attention of consumers. Some of the best known grocery specialty manufacturers are having booths from which are served among others, Bensdorp's Royal Dutch Cocoa, Pure Gold jellies, Borden's Condensed Milk and Evaporated Cream, Chase & Sanborn's Coffees, Kkovah Jellies, Custards and Blanc Mange, Roval Packing Co.'s Jams, Jellies, etc., etc. The attractive manner in which the various goods are arranged and served by the lady demonstrators has advertised these specialties very satisfactorily among the citizens of Montreal. Mr. Foreman, manager of the grocery department, has spared none of his time and energy to make the fair a success.

TRINIDAD COCOA.

According to advices received from Trinidad dated January 14 the supplies of cocoa are coming in more freely and will be plentiful during the next two months, after which a break in deliveries is anticipated. The showery weather of the past few weeks has been of great benefit to the crop generally, but which even under the most favorable circumstances cannot now be expected to reach last year's figures, as the shortage to date amounts to 40,083 bags. It is reported that large forward contracts have to be filled during the current month which is likely to bring about an advance in prices. Exports for the fortnight amount to 8,509 bags, of which 5,130 bags went to the United States, and from October 1 to date shipments amount to 18,741 bags, as compared with 58,824 bags for the corresponding period of last year.

PERSONAL MENTION.

F. Hughes & Co., Montreal, lately appointed selling agents for The Ozo Co., report very satisfactory contracts for their principals goods. Prospects for an extensive business are very bright.

Mr. J. W. Windsor, canned goods packer of Montreal, and president of the Wellington Packing Co., of Wellington, Ont., is in Columbus, Ohio, this week, attending the canners' convention in session there.

Mr. F. J. Castle, of the F. J. Castle Co., Ottawa, is a visitor in Montreal this week. A representative of the Grocer who had the pleasure of meeting him, was informed that business with his firm was good, in fact trade generally is reported as bright in Ottawa.

Mr. Wm. H. Dunn, Montreal, is in Toronto, making the office of the Pure Gold Mfg. Co. his headquarters. He has represented this firm in Montreal for over fifteen years. He reports that the business in Montreal for Pure Gold goods never was better.

Mr. N. N. Munro, representing the Hamilton Coffee and Spice Co., Limited, Hamilton, is doing the Ottawa district. Mr. Munro, who has represented this firm in the Eastern section of Ontario during the past eight years, is an experienced grocery salesman and thoroughly up in all lines of groceries, and in the eternal fitness of things does a good trade.

Mr. W. H. MacLaren, of the Hamilton Coffee and Spice Co., Limited, Hamilton, is at present on his annual tour through Manitoba, Northwest Territories and British Columbia. The business of his company in the above districts is a most extensive one, they having four regular travelling salesmen covering the ground.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Feb. 11, 1904.

Groceries.

THE trade are beginning to feel the effects of the continued severe weather and consequent blockade and interruption to business. There is less of this, however, than might be expected and no serious complaint has been heard as to collections. The railroad service is indeed very bad and instances are reported where goods have been on the road two weeks and not yet delivered. Were retailers themselves reducing their stocks very greatly a greater outcry would be heard. The feeling generally is quite hopeful and trade is said to be, despite discouraging conditions, equal to a year ago. A revival is anticipated shortly. Canned goods are firm and interesting. Coffee developed a remarkable weakness in New York last week and droped from a cent to a cent and a-half for strong grades. The market reflects this slump. Spices are firm execept nutmegs. Syrups and molasses are meeting a fair seasonable demand. Rice is likely to be affected by the war, while tapioca is reported higher. Teas are attracting more attention especially Japans which are affected by the war to some extent. Dried fruits are without feature, with the exception of an increasing demand for prunes. The demand for cured fish is improving. In sugars raws moved up 1.32c. in New York since last writing and American refiners with the exception of Arbuckles advanced sugar in bags 5 cents. Our Canadian refiners followed suit advancing sugar in boxes and barrels 5 cents and in bags 2 1-2 cents.

CANNED GOODS.

The firmness in these lines is well maintained and this week there is no corn offered less than $1.10. Other vegetables are very firm. The report that Japan has purchased large quantities of low grade salmon is looked upon by some as likely to advance the prices of these lines, but no quotable change has transpired. We quote:

SUGAR.

There has been a large business done in raws for the week under review. Just prior to our going to press last week there was a sale of 25,000 bags Cuba centrifugals loading and for February shipment at 1.31-32c. cost and freight New York, equal to 3 5-16c. duty paid. Immediately following that there were several large transactions at 1.32, advance amounting altogether to 100,000 bags at 2c. cost and freight, equal to 3.35c. duty paid. We also hear of sales of about 20,000 bags San Domingo centrifugals at same duty paid basis as Cubans, though owing to the discrimination of the differential in duty the cost and freight price was 11-32c. less, than paid for the Cubans. It will thus be seen that for the present, at least, the latter are getting the advantage of the full differential in duty allowed them by the treaty. The market maintains its firmness with further occasional sales of Cubans, for shipment on basis of 2c. cost and freight which seems to be the settled value of the article in the market at the present time, although we understand some sales have been made for March shipment at 1.32c. more, say at the equivalent of 3 3-8c. duty paid. European prices have shown some fluctuations for the week, beet sugar advancing 3d. per cwt. in one day to 7s. 11 1-2d. for 88 per cent basis f.o.b. Hamburg, February shipment. The advance is attributed to Paris speculators covering. Since then this gain has been entirely lost, price reacting to 7s. 8 1-4d. and advancing again to 7s. 9d. which remains the nominal quotation as we go to press.

For week ending February 3rd receipts at United States Atlantic ports were 46,228 tons, meltings 29,000 tons and stocks were thereby increased 17,228 tons to a total of 95.555 tons. Combined stocks of United States and Cuba to February 3 were 189,555 tons, or 60,083 tons less than same time last year. There are 155 central factories grinding in Cuba, being 10 less than the corresponding week last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 3,558,555 tons, being an increase of 131,497 tons over 1903.

American refined has been in fair demand for the week at steady prices, and on Tuesday, 9th inst. all refiners with the exception of Arbuckle advanced sugars packed in 100-lb. bags 5c. per 100 lbs. Our local refined market has followed recent tendency in New York and on Thursday, 4th inst., all sugars in barrels and boxes were advanced 5c. per cwt. and in bags 2 1-2c. per cwt. We amend quotations as follows:

" in 100-lb. "	4 63

Redpath's granulated	4 08

Granulated and yellow, 100-lb. bags, 7½c. less than bbls.

COFFEES.

The feature of the week was the collapse in the bull movement which has controlled the coffee markets since last September. The break is said to have been precipitated by speculators taking profits. As many outsiders have of late come into the market and as these were in many cases holders of cotton, the slump in cotton as well put them in a very weak position. Sugar interests are also said to have been interested in bearing the market with the view of securing cheap coffee. As a result the market has been depressed from a cent to a cent and a-half in New York and is at present writing quite unsettled. Little is held, that is of Rios and Santos in Canada, many considerable lots having been recently disposed of. We reduce quotations as below. We quote:

SPICES

Enquiry among the trade this week discloses no feature of particular interest. All kinds of spices are holding firm with the exception of nutmegs, which, contrary to recent expectations, have eased off a little. Cable advices from the East report cloves rather firmer. We quote:

Is this not a clear acceptance of the "Salada" challenge, if it is not, WHAT DOES IT MEAN? And if it is, why do they want to argue about it? Why will the "Blue Ribbon Co." through its appointed representative, Mr. Ince, not abide by it, and place it in the hands of the firm of accountants that Mr. Ince plainly stated would be agreeable to them to get at the figures.

There also appeared in the issue of this paper of January 29, page 24, the following challenge from Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt:

THE CANADIAN GROCER,—We note that the last issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER contains an advertisement of Salada Tea Co., of Toronto, in which they offer to donate five hundred dollars to any charitable institution if the increase in the sale of Salada tea during the past year does not equal the entire tea sales of any other firm in Canada.

While deprecating this method of drawing attention to our business, we cannot allow such a statement to go unchallenged. If The Salada Tea Co. really think that there is a greater demand in Canada for their packets than there is for Blue Ribbon Tea, we would be glad to have the sales of Salada and Blue Ribbon for 1903 investigated by a chartered accountant. If his decision is in favor of Salada we will pay all expenses and donate five hundred dollars to any charity The Salada Tea Co. may name. Should the investigation prove that there is a greater sale in Canada (we don't do business in the United States so must exclude that territory) to Blue Ribbon than there is of Salada, The Salada Tea Co. shall pay the expenses of the investigation and donate five hundred dollars to the Winnipeg General Hospital.

W e enclose our cheque for five hundred dollars, drawn in favor of Wm. Ince, of the firm of Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, and will be quite satisfied, if agreeable to The Salada Tea Co., to have Mr. Ince arrange details of the investigation. We are also willing that THE CANADIAN GROCER should publish the figures when ascertained. G. F. & J. GALT.

Winnipeg, Jan. 19, 1904.

This is another challenge entirely different from the one above. This time it is a challenge from Messrs. Galt, Winnipeg, mentioning entirely different matter to be decided. We accepted this challenge and deposited another $500 with THE CANADIAN GROCER. We demand that this also shall be gone on with at once.

The head of the firm of Messrs. Galt being the president of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., the SALADA people wired Messrs. Galt as follows:

G. F. & J. GALT, Winnipeg, Man. Toronto, January 30, 1904.

Note you accept our challenge published GROCER. We also accept challenge contained in your letter published GROCER, and have handed GROCER two cheques five hundred dollars each. Have asked Mr. Watt to confer with Mr. Ince and arrange to proceed at once.

P. C. LARKIN & CO.

And received the following reply:

P. C. LARKIN & Co., Toronto. Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 1, 1904.

Glad you intend to accept our proposition, wiring Ince to-day. G. F. & J. GALT.

We, having on the 26th, asked Mr. J. L. Watt, of Messrs. Watt & Scott, Toronto, and Watt, Scott & Goodacre, of Montreal, to act for us. Mr. Watt wrote to Mr. Wm. Ince, Sr., as follows:

WILLIAM INCE, SR., ESQ., City. February 1, 1904.

Dear Sir,—Referring to the subject of our conversation in my interview with you on Saturday, Messrs. P. C. Larkin & Co. wired Messrs. G. F. & J. Galt that they noted their acceptance by Blue Ribbon Tea of the challenge published by the Salada Tea Co. in CANADIAN GROCER, and that Salada Co. also accepted the challenge published by Messrs. Galt in the last issue of the same paper, and Messrs. Galt have wired Messrs. P. C. Larkin & Co. in reply as follows: "Glad you intend to accept our proposition, wiring Mr. Ince to-day."

In view of the above, and that in my conversation with you I mentioned Messrs. Clarkson & Cross as a firm of accountants in whom both parties would have the utmost confidence to make the investigations, and this name having met with your entire approval, I now ask if you will please authorize this firm to proceed at once with the investigation, of both Salada's challenge accepted by Blue Ribbon, and Salada's acceptance of the challenge made in Messrs. Galts' letter; a copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER containing both challenges to be handed to the accountants with instructions to proceed in each case on the lines indicated in the respective challenges.

A prompt answer will oblige. Yours respectfully, (Signed), J. L. WATT.

You see our representative's only desire is to go ahead by placing the matter in the hands of the accountants.

Mr. Ince replied as follows:

J. L. WATT, ESQ., Toronto. Toronto, 2nd February, 1904.

Dear Sir,—I have your favor of yesterday, and in reply beg to say, that I must respectfully decline to take any action whatever in reference to the question of the sales of "Salada" and "Blue Ribbon" Teas, until a definite understanding is come to between the two Companies.

The challenge of The Salada Company reads as follows:—"We believe our increase alone in sales of 'Salada' Ceylon Tea in the past year over our sales in 1902 was GREATER THAN THE ENTIRE TEA BUSINESS of any other wholesale firm in CANADA, IN EITHER PACKET or BULK tea."

This refers, of course, to Salada in Canada only; indeed, "in Canada" is underlined and is a challenge to all the wholesale houses in Canada, and in Canada only, and this is the challenge which it appears to me The Blue Ribbon Company accept. You might ascertain from The Salada Company whether I am correct in my interpretation, and if I am I will submit it to The Blue Ribbon Company, and see whether it accords with their views. Yours very truly, WM. INCE.

But evidently Mr. Ince's instructions are different, and there is an evident desire to open up an argument instead of going ahead with the investigation.

WILLIAM INCE, SENIOR, ESQ., City. February 3, 1904.

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your favor of 2nd inst.

The position appears to be that a challenge was published in THE CANADIAN GROCER by The Salada Co. on January 15th and subsequent issues; that on page No. 25 of the last issue of THE GROCER, Blue Ribbon Tea published an announcement of their acceptance of the Salada's published challenge.

As we were agreed that Messrs. Clarkson & Cross were quite acceptable to both companies to conduct the investigation, there appears nothing to be done but to instruct them to proceed, and your declining to do so would constitute a default and The Salada Company would claim the deposit on behalf of certain charitable institutions.

The position appears to be equally simple with regard to Messrs. Galts' challenge published on page No. 24 of the last issue of THE GROCER and which The Salada Co. have accepted, and as we are agreed as to the accountants, there is nothing further to be done but to have your friends (if they have not already done so) deposit another cheque for five hundred dollars against Salada's second cheque and order the investigation to be made. I am, Yours very respectfully, J. L. WATT.

Our representative shows his determination that the matter shall proceed and practically says that there is no excuse on the part of Mr. Ince for not proceeding at once.

J. L. WATT, ESQ., Toronto. Toronto, 3rd February, 1904.

Dear Sir,—I have your favor of yesterday and have nothing to add, further than to inform you that I adhere to the position I have taken. I would remind you, however, that you have no authority whatever from me to engage anyone to conduct an investigation. The position I have taken would not constitute a default as you seem to think.

I would beg to say that I decline to be drawn into a correspondence in this matter. Yours very truly, WM. INCE.

Mr. Ince accepted the position as Messrs. Galts' representative, continues their representative, but declines to act, and prevents our representative, Mr. Watt, from engaging anyone to conduct the investigation.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The demand for syrups, especially in small packages, is very good. A scarcity of pails is complained of by producers, especially since the Cane factory was burned out. One firm has had a car of pails stuck in a snow drift for two weeks. There is a fair ordinary demand for molasses for cooking purposes. A small concession is made in Barbadoes. This is a line which occupies but a small place in the trade here. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The war between Russia and Japan is looked upon as likely to affect the price of rice, not alone Japan but other grades as well. The extent to which it will be affected, however, will depend largely upon the fortune of the war and the probability of it extending over any length of time. Tapioca is higher, and although no change is made, our quotations may be considered firm. We quote:

TEAS.

The only notable change in the tea situation this week is the freer disposition to purchase Japans since the outbreak of the war. Bids on teas that could not be had last week were freely given Monday and actual sales made on this basis. The war, it is thought, would have no great effect on Japans in Canada for some months to come but for the fact that all Japan teas held in Canada are available for the U. S. market, and advances which have and will take place in Chicago and New York will be reflected here, although we may continue to sell on a lower basis by at least the amount of freight between here and American points, there being no duty. No change is reportable in Ceylons and Indians except that buying is a little more general. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

There is little change locally to be reported as to dried fruits. There is a little better demand for prunes, but not yet what should be at this time of year. A cable on Monday from Patras reports that the currant market is holding about firm, with very narrow fluctuations, the actual price for export being 3d. lower than a week ago, owing to a more favorable rate of exchange. Shelled walnuts continue to rise. E. M. Dadelsyen & Co.'s report received Monday by Watt & Scott states that the high prices are very largely due to speculative buying, one firm in the last fortnight having taken some 7,000 cases and were still buying. E. M. Dadelyen & Co. report that there is still considerable stock in producers' hands and it is a mere question as to whether the large demand that undoubtedly exists from America will sustain the present high prices till the advent of the new crop. Other reports, and particularly one from the firm doing the buying previously referred to, state positively that Chaberts will soon be exhausted. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Receipts of new laid continue to be very small and are not a feature in the market. Thirty-five cents is freely paid by commission men. Selected cold storage have been moved up 2 cents to 34, while cold storage ordinary and pickled are on a uniform basis of 32. There is talk of a 35 cent rate all round, and is not unlikely before things become better, which from the present outlook cannot be much before ten days or two weeks. The market is practically bare. This is a year in twenty, one dealer remarked. There are plenty of retailers in the city who have not an egg in their store. We quote:

Green Fruits.

So long as the extreme cold and poor transportation facilities continue the fruit trade will remain dull. Oranges are plentiful, and stocks are of first-class quality. California navels are easier in price. There are fewer Florida oranges to be seen on the market than last week. Jamaica oranges are becoming more scarce. Lemons are scarce and a little firmer in price; frost damaged stocks are being slowly used up. Japanese tangarines are firmer. Almeria grapes are scarce and firmer in price. Demand for California grape-fruit is not so great as for Bahama grown. Cranberries are easier. Bananas are firmer. Our quotations are:

Vegetables.

The demand for roots and vegetables of every variety is brisk, but supplies are hard to obtain. Vegetable marrows and butter squash are out of the market. A stray package or two of sweet potatoes have appearaed on the market. Canadian celery is almost impossible to obtain; California stock is becoming more plentiful. Hubbard squash are scarce and have doubled in price. Rhubarb is 25c. easier. Spanish onions are 50c. firmer. Leeks are 10c. firmer. Our quotations are:

Seeds.

On account of the impassable state of the country roads, and the railway tie-up resulting from the recent snow-storms, deliveries are uncertain, and the market quiet. Last week's quotations remain unchanged. Fancy seed is scarce and brings a higher price than the varieties quoted below. Our quotations are:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Manitoba and Ontario wheat are higher this week, partly on account of the war excitement and partly because the heavy storms have demoralized traffic. Manitoba No. 1 hard is 1½c. firmer. No. 1 and No. 2 Northern are each 2½c. firmer. Red wheat has advanced 3c, and white wheat the same. Barley is 2c. firmer. Oats are ½c. firmer. Buckwheat has advanced 2c. We quote:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, February 11, 1904.

Groceries.

BUSINESS in general groceries has continued to be quite satisfactory, when it is considered that the state of the country roads is still such as greatly to delay deliveries of goods. The travellers, too, are much hampered in their work, and may of them are only covering half their regular routes. The most interesting feature of the market during the week has been the advance in sugar, and the change in the prices of barrels and bags, the latter being now proportionately cheaper.

In spite, however, of the bad storms and extremely cold weather trade is about up to that of last year in the matter of buying for future delivery. Orders for Spring delivery are fully as satisfactory as last year.

With the approach of the Lenten season, the fish market has begun to display much more activity than during the previous weeks, and there is at present quite a satisfactory trade doing, particularly in green cod. Green fruits form one of the quietest lines, and foreign dried fruits are not active either.

In dairy products and provisions there has not been a very brisk trade, though all things considered it has at least come up to expectations.

Teas have sold well, showing some improvement over the weeks previous. Japans especially have been in demand. Coffee and spices have not been especially active. The former is lower in New York, but no change has been made here. Spices are firm though quiet. Quotations on lobsters are included in our markets this week, and opening prices are as high on the average as the closing prices of last year, with but little probability so far as can be judged at this date of their being much lower.

SUGAR.

Refined sugar in barrels has advanced 5c. The advance in bags amounts to only 2 1-2c., in order to promote the sales of sugar in this form. The market has gathered strength in sympathy with conditions on the foreign markets for the raw article. This makes a difference of 7 1-2c. between barrels and bags instead of 5c. as formerly, granulated in barrels being quoted at $4. This week, and in bags at $3.92 1-2. Prices this week are as follows:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There has been no quotable change during the week in either of the above. There is a fair demand at the reduction of a week ago, and the market is easy. There is a fairly good demand for corn syrups. We quote:

TEA.

Reports gathered on the street this week indicate much better business being done in all grades of teas. There have been several very large lines turned over and brokers report the demand in Japan trading has been somewhat more active, whether this is attributable to the situation in the East is not made apparent. In Ceylon and Indian greens it is reported that some of the samples to hand during the last few weeks are not up to the standard, and the opinion is expressed that unless the same attention is paid to these teas now that there was when they were first introduced, that buyers will be chary in handling them. It is claimed that the liquoring qualities is not what it should be, and the light flaky style is also condemned. The London market is reported inactive, although prices are held firm. We quote as follows:

COFFEE.

New York reports are for much lower prices, the bear movement instituted by the sugar trust seems to have forced prices down from a cent to one and a-half on the lower grades. The mild grades are still unappreciably affected locally. The drop has had no noticeable results, the feeling being that prices will continue strong and the market firm. We quote as follows:

SPICES.

LOBSTERS.

The prices for new pack have opened up, and are fully as high as the closing prices of last year, and there are no indications that lower prices may be expected. So far as can be ascertained, in all the markets, including United States, England, as well as on the Continent, stocks of lobsters are very well cleared out. In Canada there are practically none held, which leaves an open field for new pack, and it is almost certain with these large markets to supply prices cannot get lower. Brokers' quotations for new goods are as follows:

Flats, ½-lb., cases 8 doz	14 50 15 50
" 1-lb., " 4 "	14 00 15 00

From the present prospects in reports to hand, it is almost probable that outside prices will be easily obtained.

CANNED GOODS.

The situation this week in canned goods is unchanged. The demand for corn continues, enquiries from Western and other points are steady, the price, $1.05 and no sellers. Other lines of canned goods unchanged, only about the usual business of this season being done. We quote as follows:

Enameline Paste you know.

It has stood the test of time, and has a larger sale than all other Stove Polishes COMBINED.

Enameline Liquid. Some people prefer this form. It is the largest package for 10c. on the market, and the best value.

Note particularly Enameline Liquid is absolutely safe to use. It is fire-proof.

NO DRYING UP. NO WASTE. NO RUST.
NO ODOR. NO DUST.

It is guaranteed by the manufacturers, money back if not satisfactory.

You want the best value your money will purchase. Then why buy cheap, trashy washing compounds that will drive your customers to your competitors, when you can secure an old reliable Soap Powder such as BABBITT'S which not only pleases your customers but will draw new trade to your store.

Buy Borden's Eagle Brand Milk.

It is to our mutual interest that you should do so. We will both be the losers if you continue to experiment with other brands.

We want your trade; your customers want Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk and Borden's Peerless Brand Cream.

There is a good demand for green cod, which is selling at an advance of from 25 to 50c. per 200 lbs. Boneless cod is also higher by 1-2c. per pound block. Herrings are plenty and prices easy. There is, however, no change as yet. No. 1 large cod is 25c higher. Canadian kippered herring are quoted at an advance of 10c. per dozen. Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Feb. 6, 1904.

WE have made a record during the first month of the year, both for cold weather and for snow. Business is very quiet. The weather has caused it to be even more quiet than usual at this season, particularly in the country districts. There is to be an election here shortly to fill the vacancy caused by the retiring of the Hon. A. G. Blair. This causes some interest. It is a question if there would be any opposition as there will so shortly be a general election, but for the strong feeling here against the Grand Trunk Pacific bill. Not that our people are opposed to another transcontinental railway, but they fear Grand Trunk means Portland, Maine, for a Winter port. This with some other features not approved creates quite an opposition to the present plan. The Hon. Geo. E. Foster last week addressed a large meeting on the Chamberlain scheme. A resolution was unanimously adopted supporting Mr. Chamberlain's position. In markets the lack of business causes lack of news. There is a general feeling of strength. Cloves, pimento and cream of tartar are firm. Hops are very firm.

Oil—In burning oil the high prices are continued. Sales are not so large as the season advances. Lubricating oils are being pushed and free sales are reported. Prices are firm. In paint oils, linseeds continue low. Turpentine, which has ruled quite high, has again advanced. Fish oil is firm.

Salt—The high freights charged this season by the Winter port steamers causes prices to be firmly held at full figures. Demand is somewhat quiet, stocks are large. At this season there is little interest in fine salt.

Canned Goods—Prices are firmly held. Sales are not large. There is a fair stock of tomatoes held on which holders look for a good profit. Corn is also very firm. Salmon are quite a full stock. In fruits there is a fair sale. Gallon apples are rather dull. Oysters are very firm. In domestic fish, haddies are very scarce. Clams and scallops, which have an increasing sale are in very light supply. Sardines and kippered herring are a fair stock.

Green Fruit—Dealers have to be contented with light business, though heated cards enable some outside business to be done. Apples are unchanged in price. In oranges more California stock is seen. Quality is good. Valencias are quite freely bought. Lemons keep low. Grapes are dull. Cranberries are firm, and sales light.

Dried Fruit—Owing to large sales before Christmas, little business is expected at this season, and dealers are not disappointed. In all lines of raisins good stocks are held. The market in loose raisins is rather firmer, as the California association which it was though might reduce prices this month advise there will be no change at least till June, and perhaps not then. Currants are unchanged. Dates are low. Figs are out of season, also peels. Evaporated apples are rather higher. There is little sale for dried. Good onions are higher. In peanuts there is continued steady advance.

Sugar—Market is quite firm. The sale is for granulated. Business is, however, rather quiet. Canadian beet sugar has been offered here during the past week. This will complicate the situation, meaning more competition for the guild.

Molasses—The situation is unchanged. Business is rather quiet. Buyers are afraid and are not in the market for round lots. Some new Barbadoes was received this week. This is earlier than usual. There is quite a stock of old goods here, particularly of Porto Rico. The position is such, however, that prices will not force sales.

Fish—There is a fair supply of frozen cod and haddock. In frozen herring, while receipts are not large they are better than for some few years. Shipments of finnan haddies have been large. Supplies are, however, likely to fall off. Lobsters are a fair catch. In dry fish, pickled and smoked herrings, the market is firm, particularly for smoked herring.

Flour, Feed and Meal—In flour there is a fair sale. The market is very firm. Oats are firm at rather higher prices. The high price of oatmeal is maintained, but buyers are backward. Feed is dull. Cornmeal is unchanged. Beans are quite firm, with quite a few primes held. Yellow eyes have a steady sale. Barley is firm. Peas are scarce and high. Blue peas are about out of the market. Dealers are already pushing for seed business.

COCOA

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Feb. 8, 1904.

WEATHER conditions have improved somewhat, which has made it easier to secure trade. Business is quiet and not much activity is expected until navigation at the shore ports open, which is usually after the middle of March. The talk of the week has been the railway accident on Tuesday, when the Montreal fast express left the rails and rolled down a 28 foot embankment, injuring more or less seriously all on board, and killing two persons, viz., Conductor Duncan and Mrs. John Glassey. There are few travellers in Nova Scotia, commercial or otherwise, who do not feel deeply the death of Conductor "Bob" Duncan. He had been on the I. C. R. for 47 years, and was known and liked by all. Mrs. Glassey was the wife of John Glassey of the firm of Kelley & Glassey, wholesale wine and spirit merchants, Halifax.

There has been a great deal of complaint lately from retailers regarding the quality of the beans shipped them by wholesale houses. This, of course, is due to the fact that the bean crop of 1903 was a poor quality, a large proportion being discolored by rain and not drying out as white as usual, thus making the beans appear worse than they really are for practical uses. One local dealer states that it is now impossible to get any primes which have not an undue proportion of dark colored beans, and he says this is illustrated by the fact that the difference in price between prime and handpicked beans is now 47 to 50 cents, whereas the difference in normal seasons is not over 15 cents.

* * *

Manitoba flours were advanced 15 cents per barrel last week and there was a further advance of 15 cents per 100 lbs. on oatmeal. At the present mill prices it is claimed that oatmeal should be jobbing at $5.00 or fully one cent a pound over last month's prices. At this season of the year the consumption is heavy but there is a feeling in the trade that millers are pushing the prices too high for their own interests, as there is a distinct increase in the popularity of package breakfast foods, and this will be stimulated by the increase in the cost of oatmeal. Cornmeal is now lower than it was in December, notwithstanding that corn in outside markets now costs five cents a bushel more than in December. The temporary local weakness in cornmeal is the result of the failure of a milling firm in the western part of this province. This firm had on hand considerable corn which passed into the control of a bank and was sold for what it would bring in the interests of the creditors. The weakness in cornmeal thus occasioned has now about passed away and prices will shortly be again advanced on a level with market conditions elsewhere.

* * *

There has been a local scarcity of matches of late, but supplies are now ample for requirements. Owing to the destruction of the factory from which a number of Canadian manufacturers obtained their splints, they were unable to produce the usual quantities, and for a time jobbers had difficulty in securing their supplies. This condition has now passed away and no further difficulty is anticipated.

* * *

Smoked herring promises to be very scarce for the balance of the season. The quantities held in stock by dealers here and at St. John are much smaller than usual, and it is believed there are very few more to come forward.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Feb. 6th, 1904.

TRADE is slow due somewhat to the extreme cold weather and to the time of year. The weeks preceding the annual bonspiel are always dull and not more so this year than usual. The annual bonspiel opens here on the 10th and everything points to a more than usually successful gathering. During the week the majority of travellers have come in off the road and will remain in the city until after the bonspiel is over.

Flour—The flour market has been active and prices have advanced 10 cents per sack for all territory west from Fort William to the Coast. This makes the price $2.55 for No. 1 patent in 98 lb. sacks, $2.40 for No. 2 and $2.05 for No. 3.

Sugars—The advance in sugar prices in the east has not yet been reflected in the market here which are steady and unchanged.

Coffee—The prices here are firm and have advanced during the week, but there seems some difference in opinion among the houses, some quoting 10 to 10½ for No. 5 Rio and others as high as 11½c. The sales at this time of the year are not specially heavy.

Dried and Evaporated Fruits—Steady trade is being done but prices have not changed for over two weeks and are likely to remain steady unless some unforseen contingency should arise.

Canned Goods—All canned vegetables are moving steadily at the prices quoted last week. Peas and corn are particularly firm.

Green Fruit—The movement has been very slight for the week and will probably be light until the weather is milder. Prices are steady and unchanged. The staple lines offered just now are apples and oranges—oranges, $3.25 to $4 a case; fancy California lemons, $5; apples, Spies, $4, and other varieties, $3.50; Malaga grapes, $8; bananas, by express, $4 per bunch; California celery, 90c. per dozen. The car of this celery mentioned last week arrived and is of fine quality.

Vegetables—The movement of vegetables has necessarily been light and potatoes have held very firm. Farmers' loads are worth 75c., and retail potatoes are $1.00 per bushel. This price will decline as soon as the weather is mild enough to admit of opening supplies at country points and bringing car lots.

Cured Meats—Market is steady with a good demand and prices unchanged. It is thought in the event of war sending up the American market that prices here will go higher. At present quotations are: hams 13½c., shoulders 9c., bacon bellies 13½c., backs 11½c., spiced rolls 11c., dry salt long clear 9c., smoked long clear 11c.

Eggs—The supplies have not increased and new laid eggs are almost impossible to get. Dealers offer 22c. for fresh gathered.

Butter—Receipts have been very light all week. Good fresh table butter in bricks is worth 21 to 22c., and tubs 17 to 18c. There is a good deal of very ordinary stock to be bought, and this brings about 12c. to 14c. for tubs of better grade. The demand is for a first-class article, and there is very little offering.

Notes.

Bank clearings for the week have been very good, showing an increase of 20 per cent. over last year and 5 per cent. over last week.

The Winnipeg option market is now in full swing and trading very lively. The new departure seems to have caught on and the members of the clearing house have gone further and established a call board, which is also very popular.

Mr. Lloyd T. Mewburn, a member of the firm of James Turner & Co., of the Canada Grocers, Limited, was in Winnipeg on his way to Calgary, where he will establish himself as manager of the company's new branch at that point. This makes the eleventh branch they have in operation. Mr. Mewburn, in speaking to a reporter concerning the opening, said that the business done in the West during 1903 was large, and so much ahead of preceding years that the company had decided to build a warehouse in the West and had selected Calgary as a point that would provide, by its central position, an admirable distributing point. The firm will still carry on a business in the West from Hamilton, where their headquarters are, and none of their travellers will be taken off the road. The opening of a Western branch, however, gives them a Western stand, that is, a home here, "and it is a peculiar thing," said Mr. Mewburn, "that we have found that sellers prefer to dispose of their goods to Western houses every time in preference to Eastern houses."

WILLIAM FISCHER DEAD.

THE death occurred, on Monday last at his late residence, Ontario St., Toronto, of Wm. Fischer, for the past thirty years a traveller and the oldest active member of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada. Born in Muhlhausen, Saxony, Prussia, Germany, on August 10, 1828, he served in the German army under Emperon Wilhelm I. He came to New York in 1846, and later in the year settled in Waterloo, Ontario, where he conducted a general store for over twenty years, and was a J. P. The last thirty years of his life was spent as a traveller for many years with the Pure Gold Mfg. Co., and afterwards with the Toronto Coffee and Spice Co. He married Miss Margaret Davidson, Aberdeen, Scotland, who predeceased him in 1885. He is survived by one son, Wm. G. Fischer, wholesale leather merchant, and two daughters, the Misses Margaret and Elizabeth. He was connected with Westminster Presbyterian church. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

Sell High-Grade Goods.

A GOOD many grocers selling confectionery content themselves with handling lines that have no distinctive character, and of indifferent quality. No reputation can be built up on goods of this class. The way to establish reputation, a reputation which will attract trade, is to handle superior goods. In the confectionery department it will be found to pay to carry a fair range of chocolates and bonbons of first-class quality. The necessary investment is small and the gains both immediate and continuous are worth having and sure. The gospel of high-grade goods cannot be too diligently preached.

MOONEY BISCUIT AND CANDY CO.

THE Home of Perfection Cream Sodas is how the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company, of Stratford, describe their fine and commodious plant. On visiting this model factory, one is struck with the scrupulous cleanliness displayed throughout the various departments and the sanitary conveniences such as commend themselves to every lover of comfort and health. The factory is a large building of white brick, and is five stories in height, 196 feet long and 70 feet wide, and is lighted with its own electric light plant which supplies three hundred lights. From the artesian well pumped by their own engine is supplied the purest and best water and in every respect every labor and money-saving device known to the manufacturing business has been acquired.

Mr. Mooney, who is president and manager of the company, prides himself on the fact that no one ounce of other than creamery butter has entered the factory since beginning business five months ago. To this fact doubtless there is due in a large measure the gratifying reputation these goods have already attained, in the Canadian market. Perfection Cream Sodas and the large variety of sweet biscuits put up by the Mooney Co. have in this short time become in many parts of Canada a very welcome and appreciated article.

Besides biscuits this company make a great variety of Candies such as chocolates, creams, bon-bons, gross goods and many other lines too numerous to mention. It might be said, however, that "Avon chocolates with the name on every drop" would appear to have impressed themselves on the public taste. The greatest possible care is taken in the manufacture of these to see that nothing enters into their make up which might mar the ideal set before it by the company, of producing the choicest chocolates manufactured in Canada. If this ideal is followed, as it doubtless will be, the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company should be a substantial success and an important addition to the manufacturing interests of Canada.

A SATISFACTORY TRIP.

MR. W. H. TROOP, of Messrs. Black Bros. & Co., Halifax, N. S., passed through Montreal this week on his way home from a business trip extending as far west as Winnipeg. Mr. Troop reported most encouragingly as to business, and is of the opinion that the pioneer work so far done in the direction of calling the attention of the trade and the consumers to the excellent qualities of Nova Scotian "Sea Fruit," and particularly his company's brands of prepared fish, "Halifax," "Bluenose" and "Acadia," will result in increased demand for fish generally. Mr. Troop's opinion of Winnipeg was most flattering to the rising giant of the West, the well laid out streets, the splendid business blocks, and the general air of activity prevailing, struck him as a particularly encouraging feature presaging future greatness.

Mr. Troop expressed himself as highly pleased with the reception he received from the trade genrally, Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba merchants alike according him hearing and attention. "I may say that the introduction through the columns of The Canadian Grocer facilitated my work very materially, and I do not hesitate to say that it was the means of securing more than one order for my company. I was able to trace direct results through your columns, and having been somewhat sceptical on the point of the order-producing power of advertisements, it will be a compliment to you to say that I have been disillusionized."

Mr. Troop made his business headquarters during his stay in Montreal in the offices of A. H. Brittain & Co., Board of Trade, his company's Quebec and Ontario representatives.

A COLD STORAGE CALENDAR.

Cold Storage and Ice Trades Review has issued a very handsome ittle calendar and memorandum book bound in soft red leather and lettered in gold. It contains a great deal of condensed information relative to cold storage and is altogether a very creditable little booklet.

PURE GOLD TALK.

No. 4.

And now we come to Extracts. How often has the grocery trade wished it had never seen or heard of this or that extract. Fine bottles and fine names and fine assertions can't make the extract good. The man who makes a good extract is worthy of high rewards. It takes character perhaps more than anything else to make strictly good, honest, wholesome Extracts. The temptations are so many and the risk of discovery so small.

But the public will find out, and later on the grocer, if the extracts are poor.

PURE GOLD EXTRACTS stand out like a beacon light. Suspicion is never attached to them. They are honest, and they are value. There are other good extracts, and we are glad of it. We can't hope to have everybody's extract account. The grocer who has doubt, who has bought his experience not once but several times, can never go astray if he pins his faith on

MEETING TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on the evening of February 8th at St. George's Hall, the president, F. W. Johnson, in the chair

The "At Home" committee in charge of the recent annual reception given under the auspices of the association reported that this year's function was the most successful and the most largely attended of any in the history of the association. To the caterers, R. J. Lloyd & Company, great credit was due. Not a single complaint having been heard.

It was moved by Mr. Panter, seconded by Mr. Boyd, that the association ask Mr. Blain, of Eby, Blain & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto, to come and address the members of the association on "Things of Interest to the Grocery Trade" at their next regular meeting.

The association decided to take advantage of the offer of Geo. Weston, of the Model Bakery Company, Toronto, to show them through the factory when in full operation at night. The date has been fixed for February 19, and any grocer wishing to join the members of the association on this occasion may do so by notifying the secretary, E. B. Nettlefield, at 35 Amelia street. It is expected that a large number of grocers will avail themselves of this invitation to visit one of the largest bakeries in Toronto and that many in the trade outside the association will respond to the friendly overtures of its members.

It was moved by Mr. Davies, seconded by Mr. Panter, that the association congratulate Mr. Laporte, wholesale grocer, Montreal, on his election to the mayorate of the Canadian metropolis for 1904.

Finally the asociation decided to present Mr. Bell, their president for 1903, with a small token in recognition of the excellent service rendered by him to the association during the past year.

GREEN FRUITS

British Columbia Fruit.

SOME interesting facts regarding the fruit industry in the Prairie Province were brought out at the recent meeting of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association. The growing commercial importance of the industry is evidenced by the increased shipments by freight and express, as the following figures show: There were carried by the C.P.R. during 1902, 1,469 tons of fruit, while in 1903, 1,987 1-2 tons were carried; an increase of 35 per cent. The Dominion Express Co. carried in 1897, 70 tons of fruit; in 1901, 378 tons, in 1902 483 tons; in 1903 over 676 tons. The establishment of a fruit cannery in New Westminster is assured, which will employ 40 to 50 hands during the season. This will give growers a market for their surplus fruit.

At the present time British Columbia fruit practically rules the markets as far east as Calgary. The markets of the Northwest, though vast and valuable, are very scattered; Winnipeg is the great wholesale centre, and is of such importance that it enters into the calculations of fruit growers all over the continent, consequently the competition there is keen. Orders are being received from Australia, Hawaii, China and Japan, and efforts were made last Fall to get a foothold in Britain. On October 16th last Messrs. Stirling & Pitcairn, of Kelowna, shipped the first carload of British Columbia apples, consisting of Spies, Baldwins, Ontarios and Canada Reds to the British market. They arrived in Glasgow on November 9th, in first-class condition and were sold at an average price of about 6s. per box, while Eastern Canada apples were selling in the same place at about one dollar per barrel less, figuring three and one-half boxes to the barrel. However, when the extra freight charges to Montreal were deducted, the net returns were hardly satisfactory. Enquiries are now being received from other firms who saw the British Columbia fruit and learned that it gave first-class satisfaction, so that it is thought that if more and larger shipments were sent forward, better prices would be realized. Concessions in the way of freight rates will have to be obtained, if this export trade is to be developed.

Apples for Cider.

An English cider-maker says large quantities of Canadian apples have been used in cider-making. "Canadian apples," he says, "are not distinctively cider varieties; the fruit is carelessly and loosely packed, so that some is damaged in transit. Cider made from Canadian apples lacks the distinctive characteristics that mark English fruit, but when blended with the latter it makes an excellent mixture."

Black Currants Wanted.

Reporting to the department of trade and commerce, Mr. Harrison Watson, curator of the Canadian section of the Imperial Institute in London, calls attention to the growing demand in the mother country for fruits. Fresh fruit is preferred, but when this is not available, it will be taken in the form of pulp. He says Canadians have shipped raspberries to the Old Country, but they have not yielded a profit owing to the fact that when they were sent over they have not commanded good return. Mr. Watson suggests that Canadian exporters of fruit should devote themselves to black currants. Not only is this variety used by manufacturers, he [illegible] but it is required for cordials, essences and similar purposes. Some 17,000 tons of black currents are used by the British jam manufacturers yearly, much of which large supply is imported.

Pack Apples in Boxes.

THE London (England) Fruitgrower and Fruiterer reports that the apple trade remains in a firm state, and that market prices for the best kinds have risen from 6d. to 2s. a barrel. With regard to the packing, they say:

"We notice now, however, that in sorting over a barrel for best trade work there are a very large proportion that have to go on one side for cheap sale. It is not because these fruits are actually bad, but the barrel bruises have penetrated quite half through some of the fruits. It does seem a pity that the packers in Canada and the United States should persist in putting this fine fruit into barrels at all. We regard them as being quite as worthy of a box as are the Albermarles. The same holds good of the best Blenheims. We have seen superb Nova Scotian packings of this fruit in barrels this season that have had quite half the fruit they contained spoiled, in so far as best dessert was concerned, by the barrel bruise. It would have been quite easy to have obtained double the money for the same bulk of fruit had it been in boxes. There is much spot among some of the Greenings again this year, and it really looks as if spraying was as much neglected by some growers on the other side as on this. Golden Russets are good, and the best samples fetch as much as 22s. the barrel.

"During the past week 22,645 barrels of apples have entered the London market from various Canadian sources."

Florida Orange Industry.

ORANGE growers say that $500 an acre is the lowest sum for which wild land can be converted into a bearing orange grove. This looks formidable to a man with little or no capital, when he considers that he must have at least ten acres of trees to give him eventually a respectable income. But the outlay is spread over eight or ten years, and if the grove maker is an able-bodied man he can put in his own labor for a large share of it. Besides only a small part of the expenses comes at the beginning. Doubtless this is why so many poor men have gone into orange growing and have done so well at it. When a grove is in full bearing it is worth $500 and upward for acre, according to circumstances, and a grove may be so productive and so well kept as to sell for $2,500 an acre, but that is a fancy price, and the purchaser must be some Northern capitalist. The stranger of small means who arrives in Florida intending to go into the orange business, usually finds that he must go from 3 to 5 miles back from the railroad for his land.

Three times in the first year the grower must give each tree his food of one pound of fertilizer. Four or five times he must hoe around the trees, and five times in the Spring he must run the cultivator all over the grove; and after letting the grass grow throughout the Summer, he must plough it under in the Fall. This is the routine for the first year. At the end of ten years the grower has spent almost exactly $2,000 in money in the making of his ten acre grove, and has done in the neighborhood of $3,000 worth of work upon it. As a money producer it should give the grower $800 a year profit irrespective of his own labors.

Germany's Apple Exports.

U. S. Counsul Frank H. Mason writes that official statistics show that in 1900, Germany imported 124,874 tons of fresh apples; in 1901, 118,233 tons; and in 1902, 112,635 tons—of which the United States supplied 1,760 tons, 1,972 tons, and 5,835 tons, respectively. This year the American contribution will far surpass that of any previous season, but it will be after all only a small fraction—probably not more than 8 or 10 per cent.—of the aggregate apple imports of Germany. There is, therefore, and will always be, abundant room for expansion in this branch of American exports to Germany. Not for a generation to come, if ever, can the native-grown supply be expanded and improved to meet the steadily growing demand. The advantages of superior quality and generally lower price, the heritages of a fertile soil and genial climate, will be permanently in favor of the American fruit. If the trade is vigorously pushed and judiciously managed, the tendency of our fresh-fruit exports will be to replace more and more the vast quantities of apples that are now imported from Switzerland, Austria, Holland and Italy.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

War and Wheat Prices.

THE sudden outbreak of war in the Orient after such a length of time spent in diplomatic skirmishing, has not had the effect on wheat that the advent of war is usually expected to have. Wheat has indeed advanced both in Canada and Chicago since last week, but there are conditions which explain this apart from the war, notably the impassible state of the roads and the blockade on the railways. Indeed there are those who maintain that unless the war assumes a much more threatening aspect than at present, any effect it might have has already been discounted in present prices. Japan is not a wheat consuming or producing country and the same is true of Corea the scene of hostilties There is of course the possibility of Russia forbidding the exportation of wheat, but this is unlikely. Russia is in need of cash as much almost as of foodstuffs and the prohibition of the exportation of wheat would deprive her of a very much needed source of cash.

Of course a prolonged war or one which threatened to involve Britain would undoubtedly cause wheat to go up with a bound.

Wheat is firm from other causes than the war, how much the war will effect future fluctuations is as yet problematical.

From whatever cause, however, the Canadian farmers are profiting handsomely.

Russian Crop of Winter Cereals in 1903.

ACCORDING to figures just published by the Russian statistical bureau, writes Ethelbert Watts, U. S. Consul-General, St. Petersburg, Russia, the combined yield of winter wheat and rye in 1903 amounted to 1,064,226,280 bushels, showing an average increase of 83,355,394 bushels for the last five years, but a decrease of 35,392,343 bushels as compared with the yield of 1902. The net amount, after deduction of the quantity necessary for sowing, is 875,930,916 bushels, which makes 6.94 bushels per person, against 7.35 bushels for 1902. The total yield of winter rye amounts to 857,819,042 bushels and winter wheat 204,407,238 bushels, which makes an average of 5.56 bushels of rye and 1.39 bushels of wheat per person, against 5.76 bushels and 1.59 bushels, respectively, in 1902. The crop of rye is classified as follows: The best yield was in the Volga provinces, which amounted to 175.6 per cent. as compared with the average yield during the last five years; the Steppe provinces, 165.6 per cent.; the Siberian provinces, 144.4 per cent.; and the new Russian provinces, 127.3 per cent. The yield was bad in the lake and industrial provinces, amounting to 59.8 per cent. and 83.9 per cent., respectively, of the average yield for the last five years. The best yield of winter wheat was in the Ural provinces, amounting to 185.9 per cent.; the Volga provinces, 176.4 per cent.; and the new Russian provinces, 141.3 per cent. The yield was bad in the lake provinces, being 60.4 per cent. and in the industrial provinces, 81.4 per cent., of the average yield for the last five years. The yield of straw is estimated at 48,139,572 tons, which makes 80.5 per cent. of rye straw and 81.5 per cent. of wheat straw per 2.7 acres. The yield of hay was 16,370,070 tons, or 0.63 ton per acre, from meadows overflowed with water, and 39,813,651 tons, 0.56 ton per acre, from meadows not overflowed with water.

United States Bonding Laws.

A despatch from Washington says that Representative Stevens has introduced his much-talked-of bill for the improvement of trade with Canada. The bill provides that when wheat is imported into the United States to be ground in bonded mills and then exported as flour, the bran and other by-products may be withdrawn for domestic consumption after the payment of such duties as would have accrued had these by-products been imported direct. Treasury agents are to appraise the duties.

Mr. Stevens believes that the United States must first have a way to increase trade with Canada by trade concessions, the Dominion also to make concessions. He believes that American farmers have nothing to fear from his bill and that no competition will result under its provisions that will work them injury. On the other hand, this bill, if enacted, may lead to free lumber, which would be of inestimable benefit to farming communities.

The Latest Cereal Story.

THE refreshing part of a story which the New York Times recounts is not the stupidity of man in his domestic aspect. The particular man concerned is an actor whose wife—an actress—is an earnest advocate of the theory that food should fit the consumer rather than the reverse. Consequently there are periods when milk flows incessantly through the household menu. Again it is hot water, and at other times nuts, fruits and grains alone are relied upon to nourish genius to its finest flower.

Once, in the grain age, the wife was called away to a rehearsal that was likely to last well into the afternoon.

A Pointer

The excitement caused by war and rumors of war has an immediate effect on the wheat markets of the world. The Ontario farmer appreciates this like all others as it means greatly enhanced prices for his grain. The natural effect is that the cost of all wheat products must inevitably be advanced, and it is not at all likely that prices will react for a long time to come. The point is that this is a good time to buy Flaked Wheat. We are still quoting favorable figures on our well known "White Swan" Brand, and invite enquiries for round lots. State Ownership Demanded.

The Manitoba Grain Growers' convention in session at Winnipeg last week passed resolutions recommending the immediate construction of a railroad to Hudson Bay and also affirmed its belief in government construction, ownership and operation of railroads as the ultimate solution of the transportation question in Canada.

Unsound Flour.

A WRITER in a journal devoted to the baking trade states that any wheat that is harvested under unfavorable circumstances, such as excessive moisture, must produce unsound flour. This flour would not necessarily be classed as unfit for consumption, but it will not make a first-class loaf.

Flour made from wheat thus garnered must be poor in gluten and will contain an excess of moisture. Not only will the flour make poor bread, but the quantity of loaves per barrel will be less than with a dry flour with a high percentage of gluten.

There is another feature about soft flours; they may contain a good percentage of gluten, yet return a very indifferent loaf. In this case the gluten is soft and rotten. Good gluten is always very tough and elastic; hence it has the property of holding the carbonic acid gas in suspension until it fully distends the dough, either in the doughing or in the baking stage. Conversely, the poor gluten breaks and allows the gas to escape.

Flours that have a low percentage of gluten usually contain a high psrcentage of soluble proteids in a considerably active diastasic state. The effect of an excessive quantity of diastase in the flour is to cause the fermentation to break down, as it were, during the doughing stage.

It is not unusual for a baker to have a dough that feels strong and molds well fail in the oven. The verdict is that the "dough did not spring in the oven," but the cause is very seldom sought for. This is one of the peculiarities of flour that is poor in gluten or that contains poor gluten. But the usual feature—and one by which weak flour is easily recognized—is the softening or slackening of doughs after they are mixed. Flour that contains an excess of moisture will also contain an excess of bacteria, which will mature the doughs before the usual stage and thus cause sour bread.—American Miller.

Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Winnipeg Grain and Produce Exchange was held in the Board of Trade building of that city last week. In the absence of the president, F. Phillips, Vice-President A. R. Hargraft occupied the chair. The president's report gave a very lucid summary of the year's work, and indicated the work which was yet confronting the exchange. The council's report shows that the membership roll now contains the names of 230 active and 22 associate members. The number of new memberships purchased from the exchange during the year was 20, and the number of transfers of seats 25.

The election of officers resulted as follows :

Cereal Notes.

The Halifax grain elevator is reported to be working full swing.

Wheat reached the dollar mark in the sample room of the Chicago Board of Trade last week.

A despatch says the grain elevators in the harbor of Baltimore have not been destroyed by fire. They are across the river.

The Journal de St. Petersburg says the Ministry of Commerce officially denies the reports that the government intends to prohibit the exportation of Russian grain.

Western Ontario mills have been seriously inconvenienced of late by the blockade on the railroads, it being impossible in many instances to secure delivery of shipments of wheat stalled in some snow banks along the road.

The annual meeting of the Winnipeg Grain and Produce Exchange Clearing Association will be held in the board room of the Winnipeg Grain and Produce Exchange, at 3 p. m., Monday, March 7th, 1904, for the election of directors and the transaction of general business.

A CORRECTION.

In a recent number of The Grocer a typographical error made it appear that the authorized capital of S. J. Major, Limited, Ottawa, was $20,000 instead of $200,000, as it really is. Although empowered by their charter to carry on a retail business the firm have no intention whatever of departing from the strictly wholesale grocery and liquor business which they have heretofore carried on.

"Force-thoughts"

BY SUNNY JIM

I.

I HAVE added a new word to the language—"Force-thought." It's the quality which marks the members of "The 'Force' Society."

¶Force-thought is something like forethought, only it begins sooner and goes further.

Force-thought is the kind of thinking that when put into action accomplishes things—makes them easier.

It is the sort of thinking that nets a profit to the thinker.

¶It recognizes that in order to think for profit—to think hard and clearly with one's mind—one must begin with one's body and eat the sort of food that nourishes the body without burdening the stomach and supplies the brain with the food it needs to think with.

¶The one food which best helps clear, concentrated thinking is "FORCE."

The first principle of Force-thought therefore is eating "FORCE."

But there's more to it.

Be Sunny!

Yours truly,

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

MONEY is in excellent demand now in Canada. The activity in many lines of manufacture, the opening up of new stores throughout the West and in New Ontario, called into being by the increased settlement of the country and the liberal purchases of goods for the Spring trade, are all absorbing large sums of money, and rates are being well maintained. Higher rates of interest are being obtained on real estate loans than a year ago. The banks and other financial institutions are in the best position they have occupied in years.

• • •

A sure sign of the growing security and stability of the money market is the fact that since the first of January, 1904, railroad and other corporations in high credit, needing large amounts of additional capital, either for the purpose of extending their operations or making up for inadequate working capital, have experienced no serious difficulty in obtaining the necessary assistance from bankers. It marks a significant change in the attitude of financiers throughout the country from that of the Summer and Autumn of 1903 when the so-called undigested securities gave such a chill to the investing public. It also goes to show that an unimpaired condition of credit, where corporations of the highest grade are concerned, will lead to an equal degree of readiness on the part of investors to take on favorable terms the obligations of railroad companies. Where the calls on the money market are for the purpose of financing deals, combinations and new acquisitions, instead of on capital account, the public who have recently learned a bitter lesson in the school of experience will be prompt to detect the difference between them and the legitimate requirements for new capital with which to provide for additional facilities, new equipment, etc., and will undoubtedly be lead to exercise a certain degree of conservatism and hesitancy.

• • •

The professional man may be in the enjoyment of a good income, but is not often successful in accumulating an estate. Wholly absorbed in his profession he has little opportunity to study methods of money-making, or to master the problems of finance and investment. To such men life insurance is peculiarly adapted. They require little capital in their business. It is generally merely a question whether they will spend their entire income, or save a part of it. In the latter case, life insurance presents the most available plan. A portion of the income thus applied, provides for the family in case of the death of the insured, and guarantees a competence for his old age.—Life Insurance Independent.

• • •

The Bank of Britsh North America, Toronto, is again occupying its old premises at the corner of Yonge and Wellington streets, which have been entirely remodelled. Improvements to the extent of $60,000 have been made in its building, the upper floors of which have been handsomely fitted up as up-to-date business offices, the second flat for the new Toronto clearing house, with the ground floor is occupied exclusively by the Bank of British North America. The prevailing tone in the banking offices proper is buff. Wainscoting counters and pillars are of onyx and Italian marble. High arched ceilings lend an air of spaciousness to the interior which for quiet elegance is not to be surpassed by anything in the city. The general manager, Mr. Inglis, says business has never been more promising than at the present time. His own bank has reason to be more than satisfied, and it is gradually enlarging its staff to keep pace with the increasing demands of business.

STEALING INSURANCE.

IT is claimed that at least 30 or 40 per cent. of all claims at fires of $10,000 or less in New York are fraudulent and that the fire insurance companies have been cheated out of millions this year. Authorities are investigating this alleged systematic swindling and have already brought to light some of the inner workings of the system. Not only are prominent merchants implicated, but members of the fire patrol of the various insurance companies, city officials and public adjusters as well. One adjuster recently convicted confesses that of 300 cases adjusted by him only two were not fraudulent.

Such adjustors will take contracts to adjust a fire loss on any terms. Then they will endeavor to prevail upon their client to pad his loss, generally by bribing the member of the fire patrol left by the insurance company to watch the property. They will pay him to wet or to destroy goods on the premises where the fire has occurred. Or they will pay him to move goods from a floor where no damage has been done to that where the fire has actually been, or to put labels of more expensive goods on the damaged packages.

Another frequent form of swindling is where the merchant goes to wholesale dealers after a fire and obtains receipted bills for goods that never have been delivered. Altrations are thus made in the books to suit the demands of the occasion or else the books are destroyed. The insurance companies have apparently been connived at from all quarters, now it looks as if the connivers would have to pay for their folly.

WHY THE BANKS PREFER THE MERCHANT.

DURING 1903 Canadian banks granted the demands of merchants, manufacturers, farmers, and the general public in loans amounting to $63,516,473 more than those of 1902. During the same period call loans or loans on stock collateral decreased $12,849,301. At intervals through the year brokers tried to borrow largely from the banks but were politely turned down. On the other hand the class of borrowers first mentioned seems to have had no difficulty in obtaining all the funds it needed. Brokers naturally enough are beginning to suspect that the merchants have been given an undue preference.

The question arises, why have the banks preferred the merchant to the broker? In deciding to whom he will end a banker is influenced among other things by the considerations of profit, the desire to have the trade and commerce of the country run along smoothly and evenly, by the wish to give reasonable assistance to the devlopment of natural resources, but chiefly perhaps by motives of self-interest, he wishes to advance his own bank, to solidify and strengthen its hold on profitable business of a permanent kind.

With reference to profit, the rates on call loans in Canada rule now at 5 1-2 per cent. but fall to 5 per cent. and lower at certain seasons. On the other hand, mercantile loans are now yielding 5 1-2 and 6 per cent. for the best accounts. A banker dreads being loaded up with funds during a long period of slack demand, whnn clll loans even at 4 per cent. go a-begging. It is no time to secure desirable mercantile connections; every bank is looking for them. Now, however, when money is tight and most of the banks carrying all the business they can stand, is the opportunity for the large banks to make good connections with an eye to the future. Such accounts will go far to secure the desired employment for funds through periods of inactivity; the growing time in Canada is bound to affect the wealthiest and most enterprising firms for years to come and they more than any others will require addtiional credit if they are to urn the current of commercial and industrial expansion to their own profit.

Again it may be in the best interests of trade and commerce if a judicious restraint is imposed upon the customers of the broker; no great harm is done if Jones, the head clery in an industrial establishment is prevented from taking a fly in "Canadian Pacific" or "Twins," because the banks are not lending freely on stocks; real injury might follow if Brown, the manufacturer, was refused an advance to enable him to get in his raw material.

The most obvious reason, however, for the present attitude of Canadian bankers is the vast contraction of values in stocks. They can hardly be blamed if in the interests of their stock holders they use the opportunity of establishing lucrative connections with desirable business concerns, rather than to neglect these and make loans to broking houses on the uncertain security of the speculative market which will be thrown back on their hands just as soon as money works easier.

AN EXCEPTION.

ONE of the Toronto dailies recently referred to the fact that directors of Canadian banks are comparatively small holders of the stock in the institutions represented by them. That such is not the case in the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation is vouched for by the president, who says in his annual address that the Toronto directors represent among themselves, their individual holdings and that of their respective families, and as trustees for others, over $1,200,000 of the company's stock, or one-fifth of the total stock, and besides, are holders of bonds and debentures of the company or on deposit receipt to the extent of about $500,000.

BANKING AND INSURANCE NOTES.

THE Canadian Bank of Commerce has opened a new branch of their bank at Moose Jaw, Assa. Mr. R. A. Rumsey has been moved from Innisfail, Alta., to take charge and Mr. H. M. Stewart has been appointed manager of the branch at Innisfail in place of Mr. Rumsey. This new branch of the bank increases the number of its branches in Canada to 101 and in Canada and the United States to 106.

The Bank of Toronto has opened branches at Omemee, Oil Springs and at the corner of Queen street east and Bolton avenue, Toronto.

The annual meeting of the shareholders and directors of the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation was held on February 6, 1904, for the reception of the financial statement and report of the directors for the past year, for the election of directors, and for the transaction of other business.

At the annual meeting of the Bank of Toronto, held on 13th of January, the report presented showed the profits for the year to be $424,200.36 to which is added the amount brought forward from last year, $93,128.07, and the premimum on new stock issued, $454,430, making a total of $971,758.43. From this sum, after the payment of two dividends of five per cent. each, and sundry appropriations, the sum of $554,430 was transferred to rest account, making that account now $3,154,430, or $200,000 in excess of the paid-up capital. The report also stated that eight new branches had been opened during the year.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Make Department Attractive.

FROM information gleaned from travellers and wholesalers the tobacco department is every day becoming a more important part of the average grocery store.

The day when a few caddies of chewing and smoking, more or less indifferently kept, and stored away in an obscure corner behind the counter, is past. Tobacco is an article which even more than the average line must be displayed, and the more attractively the better. The grocer can do well by taking a leaf out of the book of the most successful cigar and tobacco stores. In some of our larger cities they are fitted up luxuriously. The floor, the counter, the shelves—all are kept scrupulously neat and clean. Goods are displayed in show cases or on glass shielded shelves, in such a way that the dark brown beauties the cigar smoker loves display themselves to the best effect without being allowed to deteriorate in quality. The business done by these smokers' clubs, as they might be termed, warrants the expense.

The average dealer is not expected to go to such lengths in making his tobacco department attractive, but a bright man can, with the expense of a show case or two, evolve a tobacco department that will be at once a credit and a silent but most effective salesman.

It pays to make this department attractive. Smokers are more critical than may be imagined.

Didn't Sell a Pipe.

CHARLES J. HOLTON, the leading tobacconist of Detroit, tells the following good story on himself: "In Detroit there is a school for the cure of stammering. One of the instructions given to the pupil after he has passed the preliminary stage of keeping absolutely silence for two or three days, is to speak slowly, and keep a finger moving as he talks. One day a man came into my store, put up his finger, and began to move it, as he did so slowly saying: 'I— want— to— look— at— a— pipe.' I showed him a dozen or so, to all of which he had some objection, which he would explain to me in his slow, deliberate way of talking, meantime keeping his finger moving according to the regulations of the school. Finally, after I had wasted an hour on him he said: 'I— am— a— member— of— the— school— for— cure— of— stammering.— The— proprietor— sends— us— out— to talk— with— the— merchants— for— experience.— I— don't— want— to— buy— a— pipe—' It is needless to remark that the next fellow that came in to give me the finger act was informed that I was busy just at that time, and could not wait upon him."
